Farm Agent Floyd McDaniel notes that poultry production is moving along at war speed in Montgomery county. The local hatchery, booked ahead for eight weeks, is trying to fill a record breaking demand for chicks.

Lumber dealers constructed and sold 26 brooder houses during February, and approximately the same number were built by farmers. There is considerable interest in both electric and lantern-type brooders in the county.

STAKES TOMATOES TO SIDE OF HOUSE

Fourteen-foot tomato plants staked to the sides of the house, and supplying fruits for four months, proved to Mrs. June Taylor and her sister, Mrs. Mary Ross, of Berea, that even a small Victory garden is worthwhile.

Under a south kitchen window, in a space 4 by 15 feet, they set Rutgers tomato plants on April 17, staking them at once. As the tomatoes grew, they were tied to the side of the house.

In May, six more plants were set under a west window in a space 3 by 18 feet. On July 8 the first fruit was picked, and from then until October 27, there was a constant supply, not only for their needs, but some for the neighbors, too.

In addition to tomatoes, this small garden provided beets and turnips for green, carrots, parsley, onions, radishes, green peppers and mint. Before killing frost came, a bushel of green tomatoes was picked, some to be made into pickles and mince meat, the rest to be wrapped in paper to ripen.

In McCracken county, there are approximately 1,400 producers of strawberries, with an average of 1.2 acres per farm.

FIRE EQUIPMENT PRIORITY GIVEN

BURLINGTON FIRE DEPARTMENT FOR PURCHASE OF EQUIPMENT—FINANCE CHAIRMAN REQUESTS DONATIONS.

A very welcomed announcement was forthcoming this week to the effect that the Burlington Fire Department has been granted sufficient priorities to purchase such equipment as will be needed in organing and operating a community volunteer fire department for this area.

Plans are being made now to work out all minor details and to raise approximately $2,500.00 to finance the department. Your money is need now. No money has been collected as yet, although many pledges have been turned in to the finance chairman. You can now turn in your money or checks to C. D. Benson, chairman. Make all checks payable to the Burlington Fire Department. A receipt of your money will be sent you by return mail.

All persons who are donating their time to the organization of this worthy and badly needed cause are very busy folks, and if you will get your contributions in as soon as possible it will be greatly appreciated and will speed the day when residents here will have adequate fire protection.

Several weeks will be required to perfect the organization after the equipment has been purchased. Therefore it is imperative that all money be turned in as soon as possible so the equipment can be purchased.

Your money will be well spent when it is used to protect your own property.

Local Men Attend Speaking At Beechwood

A. D. Yelton and A. B. Renaker were guests of W. R. Davis at the Father and Son night at Beechwood school, Ft. Mitchell, to hear radio commentator Gregor Zeimer tell of his experiences in Germany, where he taught school for several years.

Mr. Zeimer stated that he had talked with Adolph Hitler on several occasions. His address was most interesting and makes one appreciate the good old U. S. A.

School Band And Glee Club Will Give Concert At Burlington School

The Burlington School Band and Glee Club will give a concert Monday night, April 26th at the Burlington school auditorium.

The music group has been working hard to prepare this entertainment, and no doubt will be highly enjoyed by those attending. Among many selections, the band will play a specialty number "Determination." The choral group which was recently organized, consists of about thirty members. They will sing "The Bells of St. Mary" and "To a Wild Rose." Several of the band members and piano students will play solos.

Watch this paper next week for complete program.

REGISTER LABOR NEEDS, SAYS AGENT

APPLICATION BLANKS NOW AVAILABLE TO FARMERS—EXCHANGE SET-UP IS PLANNED FOR COUNTY.

Farm labor needs should be registered at the county office in the near future according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Application blanks are now available.

The application forms are of three types:

1. Workers-application — those who want to do farm work.
2. Employers' applications—those who wish to employ farm labor.
3. Custom work or machinery and labor exchange.

While the complete machinery for setting up a farm labor and machinery exchange program can probably not be completed for several weeks a complete file of all applications will be kept in the county agent's office. Every effort in the meantime will be used to bring together employer, employee and available machinery. The wholehearted cooperation of all interested farmers should prove most helpful.

Burlington Man Injured In Accident Sunday

Albert Buckler, of Burlington suffered a left leg fracture, internal injuries, and rib fractures when he fell and was run over by a tractor he was operating on the farm of W. E. Hentschel, near Burlington, Sunday morning.

Buckler was plowing a field for Hentschel when the accident occured. A cousin of Buckler stopped the tractor before the disc reached him.

Mr. Buckler was treated by a local doctor and rushed to St. Elizabeth Hospital for further examination and treatment. He is reported to be convalescing nicely.

Blood Bank To Be Visited Again By Boone Countians

Anyone desiring to visit the Blood Bank for the purpose of donating a pint of blood for our men in the Armed Services, is requested to contact Wilton Stephens, Burlington, or see any member of the Homemakers' Club. All reservations and transportation to Cincinnati will be provided.

Let us, on the home front do our part in helping those on the battle front. Your blood may save some soldier's life.

R. B. HUEY FARM SOLD TO OHIO MAN

ONE OF LARGEST REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS IN THIS SECTION FOR MANY YEARS—DR. CRUDINGTON IS PURCHASER.

The largest real estate transaction in this section for several years was closed last Saturday afternoon when Dr. R. L. Crudington of Cincinnati purchased the 300-acre farm of R. B. Huey four miles west of Burlington on the Woolper pike, including the dairy, herd, sheep, mules, feed, a portion of the farm tools and dairy equipment.

Mr. Huey purchased this farm from the Joseph Lillard estate 37 years ago and has kept the land in a high state of cultivation, the buildings in good repair and it is one of the best farms in the county.

Approximately 200 acres of this farm is in solid bluegrass with 42 acres alfalfa, 17 acres korean clover, 20 acres wheat and 12 acres woods.

The dwelling is an 8-room two-story structure, located on a high knoll, surrounded by large trees. There are two tenant houses, large dairy barn for 30 cows, horse barn, modern sheep barn, two other barns, 87-ton concrete silo, and many other outbuildings.

Mr. Huey does not have to give possession of the home until sometime this summer, and his son Franklin will remain on the farm as manager for the balance of this year. Mr. Alva Snow, dairyman on the farm will continue to operate the dairy for the purchaser.

Mr. Huey did not decide until Monday of last week to offer his farm for sale, and listed it with A. B. Renaker and J. G. Smith, who sold it to the first man that looked at the farm. The doctor plans to give the farm some of his person attention and continue to keep the land and buildings in good condition.

Dr. Crudington is a personal friend of Ben Castleman, who operates the White Horse Cafe, on Dixie Highway, just outside of Covington, and it was at the suggestion of Mr. Castleman that the doctor came to Boone County for his farm.

We are pleased to have such men as Dr. Crudington locate in our county. Congratulations Doctor on your good judgment in selecting this farm.

Louden-Suchanek

The marriage of Miss Lorains Suchanek, daughter of Mrs. Stephen Suchanek, Covington, Ky., and Pvt. James R. Louden, son of Mr. Jesse H. Louden, of Burlington, was solemnized at the home of Rev. R. H. Carter, pastor of the Florence Christian Church, April 5th.

The only attendants were the groom's sisters, Mrs. Alberta Staggs and Mrs. Lillian Webster.

The groom returned Tuesday to Camp Livingston, La., where he is stationed.

DONALDSON ENTERS RACE

FOR GOVERNOR—RESIGNS AS CHAIRMAN OF KENTUCKY STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

J. Lyter Donaldson, Carrollton attorney, banker and public official formally became a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor Thursday of last week. In becoming a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination Donaldson resigned as chairman of the Kentucky State Highway Commission.

Donaldson who by his announcement becomes one of the leading contenders for the Democratic nomination is 52 years old and was born in Carrollton April 10, 1891, the son of Judge J. A. and Mrs. Susie Donaldson.

Donaldson's father who died in 1930 had served as county attorney and county judge of Carroll county and had represented the Carroll county district in the state senate. His father founded the First National Bank of Carrollton in 1881. The bank has had only two presidents since its organization, Donaldson's father and himself, Donaldson becoming president after his father's death in 1930.

The candidate for governor has a lengthy record as a public official. He served as county attorney of Carroll county from 1921 until late in 1930 when he resigned to become a member of the Kentucky State Highway Commission. He served as a member of the commission from 1930 until January 1936. With the election of Governor Keen Johnson he was appointed chairman of the commission in January 1940 acting in this capacity until his resignation March 31st.

During his first tenure on the road body Donaldson served as a member of a committee which handled the details of financing and building the present system of Kentucky toll bridges.

Donaldson was educated in the public schools of Carroll county and later attended Virginia Military Institute, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Centre College and Cumberland University where he received his law degree in 1913.

He immediately entered the practice of law with his father and one of his brothers. The firm continues today under the name of G. A. and J. L. Donaldson. In addition to his banking and legal connections Donaldson also supervises the operation of three large farms in Carroll County.

Donaldson married his childhood sweetheart, Miss Jessie Hill, of Carrollton, in 1913 the year of his graduation from law school and his entry into the general practice of law. They do not have any children. He is a member of the Carrollton Presbyterian Church and has been active in the business and civic affairs of Carroll county for many years. He has served as treasurer for the Carroll county Chapter of the Red Cross since 1916 and holds that position today.

Donaldson, in addition to his brother G. A. Donaldson associated with him in the practice of law, has one sister, Mrs. Velma Cochran, and one other brother, Dr. Allen Donaldson, both of Carrollton. Donaldson is the youngest member of his family.

Father Of Erlanger Youth Seeks Definite Word In Army Report

Confirmation of a report that his son, Lt. Ralph Fulton 24, was killed in aerial combat over North Africa last month was being sought Saturday by Blaine Fulton, 201 Erlanger Road, Erlanger. The report was unofficial.

Fulton is Secretary-Treasurer of the Boone-Kenton Lumber Co., Inc. and Secretary of the Dixie Building and Loan Association.

Lt. Fulton has been in the service since July 1941. His twin brother, Bruce Fulton, an air cadet has been in the service two years.

LOCAL CHURCH PLANS REVIVAL

YOUNG PEOPLE WILL BE IN CHARGE OF YOUTH REVIVAL AT BURLINGTON BAPTIST CHURCH.

Beginning next Sunday, there will be a week of services at the Burlington Baptist Church, Rev. R. A. Johnson, pastor, announced this week. The young people will be in charge of this service.

Rev. C. B. Love, pastor of the Macedonia Baptist Church, Jonesville, Ky., will bring the message each evening. Special music will be featured at all services. Services will begin at 8:30 (E. W. T.)

The following subjects will be discussed by Rev. Love:

Sunday—"Sounding the Right Note."

Monday—"The Sufficiency of Jesus."

Tuesday—"The Challenge of Jesus."

Wednesday—"The Exultation of Jesus."

Thursday — "The Pre-eminence of Jesus.

Friday—"The Atonement of Jesus."

Saturday—"The Resurrection of Jesus."

Sunday—"If Not Jesus, What Then?"

The church extends to all an invitation to attend these services.

WORK ON AIRPORT TO BEGIN APRIL 26

TWO TEN-HOUR SHIFTS WILL BE ENGAGED IN CONSTRUCTION—200 LABORERS AND OTHER WORKMEN NEEDED.

Actual work on the $2,225,000 airport near Hebron will be started April 26, Frank Mashuda, Milwaukee, general contractor, announced Saturday at a conference with members of the Kenton County Fiscal Court, in Covington.

Mashuda said that when grading work was started, two ten-hour shifts would be engaged, with work continuing under floodlights during the night. The workmen will be employed on a six-day week.

Approximately 200 laborers and other workmen will be needed for the project, Mashuda said. A number of men of his organization will be brought here, but a majority of the labor will be recruited locally.

It is planned to start the work with a ceremony, with Kenton County Judge John B. Read turning the first spade of ground. Many state and county officials are expected to take part in the ceremony.

On recommendation of George Collopy, County Commissioner, it was decided to investigate the possibility of installing a permanent water line to the airport. Present plans call for installation of a temporary water line to supply water needed during construction of the project.

FAIR GROUNDS INTEREST HIGH

DONATIONS CONTINUE TO COME IN FROM MANY SOURCES IN COUNTY—PLAY GIVEN TO AID IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM.

Interest in Boone County Fair Grounds and recreational center continues as one of the lighter and recreational thoughts on our minds, despite our united all out interest in our war program. Donations on the fair grounds improvement program continue to come in, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Recently Thelma Anderson of Florence 4-H Club, the County Homemakers' Association, J. R. Eddins Garage, Burlington and several of the schools have turned in contributions for the grounds improvement to John L. Conner, treasurer of the 4-H and Utopia Club Council. Burlington, Florence and New Haven 4-H Clubs recently sponsored plays to raise money for the improvement program.

While scores of former 4-H and Utopia Club members are making splendid records in military service, and club members on the home front are doing an outstanding job in food and fiber production and the buying of War Bonds and other activities, a post war vision remains with us, "We are all out in this war to win; we are going to win; and we are confident enough in our future that when the war is over we are going to make Boone County a better place in which to live."

Ella Thomas Clemons

Ella Thomas Clemons, age 67, passed away at the home of his son Harold Clemons, near Sherman, Thursday, April 8th.

The body was removed to the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation. Services were conducted from the Goshen Christian Church by Rev. Hill of the Latonia Christian Church, Sunday, April 11, with burial in the Goshen Cemetery.

He is survived by one son Harold; one daughter, Mrs. John Conrad, Walton; one brother Walter Clemons, Walton; two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Roberts and Mrs. Dora Blackwell, of Verona.

Chambers & Grubbs, Walton funeral directors were in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Julia S. Taylor

An eight-months' illness ended in death late Thursday of Mrs. Julia Spanton Taylor, 48, wife of Harry Taylor, Florence, at Booth Hospital.

Mrs. Taylor, before her illness operated a restaurant in Florence. She was a member of the Florence Baptist Church. Her husband is an inspector for the Army Ordnance Department, Muncie, Ind.

Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Corp. George Edward Taylor, who was stationed at Pearl Harbor at the time it was bombed by the Japanese and who is now serving in the South Pacific, and Harvey Taylor, Florence; a daughter, Miss Lillie Taylor, Florence; two brothers, Lt. Robert Spanton, of Covington, and Earl Spanton, Kenton county; four sisters, Mrs. Inez Dameron and Mrs. Lillie Linz, both of Latonia Lakes, Mrs. Florence Lockwood, Dayton, and Mrs. Frances Richardson, Covington.

Funeral services were held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Tharp and Stith funeral home, Florence. Burial was in Florence Cemetery.

Howard G. Markesbery

Funeral services for Howard G. Markesbery, were held at the Florence Baptist Church at 3 p. m. on Thursday. Burial was in Big Bone Cemetery. He was 37.

Mr. Markesbery who passed away at Rocy Glen Sanatorium, McConnelsville, Ohio, following a long illness, was an employe of the Dixie Traction Co., Erlanger and a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

He leaves his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Markesbery; three sisters, Mrs. Helena Judy, Mrs. Mary Henman and Mrs. Myrtle Conrad, all of Florence; two brothers Russell of Erlanger, also an employe of the Dixie Traction Co. and Robert of Florence.

Tharp and Stith, Florence funeral directors were in charge of arrangements.

Small Girl Injured In Fall From Car

Catherine Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Moore, Ludlow, suffered a possible skull fracture and cuts on the head when she fell from an automobile of a relative at Petersburg, Saturday. Her condition was reported as not serious by St. Elizabeth Hospital attaches.

The door of the automobile was said to have opened accidentally, causing her to fall.

Covington Man Fined On Charge Of Fishing Without License

Robert Morris, 154 E. 42nd St., Covington, was arrested Sunday, April 12 by conservation officer Edwin Johnson, on a charge of fishing without a license. He was arrested on Gunpowder.

Morris was fined $15.00 and costs in Judge Cropper's court, Monday.

Cincinnati Men Injured In Crash On Highway 42

CAR CLUB WILL CONSERVE RUBBER

CAR-SHARING PROGRAM MUST BE CARRIED OUT BY PERSONS USING SUPPLEMENTAL GASOLINE RATION CARDS.

The new program is now being set up by the OPA and OCD to help the nation's car owners form a Car Club to save rubber. This new program of car-sharing will be necessary to obtain supplemental rations of gasoline for occupational travel. Applicants must arrange to carry three or more persons to work regularly or show why it is impossible to do so.

OPA is working with plant transportation committees in big industrial plants to assist in forming Car Clubs at the factory or shop end. From the standpoint of rubber conservation, car-sharing is good common sense, and when neighbors or fellow workers ride together, less rubber is worn off tires than if each man drove his car alone.

Passenger cars can be operated on recapped tires while buses require tires made with much larger quantities of crude rubber, therefore all passenger cars that are filled to capacity, and are used efficiently as they are in Car Clubs, will provide economical war transportation.

Car sharing has rightly been a requirement which applicants needing additional gasoline for occupational mileage have been asked to fulfill under mileage rationing program.

Share-the-ride clubs are being organized by churches, lodges, labor unions, women's clubs, school officials and teachers and Parent Teacher Associations and other various groups. It is suggested by our Public Relation Officer of Boone County and through the co-operation of your local newspapers that the heads of community groups such as above give this message to your attending members at your next meeting. Mrs. Dils, plans to have these groups act as agents or intermediaries. Workable pick-up plans or the use of windshield stickers or placecards which show the destination of the driver, such as "Burlington to Cincinnati through Covington, and Walton through Latonia to Newport etc." This plan is now being used in a great number of the cities and is considered a success as the driver will be able to form his own Car Club.

Samuel West

Funeral services for Samuel West, former Boone County resident, who died at his residence 527 Oak St., Ludlow, Sunday, will be held at the Bullock & Catherman funeral home, Ludlow, at 2 p. m. today, Thursday). Burial will be in Petersburg Cemetery. He was 70.

Mr. West is survived by his widow, Mrs. Susan Hensley West; one son, Claude E. West, Ft. Worth, Texas; two brothers and one sister.

Bullock and Catherman, Ludlow funeral directors were in charge of arrangements.

BANKERS' QUOTA OVER SUBSCRIBED

IN SECOND WAR LOAN DRIVE AT MEETING HELD SATURDAY NIGHT — INDIVIDUALS MUST SUBSCRIBE $474,000.00.

At a meeting of the bankers of Boone County last Saturday night at Burlington, the quota of $183,000.00 allotted to banks for their own accounts was over-subscribed in the Second War Loan Drive for thirteen billion dollars in the United States.

Besides the banks' quota which is now subscribed, the individual citizens are expected to subscribe for $474,000.00 if Boone County reaches its goal.

This may look like a large sum to raise in Boone County but it can be done if every one will do their duty and subscribe to the limit of their ability, even resorting to borrowing on anticipated income, if necessary.

Go to your precinct chairman and volunteer your services to work in this drive and you will be provided with an official pin for your lapel showing that you are a volunteer worker. Go to your bank and make a subscription for all you can possibly take. Do not wait for a solicitor to call on you as these workers are undertaking a big task and they need your help and encouragement. Quite a number of public spirited citizens have already volunteered to form a "Five Thousand Club" which means that they will subscribe at least $5,000.00 each, even if they have to resort to borrowing from the banks temporarily. The banks have agreed to lend subscribers money at the same rate the bond bears for a period of not exceeding six months, where a subscriber may not have the available cash on hand but will have it within six months.

The plan is to have as many subscribers as possible and the man with only $18.75 is just as much appreciated as the man who subscribers $5,000.00. We want everyone to have a part in raising the quota for Boone County this time.

Our boys in the air, under the seas and in the fox holes in the front lines are risking their lives for the protection of our homes and our freedom. Let's back them up and show them that Boone County and the rest of the United States are behind them with our money and credit to the limit of their needs and requirements in order to bring this horrible war to a speedy end and let those brave boys return to their families and business at the earliest possible moment. The sooner this war is won the sooner they will return and the less money we will have to raise in future drives. They give their lives in many instances and are taking risks every day, we are only asked to lend our money on the best security on earth.

Will we who are at home with our families and carrying on our business fail to do our part? We must not fail to raise our quota. Do not subscribe for $18.75 bond if you can take $100.00 or a hundred dollars if you can take $1,000.00 or $1000.00 if you can take $5,000.00. Act at once.

MEMBER KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED JANUARY, 1880

MEMBER AMERICAN PRESS For Over Fifty Years

The Recorder is authorized to announce as a candidate for the nomination of County Judge of Boone County, subject to the action of the Democratic primary Saturday, August 7, 1943.

THE RIGHT APPROACH

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown deserves the wholehearted cooperation of all citizens. He speaks a language which our people understand and appreciate, instead of the $10,000 fine and 10 years in jail" lingo.

When enlarging the ration program, Mr. Brown said: "The necessities of war have once again compelled the government to ask the American people to bear the burden of another rationing program. I should like to ask the forebearance of the public . . . while the trade is adjusting itself to new demand and supply conditions."

That's the American way. Freedom-loving Americans should cooperate 100 per cent.

FOR THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER?

A letter from members of the 750th Tank Battalion, Company A, at Fort Knox, Kentucky, to workers who recently struck in a war industry, said in part:

"We feel deeply hurt to think you would let the boys overseas down. Just what do you think would happen to this country if the boys overseas would sit down, and quit fighting, because they just make $50 a month? We need more fighting equipment. What do you Americans want? More money now and slavery later, or less money and freedom? Just think how some of your sons and brothers over there would feel if they knew you were selling them out, and that's what you are doing when you stop production."

There is a Bible story of a sell-out for 30 pieces of silver. Read it.

COMMON SENSE

"If increased milk production is required, flexible price ceilings should be established at points sufficiently high to assure some measure of increase," says Chas. W. Holman, secretary of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation. "Between the minimum and maximum prices, there should be allowed free play of economic forces. Such a plan would be effective in controlling runaway prices and helpful in producing milk and its products in our present need.

"Such a plan is anti-inflationary, whereas the present effort to freeze dairy prices at relatively low levels and make up for it by giving farmers some form of subsidy, which later must be paid out of tax monies, contains the essence of inflation."

LABORATORY VICTORY

American research laboratories have again won a military victory. The headlines will not call it that, but that is what it amounts to.

An Eastern oil company has announced the development of a new refining technique which will produce gasoline that should increase the power output of aircraft engines from 23 to 35 per cent. This added power will give fighter planes a substantial increase either in maximum speeds or rate of climb. Bombers will be able to get off the ground with a heavier load and will have a larger cruising radius. The greater lifting power will result in an added two or three tons of bombs for every ten tons carried. After the war, this high gasoline quality will be used to give automobiles much greater power or much greater mileage, whichever is desired.

Never before has American industry worked so hard to invent and create. It is relentlessly driven by the knowledge that mankind is depending on this country for a better future civilization. That civilization cannot be realized except through the unstinted effort of industry, now and in the peace that will come someday. Private industry, of which oil is an outstanding example, is justifying its existence and proving to the people that in free competitive enterprise lies the hope of the future.

PETER AND JOHN IN GETHSEMANE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:36-46; John 18:10-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation. Matthew 26:41.

The morning of that great day when atonement was made for the sins of all the world was nearly at hand. In the darkness of the night, following the institution of the Lord's Supper, and the words and prayer of our Lord (John 15-17), He and His disciples came to the Garden of Gethsemane. Taking three of His disciples He went deeper into the shadows to pour out before the Father His soul, "exceeding sorrowful even unto death."

It is a sacred scene, and we feel a sense of awe and reverence as we approach it, feeling that we too would prefer to tarry outside the garden, did we not feel that we should try to understand a little better what took place that night.

We are especially concerned with Peter and John, who with James shared our Lord's sorrow up to a point, and then so sadly failed Him.

We note that they had a

I. High Privilege (Matt. 26:36-38).

To be asked by Christ to stand by in this crucial hour was to be entrusted with one of the greatest privileges a man could ever know. As there swept over His holy soul a great tidal wave of sorrow unto death, He wanted and needed their fellowship. As Dr. Maclaren puts it, He "grazed the very edge" of human endurance. "Out of the darkness He reaches a hand to feel the grasp of a friend, and piteously asks these humble levers to stay beside Him; not that they could help Him bear the weight, but that their presence had some solace in it. His agony . . . they could not bear with Him, but they could watch with Him, and that poor comfort is all He asked."

Undoubtedly they intended to do it. Jesus bore witness that their spirit was willing (v. 41), but in spite of that, and all the boasting of Peter at the table that he would never desert Him, they failed Him in His hour of need. It was

II. Sad Weakness (vv. 39-46).

Our Lord's prayer showed great faith in God the Father, the terrific recoil of His soul against being blackened with the burden of sin, and a complete surrender to the Father's will. Here was true denial of self and submission to God, but it was nonetheless an appalling experience for our sinless Lord. So He went back for fellowship with His three trusted friends—and they were asleep.

Jesus recognized that the weakness of the flesh caused them to forget and slumber. We may profit by a little closer scrutiny of the scene. Was it just a physical tiredness? That doubtless entered in, but was not Jesus even more tired than they could possibly be? Was it not rather the weakness of indifference? They did not yet fully believe that their Lord was about to die. That was why they were quickly scattered in unbelief when He did die. This matter was not so serious in their sight, so it was not difficult to yield to the tired body and the deep, quiet darkness, and fall asleep.

We are in much the same position. Danger—grave, spiritual danger—threatens our souls, our families, our nation. We who call ourselves Christians have declared our readiness to stay awake and alert. But we hav become at home in this world, the enemy soothes us with the assurance that all is well, time goes on and nothing too serious happens. So, we go to sleep right in the midst of danger, and sleep on even though the Master awakens us again and again.

But now the scene changes. The mob has come to take Christ, and then the sleepy Peter, now much awake, indulges in

III. Foolish Courage (John 18:10-12).

The act of Peter was courageous, even to the point of recklessness. What chance had he against a great armed multitude? It was the natural impulse of a loving heart, but it was misguided and foolish.

What did he think to accomplish—to deliver Jesus from those who would crucify Him? That would have meant no death on the cross and no redemption. The hour for the offering up of the Son of Man as Saviour had come. Peter might have learned that with our Lord in the garden, but then he was asleep. Christ who had hitherto walked right through the crowd of enemies (Luke 4:30), now submitted. In the dark hours of the night He had been prepared to drink this bitter cup (v. 11).

We need to learn from this experience of Peter's lest we make the same mistake. There are all too many in the Church who are asleep as far as its spiritual struggles and opportunities are concerned, who are eager to wield a reckless sword in outward conflict. In their folly and ignorance they do more harm than good, and yet they think they are working for Christ.

DR. J. D. NORTHCUTT
DAIRY HERD--44 COWS AND CALVES
At AUCTION
THURS., APRIL 22
10:30 A. M.

2 MILES FROM FLORENCE, KY., AT NORTH WAY FARM ON THE BURLINGTON RD.

On account of the shortage of labor and Dr. Northcutt's practice requiring all of his time, he is disposing of his entire dairy herd, not one single cow or calf reserved. This is one of the cleanest and best herds in Kentucky. Consisting of Holsteins, Guernseys and Jerseys. Practically all young cows. Several now fresh, some heavy springers.

Dr. Northcutt has spent several years in selecting this herd, he would never buy any but the very best, regardless of price. Has had them regularly tested, always well fed and cared for. These cows are extra heavy milkers, straight and clean—good enough to go into anyone's herd.

Come to this sale whether you are interested in buying or not, you will enjoy seeing Dr. Northcutt's farm and modern equipment.

FARMERS URGED TO EXPAND FEED

PRODUCTION TO MEET INCREASED LIVESTOCK AND POULTRY NEEDS—FEED SITUATION MAY BE SERIOUS.

Boone County farmers are urged to expand feed crop production to meet increased livestock and poultry needs, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Despite labor and machinery difficulties many farmers can profitably expand production. Important expansion needs include:

1. Corn production by using adapted hybrid seed U. S. 13, Ky. 102, Ky. 103, Ky. 69, Ky., 79B, Ky. 201, Ky. 203, and by plowing and planting more acres.

2. Seed emergency crops of: (a) Hog and sheep pasture, seed Rape 10 pounds, Columbia oats one bushel and lespedeza 5 to 10 pounds; (b) Sudan grass for cows, seed 20 to 40 pounds per acre; (c) Soy beans on hill land and cowpeas on bottom land for hay.

3. Improving stands on pasture and hay fields: (a) Seeding lespedeza on poor stands; (b) reseeding poor alfalfa stands where seeded last fall.

4. Growing small fields of cane for early fall feeding, use Williams variety of sorghum for making home sorghum molasses supply. S. B. Scott of Grant has a supply of seed.

5. Plan to seed cover crops early next fall for early fall and next spring pasture.

6. Use lime and phosphate whenever you can secure your needed supply.

We may be facing a more serious feed situation than we expect. A great deal will depend on the weather. Let's make all plans to be prepared. If we have a surplus there will be a good market.

PIG PROJECT IS TOPIC FOR APRIL

IN 4-H CLUB WORK—IS NECESSARY PART OF OUR FOOD FOR FREEDOM PROGRAM, SAYS ASSISTANT COUNTY AGENT.

The 4-H Club work is progressing nicely in the county. It is rush season with members carrying garden and poultry projects, with many reporting the job well under way, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent.

The pig project, though not taken part in by as many members as some of the other projects, is a very important and necessary part of our Food for Freedom program.

Club members can choose between three swine projects. They can raise one or more pigs for home meat or to sell as meat hogs. Or a member may want to raise a purchased pig for a brood sow. Others may already have a brood sow and will produce a litter of pigs for a project. The project selected by the member will be determined by the age of member and housing and pasture conditions on the particular farm. The breed of pig does not make much difference as there are good pigs among all breeds. For fattening hogs, pigs do not need to be pureberd. There are apt to be more good pigs among the litters of full stock or. high grade sows. The main thing is to get pigs that are healthy and well grown.

The pig project is in direct line to help solve the meat shortage and to furnish fats to be used in manufacturing explosives. This project is also one of the most profitable when carried out properly. For these reasons it is thrifty as well as practical.

MOWING MACHINE IS 46 YEARS OLD

A mowing machine that is in good running order after 46 seasons is owned by Herbert Lowe, of Fleming county, Kentucky. It was purchased by his father, the late J. J. Lowe, in 1896. It has never had any new parts except sections, guards and bolts. Careful oiling and lubrication have kept the gears in good condition all these years.

County Agent A. A. Williams cites the history of this machine as an example of what good care will do for farm machinery. Many farm machines are used only a few days a year—a mowing machine 10 to 15 days, a grain harvester four or five days, a threshing machine 20 to 30 days, a corn planter four or five days. Properly oiled and housed when not in use, much farm machinery should last 20 to 30 years, says Mr. Williams.

POULTRY AND HOGS PAY 4-H CLUB BOY

How Tommy Follis, a 4-H club member in Warren county, produced poultry and hogs to the amount of $80 which he invested in war bonds and stamps is told by Home Agent Miriam Kelley.

Last year Tommy bought 100 chicks for $9. Selling the roosters for $20, he bought a gilt, the remainder of the chicken flock being used for meat for the family. The gilt farrowed eight pigs; two were used to repay Tommy's father for the corn fed. When the remaining six were sold, Tommy received $80, which he invested in war bonds and stamps. He still has the sow which is to farrow again.

It is estimated that 95 percent of the tobacco planted in McCreary county will be Ky. 16.

VERONA

Cool spring weather prevails in this community.

This community regrets very much to lose Mr. and Mrs. Ira Harris, who have moved to their home, the Albert Johnson place on Beaver grade.

Rev. A. K. Johnson, who has been visiting his daughter Mrs. Bud Hamilton and husband in Winchester, returned to his home here Sunday. Other visitors at the Hunt home were Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Piner, of Norwood and Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Griffith, of Burlington.

O. K. Powers had the misfortune to lose a mule one night last week, supposedly killed by lightning.

The Happy Twelve Club held its regular meeting with Mrs. Sue Pennington of the Walton-Verona road on Tuesday of last week. Only six members were present to enjoy the delightful day. Mrs. Virgie Fisher of Walton and Mrs. Minnie Pennington, of Florence were visitors. Cookies were sent to boys in service. The meeting in June will be with Mrs. Sarah King.

Melvin Wasson has been doing some papering for Mrs. John Boyer.

Albert Hunt had the cast removed from his ankle last week but still goes to Carrollton for treatment.

Above All—
We're in the service of those in Service

Men and Women in the Armed Forces and in War Plants Have First Call on Greyhound Today!

Today it's service for the Service first — for all those, in uniform or workclothes, who are actively contributing to Victory over the Axis. Transportation for these essential travelers is Greyhound's first responsibility under present conditions.

Carrying selectees to examination centers—soldiers and sailors on leaves or furloughs — troops on maneuvers or emergency moves—men and women to their vital work in war plants — this is Greyhound's major wartime job.

And this job is a big one—measured in numbers of passengers or areas served. For Greyhound reaches directly more war plants, military camps, shipyards, air fields, navy bases, big cities, crossroads towns, farm centers than any other transportation system.

If occasionally you are inconvenienced or delayed, please keep on taking it with a smile. This isn't some other fellow's war — it's yours and ours and we all have to do everything we possibly can to help win it.

THE 2nd WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

America....you've got to get tougher!
WAR FINANCE COMMITTEE

AMERICA — Let's be frank about it . . . so far, many of us back home have been fighting this war from an easy chair. Many of us have bought War Bonds out of extra cash, out of money we didn't miss too much. We haven't been really tough with ourselves.

But this war is a hard, down-to-reality war. And many of our boys are dying in it.

We've got to buy MORE

So your government asks you to buy Bonds and more Bonds—to get really tough with yourself. We're asking you to give up the frills and "extras."

We know how human it is not to make sacrifices until the crisis drives us to it. In England they felt the same way until the bombs started falling.

Bombs are such persuasive things. But just as persuasive ought to be the spirit of our brothers, sons, husbands.

If you could see

Look at it this way—suppose you had a magic carpet that could take you to Africa and New Guinea. Suppose you could hear the groan of American boys wounded, and American boys dying. . . . Saw now, how many Bonds would you buy?

That kind of war

THEY . . . are dying. And they will keep on dying until we drown the enemy in an overwhelming torrent of bombs, bullets, guns, tanks, planes, ships, and shells.

That's why we're asking you, in this one month of April alone, to lend Uncle Sam 13 billions of dollars—by buying War Bonds. 13 billions of extra dollars—over and above any buying that you'd be doing anyway!

A lot of money

Of course, 13 billion dollars is a lot of money. It'll take sweat and tears to raise it. It'll mean going without now. But also—it will mean savings now—to buy later. It'll mean giving up everything you can't square with your conscience, so that we, us, our children, can have a better, more decent place to live in when this war is won.

The drive is on

So during this month of April, if someone calls on you to ask you to buy War Bonds in this 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE, will you buy to the limit—and then buy more?

Better yet, will you go to your Bank, Postoffice, or wherever you're used to buying your Bonds—and buy NOW? Will you lend extra money this month? Money that can hasten the day of Victory? Money that can help to save American lives.

Money buys money

Remember, what you're really buying with your money is still more money. For after all, these Bonds are money! Money plus! Every dollar you put into War Bonds will bring you a dollar plus interest.

So the more Bonds you buy the better for you. Americans — Get Tough — with yourselves — for your country.

There are 7 Different types of U. S. Government Securities —Choose the ones best suited for you:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9% a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, $1000, $5000, $10,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000. Redemption: Not callable till June 15, 1964; thereafter at par and accrued interest on any interest date at 4 months' notice. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other Securities: Series "C" Tax Notes; ⅞% Certificates of Indebtedness; 2% Treasury Bonds of 1950-1952; United States Savings Bonds Series "F"; United States Savings Bonds Series "G."

SATURDAY

Recruiting officers of the United States Army bided their time just long enough to let Paramount complete the filming of "Street of Chance" the spine-tingler murder mystery—and then they pounced.

The star, Burgess Meredith (who shares top acting honors with Claire Trevor), went in as a buck private and was promptly sent to Officers' Training School. He emerged as a Second Lieutenant.

Director Jack Hively enlisted and was shipped to Wright Field Dayton, Ohio, to direct training films.

Johnnie Breen, who has an important supporting role, also enlisted along with several minor players and several members of the production crew.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Director Michael Curtiz and Conrad Veidt celebrated Old Home Week on the Warner Bros. set of "Casablanca." They worked together as director and actor in Germany.

It was for the UFA-Phoebus-Stoll company, and before Curtiz went to Sweden to direct some Greta Garbo films. Veidt and Curtiz recalled all the details of their European association, except one thing they couldn't remember the name of the picture.

TUESDAY

Richard Davies, playing the role of press agent in "Give Out, Sisters," took the assignment very seriously. During production of the comedy tunefilm, the young actor spent considerable time studying the "profession" in the offices of Universal studio publicity department.

The Andrews Sisters have headline positions in the cast of "Give Out, Sisters." Dan Dailey, Jr., Grace McDonald, Charles Butterworth, Walter Catlett and the Jivin' Jacks and Jills are featured.

WED., THURSDAY and FRIDAY

Seven hit songs by Harold Arlen and Johnny Mercer are featured in Paramount's greatest musical comedy, "Star Spangled Rhythm," at the Gayety, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The songs are backgrounds for the singing, dancing funshow which has the greatest all-star cast ever assembled, including Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Fred MacMurray, Franchot Tone, Ray Milland, Victor Moore, Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard, Vera Zorina, Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd, Rochester and many others.

Utopia Club Will Meet April 22nd

The Boone County Utopia Club will meet at Burlington on Thursday evening, April 22nd, at 8:30 p. m. (E. W. T.), according to Lucian Bradford, president.

The program committee has made special plans for the meeting. All who are interested in Utopia Club work are invited to attend.

CAMERA SHOP OPENS SPORTING GOODS DEPT.

The Covington Camera Shop, 540 Madison Ave., announces the opening of a sporting goods department. The proprietor, Fred Williamson, claims it is one of the largest of its kind in Covington.

The new department features the famous "Goldsmith" golf, baseball, football, basketball, gymnasium, archery, tennis and badminton equipment.

This popular shop will continue to carry camera supplies, records and fishing equipment.

LIVESTOCK NOTES AND CROP NOTES

BY COUNTY AGENT, H. R. FORKNER—SHEEP, HOGS, FEED AND ALFALFA POINTERS ARE GIVEN.

Pasture and small grain pastures are beginning to help the short hay supply, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Livestock on young pasture needs much less soybean meal, cotton seed meal or other protein supplements and more corn. The high protein content of young grass has a scouring effect in livestock.

The spring work has come with a rush. If you were caught napping with your equipment not ready to go then take full advantage of repair work on rainy days.

Sheep

Sheep shearing will start in May. If you are going to hire your sheep sheared contact your help early. Remember leaving the wool on the suckling ewes in warm weather checks the flow of milk and retards the growth of the lambs.

Indications are heavy lambs will be most profitable. Standardize your lambs, keep them free from worms and hold eighty pounds or more weight per head.

Treat now with Phenothiazine to control nodular worms.

Hogs

Start feeding pigs when two or three weeks old. The sow's milk flow usually begins decreasing about this time.

Feeds

When corn is figured at 100 percent, pound for pound ground wheat is worth 105 to 107 percent. Ground barley 85 to 93 percent, ground rye 68 to 90 percent and ground oats 60 to 80 percent. When shelled corn is worth a dollar a bushel, ground wheat is worth $1.13 bushel, barley 75c, rye 80c, and oats 40c.

Grinding corn for pigs over 70 pounds does not pay.

Pasture will save 10 percent to 15 percent grain and 30 to 50 percent protein.

Alfalfa

Alfalfa seeded last fall and on land on which there is a poor stand should be reseeded now. Fall sown stands may now be thickened up by reseeding, but stands over one year old should be disked and reseeded same as a new seeding.

Miscellaneous

Hemp—We need more hemp seed acreage. What about growing one or more acres this year? Contact the county agricultural office.

Feed—Increase your acres of corn and feed this year. We are facing a decreased feed supply.

Fruit—Now is time for your apple scab sprays—follow schedule recommended by the College. Get your schedule at the office in Burlington.

Names Wanted For Service Roll Board

Are you sure that the County Service Roll Committee has the name of your boy, or your friend? The listing of these Service men and women will be printed on the board during the coming week and the committee is most anxious that no name shall be omitted from this first alphabetical list. Your help is needed to assure the completion of the list.

Turn in any names to members of the committee listed below. Please observe the following suggestions. (There is no charge for including names).

1. Only names of Boone Countians are desired.

2. Submit the name by which the person is called, include the other initial and the last name. Please check for correct spelling.

3. Turn names in immediately that they may be listed in the correct order. Contributions are still being received. There will be no solicitations made to finance the project. The entire fund will be made of free will contributions. Persons desiring to have a part in this effort to honor those who are serving in the armed forces should hand donations to members of committee or drop in collection boxes found in stores in some localities.

Committee members are: Mrs. S. B. Sleet, Mrs. R. C. Garrison, Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, Mrs. Albert Willis, Mrs. Robt. Clore, Mrs. Jonas Stephens, Mrs. Geo. Morith, Mrs. John Hempfling, Mrs. Raymond Renaker, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. J. B. Berkshire, Mrs. Kathryn Fagan, Mrs. Sterling Dickey, Mrs. Essie Goodridge and Mrs. Alan Gaines. Names and contributions may also be mailed to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, at Burlington.

BURLINGTON W. M. U.

The Burlington W. M. U. met at the home of Mrs. R. L. Huey. The topic for the month was "The Individual Witness." This topic was discussed by Mrs. Noel Walton, Mrs. Robt. Clore, Mrs. Carrie Botts and Mrs. A. D. Yelton, with special prayers that each of us might be faithful, individual witnesses.

Publicity Chairman.

Supply Of Hybrid Sweet Corn Scarce

The supply of certified hybrid sweet corn for home garden use is scarce, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. The county office has been unable to purchase the cooperative order planned for by farmers earlier in the season.

The present supply is all in the hands of dealers who want to sell their seed only at retail. Those who expect to purchase certified or good adapted hybrid seed should contact their dealers at an early date.

Certified hybrid seed of certain crosses have increased garden yields from two to four times. Certified Golden Cross Bantam and Silver Cross Evergreen have been the two best hybrids used in the county to date.

Weak Feet Affect Body

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

When feet are permitted to pronate inwardly, the bony structure of the foot goes down, shutting off the nerve and blood supply in the bottom of the foot. When you cramp or choke the blood stream and slow up circulation, there is a lack of bone repair; chemical deposits, or waste matter form at the joints. Next inflammation sets in at these joints causing pain. That inflammation is often mistaken for rheumatism, arthritis and many other ailments. Although when you cramp the blood supply you shut off the food supply to the nerves.

When nerves are impoverished muscle tone is impaired because sonsory nerves indirectly control motor nerves which in turn control the muscles. When muscles in the feet have lost their tonicity due to impoverishment of the nerves, feet are no longer subconsciously held in normal position.

Surgical shoes give support to the vital arches in the feet releasing cramped nerves and blood vessels to promote better circulation. Gradually as circulation improves, muscles grow strong and regain their tonicity.

With foot health improved the person feels better all over. Research has shown that no less than eighty-seven diseases are indirectly causes by bad feet.

Don't take chances with your health, happiness and peace of mind. With foot comfort you'll live longer and feel better.—Adv.

BURLINGTON 4-H CLUB MEETS

The community meeting of the Burlington Blue Ribbon girls' club was called to order by Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent at 11:00 a. m. April 6th. Mr. E. E. Fish, State 4-H club field agent spoke to the group on the need for 4-H Club girls taking canning and gardening projects during this year as a part in the Wartime food program.

The president, Rosetta Snow, resigned and Louise McArthur, the vice president became president of the club. Corrine Walton was elected vice president. Other business of the club concerned setting up goals for the year's work. The membership goal was set at 40, thus leaving 10 members to be added over the present membership. All girls enrolled in clothing projects will try to participate in the exhibit and revue at Spring Rally. Each project group will be represented by a demonstration team in those contests.

Clothing and foods project groups will begin their work this week. The leaders are: Mrs. Tom Hensley, Mrs. Roscoe Garrison and Mrs. Vernon Pope.

There will be one more community meeting before school is out.

Charlotte Ashcraft, Reporter.

OMER KENDALL ENDS OWN LIFE

HAD BEEN IN ILL HEALTH FOR SEVERAL MONTHS—SERVICES HELD MONDAY AT PAINT LICK BAPTIST CHURCH.

Funeral services for Omer Kendall, 31-year-old Verona farmer, who ended his life Friday at his home were conducted Monday at 2 o'clock at the Paint Lick Baptist Church, Gallatin County. Burial was in the Odd Fellows Cemetery at Napoleon, Ky.

Tom Carr, acting Boone County Coroner, who returned a verdict of suicide, said Kendall shot himself in the chest with a shotgun at his home. It was said Kendall had been in ill health for several months.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kendall; two brothers, Lafe Kendall, Warsaw, and Alva Kendall, Cincinnati and a sister, Mrs. Louanna French, of Warsaw.

Hannah G. Edwards

Mrs. Hannah Green Edwards, 84, passed away at her home near Glencoe, Thursday, April 15th. Her remains were removed to the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation, where they remained until funeral services.

Funeral services were held from Paints Lick Baptist Church, Saturday at 3 p. m. with Rev. Ervin Stephenson, past of Glencoe Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was in Paint Lick cemetery.

She is survived by one daughter, Miss Myrtle Edwards, with whom she lived, several nephews and nieces and many friends of long standing.

Cordelia L. Whitson

Funeral services for Mrs. Cordelia Lipp Whitson were conducted from the Walton Christian Church, Thursday, April 15th at 2 p. m. with Rev. I. N. Ervin, of Vesailles Christian Church, assisted by Rev. Caroland, of Walton Christian Church, officiating. Burial was in Hopeful Cemetery.

Mrs. Whitson died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ethel Rockhorst, Covington.

She is survived by ner husband Chas. W. Whitson, of Walton; one son Walter Whitson and two grandchildren.

Chambers & Grubbs, Walton had charge of funeral arrangements.

Record Chick Hatch Reported This Year

Boone County hatcherymen are experiencing a record hatch and sale of baby chicks this year, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The record expansion is in keeping with the government increased food production program.

Conner's Hatchery of Hebron has doubled the hatching capacity and Grant Maddox of Florence has expanded his production and hatching operations the past year. Despite this large increase in capacity the number of chicks sold will be by far the largest number on record and hatcheries are sold out for the next several weeks.

FORMER BOONE COUNTIAN DIES

IN ERLANGER FOLLOWING CEREBRAL HEMORRHAGE — WAS MOTHER OF PHILIP TALIAFERRO, FUNERAL DIRECTOR.

Mrs. Sarah Blanton Taliaferro, native of Boone County, passed away at her home, Tuesday of last week following a cerebral hemorrhage. She was 76.

Mrs. Taliaferro, mother of Philip Taliaferro, Erlanger funeral director was born in Boone County, but had been a resident of Erlanger for the past forty years. She was a member of the Erlanger Baptist Church.

Besides her son she leaves her husband, J. W. Taliaferro; two daughters, Miss Ella Taliaferro, a teacher at the Beechwood School, and Mrs. Edwin O. Victor, Erlanger.

Funeral services were held at 3 p. m. Thursday at the Taliaferro funeral home, with burial in Highland cemetery.

3. Turn names in immediately that they may be listed in the correct order. Contributions are still being received. There will be no solicitations made to finance the project. The entire fund will be made of free will contributions. Persons desiring to have a part in this effort to honor those who are serving in the armed forces should hand donations to members of committee or drop in collection boxes found in stores in some localities.

Committee members are: Mrs. S. B. Sleet, Mrs. R. C. Garrison, Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, Mrs. Albert Willis, Mrs. Robt. Clore, Mrs. Jonas Stephens, Mrs. Geo. Morith, Mrs. John Hempfling, Mrs. Raymond Renaker, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. J. B. Berkshire, Mrs. Kathryn Fagan, Mrs. Sterling Dickey, Mrs. Essie Goodridge and Mrs. Alan Gaines. Names and contributions may also be mailed to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, at Burlington.

Tobacco Plant Beds Should Be Treated Now

Tobacco plant beds should be treated now when the plants are just established in the bed and producing the first true leaf, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Treatment at this stage controls angular leaf spot or rust in the plant bed and leaf spot and wild fire in the field. Both diseases cause severe losses in the tobacco crop.

One treatment applied at the right time has been found to take the place of the two treatments used in former years.

The treatment is a Bluestone, lime and water solution and must be applied early by sprinkling over the entire bed with the canvas on the bed.

Fifty gallons of the mixture will treat 200 square yards or 66 feet long of a 9 foot bed.

The mixture is prepared by dissolving 3 pounds of powdered bluestone in four or five gallons of water in a wooden bucket or earthen ware container, dissolving four pounds of lime in a like manner pouring the two together in a barrel and adding enough water to make fifty gallons of solution.

Treat your beds now, the cost is little and only a small amount of labor is required. For further information contact the County Agent's office.

Second Week Of War
Loan Drive Nets $119,081

The first week of the Second War Loan drive ending April 17th shows that 186 people subscribed for $119,081.25 in cash in Boone County on the quota of $474,000.00 assigned to individuals. Banks' subscriptions of $183,000.00 does not count on this quota of $474,000.00 which individuals, non-banking corporations and firms are expected to take. This is not a very good showing for the first week of the drive when it must be understood that several large subscriptions are included in this total Some workers are discouraged and report that on roads of several miles in length not a single bond is being purchased. This indeed is a very bad situation when their neighbor boys are on foreign soil fighting for those of us who are at home and going ahead with our business.

Unless we lend our money and credit to our Government there is but one way to get it and that is by taxation on everything we own and upon everything we buy and sell, leaving all of us but a bare living and without profit in our business. Many sons of farmers have been deferred to work upon farms, thereby escaping the dangers of war which their neighbor's sons are facing on the battle fronts, and our Government has the right to expect heavy bond subscriptions from these sources as well as from those whose sons and relatives are in the service. Those of us who have no relatives in the service or on the farms should feel it a privilege to subscribe to our very limit to help those who are helping us. The banks offer an easy way to help you do your duty where you do not have the ready cash. Go to your banker and talk with him and he will help you with your subscription.

This $474,000.00 must be raised. We can not ask other counties to subscribe for us. Many counties have already reported raising their quotas. One Kentucky County oversubscribed its quota ten times. Boone County is one of the prosperous counties of the State and we are expected to do our part along with other counties of this Nation.

If you expect to subscribe to help these soldier boys, please do so before April 24th, as the last few days of the drive to the 30th are to be given over to special work of the solicitors and in special cases. Don't subscribe for $18.75 when you should subscribe for $1,000.00. Our soldiers do not go half way in battle. They go the limit. Will you do likewise?

The war is the cause of all farm products and wages being double what they would be if there was no war. Is it not fair to expect that a large portion of this excess income be placed in War Bonds? Ten percent of our income is not sufficient to finance this war. It takes more like 50 percent of our income to be invested in War Bonds. There is no better security on earth than a United States Government Bond. Our homes, our farms, our business are pledged to the repayment of these bonds. A Government Bond is a lien on everything we own and is ahead of any mortgage on your property. Should you need your money at any time after sixty days from date of purchase, the government will refund the cash to you for your bond within two or three days after presenting your bond for payment if your investment is Series E, F, or G. If your investment is a 2 percent or 2½ bond you can sell it in the general market, which market now is above par, thereby returning to you a small margin of profit and we are assured by all financial experts that these general market bonds will not be permitted to go below par for the duration of the war at least as there is so much money seeking investment.

Full steam ahead this week to reach our goal of $474,000.00 individual subscriptions.

FIFTEEN ATTEND BLOOD BANK MON.

REPRESENT ALL PARTS O F BOONE COUNTY—NEXT APPOINTMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR MAY 7TH.

Fifteen persons from all parts of Boone County attended the volunteer Blood Bank in Cincinnati, Monday for the purpose of donating a pint of blood for our armed forces.

This worthy project, which is sponsored by the Boone County Homemakers' organization, is becoming very active now in all parts of the county and many persons now are giving of their blood regularly to help save some soldier's life that has been wounded in battle. Certainly our casualty list has been materially reduced in this war due to the blood bank that is available to our soldiers on the front lines of battle, which is made possible only by volunteer contributions by soldiers on the home front.

Those attending the Blood Bank Monday were as follows: Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Mrs. Maude Bennett, Mrs. B. M. Stevens, C. L. Cropper, A. W. Weaver, Mrs. Ruth Clore, Mrs. Mary Louise Townsend, Raymond Hightower, Lloyd Riddell, Irvin Rouse, John Crigler, Mrs. Lee R. McNeely, Lamar Congleton, Irene Congleton and Miss Osceola Williams.

The next appointment has been made for Friday, May 7th at 1:00 p. m. (E. W. T.) and all persons who desire to donate blood can do so by contacting Wilton Stephens, Burlington, as reservations have been made for fifteen on this date.

A pint of your blood can save a soldier's life. Give! So that they may live.

Mrs. Virginia Boyd

Services for Mrs. Virginia Frances Boyd, a former resident of Boone County were held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Bullock & Catherman funeral home, Ludlow. Burial was in Hebron Cemetery.

Mrs. Boyd, 43, died Tuesday at General Hospital, Cincinnati. She lived at 1420 Elm St., Cincinnati.

She leaves her husband, Amos Boyd; two brothers, Walter Garten and Cecil Garten, both of Ludlow; two sisters, Mrs. E. D. Byers, Columbus, O., and Mrs. Earl Coughran, Hebron, and one niece.

Bullock and Catherman were in charge of funeral arrangements.

SUNRISE SERVICES TO BE HELD AT UNION BAPTIST CHURCH SUN.

The Union Baptist Church will conduct Sunrise services on Easter Sunday at 6:00 a. m. (E. W. T.), and Sunday School will be held at 8:30 p. m. (E. W. T.) The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Educational Picture Being Shown In Various Schools Of County

Dr. L. E. Smith of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association, accompained by the Boone County Red Cross Nurse is showing an educational picture on tuberculosis in Boone County Schools this week.

The following schedule is planned, and all time will be Eastern War Time:

April 20, Burlington, 10 a. m.; Hebron 11:30; Constance 3 p. m.

April 21—Petersburg, 10 a. m.; Belleview 11:30; Hamilton 2:30 p. m.

April 22—Walton 10 a. m.; Verona, 11:30; New Haven 2:30 p. m.

April 23—Burlington (colored) at 10 a. m.; Florence 11:30 a. m.

It is hoped that other members of the family or community, as well as school children may see this picture.

4-H CLUBS HOLDING LAST OF MEETINGS

THIS MONTH—NO ATTEMPT TO HOLD MEETINGS DURING VACATION PERIOD WILL BE MADE.

The last of 4-H Club monthly meetings are being held this month. There will be no attempt made to hold monthly meetings of the entire clubs during the vacation months. The regular meetings of the club will be resumed when school opens in September, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent.

There will be project and individual group meetings of the 4-H Club members with their captains and adult leaders throughout the summer. In this way members that are interested in one particular phase of agriculture can come together and spend all their time discussing problems pertaining to their own project. It is hoped that the project meetings will call for less travel and loss of time, and will serve the members just as well as a mass meeting once a month.

The 4-H Club is being streamlined for production this year, but we are not losing sight of the original purpose of the club and what it stands for. The boys and girls are learning to do by doing, they are learning to use their head in planning each project. Their hands are kept busy and are constantly become more skillful while carrying on these projects. Their heart must be in the work if they are to carry out one of the largest programs ever undertaken by boys and girls of that age. Their health will be fine as they will consume a large portion of the vegetable, poultry and dairy products which they produce. These 4-H Club projects, if carried to a successful completion, will release tons and tons of food for armed forces.

FREEZE INJURES CO. FRUIT CROP

MAIN PEACH CROP IS DESTROYED BY LOW TEMPERATURE—APPLE AND SOUR CHERRY PROSPECTS GOOD.

Prospects for a good peach crop were destroyed by the freezing weather the past week when temperatures dropped to between 22 and 26 degrees, according to reports of growers given the County Agent's office. Frank McGlasson & Sons, C. Liston Hempfling, and Charles L. Hempfling, large commercial peach growers in the county, had excellent prospects for a crop previous to the freezing weather. A few peaches of certain varieties may come through but the main crop was destroyed Sweet cherries and certain varieties of plums were also injured.

Most growers think we still have good prospects for an apple crop and for sour cherries.

Apparently the tobacco plants came through in fair shape. Pasture and small grains were injured but the rains early this week were hastening the recovery of these crops.

IMPORTANT BROADCAST WILL BE HEARD OVER WHAS THURSDAY NIGHT

Mrs. James Bines, a Red Cross Nurse, who was present at the fall of Singapore, will broadcast her experience, from WHAS Thursday night of this week at 9:30 Central War Time. Be sure to listen as Mrs. Bines delivers a most touching address on the horrors of war which she personally witnessed at that time.

I AM AN AMERICAN SOLDIER

I am a mother's son. I am the pride of a family and part of a home. I love my life as you love yours. I am a youth in years and experience in life, yet I am a gambler, betting the highest stakes that a man can wager —my life. If I win, you win; if I lose, I have lost all. The loss is mine, not yours; and there is a grieved mother, a saddened family and a broken home to which I can never return.

I ask only for the Godspeed and support of my nation in return for laying upon the altar of my country my all. For bravery and blood will you furnish bullets and bread? Will you pawn your shekels if I pawn myself? Will you bet your gold while I bet my blood? Will you hazard your wealth while I risk by wife? I am the flower of a nation's manhood, the glory of a noble race. I am the American soldier. I am the Boy in the Trenches.

I give my life—you lend your money.

Cincinnati Youth Arrested On Charge Of Store Breaking

Charley Schrout, 19, was arrested Sunday by Sheriff J. T. Williams at his home in Cincinnati, on a charge of store breaking. Schrout waived extradition papers and was returned to Burlington and placed in the County jail.

He is charged with breaking into D. L. Lusby's store, Walton during the month of February. Sheriff Williams stated that Schrout pleaded guilty to the charge.

Stanley Ryle, of Louisville, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manley Ryle.

Bobby Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown, was ill several days last week.

AIRPORT WORK STARTS NEXT WEEK

FORMAL GROUND BREAKING IS SET FOR MAY 3, WHEN KENTON COUNTY JUDGE TURNS FIRST DIRT.

Frank A. Mashuda of the Mashuda Company, contractors for construction of the airport in Boone County announced that work would be started next week, but that the formal ground breaking would be held May 3. Mashuda said equipment for construction of the airport was being shipped from Pittsburgh.

Formal construction of the Kenton County Airport will be started at 10:30 May 3 when Judge John B. Read of Kenton County Court turns the first dirt for the $2,000,000 field.

Specifications of the contract call for the project to be completed within 150 days after construction work begins. Runways will be constructed of 16 inches of stabilized gravel with a pentration coat of oil, a three-inch surface of hot-mixed asphalt, and a final surface of oil and sand, a total thickness of 19 inches.

Administration buildings and hangars will be erected by Kenton County.

Annual Meeting Is Scheduled By State Homemakers

How women can best serve on the home front will be the general theme of the programs of the annual district meetings of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers April 27th at Memorial Hall, University of Kentucky.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be Miss Hilda Beal, noted lecturer of York, England. Her subject will be "Women of Britain."

Other speakers at the meeting will include Mrs. Ralph Scearce of Shelby county, president of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers, whose subject will be "Windbreaks." Miss Mena Hogan, field agent in home demonstration work in southern states, United States Department of Agriculture, will speak on the subject "Looking Forward to Peace," and Miss Myrtle Weldon, leader of home demonstration work for the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics, will discuss "The State Program in the War Effort."

There will be reports by district chairmen of citizenship, reading, publicity and speakers' bureau committees. There will also be special music.

Mrs. Belle W. Dickey

Mrs. Belle Waterfield Dickey passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Helen Tomlin, of Cincinnati, Saturday, April 17 following a long illness. The remains were removed to the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation.

Services and burial were held at the family lot in the Richwood Presbyterian Cemetery Sunday, April 18 by Rev. Gilbert, pastor of the church.

She is survived by one son, Fielding H. Dickey, of Louisville; 4 daughters, Mrs. Helen May Tomlin, Cincinnati, Mrs. Jesse Tapp, Los Angeles, Calif., Miss Jane Dickey, St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. George Williamson, of Huntington, W. Va.; one brother Richard Waterfield, of Middletown, Ohio.

Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Laura Martin has been ill for the past few days.

RED CROSS DRIVE QUOTA $500 SHORT

CAMPAIGN WILL BE EXTENDED TO APRIL 30TH IN ORDER TO MEET GOAL—WILL BE ONLY CAMPAIGN THIS YEAR.

Irvin Rouse, chairman of the Boone County Red Cross Chapter, stated Monday that Boone County was $500.00 short of reaching our goal of $5100.00, and urged all contributors to dig a little deeper in order to put Boone County over the top.

Counties adjoining Boone have exceeded their quotas—let's get behind Mr. Rouse and his precinct workers and put our county over the top. "We need only $500.00 more to reach our goal," said Mr. Rouse, and we believe that the citizens of this County will not let Boone fail.

The campaign will be extended until April 30th in order that our goal of $5100 may be reached. Let's all dig down and give until it hurts —we haven't scratched the surface yet.

Many persons, no doubt, have been missed by the precinct workers, and should not wait to be solicited. Send your contribution either to Irvin Rouse, chairman or to C. L. Cropper, Burlington, treasurer.

Fifty Men Called By Local Draft Board For Month Of May

Fifty men will be called from Boone County Draft Board No. 9, for the month of May, according to C. G. Kelly, Clerk. These men will be transported to Cincinnati for their final physical examination May 11th.

Thirty-five men were given a screen test by Board 9, Monday of this week, in preparation for the May call.

Two colored men, Chas. Edward Strader and Edwan Lee Johnson were inducted into the army April 16th.

Farmers Should Grow Hybrid Corn

Farmers should grow adapted hybrid corn this year because it increases the total bushels of feed, requires less labor per bushel produced and is more sure of a crop than open pollinated varieties, according to the County Agent's office.

Only adapted hybrids should be used and there have been many unadapted hybrids used in the county that have given unsatisfactory yields.

U. S. 13 remains the most used and leading yellow hybrid in popularity. It is a soft, early maturing hybrid.

Kentucky 103 is the next most popular variety. It is between U. S. 13 and Kentucky 102 in late maturing, tall growing and hardness of kernels.

Kentucky 102 is a late maturing, tall growing variety that is a favorite for silage and in the overflow river bottom sections where its height keeps it above the weeds.

Among the white hybrid Kentucky 69 is the oldest variety. Kentucky 72B is one of the newer yielding hybrids and Kentucky 203 is becoming quite popular over a wide area.

WOOL CLIP WILL BE PURCHASED BY CCC

CEILING PRICES WILL BE PAID, ACCORDING TO RECENT GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCEMENT—WILL INCREASE INCOME.

The Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase the entire 1943 wool clip at ceiling prices, according to a recent government announcement.

This plan should represent a substantial increase in price for Boone County sheepmen over the previous market quoted prices, according to H. E. White, President of the Boone County Wool Pool. It may mean that there may be a few changes in methods of handling at delivery time.

The County Wool Pool sales committee has been busy the past week trying to work out details for handling the 1943 clip. All growers are urged to sign up with their local committeemen at the earliest possible date.

THE RISING FLOOD

It will take the utmost effort from all of the people to save this country from total inflation and collapse. The spectacle of endless wrangling over adoption of a pay-as-you-go tax plan certainly adds no strength to that effort. A plan of such a nature will inevitably be put in force for the simple reason that it is the only way that the government will be able to collect the heavy taxes now being levied, and to be increased in the future. To put it bluntly, we have a choice between a pay-as-you-go plan and chaos. Huge assessments against earnings already spent will result in a mass of tax delinquents which could easily threaten the stability of government itself.

A policy of too little and too late with regard to tax measures would be just as fatal as a lack of battle equipment on the war front. We are spending hundreds of billions of dollars in a matter of months. No ordinary mortal can conceive of such a sum. But it is clear that with every passing day the problems of financing the war grow greater. While the "experts" wrangle over small leaks in the Ruml plan, the debt flood rises.

A pay-as-you-go tax should be passed without delay. Taxation must be put on a pay-as-you-earn basis levied against current income. Until that is done, the full effort of all the people cannot be drawn upon to pay for the war, for many will never pay otherwise.

MATCH THIS RECORD

More than 28,000 physicians volunteered their services without pay to the Selective Service boards. More than 40,000 physicians gave up their careers in civilian practice to serve with the armed forces. The directing board of the Procurement and Assignment Service for Physicians, and its many representatives throughout the nation, serve without one cent of remuneration. The hundreds of physicians on the consultant committee of the Division of Medical Science of the National Research Council, and in the Office of Research and Development, contribute time and income without one cent of remuneration. Throughout the nation, thousands of doctors furnish countless services in connection with civilian defense, without one cent of remuneration. It would be interesting to know what other trade or profession can match this record of public service.

And yet proposals are made to throw American medicine into the political arena, and level it off to the standards prevailing in European countries where experiments in socialized medicine have utterly failed to produce the health records and benefits to the general public which are the rule rather than the exception in the United States. Fortunately for the people of this country, such efforts seem to have failed.

American medicine is marching ahead unselfishly and scientifically in its determination to maintain for our armed forces and the people at home the highest medical standards in the world—not for this year, or next year, but for every year.

PLANS MEALS TO REST ON SUNDAY

Sundays are rest days for Mrs. Carl Boone of Grayson county, that is, as far as meals are concerned. From her supply of canned foods, she selected and stored together those varieties which make a satisfying meal, in fact 26 of them, one for every Sunday throughout the winter season.

With a Sunday collection which includes a jar of meat, two of vegetables, a relish and a fruit, only a salad, bread and butter and a beverage are need to make the meal complete. The plan has saved considerable time and effort for Mrs. Boone, and next year she hopes to have many more such dinners planned.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE RISEN LORD

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—He is risen.—Mark 16:6.

"Christ is living! My people shall know it. I shall preach about it again and again until they believe as I do." So exclaimed Dr. Dale of London when the glory of Christ's resurrection laid hold of him as never before. There began that day the custom of singing an Easter hymn in his church every Sunday morning.

Easter has come again, and it ought to make us glad to recall the resurrection power of Christianity in the midst of the world's awful sorrow and death. Easter should mean more to us than ever this year, if we believe in Christ. If we do not, why not rid ourselves of the dark garments of unbelief, and put on the bright and beautiful garment of faith in a living Christ. Let us be clad in His righteousness.

The first Easter Sunday had scarcely dawned when the faithful Mary came to the tomb. Finding the stone rolled away from its entrance she ran to find Peter and John. What they came and saw, and what—or rather who—she remained and saw, make up our interesting lesson.

I. Peter and John Saw the Empty Tomb (vv. 1-10).

Peter, though he had denied his Lord, was not sent away by his brethren. They knew his true heart, and evidently the gentle and loving John had taken him to his home. Mary knew where to find him. What a tender incidental indication of the Christian spirit of the brethren of Peter.

John and Peter ran to the tomb. The unusual news so stirred them that John the younger did not think to await the slower steps of Peter. He came first, but when he did he only looked in. Peter had no hesitation, but went right in. What he found there was most significant.

Here was twofold evidence that the body of our Lord had not been stolen. The burial clothes were there. They had not been carried off by a thief. Nor had they been snatched aside by a deceiver. They lay in order. There off to one side, carefully folded, was the head covering. Jesus was gone, but He had left in all the dignity and majesty of a triumphant Lord.

What they saw caused John to believe. It appears (v. 9) that they had not yet understood the clear teachings of the Old Testament regarding the death and resurrection of Christ. They were slow to believe. Let not any in our day, with its greater light, fail to believe.

Peter and John came and saw—and then "they went away again unto their own home." And so they missed seeing Christ Himself.

II. Mary Met the Risen Christ (vv. 11-17).

The tears of Mary were the genuine expression of a devoted heart, but they were nevertheless mistaken tears. The question of the angel reveals that fact. Why weep because His body was gone, when that was the very thing which should give her joy? Why weep over a dead Christ when He was alive?

How often our discernment is dimmed by tears and our judgment warped by sorrow. We look on the wrong side of our circumstances and see only a tangle of threads and blurred colors. On the other side God is weaving a pattern of beauty and blessing, which will be our joy through all eternity. Why not remember that now?

Blinded with tears and troubled in heart, Mary did not even recognize the Lord when He spoke to her. But our Lord looking into her soul and knowing that it was her very love for Him which made it hard for her to think of anything but His death, gave to this true-hearted woman the privilege of first seeing Him after His resurrection.

As He spoke her name, she knew Him. We recall that Jesus Himself had said that He was the Good Shepherd who "calleth his own sheep by name" (John 10:3-14).

He knows your name and mine, fellow Christian, and one day we too shall hear His voice even as Mary did on that day. She believed and worshiped. Let us follow her example this Easter day.

There is a danger that the observance of Easter may lose its real significance in the empty incidentals which the world would have us believe make the day. It is a holiday. There is thought of new clothes, of formal church attendance, of family gatherings, of flowers and feasting. They are all right in their proper place. But let us be sure that no adult fails to meet the risen Christ today, and let us be sure that the smallest child knows that this is more than the day of bunnies and candy eggs. They will rejoice in the knowledge that a victorious Christ lives to give them eternal life.

Let us really "keep the feast" this year, purging out the leaven of hypocrisy and dead works, and remembering Christ (see I Cor. 5:7, 8).

The following letter was received from Carl Rudicill, brother of William Rudicill of Burlington. Carl is stationed somewhere in the middleeast. His letter follows:

"Hello Pete and Family:

"Suppose you will be surprise to hear from me, but Katherine asked me if I was getting the paper, so it seemed I should write to you. I receive the paper, but like all mail of that class it is late, nevertheless it is like a letter from home and I assure you it is certainly appreciated.

"If I was a newspaper man and the censor would permit me, I could write you one of the best news articles on this country anyone ever read, as there certainly is plenty of material here for thought.

"The customs of the people are very peculiar and primitive. Sanitation is a thing unheard of in this country, with possibly at least 30 percent of the total population homeless, which is very hard to believe, and possibly everyone will say I have been smoking the pipe or else exposed to the sun too much.

"No one can imagine a country so far behind as this one. I have said before and I say again, either the Lord has forgotten these people or else the people have forgotten Him. Anyway there is something radically wrong whether that is it or not I cannot say.

"The typical dress for the lower class is a sack, for the middle class a very cheap suit, and the upper class clothes styled after the English.

"Nearly everyone carries all his earthly possession with him at all times for fear his brother will steal it as soon as he is out of sight.

"A death and funeral is one of the more interesting things. When a native dies he rates a sack and improvised stretcher with four men to carry it. He is then taken to the cemetery without box or embalming, where his family awaits. Then with much weeping and wailing a hole is made and the body disposed of.

"As you probably have heard already, all points of interest or towns, are off limits. It seems when they examine you for the army they forget all about your brains for taking care of yourself, so consequently there are almost as many M. P. here to look after the weak-minded as there are soldiers to fight our battles.

"So much for the army and the natives. How are all the friends at home? Had a letter from Mary and she gave me the history of all the Xmas parties. Only hope I can be there next Xmas to help carry on.

"Loomis is around to see me once in a while, and he seems to be getting along fine.

"Be sure to keep a close check on all the single girls, as we have hardly seen a white woman since we left the States back in November. Kentucky is well represented. Besides Loomis and myself I have met about ten or twelve other boys from within a hundred miles of home.

"Tell everyone hello for me. Until next time—goodbye and good luck."

Great Lakes, Ill., April 16—Recently returned from a "boot" leave after completing recruit training, James Robert Kittle, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Kittle, Burlington R. 1, has been assigned to the service school for Machinist's Mates, at the U. S. Naval Training Station here, wheer he will be stationed for 16 weeks of intensive instruction. Upon completing the course he may be promoted to a petty officer rating and be assigned to duty at sea or at a shore station.

The Bluejacket was selected to attend the school after making high grades in a series of aptitude tests and having an interview with a trained personnel advisor during "boot" training. He will receive instruction in the theory and practical application of his trade under the supervision of an experienced chief petty officer.

The service school here, one of the largest in the country, provides courses in 19 of the 51 trades used in the U. S. Navy.

• • •

Great Lakes, Ill.—Recently inducted into the U. S. Navy as an apprentice seaman, Harry C. Moore 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore, Florence, Ky., has reported to the U. S. Naval Training Station here for a period of basic training.

In the 12 weeks of training to follow he will be transformed from a civilian into a trim Bluejacket. His program will consist of instruction in seamanship, military drill, an indoctrination into Navy customs and procedures, and participation in a physical hardening program.

He will also be give na series of aptitude tests and a personal interview to determine the type of work to which he will be assigned, in respect to the needs of the Navy, upon completing "boot" training. Before being assigned to further duty, which will be to a service school to learn a specialized trade or to general sea duty, he will be granted a nine-day leave.

The following letter was received from Edwin "Skeets" Walton, stationed at Ft. Bowie, Texas:

"Dear Pete:

"Sorry to have been so late in formally thanking you for The Recorder. I have thanked you a thousand times inwardly but how was you to know that? I receive it every Sunday at noon and so no matter how tough things are going at times I am always assured a pleasant Sunday afternoon reading The Recorder, even if I should be writing some long overdue answers to letters from home.

"You are keeping the fellows in the armed forces in close touch with all that takes place back home. You are fulfilling a need that could not be fulfilled in any other way.

"I finally got adjusted to Texas weather. I know now that the Japs can't kill me if the weather here couldn't. Really it has been fine for the past week; so nice that it makes me a little homesick for an afternoon's fishing on Gunpowder.

"Tell Ty I certainly enjoyed his letter and will write to him later. Tell him also that his offer of fishing plugs is appreciated, but is no good unless he can find or devise one that will hook horned toads, armadillos, or rattlesnakes.

"I think I'll apply for my M. D. when I'm through here. I'm taking Materia Medica, Anatomy and Physiology, Medical Aid, etc. You should see me, tie a fronts-occipital triangular bandage.

"Our regular class work is beginning to be less intense now and is supplemented by actual field practice. The marches are going to be tough now that it's getting hot. We had one Thursday under full pack and wearing gas mask. I felt like a chicken looks when the brooder stove gets too high.

"Our training schedule has been pretty strenuous but it must agree with me for I've gained eighteen pounds since I came here. I'll be a man yet if the war isn't over too son.

"Well Pete, tell everyone 'hello' and not to forget my address. Letters are a very important thing in the army. Keep up your good work and I know you will be long remembered for it.

"Sincerely,
"SKEETS."

TUESDAY

Production of pictures in England progresses under a "business almost as usual" motto despite the war and frequent air raid alarms. At least the Warner Bros. London studio is regularly contributing its quota of film fare.

"This Was Paris," which is coming to the Gayety has the film favorites, Ben Lyon and Ann Dvorak, in top roles. It deals with Nazi fifth-column activities in Paris during the early months of the war which prepared the way for Hitler's armored legions.

"Target for Tonight," "The Prime Minister" and "Sons of the Sea" are recent British-made films which achieved great popularity and "This Was Paris" is sure to follow in their footsteps.

WED., THURSDAY and FRIDAY

Frances Langford doesn't feel a bit like she's acting a part in a motion picture when she sings George M. Cohan's "Over There" in Warner Bros.' "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

The reason is logical. Frances has been doing more than her share of singing in soldier and sailor camp shows throughout the west. And in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" she sings the famous Cohan war song in a scene representing Camp Merritt, in 1917, to an all-soldier audience.

"It's the first chance I've ever had at a song of its sort," Miss Langford says. "I'm so happy to get away from hit lick things and ballads. This is bigger and more important."

BELLEVIEW CHURCH OF CHRIST
Sam Hamilton, Minister

Bible School, 10 a. m. (CWT) Tommie Stevens, Supt.

We are beginning a new class for young folk, ages thirteen up to the adult classes. Bro. Jack Purdy will be the very capable teacher of this new group. We are putting in a new and special course for this class which will be far different than the usual thing used in Bible school. Text books by R. E. Elmore, entitled "Christian Unity" have been provided for this study. We are expecting big things from this new class, so spread the news around that next Sunday is the big day for the young folks.

Morning Worship 11:00. Sermon subject, "The Tale of Two Cities." We shall be favored at this service by a special, "The Holy City." Choir practice 2:30 p. m.

The life of Christ in full colored pictures will be presented at the evening service. We have 230 beautiful paintings that will be projected, telling the story of the last week of Jesus' ministry, beginning from the triumphal entry, and telling the story of the trials, the crucifixion, the burial, the resurrection and ascension of our Lord. The choir will present various numbers in keeping with this theme. No one ought to miss this unique program which is the first of its kind that we know of. Program begins at 7:30 p. m. (CWT).

WITH OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

The following letter was received from Pfc. Freddie O. Highouse, stationed in Alaska:

"Dear Editor:

"I was very much surprised to receive my dollar back, I really don't know what to say. I can't find words enough to thank you as your paper means so much to me. It is all the news that I have here as I am in a pretty rough place as you know.

"I am safe and well. I want to thank you for everything which you and your paper have done for me, and may God bless you and my friends who are doing so much for us boys. Just don't give up, and have faith in us."

• • •

Sgt. Wm. Sebastian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sebastian, now stationed at Camp Van Dorn, Miss., is greatly improved from an attack of meningitis, according to a report from his father. He will return home for a brief furlough, after being released from the hospital.

Mr. Sebastian also reported, another son, John Sebastian, stationed at Ft. Benning Ga., with the U. S. Army has been promoted to Corp.

• • •

The following letter was received from Eddie Helms of Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.:

"Dear Mr. Stephens:

"You probably think I didn't appreciate your sending me The Recorder each week as I've never written to thank you for it, but I've been so busy with basic training and then nine weeks of Finance School, besides spending one month in the hospital.

It certainly is wonderful to think that the editor of our county paper is appreciative enough of what we, in the Service are trying to do that he too is doing his part by bringing us news of our loved ones back home.

"I for one one can say I certainly enjoy it and read it from cover to cover. After driving for Doctor Love for ten years, I met and made many friends in Boone County who are very dear to me, and even though I cannot write to all of them I think of them often and through The Recorder am able to hear from them. It's a real treat just to read that Ross and Ed Shinkle of East Bend sold some hogs or Lloyd and Pearl McGlasson of Pannel Bottoms were in Covington shopping, and then turn to Hebron news to find Earl Aylor, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Crutcher had been in Cincinnati on business Sunday; and Heard Around The County Seat, I'll probably read about my many friends there, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Botts and a very faithful friend whom I've heard from on an average of once every two weeks, either with a card or letter, that being Mrs. Lutie Clore. Oh, yes! I musn't forget Mary with her Gasburg news—Good old Mary, she usually has more news from around home than anyone. I never miss reading from every town in the County, but of course the first one I turn to is my own home town, Petersburg, even though I usually know all the news as I received it from the dearest little editor in the world, 'My Mother.'

"Again I want to thank you and may I add these few lines:

"Don't worry about us, you loved ones left back home,
For we have a wonderful leader, and we're not in this battle alone,
We're fighting for our freedom for ourselves and all the other lands,
And we have placed ourselves in the Great Almighty's hands.

"My address has been changed now and instead of Co. H, 2nd Fin. Tr. Bn., it is Cpl. Edward F. Helms, 37 Finance Section FRTC, Ft. Ben Harrison, Ind.

"Give my best regards to all my friends in Burlington and over the County."

• • •

Pvt. Louis Cecil Riddell, of Camp Butner, N. C., is home this week enjoying a 15-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Riddell, of Florence. Pvt. Riddell entered the army February 4, and has been quite ill at the army hospital in North Carolina for several weeks prior to his furlough.

SECOND WAR LOAN DRIVE

The citizens of Boone County are in the midst of the largest underdtaking this month ever faced in the history of this country, in raising a quota of $474,000.00 individual subscriptions to Government Bonds in this Second War Loan Drive. It can be done if every one does his or her duty by subscribing to the limit for the best investment on earth. The boys in the front lines are doing a good job for us, we must do this job for them. Help Boone County go "Over the Top" by subscribing all you can, even if you have to borrow from your bank temporarily. The banks will lend you the money at the same rate the bond bears for a reasonable time. Our Boone County soldiers in camps and in the front lines are watching us. Do not let them down. The banks have oversubscribed their quotas and it is now up to individuals to do likewise.

BUSY DAYS AHEAD

For Your Electric Refrigerator

Better Check it Over Now!

All winter long your refrigerator has been loafing along using only a fraction of its cold-making capacity, but the coming of warm weather means it will have to work longer and harder to protect your perishables. Food spoilage is taboo in these days of rationing, so give your refrigerator the care it needs to operate at peak efficiency. Don't let neglect rob you of vital food protection!

FOLLOW THESE POINTERS ON REFRIGERATION CARE

- Defrost whenever frost becomes ¼-inch thick.
- Cover all liquids. Keep defrosting tray dry.
- Don't set cold control any higher than necessary. Use quick freezing sparingly.
- Make sure door gasket seals tightly. Keep free of grease.
- Don't crowd shelves. Air circulation is vital to efficiency.
- Don't store hot foods. Let them cool first.
- Don't open door oftener than necessary. And close it quickly.
- Keep refrigerator clean, condenser coils dust-free.
- Oil open unit models periodically as instructed. Sealed units need no oiling.

Long Illness And Your Feet

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

Long illness or long convalescence often may be the cause of painful muscle spasm in the lower limb and foot. In either circumstance long periods of inactivity, lack of exercise, coupled with the weakened condition of the body cause the muscles to lose tone and become weak and flabby.

The foot, while lying, as in bed, cannot and is not, held in a normal position in relation to the limbs and rest of the body. The foot is held in an extended position which allows a shortening of the muscles in the back of the limb, and allows the weaker muscles in the front of the limb to stretch.

When partial strength to the patient, is restored and he finally is allowed to walk, it is imperative that the bones of the foot are properly supported in shoes designed to ditributed body weight evenly over the whole bottom surface of the foot, and to relieve further, the strain on the muscles, ligaments and tendons, until normal strength and muscle tone return.

An ordinary "strong looking" shoe is not the solution to this problem. Ordinary shoes with so-called arch supports and flat base planes, can only allow the foot condition to degrees further.

At this time special attention should be paid to the inner construction of the shoe. The base construction and inner foundation of the shoe should be shaped to the NORMAL CONTOUR of the bottom of a NORMAL FOOT. The inside of the shoe should resemble the normal foot print in soft turf or sand.

Such a shoe with sound construction and foot shaped base planes is found in and especially built surgical shoe.—Adv.

BIG BONE BAPTIST W. M. S.

Thursday, April 8th the Big Bone W. M. S. met at the home of Mrs. Emma Jane Aylor for their regular monthly meeting, with Mrs. Gruelle, presiding.

Sixteen persons were present to enjoy an interesting program.

The next meeting will be held in May with Mrs. Frances Aylor.

PETERSBURG HOMEMAKERS

The Petersburg Homemakers met April 8th at the home of Mrs. W. O. Rector with 13 members and Mrs. Moore our County H. D. A., present. The morning was spent in a social hour.

The emergency meal was cooked and served by the leaders, Miss Mary Rector and Mrs. J. B. Berkshire. The meal was splendid and enjoyed by all.

At one o'clock the meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Mathews. the club singing „The Star Spangled Banned," and pledged Allegiance to the Flag.

The roll was called by Miss Johnnie Mae Terrill. Mrs. Moore gave a talk on the District meeting which will be held April 27 at Lexington. The flower show will be held sometime this summer.

The club and Mrs. Moore discussed the blood donation and some of the members wish to give to this cause. Next was the project for the coming year. Leaflets were passed around and every member was asked to check the most important item on the list.

The reading chairman, Mrs. Watts gave a report on reading. Mrs. J. B. Berkshire gave a report on citizenship and gave names of our boys. The names will be placed on the zoard at Burlington.

Mrs. Chas. Klopp gave a report on publicity and Miss Mary Rector gave the speaker's report on "How and When to Plant Flowers and Prune Trees and Shrubs."

Every member was asked to bring a small bunch of flowers to our next meeting which will be May 13th.

CLARK FAMILY PUTS FAITH IN LIVESTOCK

How a livestock system of farming works for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berryman in Clark county is told by Eugene Culton, Jr., county farm agent.

They raised 2,200 turkeys in 1942, after hatching 4,500 poults for sale. Six hundred certified birds were held over to produce eggs this spring. When their flock was blood-tested recently, no reactors or suspects were found.

The Berrymans also have on their 240-acre farm, 20 grade beef cows which raised baby beeves, and four brood sows which raised 64 pigs. Then there are 80 ewes on the farm. The only cultivated crop is about 12 acres of tobacco. All the work is done by Mr. and Mrs. Berryman and two or three hands.

By rotating the turkeys around the field to scatter the manure, the Berryman's are building up the grazing and production capacity of their land to double what it was when they bought it six years ago.

A Week of The War

The news of the week from Tunisia was the junction of the U. S. Second Army Corps and the British Eight Army. Contact was made about 15 miles east of El Guettar on the Gasa-Gabes Road, which indicates that the British swung inland some distance in order to meet the American force.

This junction was effected during the afternoon of April 7 (Wednesday), after the decisive defeat of Rommel's determined counter-attacks. Early Wednesday morning, when it became evident that the enemy could not maintain any position in the Wadi Akarit area north of Audref, Allied mobile forces began moving forward. Wadi Akarit is a deep, natural tank barrier which affords excellent defensive positions, but the Allied forces pushed their drive relentlessly, French, British and American troops moving in close co-operation. And by afternoon, the British and American forces had made contact.

Effective Air Support

Aerial tactics are still a great factor in the battle of Tunisia. On Sunday, April 4, Allied air operations cost the Axis 11 aircraft destroyed, Monday's operations cost the Axis 48 planes, and Monday night an enemy bomber was brought down. Tuesday's total was 27 Axis planes destroyed; Wednesday's operations shot down 14. Thus, in three days of aerial combat, the Allies put out of the fighting 101 Axis planes, at a loss of 23 of our own. Returning from an inspection tour, Brig. Gen. Aubry C. Strickland, commanding advanced U. S. A. A. F. headquarters, said the U. S. Ninth Air Force units in the Tunisian front lines helped "break the back" of German resistance.

Secretary of War Stimson, in a review of the war, told reporters that in one day—24 hours—American planes operating in the African theater shot down 50 Axis planes, and lost less than one-fourth of that number. Some of these Axis planes, he said, were big transport aircraft trying to supply the Nazis with gasoline. The week's bombing raids on Axis airfields in Tunisia, Sicily and Sardinia resulted in the destruction of 120 enemy planes caught on the ground, in addition to those shot down in combat.

Victory Assured

Mr. Stimson said the immediate objectives of the present drive in Tunisia are not yet clear, but "we can be assured of victory in that theater." He confirmed an early claim that more than 5,000 Axis soldiers were taken prisoner last Tuesday when the British opened their new drive north of Gabes, and promised that the British success and the American flanking actions would be "exploited to the fullest." Commenting on the same developments, OWI Director Davis was also optimistic. He explained the continued Allied success against Rommel by pointing out that the pressure of U. S. forces against the right flank of the Africk Korps compelled Rommel to divert part of his forces to meet the American drive, and British forces were thus able to drive thru and take another German-held position.

Jap Air Strength

The size of the Japanese air armada—50 bombers escorted by 48 zeroes—which was so decisively defeated on April 7 in its attack against U. S. shipping in the Solomons seems to verify recent reports that the Japanese have been increasing their aerial strength in the Southwest Pacific. U. S. airmen, the Navy announced, shot down 37 out of the 98 attacking planes, and at a loss of only seven of our fighters. Secretary Stimson admitted that the Japanese have built up their air reserves in this area, but said we have been doing the same thing. Although in some places we may not have a numerical superiority over the Japanese the quality of our equipment and our men has constantly proved our superiority, and today we have an edge on them.

THE 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

Winner Take All!

There is one stark and simple fact about war which you had better get straight . . . and quickly, too
THERE IS NO SECOND PLACE IN A WAR — IT'S EITHER WIN OR LOSE!

WAR FINANCE COMMITTEE

This war is being fought for tremendous stakes . . .
. . . for your life and your liberty.
. . . for your church and your children.
. . . for your freedom and your future.

And it's WINNER TAKE ALL. Don't forget that for a minute.

The winner will dictate whether tomorrow you shall be a free citizen of a free world, or a helpless serf to a "master race."

The winner will dictate whether you shall live and prosper under the Four Freedoms, or toil hopelessly in the darkness of a "New Order."

The winner will dictate . . . because the winner takes all.

The winner takes all. All you own, all you hold dear.

The winner is being decided right now... today... this very minute... on battlefields all over the world. Will you stand idly by . . . or throw all your weight on our side?

The weight of mighty tanks and planes. The weight of thousands of guns and millions of shells. The weight of billions of dollars . . . 13 billions your country asks you to lend during this Drive.

Your country wants to borrow every idle dollar you have—every dollar except what you need for the barest necessities of life.

You'll have to give up some luxury or comfort which was dear to your heart. You'll have to postpone some pleasure which you had been eagerly anticipating.

But what of it?

Your sons and brothers and husbands are dying out there . . . fighting your fight. Surely it is no sacrifice to lend your dollars while they are giving their lives.

They need your help. They need the weapons your money can buy. If one of the War Loan volunteers calls on you... greet him with open pocketbook. Remember, Uncle Sam's goal is 13 billion dollars in April.

Don't wait to be asked. Go to your nearest bank, investment dealer, broker, Post Office or issuing agency and lay your money on the line. Remember, it's an investment you're making — an investment that pays a good return and insures a happier future for you and your loved ones.

So lend up to the limit.

You'll sleep better for it.

Town And Farm In Wartime

"They Give Their Lives—You Lend Your Money"

The Second War Loan Drive—which began April 12—must raise the astounding sum of thirteen billion dollars to support American armies that are now attacking the enemy. An offensive army requires ammunition and materials that cost staggering sums of money. For example—one night raid of 1,000 bombers over the Rhineland takes $375,000 worth of gasoline. A million dollars worth of bombs may be dropped in that raid, and 10 or 11 million dollars worth of planes may be destroyed.

In the future, America's armies will undertake still greater attacks and these in turn will require still more money. The 13 billion dollars must be raised in addition to the regular purchases of war bonds and stamps that our people are making now. Slogan for the Second War Loan Drive is—"They give their lives—You lend your money."

Ration Books For Service Men

Service men who eat 10 or more meals per week away from the Army Post are entitled to Ration Book Two.

Army Has Victory Gardens

Some Army camps have already started their Victory Gardens and many more will soon be seen at camps where suitable soil is handy to living quarters. They'll produce whatever the men prefer, or whatever crop seems best suited to the location. Army gardens are nothing new, but now they are to be on a larger scale. However, they will not interfere with training. The men who conduct them may do so only as a voluntary off-time recreational activity. Food produced will be for the consumption of military personnel only and not for sale.

Farmers Get Points For Meat

When a farmer sells a slaughtered calf direct to a retail meat market, the market operator must surrender the right number of points to the farmer, says OPA. The farmer must then turn the stamps over to the ration board.

Return Unused Gas Coupons

Unused gasoline ration coupons and books which are no longer valid are the property of the Government and must be turned in within five days after the close of the period of validity. Holders of unused first quarter "T" gasoline coupons, which have not expired, are asked to turn them in immediately to their local ration boards.

Men Back to Dairy Farms

Local Selective Service Boards have been told to return men with experience in dairy farms. The program includes—

1. Persuading 4F men between 18 and 45 with experience to return to dairy farms if they are not in an essential activity.

2. Getting men over 45, not engaged in essential activity, to go back to dairy farming.

3. Giving men 18 to 45 thirty days to get into agriculture or another essential activity, otherwise they will be classified as available for military service.

Frozen Vegetables For All

There will be plenty of frozen vegetables in 1943 for the armed forces without cutting the supply available for civilian use, the War Department has announced. The pack of quick-frozen vegetables this year will be between 240,000 and 260,000 pounds, according to present U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates as compared with a pack of 162,000,000 last year. The supply for civilian consumption will be equal to or more than that available last year.

Fewer Points, Less Money

Butchers may no longer reduce point values of rationed meats and fats without at the same time lowering money prices, according to OPA. If the retailer lowers the point value, he must lower the price at least 25 per cent below ceiling. If he lowers the point value more than 25 per cent, the selling price must be reduced below ceiling in proportion, but in no case more than 50 per cent.

Rubber Tires For Tractors

A plan to assist farmers in their vital wartime food production will provide rubber tires and tubes for converting approximately 20,000 tractors and implements, originally equipped with steel wheels, which have been bought since May 1, 1942. Local OPA War Price and Rationing Boards will authorize conversions after certification of farmers applications by U. S. Department of Agriculture county war boards. Reasons for certification are—1. Necessity of moving implements over the road from farm to farm; 2. Soil or topography such that tractor is seriously handicapped by not having rubber tires.

Import Jamaican Workers

Ten thousand agricultural workers will be imported from Jamaica to relieve the farm labor shortage in critical areas in the U. S. thru an agreement between the two governments. The Jamaican worker will not displace U. S. farm laborers nor reduce established wage rates. Health authorities will check the physical fitness and when workers contracts expire, the laborers will be returned to Jamaica. Similar agreements have been made with Mexico and the Bahama Islands.

Seed Potatoes

Retailers are now permitted to sell seed potatoes in any quantity for planting purposes only. The former requirement that they be sold only in lots of fifty pounds, or more has been removed by OPA.

Food For Demonstrations

Schools using foods for educational purposes, and other food demonstration groups, may get allotments of rationed foods by applying to their local rationing board, the OPA has announced. Many of these groups are conducting projects directly related to the Government's food conservation program.

Fewer Trucks

The number of heavy trucks that may be manufactured for civilian use has been cut from 3,580 to 3,017 by amendment of Limitation Order L-1-H.

Reserve Peas and Beans

Fifty-five per cent of dry edible beans and 60 per cent of dry peas and split-peas are to be reserved for military needs and the use of our Allies. The average civilian will have about eight pounds of dry beans or 90 per cent of his usual supply and nearly one pound of dry peas, or about 75 per cent. For dry beans, this is about one pound more per capita than was expected for this year at the time beans and peas were added to the list of rationed foods.

To Support Wool Price

Under a price support program for wool, the Commodity Credit Corporation will buy wool from growers at prices equal to the current ceiling prices less certain allowances. The 1942 wool production, estimated at 460 million pounds, was the largest on record. Prices to producers averaged approximately 40 cents per pound, about 4½ cents higher than in 1941, and the highest since 1920.

Binder Twine Price Up

Binder twine prices will be somewhat higher this year, because of the increased cost of materials. Cordage and twine fibers, from which binder twine has been made in the past, are scarce. WPB and the U. S. Department of Agriculture have, therefore, encouraged use of part cotton yarn combined with henequin and sisal. These fibers are more expensive than materials formerly used.

More Oil For Eastern States

Initial deliveries through the newly completed 179-mile extension of the plantation pipeline between Greensboro, North Carolina, and Richmond, Virginia, will run about 15,000 barrels a day, according to petroleum administrator for war Harold L. Ickes. The column of approximately 60,000 barrels of gasoline is scheduled to reach Richmond this week. This supply will help solve the petroleum problem of eastern states. When additional pump stations at Roxboro, North Carolina, and at Clarksville and Blackstone, Virginia, go into service, pipeline deliveries will reach full capacity of 80,000 barrels a day.

More Canned Fish This Year

The amount of canned fish available to civilians from the 1943 pack should be somewhat larger than from last year's pack, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Due to a smaller carryover of canned fish in 1943, however, the per capita supply for this year may be about three-fourths of the 1942 civilian consumption.

Women On Railroads

Women employed on Class 1 railroads increased almost 60 per cent from September 15, 1942, to January 15, 1943. A survey by the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that in September 39,590 women were employed in 49 types of jobs on the nation's railroads. By January, the number had risen to 63,187 and the types of jobs to 74. State labor regulations do not prevent the employment of women in transportation industries.

New Prices for "Seconds"

New tires and tubes which have imperfections are now sold under separate maximum wholesale and retail prices set by OPA. The new prices are based on discounts of 20 percent from the maximum price for perfect truck tires and tubes, and 25 per cent for other types.

INJURIES FATAL TO SIX IN WRECK NEAR WALTON

FIVE CHILDREN KILLED INSTANTLY, FATHER DIES MONDAY MORNING—MOTHER RECOVERING FROM INJURIES.

Five children were killed instantly Saturday afternoon when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a Green Line bus, just north of Walton on U. S. 25. Their father died Monday morning at St. Elizabeth Hospital, from injuries received in the crash.

The dead are, Henry Bokelo, the father, Patsy Klumper, 12 years old; Earl Klumper, 10; Henry Bokelo, Jr., 3; Charles Bokelo, 2, and John Bokelo, 18 months, all of Walton.

The mother is in St. Elizabeth Hospital, and last reports indicate she will recover.

The father, a cement finisher at Wright Field, Dayton, suffered a skull fracture, left leg fracture and internal injuries. His wife, Mrs. Hazel Bokelo, 29, received a left arm fracture and internal injuries. The two eldest children were Mrs. Bokelo's by a former marriage.

The father was taken to the hospital by Kentucky State Highway Patrolman Astor B. Kinman and Buford Wainscott. Mrs. Bokelo was removed by the ambulance of Chambers and Grubbs, Walton funeral directors. Bodies of the children were taken to the funeral home.

Witnesses reported that Bokelo was driving south. As he rounded a curve one mile north of Walton a team of horses and a wagon, also traveling south, loomed in front of him. In an effort to avoid hitting the wagon he swerved into the path of the northbound bus. The larger vehicle plowed over the automobile, crushing the top.

The bus was operated by Charles Urich, 1308 Hermes Ave., Covington, who suffered shock. The bus was empty when the accident occurred.

According to officers, it took more than an hour to extricate Mrs. Bokelo from the wreckage, which was wedged beneath the bus. All the children died instantly.

Traffic was routed around the wreck, eliminating a traffic tie-up.

The Bokelos had been visting friends in Northern Kentucky and were returning home when the accident occurred.

Tharp & Stith and Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of funeral arrangements for the Bokelo children.

Northcutt Herd Brings High Prices

Dr. Joe Northcutt' dairy herd on the farm near Limaburg sold last Thursday for one of the highest prices in the county for many years.

The entire herd of more than forty cows were estimated to have brought an average of more than $175.00 per head with many cows bringing more than $200 per head and the high cow bringing $305. There were many out-of-county buyers at the sale.

PROMINENT LADY ANSWERS CALL

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. J. D. McNEELY HELD SUNDAY, APRIL 25 AT BELLEVIEW BAPTIST CHURCH.

Fannie Laura Ryle, daughter of James T. and Caroline Clements Ryle was born January 8, 1865, departed this life April 23, 1943, age 78 years, 3 months and 15 days.

January 14, 1885 she was united in marriage to John D. McNeely, and to this union was born four sons, Ernest and Lee R. McNeely, Boone County; Robert C. McNeely, Patriot, Ind., and Bernard McNeely, Patterson Field, Ohio. She is survived by her husband, her four sons, together with six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She is also survived by several nieces, nephews and many other relatives and friends who mourn her departure.

At the age of 16 Mrs. McNeely expressed her faith in the Lord by uniting with the Belleview Baptist Church in October 1881, under the pastorate of A. M. Vardiman with Rev. James A. Kirtley doing the preaching. Later she moved her membership to Big Bone Baptist Church and was a member there for a number of years, but when she moved back in the community she brought her membership back to Belleview and remained a faithful member until her death.

Mrs. McNeely was a member of a larg family. She had two brothers, four sisters, and ten half-brothers and sisters who have all preceded her to the grave. She was a good neighbor, kind to all with whom she came in contact, and we can say in the words of the proverb, Prov. 31:27-28, "She looked well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness. Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her." Also with the Psalmist, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." Ps. 116-15.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday, April 25, at 2 p. m. at the Belleview Baptist Church, with Rev. W. C. Guth, pastor in charge of services, assisted by Rev. R. A Johnson, Rev. W. M. Smith, and Rev. Geo. Smith, the two latter being nephews of the deceased.

Pallbearers were three of the sons, Lee, Robert, and Bernard McNeely and three grandsons, James Lee, Lee Roy and Bobby McNeely.

Robert S. Hensley was in charge of the song service, assisted by Miss Betty Cason, Mrs. Louella Burcham, Rev. Raymond Smith, and Jas. Lee McNeely, with Mrs. Alline Brady at the piano. After services at the church the body was laid to rest in the Belleview Cemetery with her son saying commitment service and Rev. Raymond Smith making closing prayer at the grave.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of funeral services.

PRESSURE COOKERS RATIONED BY CFRC

APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE AT FARM COMMITTEE OFFICE OR OFFICE OF MARY SCOTT MOORE, H. D. A.

Instructions have been received by the County Farm Rationing Committee concerning the rationing of pressure canners, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. These cookers made from vital war steel, are made under government contract to aid in the vast food conservation effort which is a part of the home front war program. No quota has been set on this item, and will not be until it becomes necessary.

Persons desiring to purchase cookers should obtain application blanks from the Farm Committee office or from Mrs. Moore. An advisory committee will recommend applications to the Rationing Committee and purchase orders will be issued when approved applications locate cookers for sale.

Applications will be recommended on the basis of amounts of food to be canned in the cooker. Neighborhood groups, organizations or individual families may apply.

According to advance information the cookers will be of a size to hold seven quart jars, and are described as having enameled steel bottoms and tinplated steel tops. The price will approximate $15. There is reason to believe that they will not be on the market here for several weeks, but Mrs. Moore suggests that applications be made at an early date so the committee may act upon them before the cookers go on sale. Local dealers should be contacted concerning the expected supply.

Wool Growers Should Sign Up With Solicitors

All Boone County wool growers desiring to sell their wool through the 1943 county pool should sign up with their local solicitors at the earliest possible date, according to H. E. White, president of the county pool.

The pool hopes to be of the most efficient service possible. The listing of all fleeces to be sold through the pool is of utmost importance. Plans are for the delivery of wool on the same basis as in previous years.

Robt. W. Rice

Robert W. Rice, age 81 years, passed away Wednesday, April 21 at his home in Belleview, following an extended illness.

Funeral services were conducted from the Belleview Baptist Church Friday at 2 p. m., with burial in Belleview Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bertha Rice; two daughters, Mrs. Neva Sebree and Mrs. Clara Sebree of Boone County; two sons Orville Rice, of Boone County and Elmer Rice of Newport; 1 nephew Perlie Rice; two brothers Ezekiel and W. S. Rice; two sisters, Aggie Spacey and Susie Moon.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

SUNDAY, MAY 2 SET FOR DEDICATION

OF SERVICE ROLL BOARD—JUDGE JOSEPH P. GOODENOUGH WILL BE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER.

Judge Joseph P. Goodenough, Judge of Kenton Circuit Court, will be the principal speaker at the dedication program for the Boone County Service Roll, Sunday, May 2. Roy Johnson will make the dedicatory address. The Boone County school band will start their prelude at 3:00 E. W. T. The public is cordially invited to assemble at the south entrance to the courthouse where the Service Board will be set. Mrs. John Boyer, Citizenship Chairman of the Boone County Homemakers' Association will preside.

The program will also include invocation by Rev. Noble Lucas; Pledge to the Flag led by Boone Post of the American Legion; community singing of "The Star Spangled Banner,," "America" and "God Bless America"; recognition of Service men, and special musical numbers. A. B. Renaker will introduce Judge Goodenough.

Come and honor the Service men by attending the dedicatory program.

Additional Contributions Needed

According to Mrs. Sam Sleet, Chairman of the Homemakers Committee on the County Service Roll, additional contributions are needed to defray the expense connected with the erection of the board. No solicitations will be made. Free will donations may be sent to Mrs. Sleet, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore or other members of the committee.

Hebron Girl Selected As RCA Victor Cadette

Miss Kathryn Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Nichols of Hebron has been selected as one of eighty girls to be an RCA Victor Cadette and take radio training at Purdue University, to help in the war effort.

After forty-four weeks of training, Miss Nichols will qualify as a radio technician.

Miss Nichols graduated from Hebron High School in 1941 and has been attending Mt. St. Clare Junior College at Clinton, Iowa for the past two years.

Mrs. Hattie B. Arnold

Mrs. Hattie B. Arnold, 21 Graves Avenue, Erlanger, passed away at her home Saturday.

Mrs. Arnold, who was 71 years old, came to Erlanger three years ago from Owen County, Ky., where she had lived for many years. She was a member of the Long Ridge Baptist Church, Owen County.

She leaves her husband Robert M. Arnold; a son, Howard Arnold, Erlanger; two daughter, Mrs. Jas. Alspaugh, Erlanger, and Mrs. Arnold E. True, San Carlos, Calif; two brothers, John T. Hancock, Georgetown, and Elmer E. Hancock, Louisville, Ky., and three grandchildren.

Philip Taliaferro, Erlanger funeral director was in charge of arrangements.

YELTON ENTERS CO. JUDGE RACE

MAKES FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT TO VOTERS OF BOONE COUNTY IN THIS ISSUE OF RECORDER.

A. D. Yelton, Burlington, makes his formal announcement as a democratic candidate for the nomination of County Judge, of Boone County, in this issue. Mr. Yelton is well known to the voters of Boone County, and needs no introduction.

The following statement was made by Mr. Yelton, when handing in his formal anouncement:

'Prior to 1941, I was approached by some of the leading citizens of Burlington and other parts of the County, with the suggestion that I become a candidate for County Judge at the 1941 August primary. I carefully considered the matter, but out of deference to the late lamented Judge Riddell, I decided to wait until some future date. Some of these suggestions have been renewed, and after mature consideration, I have decided to seek the Democratic nomination for that office, and to this end, I make this announcement.

"I do not believe that I need to be introduced to the people of this County, because it has been my pleasure, on account of your votes, to serve as Clerk of the Circuit Court and to be Master Commissioner for the past nine years. During these nine years, I have endeavored to discharge the duties imposed upon me by the law of Kentucky, without fear or favor to any group. How well I have succeeded in this, is for the people of the County and not for me to judge.

"The office of County Judge is very important, and in many Counties is filled by attorneys, but the law of Kentucky does not require this, and in my judgment, apart from attending and graduating from a law school and being admitted to practice law, the next best opportunity to learn the intricacies of the law is to be in a court room day after day watching and hearing attorneys state all manner of legal questions and argue them, and I believe that nine years of such training has given me at least a fair understanding of the fundamental principals of justice, and a fair working knowledge of Court procedure.

"To me there is nothing more fascinating than law, and during these same nine years, in addition to watching and listening to the various legal debates in Court, I have at such spare time as has been at my disposal sought to familiarize myself with those sections of the law applying primarily to governmental matters, and with due modesty, I believe that if nominated and elected, I can discharge the duties of this important office in such a way as to furnish no reason for regret on the part of anyone for having supported me. At least such a course shall be my earnest desire, and I will make every effort so to do.

"Campaign pledges are oft times forgotten, and for this reason I shall make but two, and they will be general, and are briefly stated, thus:

"a. I will endeavor to give my whole time and attention to the discharge of the duties of the office.

"b. I will endeavor to cooperate with the Fiscal Court in such a way as to keep the fair name of Boone County's fiscal and financial status at its present high standing.

"I am thankful that we all live in a Country where free elections still prevail, and we can at such elections choose our officers.

"I respectfully solicit your support and vote, with the hope that I may be commissioned by you to act as your County Judge and that my experience as Clerk of the Court will be of help to me in the discharge of those duties."

Wm. Craddock

Wm. Craddock passed away at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Presser, near Union, Tuesday, April 20. His remains were removed to Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation.

Funeral services were conducted from the funeral home Thursday, April 22 at 2 p. m. with burial in Walton Cemetery.

Mr. Craddock is survived by four sons, Tom, Walton, Russell and Lee all of Boone County; 1 daughter, Mrs. Oscar Burnside, of Middletown, O.; one sister, Mrs. Icey Fornash, Covington; 45 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

County Herds Are T. B. Free, Is Report

Approximately 1200 cows in dairy herds were recently tested in Boone County for T. B. under the Federal and State Veterinary Departments. According to last reports no T. B. reactors were found.

T. B. was once one of the serious cattle diseases in the milk sheds around all large cities. Continuous testing is gradually eliminating this disease. Bovine T. B. was often found in the form of certain types of rheumatism and other infections in humans.

John H. Anderson Purchases Union General Store

John H. Anderson, of Latonia, Ky., has recently purchased the general store and equipment of V. Dickerson & Co., located in Union, Ky., and will take over the management of the store this week.

Mr. Anderson is a former resident of Boone County, having owned and operated a small farm on the Garrison Road near Union for several years.

This store has been operated by Mr. Dickerson for the last seven years.

TRUCK OPINION HANDED DOWN

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL IN LETTER TO MARK COOK, CHAIRMAN BOONE COUNTY USDA BOARD.

An opinion has been forwarded to the Boone County USDA War Board by the Assistant Attorney General, according to Mark Cook, Chairman, regarding the hauling on a farm truck, licensed as such, of farm produce of a neighbor farmer as well as merchandise for such neighbor on the return trip.

"Due to the emergency that now exists in the nation and particularly due to the shortage of rubber, it becomes necessary that all citizens use every possible means to conserve this most vital material. A few weeks ago this office gave an opinion to the effect that automobile owners could carry in their passenger cars persons on on what is generally called the 'Share-the-ride' plan without violating the provisions of the Statute governing buses, taxicabs, etc., and that the mere fact that those persons riding with the owner of the car contributed to the cost of the operation and upkeep of the automobile did not make the owner of the car an operator for hire. Following this same line of reasoning, it is the opinion of this office that a farmer may haul to market the produce of his neighbor farmer and on the return trip carry food and other necessaries for the neighbor and his family without violating the provision of the Statute concerning the farm truck license. Neither will he violate other provisions of the Kentucky Statutes common carriers requiring certificates, weight tax, etc.

"I do not mean to convey the idea that a farmer may go out and solicit business from other farmers either for the hauling of their farm produce to the market or hauling supplies to such farmers on his return trip, but it is our opinion that a farmer may only haul farm produce to the market and necessary supplies on the return trip for those farmers living within the same community or within the generally accepted radius of neighbors and that these neighbor farmers may contribute to the cost of the operation of the truck to and from the market.

"It would be indeed a hardship and would defeat every principle of the conservation of rubber and other necessary and vital machinery and materials to require a farmer to drive his truck many miles to market with only a partial load and his neighbor farmer make a like trip with only a small load when they can share the trip and save the vital materials. For this reason, it is the opinion of this office that to share the cost of the transportation of these commodities to market, using only one truck, will not be considered a violation of any of the provisions of the Kentucky Revised Statutes. Of course, the farmer should be warned against abusing this privilege and that if he tries to use his truck for commercial purposes, soliciting business and hauling indiscriminately, he will be violating the law and will be prosecuted for such activities in the event he is apprehended."

The Office of Defense Transportation has warned against the empty driving of trucks and that unless this practice is stopped, it will be necessary for that office to reduce the mileage considerably, and perhaps in some instances, even to revoke the certificates. Farmers should therefore cooperate in their hauling and in trying to save gas and rubber.

Lloyd-Kirkpatrick

Miss Margaret Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lloyd, of Carrollton, and Donald Kirkpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick, of Burlington, were quietly married at the home of Rev. R. F. Demoisey, officiating minister, Walton, on Saturday afternoon.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewellyn, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Howe and Earl Lloyd, all of Carrollton.

The groom is well known in Boone County. He is a graduate Burlington high school, graduating in the class of '35. Since his graduation he has been employed by the County Road Department, the State Highway Patrol, and at present is an employee of the Mississippi Valley Co., Cincinnati, O.

The happy young couple are at home to their many friends in Burlington.

The Recorder joins in wishing them many years of happiness.

Clarence E. Carpenter

Clarence Earl "Pete" Carpenter of Florence, life-long resident of Boone County died suddenly Monday afternoon following a heart attack. He was 51.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 E. W. T. at the Tharp & Stith funeral home, Florence. Burial was in Florence Cemetery.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. J. T. Williams, Burlington; one brother Edward P. Carpenter, of Cincinnati, O.

Tharp & Stith were in charge of funeral arrangements.

SOYBEAN MEAL NOW OBTAINABLE

THROUGH COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION IN CARLOAD LOTS, ACCORDING TO COUNTY AGENT.

Soybean meal and other protein supplements have been most difficult for local dairymen and farmers to secure, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. In fact, it has in recent months been practically impossible to secure these protein supplements.

Arrangements have recently been completed where 41 percent soybean meal can be secured through the Commodity Credit Corporation in car load lots at around $47.00 per ton F. O. B. car at Erlanger and at Walton. One car was unloaded at Walton the past week and another is due at Erlanger in the very near future.

Despite the price being slightly higher than some local dealers' ceiling prices soybean meal remains one of the best feed buys on the market. Large parts of all protein supplements in dairy, poultry and hog rations are now made up of soybean meal.

Soybean meal fed to hogs in a dry lot equals 625 pounds of corn, while for hogs on pasture it will save 350 pounds of corn. Plenty of water, salt and mineral mixture of 20 pounds of salt and 80 pounds of ground limestone should be available to stock at all times.

Farmers who wish to be included in the car shipment that is to arrive in the near future, should contact John E. Crigler, Mark Cook, J. C. Acree or one of the clerks at the county agricultural office in Burlington.

BOND SUBSCRIPTIONS TOTAL $215,558 IN CO.

FOR SECOND WEEK OF DRIVE—$139,360.25 SHORT OF GOAL, ACCORDING TO COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Individual subscriptions for the past week amounts to $215,558.50, which amount added to the first weeks' subscriptions makes a total of $334,639.75 up to April 25th, still leaving a shortage of $139,-360.25 from our goal of $474,000.00. This shortage must be made up before April 30th if we reach our goal. A number of counties have already gone over their quotas and we do not believe Boone County is less patriotic than people of other counties. Don't let some of our boys come home with an empty sleeve or an empty trouser leg, walking on a crutch, and point their finger at Boone County and say, "Where were you when I was wounded in action defending your homes?" This must not happen. This week will tell the story of our Second War Loan Drive. Your subscription must be in the banks before April 30th. After that date it will not count.

Only 601 people out of a population of 10,000 have subscribed to this total of $334,639.75 to date, in Boone County. This is a wonderful showing for this 601 people and the drive must continue until April 30th to have a wider distribution of subscriptions. Certainly some of our good Boone County citizens are not doing their patriotic duty and are standing back permitting a few public-spirited citizens to carry this load.

In the fourth Liberty Loan Drive in the last war over 1800 people in Boone County subscribed to that one particular loan. We have more money now than we had in the last war and there is no good reason why at least this number of citizens of our county should not subscribe to this loan.

This week will tell the whole story, as the Second War Loan will have passed into history. Will your name be recorded as a loyal patriotic citizen in this drive now closing. We are judged by our acts, not words in this war. The War Finance Committee of Boone County instructs its workers not to beg anyone to do his or her patriotic duty by subscribing to these War Bonds, which are the best investments on the face of the earth and the principal return to you at maturity, or if you need the money you can cash your bonds in any emergency at any time. Why should anyone hesitate to subscribe? The interest rate is better than any bank will pay you on savings accounts or time deposits and your investment is Government guaranteed, which is safer than any bank or a mortgage on real estate.

The deadline is closing time of your bank on April 30th, except as to Series E, F and G, which must be in your banks before that time. What is your answer? Our soldiers need your support. Our soldiers in camps and on the firing line will hear what Boone County does in this drive. Let's make them happy by oversubscribing our quota.

WATCHDOGS OF THE TREASURIES

Beginning the first of January with the Victory Tax, and the 15th of March with income taxes, millions of Americans will get over the idea that taxes are something that just "the other guy" has to pay.

This will be one of the best things that ever happened to the country. Millions of citizens who never took an interest in government before, will begin to watch the financial policies of government to see that public money is not wasted.

Boondoggling political schemes will be less popular as vote-getters.

THE WISDOM OF CHILDREN

This Second World War is giving millions of Americans a new slant on facts of life on which 99 per cent of the people are ignorant. Most of us eat by instinct with no knowledge of food values. Our natural appetites and the variety of foods we have had, give us a balanced diet in the majority of cases, without thought on our part.

But with food shortages, rationing and less food in prospect, what we eat becomes a scientific issue and governmental and private agencies are making available facts about food. Candy, which most persons considered a luxury for children and young ladies, has been found to be an indispensable part of the rations of our armed forces. It is included in the field ration, jungle ration, mountain ration, bail-out ration and numerous other rations for soldiers and sailors operating under exhausting conditions.

This form of food contains a vast array of nutriments which contribute to an adequate diet, such as milk, citrus fruits, other fruits, cereals, nuts, eggs, butter and minerals.

NEXT TO GOING HOME, SERVICE MEN WOULD LIKE TO GO HUNTING, FISHING

"Next to going home and seeing my friends, I'd like to go hunting and fishing."

This is the statement made by 75 per cent of the soldiers in a large army camp. The soldiers designated in order what they wanted to do most, in response to a recreational survey conducted recently by the National Wildlife Federation, S. A. Wakefield, Director of the Division of Game and Fish announced. No one was surprised that home and friends appealed unanimously. Similarly, the thirty million Americans who hunt and fish should not be surprised that three-fourths of the army men placed hunting and fishing next on the list.

While discussion rages as to the merits of this or that recreational activity in the maintenance of army or home-front morale, millions of Americans, in and out of uniform, have been planning a week-end of hunting or a day of fishing.

True, essential wartime restrictions are cutting down on both the numbers of sportsmen and the frequency of trips. Gasoline will be jealously guarded for that one "special" expedition and share-the-rides will fill the cars. Lakes, streams, and fields near population centers will be subjected to heavy pressure. Fishing tackle and ammunition, no longer available, will be carried over from previous seasons.

But the traditional heritages of the American way of life, which has always included hunting and fishing as an outstanding recreation, will not be entirely eliminated. To the soldier on furlough, the war-worker with a free week-end; the ordinary civilian with war-time jitters; an opportunity to escape into the out-of-doors with shotgun and dog, or tackle and bait, or a desire to look again at flowing water, wooded hills, or wild creatures, will stimulate morale to the utmost.

Wakefield pointed out that this condition had been anticipated for more than a year by Game and Fish Officials and heavy stocking of fields and streams near populated areas would take care of the rationed time, gasoline and tires and still allow both hunters and fishermen to enjoy their sports.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

CHRIST'S CHARGE TO PETER

LESSON TEXT—John 21:15-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.—John 15:13.

Breakfast for a hungry fisherman—that is what our loving and thoughtful Lord had provided on the shore of Galilee. He wanted to talk to Peter, but He knew this was needful first. There are some folk who think that following Christ is a doleful matter, devoid of every pleasure. Jesus never taught any such thing. He attended weddings and dinners even in the homes of those despised by men. But remember that He always did it for their spiritual good, not merely for His own enjoyment; and that He always brought the gathering up to His own spiritual level, rather than stooping to any worldly or wicked standards.

Here we find Him with a glowing fire upon which fish is broiling, and with bread ready for these hungry men. It was just like Him thus to meet in most delightful and satisfying fellowship those who serve Him. Draw up to the fire, Christian friends who are standing afar off. You may be so timid that, like the disciples, you will not dare to call Him by name (v. 12), but if you will come, you will find that the precious fellowship will soon warm your heart.

With the meal over, Christ turned to Peter and in their conversation we find the latter required to

I. Face Responsibility (vv. 15-17).

With kindly persistence our Lord brought Peter face to face with his responsibility of full-hearted devotion to Him. Before service can be rendered there must be a right relationship to the Lord.

Three times Peter was asked to declare his love for Christ. Such a public confession was quite in place, before the man who had thrice denied his Lord was restored to a place of leadership. The words "more than these" (v. 15) indicate that Jesus was asking of him a high measure of devotion. It is no more than He has a right to expect of us.

The conversation after breakfast that morning was a very profitable one. One is reminded, by contrast, that few of our mealtime discussions are very useful. Many (perhaps most) after-dinner speeches and conversations yield little profit. Here is an occasion when such was not the case. One wonders whether we would not be wise to take the suggestion and turn our thoughts and those of our dinner guests to spiritual things. Surely it should be so among Christian friends and in a Christian home.

II. Feeding Christ's Flock (vv. 15-17).

We review the same verses to point out that an expression of love to Christ means nothing except as it manifests itself in service. Like Peter, we are to be diligent about feeding His flock, whether they be the young and inexperienced lambs, or the mature sheep of the fold.

We tend to specialize. Even in soul-winning some give themselves to child evangelism while others reach only adults, and would hardly think of dealing with a child. True it is that we have varying gifts, and one does one type of work better than another. But let us avoid over-specialization. Every needy soul is a challenge to us as we present the gospel.

The word "feed" should be stressed. Here again the church has frequently failed. Men and women are won to a decision for Christ, and then forgotten. Sheep must be fed if they are to grow. A teaching ministry must accompany the evangelistic effort. They belong together, and to neglect either is to fail, at least, in that measure.

III. Follow Him to the End (vv. 18-24).

Endlessly ingenious are the devices of Satan. He who had sifted Peter like wheat (Luke 22:31) and had rejoiced in the weakness of his denial of Christ, now saw him stepping out into victorious living. He heard the prophecy of the martyr death of Peter. So he put into his heart a question. Why should he suffer? What about John? What was the Lord going to do for him?

When our enemy cannot trip us up with temptation to personal sin, he resorts to the device of jealousy. Many promising Christian workers have become useless because they have taken their eyes off Jesus and put them on the persons and work of other Christians. Doing a work which was difficult and unnoticed but very important to God, they have felt the urge to quit because someone else seemed to have the easier task and receive more recognition.

The answer of Jesus in verse 22 plainly states that it is not the place of one disciple to judge the course of life of another, nor to gauge his own devotion to Christ by another's place or service.

The word of Christ to us is the same as to Peter: "Follow me." We have all we can do to live our own lives in a manner well-pleasing to our Lord.

SATURDAY

George "Gabby" Hayes is, in real life, something like the tradition-loving old timer he enacts in such films as Republic's de luxe Roy Rogers production "Heart of the Golden West," coming to the Gayety, Saturday.

The actor's family are direct descendants of the first group of English settlers who landed in Jamestown on the Mayflower.

Gabby owns a large collection of history books, and most of their pages are well thumbed. He has a keen memory for historical incidents and dates, and when he spins a long yarn out of history, it is with all the color and conviction of one who has been there himself.

TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

Paul Muni is enthusiastic about his new war-action picture, Columbia's "Commandos Strike at Dawn," made for Columbia with the aid of the Canadian Army, Navy and Air Force. Returning from the location at Victoria, B. C., he admitted he got a kick out of working in the raid shots which took him and the Commandos up hill and down, climbing cliffs, racing through explosions and chasing Nazis for three weeks.

But members of the company revealed that Muni is not entirely converted to the slambang type of drama. One day during their third week of chases, he sat down exhausted. Director John Farrow, the man who also made "Wake Island," congratulated Muni on the raid scene he had just finished.

"Thanks," said Muni. "Now do I get a chance to act?"

Country Girls Good Nurses

Directors of schools of nursing rank country girls higher than their city cousins. Some of the qualities the directors said about their non-urban students are—They adapt themselves quickly to life in the school; they have learned to use their hands; they have a good supply of common sense; they are friendly and co-operative; they are conscientious; and, one director said—

"They get up in the morning." The need for nurses is urgent. War Manpower Commissioner McNutt has said—"One of the outstanding shortages of womanpower in the war is in the field of professional nursing." Write for information to the National Nursing Council for War Service, 1790 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Loans For Conserving Fuel

Home owners who want to convert their oil heating equipment to use other fuels, or to install inside insulation, weather - stripping, storm doors, or storm windows may get FHA loans on a delayed payment plan. Initial payments on loans made between April 20 and September 1 may be deferred until November 1, 1943, if the entire loan is used for such work.

May Exchange Poor Meat

A consumer may ask his butcher to exchange a cut of meat that was bruised or otherwise unfit for use when it was bought, the OPA has announced. The customer then may receive other meat of the same point value. Ration stamps cannot be refunded, although any difference in price may be adjusted if necessary.

Live Hog Ceiling Threatened

Livestock producers and packers were told last week by Chester C. Davis, food administrator, that a ceiling would have to be established on live hogs if prices did not adjust themselves in line with wholesale ceilings. He remarked, however, that the recent course of the hog market has been most satisfactory.

More Soya Foods

Edible soya products—the high protein foods soon to have an important place in both military and civilian diets—are expected to reach 1½ billion pounds annually. The quantity for civilians will be many times as large as in the past year. Soya products have already played a significant wartime role. Rich in valuable proteins, minerals, and vitamins, they are readily adaptable to large scale use as a human food for supplement meat, milk and eggs.

Plenty of Baby Carriages

Over 300,000 baby carriages will be made during the next two months to help the anticipated demand for 900,000 this year. In addition, 163,500 strollers, baby-walkers and sulkies are authorized for manufacture by June 30.

No Limit On Recapping

After May 1 there will be no restrictions on the number of certificates that may be issued for recapping truck tires. Because recapping takes only one-sixth as much crude rubber as a new tire, the OPA has removed quota restrictions so that the tires will not be driven beyond the recapping point.

Play Shoes To Be Rationed

"Play" shoes not ordinarily used for street wear that are manufactured, packaged or shipped after April 15, 1943, go back on the rationed list. Such shoes, if they leave a factory before April 15, remain non-rationed, even though they may reach consumers months later.

Rationing Program Changes

Farm fencing and peanut pickers are no longer rationed; quota controls on milking machines, grain and forage flowers, portable and stationary elevators have been removed; and pressure cookers have been placed under rationing, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced. The 150,000 pressure cookers which will be produced in 1943 will be rationed by county farm rationing committees, to users showing greatest need for them. Community organizations composed of several families who agree to use a pressure cooker jointly will get first consideration.

News In Animal Feed

Farmers will be interested in two recent Department of Agriculture discoveries. Poultry nutrition specialists have found that soybean meal properly cooked is a promising substitute for meat scrap and other protein feeds of animal origin. Another discovery is that good-quality home-grown legume hays, formerly considered too bulky for hog feed, may be used to reduce the amount of concentrates required in rations for growing and fattening pigs. Of three legumes tested, ground soybean hay gave the best results, when used for five to ten per cent of the total ration.

Still Making Bobby Pins

Rumors of a ban on manufacture of bobby pins are false, WPB officials have declared. Even though the pins are made of vital high carbon steel, their production will be permitted.

Women Make Good Inspectors

Women have proved such a success as inspectors of Army Signal Corps equipment that they now make up 40 per cent of the inspection force, according to the War Department. The women do the entire inspection job, from the mechanical work on the assembly line to the final inspection of the extremely complex electrical equipment.

Blanket Sizes Reduced

Blankets cannot exceed 84 inches in length, except for white cotton sheet blankets, which may be 95 inches long, according to Order M-298 of the WPB. Furthermore, no line of blankets can be made in more than four colors, plus white. In general, only rose, blue, green, and cedar, are permitted for solid color blankets.

Use Cast Iron Soil Pipe

The use of cast iron soil pipe and fittings for sanitary drains in and under buildings should be continued as long as the supply of raw materials from which these products are manufactured is adequate, according to the Plumbing and Heating Division of WPB.

New Requirements For WAACS

Under the new rules, candidates for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps must have completed at least two years of education in an accredited high school, and must score at least 60 in the WAAC mental alertness test in order to be eligible. Previously, there were no fixed educational requirements and the minimum score in the mental alertness test was 50.

Soldiers Graves Recorded

The burial place of American soldiers who fall on foreign soil will be properly recorded by the Graves Registration Units of the U. S. Army. This service operates closely behind the combat area, burying the dead, recording and marking the graves, and collecting personal effects. Except when combat interferes, overseas burials are approximately the same as those conducted in the United States with full military honors rendered. Rites are ministered by a chaplain of the deceased's own faith when possible.

"Hold The Line"

Farmers and others now employed in an essential industry cannot change to a job at higher wages unless the change is in the interest of the war program, according to recent rulings of War Manpower Commission. Men now in essential work are encouraged to get into jobs contributing directly to the war effort, even if an increase in wages is involved.

Ration-Free Rubber Boots

Over-the-knee olive-drab, clay and khaki colored rubber boots—the kind worn for hunting and fishing—can now be bought ration-free, the OPA has announced. Below-the-knee height boots are still under rationing control.

Extra Food For Hospitals

Hospitals can now get additional supplies of rationed foods that are needed in patients diets by means of an application signed by whatever officer is in charge. Formerly, the OPA required the head physician to show the reason for the extra foods and the amount required.

Coal Situation

Coal users are reminded again that stocks will be low and transportation inadequate during the winter of 1943. Coal producing capacity is definitely limited and the user who has inadequate stocks on hand may be caught short next winter by a tight market and delays in shipments.

CCC To Buy No. 2 Beans

The Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase No. 2 dry edible beans as well as No. 1 from the 1943 crop. The price for No. 2 grade will be 15 cents below the prices for the No. 1 grade.

TOWN FLOCK PAYS

In discussing small town flocks, Miss Zelma Byerly, home agent in Kenton county, Kentucky, told how Mrs. F. D. Wallace of Fort Mitchell gathered 294 eggs in one month from her 15 hens. She sold 10 dozen for $5, which paid for the feed. The other 14½ dozen she used at home.

TURKEYS PROFITABLE

Three turkeys given her two years ago resulted in considerable income for Mrs. C. R. Berry of Ballard county last year. She sold 65 birds for $230 and in addition gave seven to friends. The actual feed cost was only $40, as the turkeys got much of their feed from standing wheat and cowpeas. County Agent S. C. Bohanan reports much interest in both chickens and turkeys this year.

Money Talks

By FREDERICK W. STAMM, Economist, Director of Adult Education, UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

War is usually thought of as a man's job, but in this war women are becoming increasingly important on the home front. We are all familiar with the WAVES and the WAACS, for they are carrying on the more spectacular part of women's work in this war. There are, however, thousands of woman doing essential work that never make the headlines in the papers and consequently are never given the credit due them.

The Interstate Commerce Commission reported recently that of the 1,319,480 employees of Class I railways, 63,187 or 4.79 per cent, were women and girls. Women have always held positions as office workers and secretaries, but now they are replacing men even in the hazardous jobs. For instance, some railroads reported women working as brakemen and flagmen. There are 264 women working as crossing and bridge flagmen and gatemen, 15 as stationary engineers, 260 as section workers, and 375 as "gang men."

There are women employed as boilermakers, sheet metal workers, machinists and general laborers, as well as 275 women station agents. Five are chief telegraphers; 13 are baggage agents; and 181 are truckers. Here we find women working in jobs held almost exclusively by men before the war.

In every defense plant we find women machinists and inspectors, women chemist and laboratory technicians. In Louisville alone, hundreds of women are taking the place of men in the hazardous war jobs. We find them manufacturing and sacking powder, making and inspecting airplane parts, and producing industrial alcohol, so essential in manufacturing explosives.

Great Britain has recruited over 80,000 women for work on farms, and we are following the same pattern. These farmerettes are working on truck farmers in the East and South, and on dairy farms in New York, Wisconsin, and Minnesota.

Men are still doing the fighting on the far-flung battle fronts, but they are being supplied with guns, tanks, airplanes, and food produced by women on the home front. When the history of this war is written, we shall find that women have had an important part in winning it, and they deserve more credit than is often given them.

PICTURES SHOWN IN LOCAL SCHOOLS DURING WEEK

Dr. L. E. Smith of Louisville, director of the State Tuberculosis Association, was putting on a health educational program in all schools in the county last week. Dr. Smith was assisted by the Boone County Red Cross Nurse. He wishes to thank principals and teachers for their splendid cooperation. It was the very best in every instance.

Dr. Smith showed good up-to-date pictures, and many schools gave two performances, one for high school groups and one for grades. All types of health education helps prevent tuberculosis. Therefore, Dr. Smith's program touched on other phases of health, as well as tuberculosis.

Dr. Smith was able to bring this fine work to Boone County, because we had a good Christmas Seal sale last year. He and his work are provided for by this fund. When you buy Christmas Seals, you are doing a great deal to help your country. A small percent of the money goes to the National and State fund for literature and promotion of health education, but most of the money is kept in Boone County to help prevent and take care of tuberculosis cases here. So let's all put our forces together and have an even better Christmas Seal sale another year.

Don't let milk stand out. Keep it in the colder part of the refrigerator. When cooking, take out only milk and cream needed. Let rest stay cold.

Scab Infecting Apple Orchards

Boone County apple orchards were in the pink pre-bloom stage with a few varieties, the first part of the week, coming into bloom, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The Northern Kentucky Insectory program, cooperating with the Experiment Station, has advised that apple scab spores are active and are infecting orchards at this time.

Apple scab causes the most serious loss of apple fruit of all diseases. Growers should spray immediately with 2 gallons of liquid lime sulfur per 100 gallons of water for scab control.

Varieties subject to blight such as yellow transparent should also be sprayed in full bloom with 2-4-100 Bordeaux mixture.

All commercial apple growers have been notified by letter on the spray program. Those desiring additional information should contact the county agent's office.

Perkinson, Maddox Address Utopia Club

O. D. Perkinson and Grant Maddox addressed Boone County Utopia Club members at their April meeting held at Burlington on last Thursday evening.

Perkinson outlined important steps in producing clean milk for family use. Besides the careful preparation of the cow for milking, he stressed the importance of having health cows free from Mastites, Bang's and T. B. Good milk is listed as one of nature's most wholesome and most nutritious foods. Bad milk is a serious health problem.

Maddox, an outstanding poultryman, presented new developments in poultry raising. His informal discussion was considered most helpful.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Lucian Bradford, president on June 24. The club plans to sponsor a community recreational program in the near future.

Nancy S. White Chosen For Membership In National Society

Miss Nancy Sue White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank White, formerly of 24 Edwards Ave., Walton, but now of 331 George St., East Alton, Ill., is one of the seventeen members of the Senior class of the East Alton, Wood River High School to be chosen to the National Honor Society. The person to be eligible for this honor must stand in the upper fifteen percent of his class in scholarship, must be a leader, character must be good and must have served the school.

East Alton is a suburb of St. Louis and has a high school of 1500 students.

Nancy Sue is the granddaughter of Mr. Walter Vest of Walton-Verona highway. Miss White plans to enter college this fall.

SIMPLE DEVICES SAVE MUCH WORK

Poultry raisers can save themselves considerable work by the use of simple labor saving devices, says Dr. W. M. Insko, Jr., head of the poultry section, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Chickens will balance their own diets if hoppers are kept well filled with feeding mash and grain. The use of dropping pits instead of boards will make cleanning necessary only every two or three months instead of weekly. Deep litter on the floor will help also. When raked frequently, it will dry out, keeping the house in good condition. Water collected in barrels from the chicken house roof may be piped inside the house, and so have carrying from the well.

Foods canned in glass, onions, and potatoes should be kept in cool, dry, dark storage places.

COMING DOWN THE HOME STRETCH

This is the last week of the Second War Loan Drive which ends Friday at closing time of all banks, April 30th.

The employees of our bank have been heavily overworked to handle subscriptions and get the money to our Government, but they are doing it with a smile.

Keep us smiling by flooding us with your subscriptions. We like work of this kind.

—but with proper care I'll give you many more years of satisfactory service

You don't have to coddle your electric refrigerator. Just give it the ordinary good care that common sense dictates and it will serve you faithfully for years. But don't neglect it. Keep it clean . . . defrost often . . . oil periodically as directed.

ECONOMY TIPS FOR LONGER LIFE AND THRIFTIER SERVICE

- Defrost whenever frost reaches thickness of ¼ inch.
- Wash interior with weak baking soda solution each time you defrost.
- Keep defrosting tray dry. Cover all liquids.
- Be sure door gasket makes a tight seal.
- Don't open door oftener than necessary—close it quickly.
- Do not store hot foods. Let them cool first.
- Clean dust from condenser coils periodically.
- Use fast freezing sparingly. Keep control at lowest setting to maintain safe temperature.
- Don't store canned goods, ketchup, and other items that will keep as well on the pantry shelf.
- Don't overcrowd shelves. Leave room for circulation.
- If an open unit model, keep oiled per manufacturer's directions. Sealed units need no oiling.
- Have your refrigerator checked by a competent serviceman once a year. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

THE 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

It's Ten Minutes to Midnight!

WAR FINANCE COMMITTEE

Wake Up, Americans . . . Your Country's Most Fateful Hour Is Near

THE hour when the final die is cast, when decisive victory hangs in the balance. The hour which will decide the future of you and your children . . . a future of joyous freedom or a future of endless serfdom.

Yes, it is ten minutes to midnight. And when the first stroke of that fateful hour begins to sound, it will be too late to throw your weight into the fight.

The time to do that is NOW.

Now, when your dollars can keep the production lines humming. Now, when your dollars can buy the tanks and guns and planes and ships our soldiers need to fight a winning war . . . the only kind of a war we can afford to fight. Now, while there are still ten minutes before midnight.

Your country is asking you to lend your dollars in greater amount than ever before. It is asking for 13 billions of dollars extra this month . . . 13 billions for the weapons of war to make sure that it is our side which dictates the peace.

If we do not win, the money you fail to lend now will be worse than useless to you. If we win, as we must, the money you lend now will be returned with interest . . . for you to spend on the good things of life . . . for you to enjoy in a free and safe world.

So dig down, Americans. Answer the challenge by buying War Loan securities this month with every idle dollar you have except what you need for the barest necessities of life.

Don't wait for the War Loan Volunteer. Beat the gun by going to your bank, investment dealer, broker, Post Office, or bond booth today.

Have your money in your fist . . . the fist that can deliver the knockout blow to the Axis. But hurry . . .

For it is ten minutes to midnight . . .

The hour that can strike the knell of doom—or the blessed song of freedom.

Your dollars can call the tune.

There are Seven different types of U. S. Government Securities—choose the ones best suited for you:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9% a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, $1000, $5000, $10,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000. Redemption: Not callable till June 15, 1964; thereafter at par and accrued interest on any interest date at 4 months' notice. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other Securities: Series "C" Tax Notes; ⅞% Certificates of Indebtedness; 2% Treasury Bonds of 1950-1952; United States Savings Bonds Series "F"; United States Savings Bonds Series "G."

THEY GIVE THEIR LIVES . . . YOU LEND YOUR MONEY!

W. M. U. NEWS

The Women's Missionary Society of the Union Baptist Church met with one of its oldest and most beloved members, Mrs. Annie Bristown, for its April meeting.

The meeting opened at 2:15 E. W. T. with our president, Mrs. Winston Mason, presiding. The singing of W. M. U. hymn for the year, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" was followed by repeating of Watchwords in unison, with opening prayer by Mrs. Sallie K. Hicks.

Minutes of previous meeting were given by Mrs. Emerson Smith, secretary, but due to the absence of Mrs. Austin Gschwind, our treasurer and Mrs. Kirtley McWethy, community missions chairman. There were no reports given. Roll call was answered by 14 members and Young Peoples leader, Mrs. Myrtie Marshall gave good reports from all her organizations.

This society has held two mission study classes already this year, the last of which was a book on Community Missions, taught by Mrs. McWethy.

Mrs. Edith Hedges was appointed Enlistment Chairman and Mrs. E. Smith as Intercesory Prayer League chairman. Mrs. Sallie Huey reported a card of thanks has been received from Baptist Training School for cookies sent them by the fine ladies of this society.

With the announcement of the group meeting to be held at Erlanger on April 22, our business session closed.

Mrs. J. A. Fothergill, program chairman was in charge of the afternoon program which was as follows: Dev. Heb. 11:8-10; Gen. 15:1, 5, 6; 18:17:19, by Mrs. Emerson Smith, with a brief discussion on the topic for the month. Individual Witness given by Mrs. Fothergill. Prayer by Mrs. Sallie Huey and singing of hymn "Faith of Our Fathers," followed.

Mrs. Winston Mason, Mrs. Sallie Huey, Mrs. Edith Hedges and Mrs. Henry Beach were delegates to State meeting at Louisville last week and each gave very interesting reports on same, as each speaker laid heavy emphasis on "The World of Tomorrow" and the Christians influence in this new world which will surely follow our globelar war.

We were dismissed in prayer by Mrs. Huey Ryle, who asked God's richest blessings rest with all those who are ill in our midst at this time.

Next meeting at the church on Wednesday, May 12th.

Mrs. Viola Friend.

Children's Feet

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

Ninety-nine out of a hundred babies are born with good feet, even if they do appear to be flat at the start. We say babies are born with flat feet because the bony masses in a new-born baby's feet are held in place by fat pads. As the baby starts to stand and walk, these fatty pads are absorbed and muscles take their place. But about the third year the arch of the foot should be pretty well defined if the child is going to have any arch. We say if, because every one isn't intended to have a high arched contour to the foot anymore than every one is meant to have the same color of hair or eyes.

Perhaps when the child starts to stand he is overweight, or undernourished or has gone thru a serious illness. In that event the muscles may not develop enough to produce an arch in his foot. He then grows with a natural flat foot. The condition is rarely painful. However, many cases of flat feet can be averted if the child is provided with shoes that hold the weak foot in alignment. Such shoes are usually wedged slightly under the inner border of the heel bone. This prevents tipping in of the ankles and by over correction has a tendency to cause the muscles on the inner border of the leg to shorten. These muscles are the ones which keep the foot arched.—Adv.

A Week of The War

Washington, April 28—The barbarous execution by the Japanese of some of the eight American aviators captured after Major General James H. Doolittle's raid on Tokyo on April 18, 1942, brought expressions of deepest horror from high United States officials. Our State Department, in a vigorous protest, warned the Japanese that officers of that Government who were responsible for this savage cruelty would be held fully responsible and would get the punishment they deserve. Discovery of this latest inhumane action by the Japanese followed closely the announcement that the aircraft carrier, "Hornet," since lost, was the "Shangri-la" from which the planes took off to bomb Tokyo. All but one of the bombers in that raid made crash or forced landings, but 64 of the 80 men participating were saved. It was indicated that all of the eight men captured by the Japanese were tortured and those not executed have been sentenced to prison.

Air raids by U. S. forces on Kiska, the Aleutian base which the Japs are frantically attempting to prepare for further attacks on American territory, increased in intensity last week. In one day, fifteen raids left great fires burning on the Jap air base nearing completion.

Allied fliers in the southwest Pacific from April 11 to 15 had destroyed or damaged 128 Japanese planes, 19 ships, including nine warships, and probably damaged 12 more boats. Raids in the Solomons continued unabated as Donald M. Nelson, chairman of WPB said that airplane production in the U. S. would probably reach 7,000 for the month of April, and would continue to increase until there were ample planes for all war purposes.

Tunisia

One of the greatest air battles in history was won by Allied fighters near Cape Bon, Tunisia, when they shot down 74 Axis planes and damaged 30 more. Fifty-eight junkers, 52 transports were among the planes brought down. The total of Axis planes destroyed during one day was 96, and in three days, 142. Only eleven Allied planes were lost to the Axis.

The British Eighth Army continued its two-pronged drive against Rommel's defenses, which are known to include strongly fortified positions farther back in the hills. The British repulsed a number of desperate counter-attacks and forced the enemy to meet them at two points, Takrouma, Djebel Garci, and Enfidaville were captured.

United Nations now hold complete air mastery over the enemy in the northwest Africa theater of war, according to Lieut. General Carl A. Spaatz. Since March 20, when the battle of the Mareth Line began, 519 Axis planes have been shot down by Allied fliers, and another 1,000 Axis planes have been destroyed or damaged on the ground. This activity has cost the Allies only 175 planes and they have retained the offensive consistently. In England, it was acknowledged that the Allies have air superiority, though not domination in the western war theater, but it was believed that the Nazis were building up their fighter strength to protect Germany proper.

Russia

The Soviets reported the destruction of 302 Axis planes in one week and admitted the loss of 103 of their own aircraft. German attempts to halt the Russians in the Kuban area of the western Caucasus were unsuccessful; the Germans left 1,400 dead in counter-attacks on one hill. An unexpected statement from England said that the British Government had received numerous reports that the Nazis were getting ready to use poison gas against the Russians. Britain repeated her promise to retaliate immediately and fully against Germany itself if poison gas were used anywhere by the Germans.

SERVICE ROLL DEDICATED AT BURLINGTON SUNDAY

LARGE CROWD OF BOONE COUNTIANS HONOR CITIZENS IN ARMED FORCES—MRS. JOHN BOYER, PRESIDED.

Approximately one thousand persons gathered at the courthouse in Burlington on Sunday afternoon to honor Boone County men and women who are in the Armed Forces of the Nation. Inclement weather made it necessary to hold the program in the court room instead of at the south door as had been previous announced. A loud speaking system carried the program to those who could not get into the building. The Service Roll was unveiled during the program and attracted much attention as the crowd was dismissed.

Mrs. John Boyer, Verona, citizenship chairman of the Boone County Homemakers Association, presided at the meeting. The Boone County School Band, under the direction of Noel Walton, presented a preude consisting of Military Escort, America The Beautiful, and Onward Christian Soldiers. The invocation was led by Rev. Noble Lucas, Petersburg, which was followed by the singing of America.

Rev. Roy Johnson, Burlington, delivered the dedicatory address, complimenting the citizens for standing behind those in the service, and charging them with the responsibilities on the Home Front. He closed his remarks with a prayer for the protection and guidance of those who are away.

Russell Hodge, Hebron, sang "Open The Gates of The Temple." Mrs. Jerry Fowler accompanied at the organ.

Mrs. Boyer presented A. B. Renaker, Chairman War Finance Committee of Boone County who announced that the Second War Loan Drive quota had been over subscribed. The individual quota was $474,000, and Mr. Renaker anticipated the subscription to reach well over $500,000. The banks had oversubscribed their quota of $183,000 to reach $200,000. He then introduced Judge Joseph P. Goodenough of the Kenton Circuit Court who made the principle address.

Judge Goodenough, in his dynamic manner, congratulated Boone County for the gesture of honor extended those in the Service, and pointed to the fact that home folk often are making sacrifices as keenly felt as those who have gone to serve the nation. He listed the heroes of this country who have served under many hardships but have given to the present generation a way of life unequaled anywhere in the world. He ended his address with the quotation from "In Flanders Field."

"God Bless America" was sung as a closing prayer. The pledge to the flag was led by Rev. Johnson and members of the Boone Post of the American Legion. Nelson Poston played "Call to the Colors," which was immediately followed by singing the National Anthem. The crowd withdrew to view the Service Roll.

The board resembles a scroll, with a national shield atop. The inscription "In Honor Of" heads the page, which bears the names of approximately 625 men and women. Four gold stars honor men who have given their all. Credit is given Hess Vest, Walton, who built the board, and Noel Walton who designed it and wrote the names on it.

The Boone County Homemakers' Association sponsored the project. Funds were raised by donations from citizens. Mrs. Sam Sleet, New Haven, headed the committee who devoted hours of work and time to bring the project to a successful conclusion. Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent served on the committee in an advisory capacity. The printed programs for the dedication acknowledged the assistance of Judge Cropper and other county officials who cooperated throughout the project.

Other members of the Homemakers Committee were: Mrs. R. C. Garrison, Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, Mrs. John Boyer, Mrs. Albert Willis, Mrs. Robt. Clore, Mrs. Jonas Stephenson, Mrs. Thomas Goodridge, Mrs. Oscar Fugate, Mrs. John Hempfling, Mrs. Geo. Morith, Mrs. Sterling Dickey, Mrs. J. L. Feagan, Mrs. Walter Renaker, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. J. B. Berkshire.

Special Note: Several names were turned in to the committee Sunday and there are others who have been omitted from the roll because they have not come to the attention of the committee. Citizens of Boone County do not want a single hero to pass unhonored. Turn in any name that is not listed, it is every person's responsibility

Mrs. Moore has extra copies of the dedication program which may be obtained upon request.

Mrs. Estella Anderson

Mrs. Estella Anderson, mother of H. R. Anderson, Secretary-Treasurer of the Advertisers' Engraving Company, Cincinnati, and President of the Summit Hills Club, Lakeside Park, died Saturday at her residence, Camp Ernst Road, near Burlington. She was 70 years old.

She is survived by two sons, H. R. Anderson, and R. V. Anderson, three daughters, Mrs. H. T. Pultz, Mrs. Walter Scott, Mrs. Paul Riley and her husband, R. L. Anderson, all of Northern Kentucky

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Tallaferro funeral home, Erlanger, with burial in Highland Cemetery, Fort Mitchell.

The many Boone County friends of Mrs. Geo. Ramler and daughter Martha will be glad to know they are able to be out again after being seriously ill of pneumonia

AIRPORT WORK STARTED MONDAY

WHEN JUDGE JOHN B. READ TURNS FIRST DIRT—GOVERNOR JOHNSON, LYTER DONALDSON ON PROGRAM.

Work on the new airport situated in Boone County, near Hebron, was underway Monday, following the first spadeful of earth turned on the former Hollis farm on Youell Pike by Judge John B. Read, head of Kenton County Fiscal Court, who used a gold-plated spade in the ceremony.

Immediately after breaking of ground, Frank Mashuda, head of the Mashuda Construction Company, Milwaukee, general contractor, ordered work to proceed. Powerful graders and other equipment went into action.

The tenacity with which a group of Covington and Kenton County citizens and businessmen, aided by Kenton Fiscal Court, worked to obtain an outstanding airport for Northern Kentucky, was lauded by Governor Keen Johnson. Other speakers besides Gov. Johnson were J. Lyter Donaldson, Mayor James G. Stewart of Cincinnati, Judge Read and Judge Carroll Cropper of Boone County.

The new airport will be one of the major airports of the country, making this area one of the outstanding centers of aviation in the nation.

That the Army Air Forces will use the field when it is completed was indicated by Major Gordon O. Rust, intelligence officer, Ferry Division, Air Transport Command.

Frank Mashuda has the contract for grading, draining, and beautifying the grounds, together with construction of three 5,500-foot runways, each 150 feet wide. This is to cost $1,860,000 and the work is to be completed in 150 working days. Provision is made for two additional runways to be constructed later.

After start of work on the airport, the officials and visitors returned to Covington for a luncheon at the Covington-Kenton County Chamber of Commerce, arranged by Henry W. Jenisch, Executive Secretary of the Covington-Kenton County Industrial Association.

Construction of a new road connecting the field with Erlanger will be started next Monday, it was reported.

Letter Carriers To Hold Meeting Sat.

The Northern Kentucky Rural Letter Carriers' Association and the Ladies' Auxiliary will hold their annual meeting and election of officers in the Y. M. C. A. building, Covington, on Saturday evening, May 8 at 8:00 p. m.

All rural letter carriers of this county are urged to attend. Elijah Stephens is secretary of the association.

Harry B. Adams

Harry Baker Adams, Union, former superintendent of the Liberty Cherry Co., Covington, and a retired farmed died Thursday at Booth Hospital, Covington, following an illness of several days. He was 69.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katie Hance Adams; one son, Rev. Hampton Adams, St. Louis, Mo.; one brother, Wayne Adams, Big Bone; two sisters, Miss Rose Adams of Big Bone and Mrs. J. E. Weaver, Union and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Chambers & Grubbs, funeral home, Walton at 3 p. m. Saturday. Burial was in Hance Cemetery, near Walton.

Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

Hamilton School Will Present Play

A three-act comedy "A Ready-made Family" will be presented by the pupils of the 7th and 8th grade of Hamilton School at the Hamilton school auditorium on Friday evening, May 7, at 8 p. m. (C. W. T.)

The public is cordially invited to attend this entertainment.

Watch Your Pasture Land In Early Spring

Allowing cattle to graze spring pastures before the grass has made sufficient growth to withstand full use, is a good example of haste makes waste.

Too early and too heavy spring grazing does not pay, the conservationist points out, even though it is hard to resist the temptation when pastures begin to "green up." nutrients during the spring growth

While pasture grasses are rich in period, they may be prevented from making full growth by overgrazing it, and in case of new plantings the soil should be firm enough so that when the cattle walk on it they will not destroy the plants.

If these precautions are not observed and cattle are turned onto pasture too early, the amount of grazing will be reduced materially later in the season.

When pastures come on somewhat slowly, it may be desirable to turn the cattle out for only one or two hours a day. Sometimes a rotational system of grazing is advisable. In rotational grazing, a portion of the pasture is "rested" while the other portion is being grazed.

MOTORISTS URGED TO SIGN COUPONS

IN ADVANCE FOR GASOLINE—WILL AVOID INCONVENIENCE AND DELAY, SAYS R. E. BRUGH.

Motorists in Boone County were urged by R. E. Brugh, chairman of the Local War Price and Rationing Board, to endorse their gasoline coupons in advance and thus avoid the inconvenience and delay, both to them and to their dealers, of having to do so at the filling station when they buy gasoline.

Failure to make the proper notations on the back of coupons before gasoline is delivered constitutes a violation of the milage rationing regulations, R. E. Brugh pointed out.

"License numbers and the abbreviation of the state should be written on the back of all coupons before going to the station, or when the book is issued. This will save the time of the motorists and the attendants who must otherwise take the time to do this for each transaction. Without this endorsement, the filling stations are not to accept coupons," the ration board chairman explained.

While this write-in requirement may seem burdensome, it is a valuable weapon in the hands of the Office of Price Administration in combatting black market gasoline transactions.

"We must remember the reason for gasoline rationing—to conserve our tires by controlling mileage, to make them last until new ones can be produced," added R. E. Brugh. "We must not overlook any means of safeguarding the miles available in our tires for those who need car transportation in doing essential war jobs."

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ryle and two children moved Saturday to Erlanger.

FIRE MEETING SET THURSDAY

FOR ORGANIZATION OF BURLINGTON VOLUNTEER DEPARTMENT—PROPERTY OWNERS URGED TO ATTEND.

There will be a mass meeting at the courthouse on Thursday night, May 6th at 8:00 p. m. for the purpose of organizing and electing officers for the Burlington Volunteer Fire Department.

The department has recently purchased a Ford V-8 truck chasis and is now ready to purchase the necessary equipment to give this community a good volunteer fire department.

It is imperative that every property owner be represented at this meeting and have a part in the planning and organization of the department.

Pledges for the equipment are not coming is as rapidly as they should, and everyone is urged to come to this meeting and if it is convenient, you may pay your pledges on this night. It is estimated that $2500.00 will be necessary to carry out the program and to obtain necessary equipment.

The department now has all necessary priorities for the equipment and all that is needed is the funds to pay for it as it is the policy of the organization not to purchase any equipment on credit. The sooner your pledges are paid, the sooner Burlington and its surrounding territory will have fire protection.

Homemakers Attend District Federation Meeting At Lexington

Boone County Homemakers were represented at the annual district meeting of the Kentucky Homemakers' Federation, which was held at the Memorial Hall on the campus of the University of Kentucky, Lexington, Tuesday, April 27th. Seven local clubs had delegates to attend, according to Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent.

The theme of the program was "Serving on the Farm Home Front" and featured Miss Hilda Beil, England, as the principal speaker. The morning session heard district chairmen discuss the theme subject and relating it to the program plans of their respective committees. Miss Mena Hogan, Federal District Supervisor, met the Kentucky Homemakers for the first time and addressed the group concerning the Homemakers' part in post war planning. Mrs. Ralph Searce, President of the Federation, talked on the subject 'Windbreaks" challenging the members to include in their daily living such caiming influence as hobbies, service to others, and faith in God. The Fayette County Homemakers presented scenes from their musical "Gay Nineties" which delighted everyone.

Boone County delegation included: Mrs. Albert Willis, Bullittsville; Mrs. Vernon Pope, Burlington; Mrs. Joe Berkshire, Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker, Miss Jane Scott, Florence; Mrs. Joe Hogan, Hebron; Mrs. Earl Morehead, Taylorsport; Mrs. Grover Ransom, Verona; Mrs. John Vest, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. Barnett Franks, Mrs. Scott Chambers, Walton; and Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. Reports of the meeting will be given at local clubs in May.

Mrs. Dora J. Taylor

Mrs. Dora J. Taylor, of Florence, passed away Sunday night at her home following a brief illness. She had been a residence of Florence for the past 20 years, and was a member of the Florence Methodist Church.

She is survived by her husband, George Taylor; two daughters, Mrs. Ben Stephens, Belleview and Mrs. Wilbur Stephens, of Florence; 3 sisters, Mrs. Ernest Dunke and Mrs. Clyde W. Wilson, Covington and Mrs. Arthur Taylor, Flemingsburg, and one aunt, Miss Caroline Keckley, of Florence.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Florence Methodist Church at 2 p. m. Burial was in Highland Cemetery.

WFA PROMISES HARVEST MACHINERY

"We will do our best to see that more harvesting machinery is ready by the time it is needed," is the crux of a telegram from Chester Davis, Director of the War Food Administration received today by M. D. Royse, chairman of the Kentucky AAA and USDA War Board.

"This is the most important planting season in American history," the communication continued. "We can still increase the number of acres we plant. In a very few days it will be too late. The War Food Administration will work for continuing price supports at fair levels in order to minimize risks. We ask farmers to take an extra degree of chance this year for their country. . . . to plant in full the acreage they can expect to handle under the most favorable circumstances."

M. D. Royse encouraged all farmers not only to increase the number of acres to be planted but to encourage neighboring farmers to produce to the limit.

"This is no time for hesitancy," Royse stated. "The farmers of Kentucky can be proud of some of the most fertile land in the nation. Now is the time for them to use this land for complete all-out war production."

Building Association Will Pay Dividend

The board of directors of the Constance Building and Loan Company announced Saturday that the report of the audit of its books was received, May 1, from Espy Bailey, C. P. A., Covington, Ky., and that it will pay its semi-annual dividend on Saturday, May 8, 1943. The payment of this dividend was postponed until the completion of the audit. The auditor's statement is published elsewhere in this issue.

HOMEMAKERS WILL STUDY APPLIANCES

AT REGULAR MEETINGS DURING MAY—LEADERS WILL PRESENT LESSON TO VARIOUS CLUBS.

Boone County Homemakers' Clubs will study the proper care and use of electrical appliances at their regular meetings in May, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. Leaders who attended the training school conducted by Miss Ida Hagman, Home Management Specialist from the College of Agriculture, on April 21, will present the lessons.

The subject matter includes special study of refrigerators, washing machines, irons and vacuum cleaners. These necessary pieces of household equipment must serve for the duration, therefore the lessons will be of practical benefit to all who use them. All club groups will welcome visitors to their meetings. The schedule is as follows:

May 5, Constance, Mrs. Thomas Kenyon, 11:00.

May 6, Burlington, courthouse, 1:30.

May 7, Verona, Mrs. Ethel Fooks, 11:00.

May 25, Florence Town Hall 10:30

May 19, Colored Club, Matilda Ingram, 8:00.

May 26, Training School, Town Hall 11:00.

All meetings will be held on Eastern War Time.

BOONE COUNTY WAR BOND DRIVE IS OVERSUBSCRIBED

BANKS SUBSCRIBE FOR $216,000, WHILE INDIVIDUALS SUBSCRIBED $553,979 IN SECOND WAR LOAN DRIVE.

At the close of business May 1st the individual subscriptions of individuals amounted to $553,979.00 in the Second War Loan Drive. In addition to this amount the eight banks subscribed for $216,000.00 for their own accounts, making a grand total of both individuals and the banks of $769,979.00. Any subscriptions coming in before the 6th of May will add to this grand total for the complete report as the Government made this allowance of a few days in order to clear subscriptions coming in late in the drive.

One thousand three hundred sixty-three individual subscribers have the honor of raising this $553,979.00 individual amount.

This is the greatest amount of money ever raised in Boone County in any war drive and is almost twice as much as was raised in the Fourth Liberty Loan Drive in the last war, which was the largest amount raised in any one drive in the last war.

The citizens of Boone County who subscribed to this loan are to be complimented on this wonderful showing of patriotism and love of their country and the interest in the welfare of our brave soldiers in the service.

The County Chairman and Co-chairman are loud in their praise of the precinct chairmen and chairwomen and their workers in giving of their time in making this Second War Loan Drive such a wonderful success.

Another drive may be expected in about six months and when it comes the citizens of Boone County will be found doing their best to meet the county's quota.

This announcement was forthcoming at a Victory Dinner given in honor of all precinct workers and members of the $5,000.00 club at Doc's Place, Erlanger, on last Wednesday evening. There were approximately one hundred persons in attendance at this dinner representing every precinct in Boone County.

Featured on the program was address by W. H. Courtney, President of The First National Bank, Lexington, Chairman of Area No. 6, War Finance Committee; Marc C. Stuart, manager Area No. 6, War Finance Committee, Lexington, these men having charge of our area, the Sixth Area covering all of Eastern and Northern Kentucky; Edward Vosmer, President First National Bank, Covington, District Chairman, comprising several counties in Northern Kentucky; Harry Nagel, Vice President, Fifth-Third Union Trust Co. Cincinnati; Albert Reik, Asst. Vice President, Fifth-Third Union Trust Co., and A. B. Renaker and A. D. Yeleton, co-chairmen for Boone County.

Baptist Church To Hold Special Services For Mothers Sunday

Special services for the mothers of this community will be held at the local Baptist church next Sunday morning. All mothers of the community are cordially invited to attend, and a special invitation is extended to mothers who have boys in the service.

Everyone is urged to be present for the Sunday School hour at 11 a. m. and also for the morning worship at 12, at which time a special program will be given in honor of our mothers.

Hon. Harry Riggs To Speak On Local Church Program

Hon. Harry Riggs, attorney, of Erlanger, will be the principal speaker at the local Baptist Church Saturday night, May 8th at 8:00 p. m. when the Men's Bible class meet for their regular monthly social and business hour.

A fine program is being planned for the occasion as Mr. Riggs comes to us highly recommended and has a very fine and interesting message for everyone in these trying days.

COUNTY PROGRAM APPROVED MON.

BY EXTENSION ASSOCIATION COMMITTEE—TWENTY AGRICULTURAL LEADERS FROM ALL PARTS OF COUNTY HERE.

The Boone County Extension Association Committee reviewed and approved the County Agricultural Extension program for 1943 in a meeting at Burlington last Monday evening. Twenty agricultural leaders representing all communities and agricultural organizations in the county attended.

The schedule of the planned program with the allotment of the agricultural agent's time is as follows: Dairy 45 days, hogs 25 days, poultry 55 days, sheep 16 days, beef cattle 5 days, home food supply 65 days, garden crops 27 days, fruit 13 days, special war crops 16 days, feed crops 71 days, tobacco 26 days, farm record keeping and business analysis 10 days, marketing problems with wool, livestock, truck crops and Sheep Protective Association 18 days. USDA War Board Activities, AAA, FSA, SCS, REA, Federal Land Bank, Seed Loans and other Federal cooperating programs were estimated as requiring an additional 71 days. It was further recommended that additional time be given to the county Farm Bureau toward working out a constructive program for the year.

The entire Extension program is designed to work with farmers in the organization and solving of their farm problems. The program is to be adjusted from time to time as emergency conditions demand.

The Extension Service has been recently given a large share of the responsibility in developing a farm labor program. The association appointed a committee composed of C. L. Hempfling, H. E. White and Will Smith to serve as an executive committee to assist in adjusting the labor program to serve Boone County's needs.

Officers of the County Agricultural Extension Association Committee elected to serve during 1943 are J. F. Cleek, Chairman, H. E. White, Vice Chairman and William Moore, Secretary.

Rent Office Officials Will Visit Boone County

4-H Boys Active In Soil Conservation

Three teams of 4-H Club boys in Boone County have been supplied with material to be used in preparing themselves in various modern methods of soil conservation, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent.

When the project is completed the boys should have a working knowledge of terracing and contour cultivation. They may be no experts developed, but the boys, as well as their father will become conscious of the terrible loss to farm land coming from erosion and top soil being carried away by too much run-off. The value of cover crops and proper seeding of farm land will be stressed in this project. Every farm presents an entirely different problem in soil conservation. For this reason the three teams taking part are expected to have a rather lively time this summer.

Boone County Band Will Practice Monday

Boone County Band will begin summer practice on Monday night, May 10th at 8:30 p. m. at Burlington school. Work will be started at this time on a new minstrel show to be given this summer. All band members are urged to be present on time.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

Kansas has passed a labor union control bill with teeth in it. Other states are considering similar measures.

One bill before Congress would do away with racketeering by unscrupulous leaders within union ranks. Another bill would clarify the meaning of the term "emloye" so that "supervisory" and "management" officials could not be forced into unions under the classification of "employe," thereby denying management any representation in controversial issues.

Organized labor has had the good will of the public, but the American people resent dictator policies. Labor leaders should take notice.

STILL IN THE RING

The question of how to collect the Federal income tax is not settled by any means. The pay-as-you-go idea gets on its feet as rapidly as it is knocked down. Polls over the nation show conclusively that the people favor such a plan. In regard to the Treasury's objection that the Ruml plan would favor the rich, Congressman Celler, Democrat, of New York, says: "That is untrue. It is a demagogic slug below the belt. The Ruml plan, with all the bugs taken out, would favor no one class. All can be treated alike. All would benefit and the government would be enriched with less tax delinquencies, defauls, and refusals to pay."

As taxes get heavier, and as millions of people, for the second time, pay an installment of their Federal income tax, demands will grow louder for a pay-as-you-go tax plan.

The public seldom hears of the behind-the-scenes struggles to overcome knotty performance problems of modern warcraft. How they are solved in laboratories seldom reaches the headlines, although the solutions are of headline importance.

Such was the case with lubricating submarines, a problem that a Western oil company has finally solved to the satisfaction of the Navy. In commending company engineers on their success, a high naval officer remarked that: "These engineers worked with the Navy in an intensive study of lubrication for submarines, a problem which for years has baffled experts. The new type of oil they succeeded in producing has proven successful under the most difficult operating conditions."

The story of the solution of this one problem so vital to the war effort, is typical of many similar problems the oil industry has had to solve in this mechanized war.

It is seemingly little things such as these that will finally win a big war. Fortunately American industry is efficiently and continuously ferreting out day by day the answers to these "back page" problems. Only the men on the battle-front where details count, can fully appreciate the job industry is doing.

—o—

TWO-LEGGED STOOL

Public statments have been issued by the War Manpower Commission and the Department of Agriculture appealing to employes in various phases of production and processing of food to remain on the jjob. They were informed that they were contributing as much, if not more to the war effort than they would be working at other war activities.

No one questions the essentiality of food production and processing. But what of the food after it has been processed? It is utterly inconsistent, as well as useless, to encourage food production and processing, and then ignore distributon. Thousands of retail merchants are going out of business. With each merchant that retires from the field, the problem of how to get food and other necessities to consumers becomes more critical. We don't hear a great deal about those other necessities, but they are as important as food.

The retail distribution industry must feed and clothe 130,000,000 Americans. The scope and complexity of its task is tremendous. It is a task that must be carried out smoothly or the war effort will topple like a two-legged stool.

ANOTHER WARNING

Persons familiar with the farm situation have long pointed out the danger the nation faced by stripping the farms of manpower, machinery and needed fertilizer. Time has shown their fears were justified. The situation as to our milk supply is grave.

At a recent hearing in the East, after testifying on details of milk marketing orders that can make or break the farmer, Fred H. Sexauer, president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, again sounded a warning as to our future milk supply. He pointed out, for example, that milk must be priced at figures that will enable dairymen to compete with hog raisers for corn.

"There are numerous indications," he said, "that dairy farmers will be confronted with a severe feed shortage late this year or early in 1944. If and when they have no feed, farmers will be forced to slaughter their cows. Then the public will be faced not only with rationing of milk, but with a health endangering shortage which may even reduce the supply of dairy foods for the armed forces as well as for children and industrial workers."

—o—

THEY MUST EAT

Former president Herbert Hoover, outstanding leaders in agriculture and milk production, and the governors of many states have been pointing out the dangers involved in undermining our farm output by policies which treat agriculture as a non-essential industry, in comparison with so-called war industries.

It is self evident that any policy which crippies food production, will wreck the whole war program. Men and women have to eat every day before they can produce or fight. We can't keep our promises to our Allies to furnish them food, and at the same time feed this nation, unless the farmer has the manpower and equipment to raise the crops.

A lost crop season or a lost milk cow involves a time element for replacement ,of from one to three years. It is well that these facts are now being impressed on those responsible for future farm policies.

LOOKING AHEAD
BY GEORGE S. BENSON

Lop-Sided Growth

Everybody old enough to vote has witnessed Earth's years of highest scientific achievement. Even now, unnatural needs of war are speeding up this already dominant trend in human progress. Engineering feats keep the nation agog. Those who stand on the sidelines of scientific activity marvel at today's wonders and speculate on those of tomorrow. A now familiar quotation is: "It takes some time to do hard things; the impossible takes a little longer."

Government is the only field in which the human race currently is making a failure. If we are to believe most of what we read, humanity's drive toward good government is in reverse. The world is more despot-ruled now than it was at the dawn of history, and the day seems far away when peoples shall manage their mutual affairs with intelligence and kindness. Our progress has been lop-sided.

No Ordinary Year

But the year 1943 is no ordinary time, no more than was 1776. The United States is the only sizable stronghold of human freedom left, not shell-shocked with war or pockmarked by dictatorship. Even here, with the nation's enormous strength massed in self defense, people of small capacity sometimes show symptoms of power intoxication, but not all the signs are discouraging. A new and wholesome interest in national affairs has spread across the country in the last three months, and it is most heartening.

There have been isolated years of great governmental achievement in the past; high peaks of history. These have not been occasions when tyrants followed in the wake of famine, compelling hungry people to swap freedom for bread. They have not been campaigns when brute force was subduing one and then another inoffensive nation. They have not been times when power was being centralized. This year could be another big year.

Years of Progress

Great days of governmental achievement have been times when power was twisted from the fists of a few and put in the hands of many, where it belonged. The occasions have been cited so often in high school orations that there is no reason to catalog them here, but this is worth remembering: The United States became a world power in record time because it was free. Mundane authority has always been in the right place; in the people.

It has been charged by some that the recent great concentration of power in the New Deal's bureaucratic organization has led to the abuse of authority. If true, it is a blessing in disguise, for nothing could ever demonstrate the evils of over-centralized power so plainly and so quickly as the abuse of authority. It is the nature of men, when they acquire great power, to abuse it. Trying to remedy the evils of bureaucracy is useless, like perfuming a skunk. The only remedy for a nuisance is disposal. The more indignation the better at puppet rule anywhere.

It is clearly time for government to start decentralizing again. Nations are like men: Relieved of the necessity of thinking and working, they unmistakably drift back toward the primitive. Even the ability of people to govern themselves can be destroyed, simply by doing it for them. Nothing better could happen to America than to watch the stagnant bureaucratic power in Washington quietly drawn off and permitted to flow back to the state, county and township whence it came.

Why has the age in which we live developed unevenly? Why have the achievements of engineering been superb, the failures of government so abject? These are fair questions which can be answered nationally.

Rule of Procedure

There is wisdom greater than any man possesses. There are fixed laws that limit human discretion and determine sound judgment. Men can succeed only as they discover these laws and harmonize their own deeds with them. Men of science have succeeded because with test tube and micrometer, they have studied God's laws and followed along. Men of government have not.

Representative Hatton Sumners of Texas, head of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, in an informal talk recently declared, "If can be proved as before a jury that it's God's will for government to emanate from those who are governed." I believe it, and suggest no evidence here except that a jurist of Mr. Sumner's stature says it can be proved.

An alarm-clock is a horrid thing sometimes, but it serves a useful purpose. Such are the stupid mandates from an assembly of miscellaneous misfits. Americans hate being bossed for no useful purpose, and now their sweet dreams of peace beneath the sheltering wings of an alphabetical brain-trust have been disturbed. They are waking up to do something about it. Congress has sensed a change in public temper, and has named a committee to investigate the use by bureaus of unauthorized authority, and their wasted man-power. Congress is to be commended. The people have representativcs.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS it has pleased the Almighty in His infinite wisdom to remove from our midst our beloved fellow club member, friend, and co-worker, J. O. Griffith.

WHEREAS he was a devout member of the Boone County Utopia Club, being its former president and was ever a civic-minded, active individual in 4-H and Utopia Club work throughout his life.

WHEREAS he righteously supported every cause for the betterment of his club, his community, and his County.

WHEREAS we realize our loss in his passing and keenly and deeply feel his absence.

NOW THEREFORE be it hereby resolved that we, the Boone County Utopia Club, as a body do of even date bow respectfully to the will of the Almighty One, realizing that in the passing of J. O. Griffith we have lost a good member, an able leader, an active, worthwhile man to his community and a sincere and true friend.

THAT a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the book of the secretary of this organization,

THAT a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family and a copy likewise sent to the local paper for publication.

THAT in the memory of J. O. Griffith the Boone County Utopia Club does by express action hereby forever honor his name.

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yealey

The people of Florence do not realize that the town had a newspaper in early times. Ben Deering was editor of The Boone County Journal. Its slogan was "Independent in all things, neutral in nothing; hew to the line; let the chips fall where they may."

Our County Judge at this time was John S. Phelps; County Attorney, R. C. Green; County Clerk L. H. Dills; Circuit Clerk, J. W. Duncan; Sherfif, B. K. Sleet; Coroner, James S. Shephard; Assessor, Edward Fowler. The officers of Myers, Police Judge; R. T. German, Florence at this time were F. H. Marshal.

We shall now give you some of the local and personal news at that time:

R. P. Lodge, of the firm of Cowling and Lodge, pork dealers, Louisville, and his daughter Ida, are visiting Dr. Sayre and family. Mr. Lodge is suffering with a felon on his hand, which Dr. Sayre is treating.

Mr. Allen Wilhoit, one of the old and prominent citizens of this county, has been very sick for several weeks, and it is probable that his death will be recorded in our next issue. Last Tuesday religious services were held at his residence at which Rev. J. Reeves, officiated, assisted by Elder E. Stephens. A large number of friends of the family were present. Mr. Wilhoit has no hope of longer life and is prepared and willing to go when the summon shall come. His two sons, William and Merriman, from Missouri, arrived yesterday.

We are indebted to Captain Finch of this place for a late Kansas paper from which we learn that the West is threatened with devatation by the grasshoppers again this year.

A vast quantity of wool has passed through Florence this week going to the Cincinnati market.

As Albert Price attempted to mount his horse with a loaded shotgun in his hand at Cain's tollgate, on the Lexington pike, his saddle turned, throwing him to the ground, when both barrels of the gun exploded, some of the shot striking Mr. Cain, John Wilson and John Conley, who were standing near, wounding them severely, but not seriously. Price was greatly frightened.

At a meeting of the North Kentucky Trotting Association, R. S. Strader was re-elected president; Volney Dickerson, vice president; Jacob Strader, secretary and treasurer; H. A. Hicks, L. H. Dills, Owen Gaines, John Harshal, Columbus Carlisle, Wm. N. Smith and Benj. H. Stansifer, directors.

FLORENCE

The many friends of Mrs. G. A. Hellebusch regret to learn of her illness the past two weeks.

Florence friends of John Rouse of Cincinnati regret to learn of his continued illness at his home. He is a brother of the late Mrs. John Uri Lloyd, of Cincinnati.

W. E. Arnold was a welcome visitor here, Saturday afternoon and spent the week-end with his daughter, Mrs. Norris Riddell and family, of Hilltop.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Marshall, of Walton purchased a new modern home on Lloyd Avenue from Wade Edwards. They expect to move there in the near future.

Edwin Carpenter and family, of Cincinnati, were called here last week on account of the death of his brother Clarence E. Carpenter.

Mrs. Virginia Rice of U. S. 42 visited Mrs. Emma Cleek on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCabe, who has been passing several months in Tampa, Fla., have returned to their home near Beaver Lick.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Hattie Creel remains quite ill at her home.

The community was deeply saddened by the sudden death of Clarence E. Carpenter on Monday. Deepest sympathy is extended to his sister, Mrs. J. T. Williams and brother Edwin Carpenter.

Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Kerns spent a pleasant evening last week with Mrs. Emma Cleek and Mrs. R. L. Day.

I wish all Florence would cooperate with us, and if they have any news items kindly leave them at Florence Drug Store.

C. T. Tanner was a welcome visitor here one day last week, and called on Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Aylor.

Mrs. Maud Bennett of Limaburg visited Mrs. Mae Ross, of Lloyd Ave., Thursday evening.

Cecil Riddle, who has been enjoying a two weeks' furlough left Saturday evening for Greensborough, N. C., where he is stationed. His wife accompanied him back to camp.

Mrs. Beatrice McWilliams, of Cincinnati, was calling on Mrs. Lloyd Aylor and family one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Fullilove entertained with a dinner last Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs Fred Bennett, of Limaburg.

Many from Florence attended the unveiling of the Boone County Service Board in Burlington on Sunday.

Quite a number from Florence attended the dedication of the airport on Monday.

Many friends of Rev. O. M. Huey regret to learn of his illness at his residence the past week.

...not if you take good care of your
VACUUM CLEANER
Beating rugs by hand is hard on you and hard on your rugs, but it's your only alternative if you allow your cleaner to become damaged beyond repair. Here are a few hints on how to keep it in A-1 operating condition:
TIPS ON CLEANER CARE
- Empty dust bag every time cleaner is used. Dust in bag reduces suction.
- Avoid running cleaner over pins, nails, coins and other hard objects. Pick them up by hand.
- Keep brushes free from lint, hair and threads. Clean after each use.
- If cleaner is not picking up threads, check belt to see if it is turning brush. Increase tension or replace belt if necessary.
- Be sure that brush is properly adjusted. Bristles should extend about one-eighth inch below nozzle.
- Coil cord loosely on hooks. Pulling too tightly may break wires inside insulation where cord bends over hooks.
- Disconnect cord by grasping plug at outlet. Do not yank cord or you may damage connections.
- Follow manufacturer's instructions on cleaning and oiling. Consult your dealer if you have lost directions.

TONIGHT AND FRIDAY

Cary Grant will be in line for a newspapermen's Oscar, or whatever it is that the gentleman of the Fourth Estate might award an actor for presenting them as they really are on the screen.

As a reporter for an American news syndicate in early-blitz Europe in Leo McCarey's "Once Upon a Honeymoon," Grant doesn't once resort to wrinkled clothes, cocked hats or incessant cigarettes in portraying a correspondent in this production for RKO Radio which co-stars Ginger Rogers.

Cary's one concession to the reportorial profession is the wearing of a bow tie in some of the scenes, because, he says, some of the finest newspapermen he knows wear them.

WEDNESDAY
(Double Feature)

The funniest foot race ever filmed is presented in RKO Radio's "The Great Gildersleeve," in which Harold (Gildersleeve) Peary is presented in his famous radio character of Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve, who always is right but who always does everything wrong!

The race is staged between Gildy and his fellow townsman, Judge Hooker, and takes place on a hill outside the fabled town of Summerfield, with Gildy betting he can run backwards faster than the Judge can run forwards. The surprise finish and its results offer side-splitting complications.

Against some of the most unusual backgrounds ever devised for a mystery story the latest RKO Radio "Falcon" film "The Falcon's Brother," unfolds in a series of thrilling episodes involving an international murder ring backed by the Axis powers.

George Sanders once more appears as the keen, cool super-sleuth who makes his debut in the series. A fine supporting cast is headed by Jane Randolph in the role of an enterprising girl reporter.

Resolutions Of Respect

At a meeting of the Boone County Bar, held during the December term of the Boone Circuit Court, Hon. O. M. Rogers, Hon. John L. Vest and Hon. C. C. Adams were appointed a committee to draft resolutions of respect on the death of the late N. E. Riddell.

On the 12th day of April, the committee reported and read the following resolutions and the same were unanimously adopted by the Bar and directed spread on the Order Book of the Boone Circuit Court, and a copy of same directed to be sent to the family and a copy released to the newspapers for publication. The resolution is as follows:

Resolution of the Boone County Bar on the Death of Judge N. E. Riddell

WHEREAS, according to the divine plan of this universe, there terminated the life of Nathanial Edson Riddell on September 1, 1942. On that day the activities of Boone County's beloved County Judge, public servant, friend and son ended, yet there remained in the hearts and lives of its people the memory of noble acts, good fellowship and counsel, so inseparably blended in his personality and being that he will not be forgotten until the children of today have also passed beyond. Even then, there are permanently recorded evidences of his good life and deeds that will endure forever.

Judge Riddell was born in Boone County on July 17, 1872, to the union of Fountain and Louisa Riddell. His early life was typical of that of a son born of noble parents. He received, in his early life, the sound educational advantages that the times afforded and in these early days of his life began the cultivation of friendships that lasted to the grave.

Following his elementary education, he attended the Cincinnati Law School, now a part of the University of Cincinnati, and upon receiving his degree was admitted to the Boone County Bar in the year 1895. He entered upon the practice of the law in his native county and place of his birth, immediately becoming associated with the late Judge J. M. Lassing, one of the outstanding lawyers of the state at that time.

The trial of cases as an advocate never seemed to appeal to him. "Judge Riddell," as we loved to refer to him, preferred to counsel and advise clients rather than to appear as their champion in the trial of their cases. He particularly regretted seeing cases go to trial that in fairness and justice to all concerned should have been amicably adjusted. His true worth, however, came as an officer of public servant. While he abstained from contention, he did not relax in the study of the law. He knew and correctly applied the law relative to the positions he occupied, as a result of which the affairs of his county, under his stewardship, have always been in perfect order.

Judge Riddell never allowed the holding of office to make him pompous; nor did he allow it to cause him to assume an air of importance. Litigants and counsel, in cases before him, never doubted his honesty or his integrity; neither was there any apprehension on their part of any unfairness in any ruling that he would be required to make in their cases. There was no vengeance in his makeup, yet he was a stickler for justice. Those technically guilty, when brought before him, were sure to receive the minimum punishment provided, while those culpably guilty were dealt with according to the degree of the offense charged. He proceeded always upon the theory that the law, which it was his duty to administer, had prescribed the punishment and it was his duty as a court to see that the law was enforced, yet at all times tempering justice with mercy.

On June 6, 1900, he was married to Katie Huey, his boyhood and only sweetheart, and he cherished, loved and respected her as long as she lived. After her death in 1931, he could not reconcile his loss. He was especially devoted to his only sister, Mrs. A. B. Renaker, who survived him.

He took great pleasure in driving over the county. He was a lover of clean sport and especially baseball. His favorite ball team was the Cincinnati Reds, and he enthused and suffered according to the success of that team. He kept well in mind the names of successful participants in all important sporting events.

He knew the names of the outstanding Kentucky thoroughbreds, but in all things he took life in any easy stride.

He was always strong and reliable in the counsels of his, the predominant party of the state, yet even those he opposed were never able to say that he had been unfair or offensive to them. At his funeral, many of his political opponents were seen and their grief at his passing was apparent. He had the God-given power to make friends, for truly loved he them his neighbors. While charitable, he was unostentatious, avoiding at all times everything even resembling display. Truly it can be said of him that he was in every sense a man.

Therefore, be it resolved that in the death of Judge Riddell, the State and County have lost a wise, efficient and painstaking public official, the Bar a truthworthy and honorable member, the community an outstanding citizen, his relatives and friends one whose loyalty and devotion was as abiding as time itself.

O. M. ROGERS,
JOHN L. VEST,
C. C. ADAMS,
Committee.

PETER AND JOHN LEADERS IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:37-41; 3:1-8; 4:13; 19-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marveled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.—Acts 4:13.

Does the Church have a message for our day? Sometimes one wonders a bit, but a little thought indicates that if it does not, it is not because Christianity has failed, but because Christian people have failed to declare the eternal and powerful truth of God. The primary responsibility for any such failure must rest upon the leaders of the Church.

It is instructive to see the qualities which made the leaders of the early Church effective for the Lord. In our lesson we find Peter and John doing three things.

I. Declaring God's Word (Acts 2: 37-41).

Peter had just finished the first sermon preached in the Church, which was delivered at Pentecost. The declaration of God's truth in the power of the Holy Spirit brought conviction of sin. It always does, although the outward indication of its working may not be as marked as it was on that day. Three thousand souls were under conviction and asking what to do to be saved.

What an opportunity for the preacher and his fellow worker, John. How did they meet it? By faithfully declaring the need of repentance and faith, and then of fellowship with others in the Church.

One mark of a real leader for God will always be that he preaches and teaches the message of God without adulteration, without modification, and with plainness and simplicity.

The kind of leadership which is often magnified in the Church today and which is largely made up of personal magnetism, "pep" and fast talk, is not real leadership at all. Test your leaders by their faithful and intelligent declaration of God's Word.

II. Conveying God's Power (Acts 3:1-8).

"Channels only"—that is the function of the worker for Christ, the leader in His Church. As Mary Maxwell well put it:

Channels only, blessed Master,
But with all Thy wondrous power
Flowing through us, Thou canst use us
Every day and every hour.

Silver and gold was a scarce commodity with Peter and John, as it has been with many, yes most, of God's servants through the centuries. But they did have the blessed privilege of being channels through which the healing, cleansing, redeeming power of God could flow—and that was infinitely better.

The lame man had long since given up hope of anything better than the few coins he could beg at the temple gate. He was like many in our hard and practical age who see only the values that money can give, and thus miss the real blessing of God.

God has for men today, as He had for this beggar, that which is far better than gold—deliverance from sin and liberation from the limitations of spirit which make them content with the paltry alms of men.

Peter and John were ready to be used of God because they were men who were not too busy to pray (v. 1). Knowing the compassion of God they sought out the one in need, and by faith put the unlimited power of God to work on his behalf.

God healed this man's body, but what is more important, He healed his spirit (v. 8). We need that kind of healing for the weak-kneed, lame-ankled, spirit-darkened individuals in our communities and our churches. We will have it only as our leaders are men and women who are cleansed—ready to be channels for the conveying of God's power to a needy world.

III. Doing God's Will (Acts 4:13, 18-21).

The way of life of God's leaders is not an easy one, but it is a simple one. They do God's will—nothing less, nothing more, and nothing else. What could be more delightful?

Peter and John had spoken the truth and declared salvation to be only in the name of Jesus (v. 12). Certain easy talkers within the Church who tell us that we must not be narrow but broad enough to see salvation in all religions, had better read that verse again.

Because they had preached Christ, and for no other reason, they were imprisoned, then released on condition that they would not mention Him again. What a splendid opportunity for a smooth and comfortable compromise! They could preach but just leave out Christ. Did they do it? No! (vv. 19, 20).

Obedience to God was paramount with them, and it must be with every genuinely Christian leader in the Church. Nothing else will do, nor will it have the blessing and approval of God.

More than 2,300 rural families in Bourbon county have agreed to produce at least three-fourths of their food supply this year.

Henderson county homemakers report having canned 3,467 quarts of meat.

LIVESTOCK NOTES

The following timely livestock notes are important, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent:

Wool

It is important that the fleece be handled with care, to demand its most value on the market. The only paper twine and tie with the skin side out, keep all trash off the fleece, use regulation wool bags and keep tags, dead wool, bury and damaged wool separate from the clear wools.

Parasites

Treat old sheep at shearing time for stomach worms. All old sheep should have a spring treatment with phenothiazine to control nodular worms. Use the Bluestone Black 40 treatment next time after the nodular worm treatment.

Lambs

The price ceiling program works against the advantages that light weight early lambs have had in previous years. Standardize feed and where necessary treat lambs to produce weights of eighty-five or more pounds before selling. Corn alone is a satisfactory feed to give lambs on pasture. Creep feed for greater profit.

Ewes

Shearing time is an ideal time to cull the flock. Mark the culls and sell them when the fleece has from one forth to one-half inch growth.

Trim the feet so that ewes walk naturally and will not as likely contact foot rot.

Large ewes are usually the best ewes.

Hogs

Market hogs weighing from 250 pounds to 300 pounds.

Suckling pigs need a feed containing from 25 to 28 percent protein, weanling pigs from 20 to 22 percent protein, while heavy fattening hogs need only 11 to 12 percent protein feed.

Clean sleeping quarters help control mange and lice. For killing lice on hogs where they cannot be dipped apply crankcase oil on the hogs' head, neck and and back or they may be sprayed with lime-sulphur.

Cattle

Don't turn on grass too soon. Grass should be from three to four inches high. Don't use raw rock phosphate as a mineral. It is dangerous to the stock.

DEVON

With the many who attended the Derby last Saturday was William Middendorf, Sr., making the round trip by boat.

We extend our congratulations to Miss Betty Jo Clark who graduates May 6th from Florence high school. Miss Clark is the daughter of T. R. Clark. Recently the stork flew over Devon, sighting Mr. Clark's home, dropped a precious package containing a baby boy. The little one has been named Roland Lee.

Miss Bessie West has been reported on the sick list from a mild case of flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Daugherty spent the week-end visiting relatives at Morning View.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wagnor, of Florence were business callers in Devon last Wednesday.

WATCH THE LAND

Again farmers are urged to watch the land as it is being planted and cultivated. Observe land planted and cultivated on the contour, and land planted and cultivated with the slope. If careful observations are made, thoughtful farmers will be convinced that they cannot afford to plant and cultivate with the slope because of the increased erosion and water loss as compared with contour tillage.

Also observe the fields smoothed by rolling or dragging on which a heavy rain falls before planting.

Next fall, watch small grain seeded on the contour as compared with seeding in the direction of the slope.

SAYS TRADING WORK WOULD HELP SOLVE FARM LABOR PROBLEM

Returning to the neighborhood system of trading work would go a long way toward solving the farm labor problem, thinks Dr. Roy E. Proctor of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Pioneer farmers exchanged labor, helped one another during rush seasons, joined together to cut grain, thresh, raise barns, kill hogs and do other big jobs. Dr. Proctor thinks farmers might consider doing the same now, where there is a shortage of workers and when farmers fear they can't get their work done.

One means of getting work done, Dr. Proctor points out, would be for owners of power machinery to combine grain, bale hay, disk land or do other work, in exchange for hand labor of men who have no power machinery. A man might agree to help sucker tobacco in exchange for having his hay baled or he might plow corn in return for having his small grain harvested. This would make labor-saving machinery available for more farms.

There are times when one farmer may be rushed while a neighbor may not have much to do. This is a chance for one man to help out his neighbor in getting up his hay, making ensilage, harvesting grain or other work, in return for help in cutting tobacco or corn, etc.

Then there is the matter of getting together to do certain jobs that can't be done by one man, such as killing hogs, making hay, threshing grain and housing tobacco. Farmers can make up crews to do such jobs and thereby save time and work for each other.

BIG CROPS FOLLOW EROSION CONTROL

How erosion was completely controlled on the farm of E. F. Lebold in Daviess county is related by Farm Agent John E. McClure. In 1941, Mr. Lebold applied two tons of lime and 300 pounds of 20 percent phosphate on a field that was distinctly rolling and, in a fair season, capable of producing only about 40 bushels to the acre. He seeded 20 pounds of alfalfa and three pounds of blue grass seed to the acre on 12 acres.

In 1942, approximately 80,000 pounds of alfalfa hay was baled, and a month's grazing provided at the end of the season. Mr. Lebold figured that with alfalfa hay selling all winter for $20 a ton, the value of his crop was $800. The cost of lime, phosphate and seed was $185. Although the past winter was hard on alfalfa in Daviess county, there was enough of it left on this field, with the good stand of blue grass, to control the erosion problem.

WOMEN WOULD SURPASS CONSERVATION RECORD

Women in Graves county are making a united war effort thru the help of their homemakers' clubs to surpass the records made last year in producing and conserving at home. That they will excel their report of 12,078 quarts of vegetables canned was indicated recently when women from all parts of the county stated that they are planting more than the 18 vegetables recommended by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Many plan to grow edible soybeans for the first time.

These women also expect to surpass last year's record in fruit canning; then they put up 10,159 quarts and dried 346 pounds. They also canned 2,840 pounds of meat.

More home sewing has been done by members of homemakers' clubs recently than has been done in many a year. New garments constructed number 1,937, while more than 100 hats and 470 coats, suits and dresses were remodeled.

FARMERS IN GOOD POSITION TO MEET DEMANDS FOR FOOD

Kentucky farmers are in a good position to meet the demands for increased production this year, says Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

"The soil is in good condition, as the result of extensive use of limestone and phosphate and the growing of cover crops, legumes and grass," he pointed out. "Livestock numbers are among the largest in the history of the state. There are large reserves of grains and other feeds, carried over from the big producing season of last year. Herds and flocks, with care, can be increased to meet the needs of the war."

Corn production in Kentucky last year is estimated at 82,000,000 bushels, or more than 18,000,000 bushels above normal production. This big crop was due in part to improved soil and in part to hybrid corn. Dean Cooper said that probably half of the corn will be hybrid this year.

"I believe all increases requested will be met this year," Dean Cooper declared. "The labor shortage will man that this can be done only by much hard work on the part of the men and women and younger children left on the farms. Thousands of farmers will milk another cow or, two, that milk production may be brought up to war demands. Poultry flocks will be larger on thousands of farms, and many farmers will raise another litter or two of pigs, that the pork quota of the state may be met. Cattle raising is on the increase. The seed and fiber hemp quotas will be met, I am certain.

"Kentucky farmers have shown a real zeal and a determination to do their part in meeting all wartime demands."

FARMERS URGED NOT TO BURN BRUSH DURING MARCH, APRIL, MAY

Frankfort, Ky., March 30—In an announcement today, E. G. McConnell, Director of the Division of Forestry, urged landowners throughout the state to refrain from burning brush during March, April and May, pointing out that the practice is not only dangerous but wasteful.

Officials said that this so-called Spring house-cleaning of our landowners where fires are started under the impression that they improve woodlots and pastures, kill weed seeds, and remove trash from the land, actually is of little benefit to the farmer.

McConnell pointed out that the practice of burning trash carefully raked into several piles and burned under control, or dumped in an old gully where it can provide cover for wildlife and help stop erosion, is most practical.

Experience and research, McConnell stated, have proved that pastures aren't improved by fire. The grass may look a little greener during the first couple of days in the Spring, but think of the cost. All the organic matter on top of the soil and the partly decomposed leaves, grass, etc., with which the soil is enriched is destroyed by fire. Young tree seedlings and the mulch floor of woodlots are destroyed. This destruction of mulch, plus the loss of the trees, causes soil erosion, especially if there is any slope to the land.

But, this is not all, McConnell pointed out. The woodlot fires, the grass fires aren't always the stopping places. Fires get out of control, sometimes outbuildings, even homes go; sometimes other people's homes, not their own. Fires in fields near mountain areas may assume tremendous proportions and result in staggering losses of timber, wildlife, homes and even human lives. We can't afford to sacrifice any of these resources in this all-out war effort, he concluded.

3-DAY FORESTRY SCHOOL COMPLETED BY 40 MEN

Frankfort, Ky., March 30—A three-day school for foresters and forest fire fighters was successfully concluded recently, K. G. McConnell, Director of the Division of Forestry announced today.

The meeting was held at the Clear Creek Baptist Assembly Grounds, Bell County, near Pineville, and was attended by 40 men employed by the State Division of Forestry.

This school was held for the purpose of training men in modern and new methods of fighting forest fires and getting an organization established to combat the spring fires which usually commence around the latter part of March and extend through to the first of June.

Instructors demonstrated hand tools and power equipment in combatting fires and a mock fire was fought and controlled by the group of men during the course of instruction.

Henry Sipe, U. S. Forest Service Agent, explained some methods of tracking down men who set incendiary fires and how, after they have been apprehended, they may be either fined or sentenced to jail or prison, or both.

INCREASE IN STOCK RAISING CALLS FOR LARGER FEED CROPS

Every possible acre of feed crops should be grown this year to provide for the large numbers of livestock on Kentucky farms, declares Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington.

Hog production will be increased by more than a half-million head this season, and there are record numbers of cattle, sheep and chickens in the state. This means that more feed must either be produced here or brought in from other states. The increasing difficulty of transportation makes it important that every effort be made to grow more feed at home, says Dean Cooper.

Members of the Experiment Station staff suggest that the production of corn be increased approximately 10 percent this year, so that eight to ten million bushels will be added to the average annual production. Increasing the acreage, planting high-yielding hybrid varieties and fertilizing as liberally as possible are the means by which more corn can be produced. It is suggested that corn be planted where small grains winter-killed and that idle land or fields where stands of pasture and hay crops are poor be used for corn.

Farmers also should consider sowing lespedeza, sudan grass, soybeans, cane and other feed crops, including oats this spring and rye next fall. There is still time to sow spring oats, with lespedeza included for summer pasture. Lespedeza should be seeded on old pastures and on small grains. Soybeans make good hay. Sudan grass is recommended as an emergency pasture and hay crop. Sorghum may be used for roughage. Old pastures may be stimulated by top-dressing with phosphate and lime.

SEVEN ESSENTIAL FOODS ARE NEEDED

"Have you had your seven essential foods today?" That is a slogan home economists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics are suggesting to men and women, boys and girls. For the proper amounts and kinds of food must be eaten daily if a worker is to make the greatest possible contribution to the war effort.

Here is a check-list to serve as a guide to health and energy. With the rationing of food it is more than ever necessary that the list be referred to. From each of the seven groups, one food should be eaten every day.

1. Leafy green or yellow vegetables, cooked, raw, frozen or canned.
2. Oranges, tomatoes, grapefruit, raw cabbage or salad greens.
3. Potatoes and other vegetables and fruits, cooked, raw dried, frozen or canned.
4. Milk and milk products, as cheese.
5. Meat, poultry, fish or eggs. If these are hard to get, have dried beans, peas, nuts or peanut butter.
6. Bread, flour and cereals—natural whole grains, or enriched and restored.
7. Butter and fortified margarine products (with vitamin A added).

In addition to these seven basic foods, eat any other foods you want.

RATIONING BURDEN PUT ON HOMEMAKER

Although food was rationed so that each may get his fair share, it does not mean necessarily that each will get a fair share of nutritive value. Whether he does or not depends on the homemaker who plans the meals, spends the ration coupons and prepares the food.

Now more than ever it is necessary to take time for the planning of meals and the spending of ration points, say home economists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The people at home must be well fed nutritionally if they are to do the war jobs expected of them in the coming months. Here are suggestions to homemakers for getting the most for both the money and ration points spent.

1. Check on your stock of canned and stored foods, as well as that in the refrigerator. Then buy to supplement those foods not duplicate them.
2. Plan meals for the day and week with alternate dishes in mind so that final plans may be changed at the store or market if necessary.
3. Buy fresh or frozen foods when possible rather than commercially canned ones.
4. Study the label on a can to learn about quantity, quality and other information given.
5. Choose the size that is most economical for your use. Usually 16 ounces or 1 fluid pint, or 1 pound, equals two measuring cups.
6. Buy the quality best suited for your purpose. Don't waste points on high grade fruits if they are to be used in a salad or pie.
7. Cook all foods quickly to save the vitamins.
8. Use the juices from vegetables or fruits for they contain both vitamins and minerals of the food. serve the vegetable liquid with the vegetable whenever possible, or in sauces, soups and gravies. Use fruit juice with the fruit, thicken it for pudding sauces, or keep it cold and use it soon in beverages, or as sweetening for desserts.

LOW QUALITY EGGS CAUSE BIG LOSSES

By keeping eggs clean and fresh, Kentucky farmers and dealers would gain at least $1,000,000 a year, according to a new leaflet of the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics, called "Fresh, Clean Eggs for Market." This is the amount now lost from spoiled eggs and price deductions for inferior quality. Better management by farmers and better handling methods by truckers and dealers would prevent much of this loss.

Another leaflet of interest just at this time tells how to make and operate a lantern brooder. This simple brooder can be made at small cost, and is recommended where only 50 to 60 chicks are to be brooded.

Both leaflets may be had free of charge at the offices of county agents and county home demonstration agents, or may be obtained by writing to the college.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Approximately 1,700 acres of tomatoes and 200 acres of beans have been contracted for by a cannery in Daviess county.

Homemakers' club members in Hart county are conserving food by canning their surplus hominy, greens and chicken.

Quinton Lester of Lawrence county received approximately $41 above feed cost on his flock of 149 hens during March.

To relieve the feed shortage in Carroll county, 3,900 bushels of government wheat have been ordered.

A large acreage of spring oats has been planted in Bracken county as a nurse crop for clovers and grasses.

More than six carloads of 20 percent phosphate were distributed to Perry county farmers during March.

Ten homemakers' clubs in Logan county reported that their members had purchased war bonds and stamps for $13,106.

Nine carloads of certified potato seed and one carload of select potato seed were sold in Barbourville, Knox county.

THE GARDEN

SWEET CORN AND BEANS

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

Sweet Corn—Although corn borders on the "warm" crops, there is an almost even possibility that it will succeed, started any time now.

Corn is not an "economical" crop for too-small gardens. However, where space can be had, a corn program can be laid out to furnish this delectable vegetable at its best, all summer long, as follows.

Every 10 days, or better, when the preceding planting is 2 inches high, plant again, enough for 10-days' consumption (whatever that may be for the family in question), based on each stalk's producing 1¼ ears. The last practicable planting date is July 20.

Somewhere along the line, extra planting may be done to accumulate the needed canned supply, allowing 15 ears per pint.

The best varieties are the yellow ones, and of these, the hybrids or "cross" kinds, as Golden Cross Bantam, Kingscrost, Marcross and Ioana.

Sweet corn may be put in hills of 3 stalks, 30 inches square, or in continuous rows, 10 inches. Victory Garden fertilizer, 1 pound to 50 square feet, broadcast and chopped in, does nicely.

A "bean program" would appear something like this. Every 2 weeks, for each person in the household, plant 10 feet of row, ending Aug. 1, to provide table beans 6 times a week. For a canned supply to allow for 2 servings a week, double any 4 plantings, ending with that of July 1, the last from which a sure full crop can be expected.

Besides the sorts named, are Stringless Greenpod, Stringless Refugee and Plentiful; Horticultural (or "Fall" bean) and Red or White Kidney, for drying or canning, shelled. These are all bush varieties.

Of the pole varieties, Kentucky Wonder is by all odds the favorite, but Lazy Wife and Creaseback and Golden Cluster are excellent, too; also, Tall Horticultural, or "Cranberry."

Lima beans are definitely "warm"; to be discussed in a later article.

Children's Feet

N. TULCH

Foot Comfort Specialist at—

PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE

814-816 Madison, Covington

Ninety-nine out of a hundred babies are born with good feet, even if they do appear to be flat at the start. We say babies are born with flat feet because the bony masses in a new-born baby's feet are held in place by fat pads. As the baby starts to stand and walk, these fatty pats are absorbed and muscles take their place. By about the third year the arch of the foot should be pretty well defined if the child is going to have any arch. We say if, because every one isn't intended to have a high arched contour to the foot, any more than every one is meant to have the same color of hair or eyes.

Perhaps when the child starts to stand he is overweight, or undernourished or has gone thru a serious illness. In that event the muscles may not develop enough to produce an arch in his foot. He then grows with a natural flat foot. The condition is rarely painful. However, many cases of flat feet can be averted if the child is provided with shoes that hold the weak foot in alignment. Such shoes are usually wedged slightly under the inner border of the heel bone. This prevents tipping in of the ankles and by over correction has a tendency to cause the muscles on the inner border of the leg to shorten. These muscles are the ones which keep the foot arched.—Adv.

NEW HAVEN P.-T. A. NEWS

The Parent-Teacher Association of New Haven School is very proud of its accomplishments of the past school year, for like every other organization of its kind it has had to make severe curtailments in its regular program, due to war conditions and gas and tire rations which cut our attendance record severely.

With the full cooperation of all teachers and active members, the following note-worthy accomplishments have been achieved todate: All necessary items, such as new dishes and kitchen utensils were purchased at the opening of school, in addition to two regular cooks being employed to replace the one cook and helpers of past years. Four new tables were bought and placed in the lunch room and new finish was applied to walls and woodwork. All school lunches were handled on the ticket or cash system this year, which proved very successful, in that it eliminated the heavy burden to manager of bookkeeping. Under the competent management of the Lunch Room committee and helpful suggestions from Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent the lunch room has furnished very nutritious meals thruout the year to more than a hundred students each day. This branch of our association can feel justly proud of their feat, for it's nothing short of a feat to be able to feed such a large number of children, under present limited food supplies and yet close the year with all figures written in black ink.

The membership committee is to be lauded, for in spite of transportation difficulties it was able to obtain the necessary 10 percent increase over last year's enrollment that we might continue to rate A-1 in the National Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations of America.

At the summer round-up meeting in August this P.-T. A. voted to replace its candy store with the necessary equipment for handling of ice cream. This was done and sales ran far beyond our fondest hopes. Ice cream being a very nutritious food, we feel that the children have been benefited by its addition to their daily menu.

Our very competent president, Mrs. Harold Weaver, has seen to it that many old bills have been paid and that each and every worthy cause, such as the sale of Defense Stamps, the Red Cross, T-B seals, Crippled Children's Tag Day and Student Aid have been contributed to most generously throughout the year.

With conditions as they are today, we feel that this has been a hard but fruitful year for this P.-T. A., but that all members and officers alike should feel that it has been a good fight and work well done, and with the support of all parents and patrons who will can any surplus of any fruits or vegetables they might have thru the coming canning season, to be donated to our lunch room next year, we feel that we can carry on in much the same praise worthy manner of past years. For further information on this or any other project of the P.-T. A. call Mrs. H. R. Weaver, Florence 885, for remember—we must feed our boys and girls of today, that they might become our leaders of tomorrow. Won't you help? We are counting on you.

AUDITOR'S CERTIFICATION

I have made an examination of the statement of conditions of the Constance Building and Loan Association of Constance, Kentucky as of the close of business February 20, 1943. In my opinion, based upon such examination, the foregoing statement presents fairly the financial condition of the Association as of this date.

Respectfully,
ESPY BAILEY,
Certified Public Accountant.

Town And Farm In Wartime

Gas For Victory Gardeners

Victory gardeners planning to cultivate plots away from their homes will be eligible for extra rations of gasoline this summer, if they can show need for extra mileage, the OPA has announced. Mileage rationing regulations are amended to provide up to 300 miles for six months for Victory Garden travel, if the car owner; (1) Is regularly cultivating a tract of vegetables of 1,500 square feet or more; (2) Cannot get to his garden any other way and shows his labor is necessary to it; (3) Arranges, if possible, to share his car with other gardeners.

War Expenditures—1918 and 1943

In 1918, American war expenditures were only 18½ billion dollars —in 1943, they will exceed 100 billion dollars. These figures show sharply the difference in cost between the last war and this one. There were four Liberty and one Victory Loan Drive in the last war, with a total goal of less than 19 billion dollars; but to finance the present war, the people of the United States must raise about 70 billion dollars before the end of this year. In that war, our task was chiefly to fortify a line of trenches in France—in this war, we must equip and supply our armies on all the far-flung battlefields of the world.

Change in Tire Ration

Effective May 1, passenger car drivers with mileage rations exceeding 240 monthly are eligible for any grade of new tire when their present casing are not recappable. Formerly, Grade I casings were reserved principally for drivers with mileage rations over 560 monthly.

More Mileage For Workers

Seven hundred twenty miles a month will be allowed hereafter for in-course-of-work driving outside the eastern shortage area instead of the 470 miles previously allowed. This does not change the mileage allowed for driving between home and work. A car owner formerly eligible for a "B" ration book only may qualify for additional gasoline if he (1) shows he needs it for course-of-work travel; (2) meets regular car-sharing requirements; (3) shows he is not already allowed as much 720 miles a month.

Job Records of High School Students

To help high school students find their proper place in the army (or in war industry), each one will soon be asked to make a card record of his school and job history. These "educational experience summary record" cards will contain such information as a student's academic standing and achievement, vocational and preinduction preparation, wage earning experience, aptitudes, significant hobbies and Social Security number.

Casualty Totals

Announced casualties of the United States armed forces from the outbreak of the war to date (whose next of kin have been notified) total 78,235. This total, arrived at by combining war and navy reports, includes; dead, 12-123; wounded, 15,049; missing, 40,-435; prisoners of war, 10,628.

Tire, Car, Bicycle Quotas

The quota of new passenger car tires for rationing in May is 1,006,-882, compared with 1,058,000 for April. Certificates for purchase of these tires go to drivers whose mileage rations exceed 240 miles monthly and who do not have recappable casings. New passenger cars in May total 50,000 compared with an April allotment of 38,000. The bicycle quota for May is 88,-200 unchanged from April.

Protect Child Worker's Health

Estimating that more than 3,000-000 boys and girls between 14 and 18 will hold full or part-time jobs this summer, Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, has issued a warning that the health of young workers must be protected. She said thousands of boys and girls under 18 are being permitted to work excessive hours, often late at night, to the detriment of their school work.

Replacements for Tractor Tires

Replacement tires can be obtained for farm tractors when there are no recapping facilities available, the OPA has announced. Formerly, no replacements could be had for tires which were in recappable condition.

"Lay Away" of Shoes

Shoe dealers cannot hold or lay away shoes for customers beyond the end of the period in which a current war ration shoe stamp is valid unless they receive the shoe ration stamps in advance, the OPA has announced. Another amendment provides that house slippers and moccasins designed for indoor use only are not rationed.

Group Riding Increases

Group riding has made its greatest gains in rural industrial areas, state surveys show. In these sections, the average number of persons per car increased from 1.77 a year ago to 3.17 now. The average number of persons per car throughout the country has increased from 2 prior to July 1, 1942 to 2.86.

Ceilings On Washing Machines

Maximum prices for used washing machines sold by dealers, auctioneers and individuals have been established by OPA. Rates for rental of used washer limit prices to $4.50 for the first month and $3.50 monthly thereafter, regardless of the type of machine rented.

War-Time Dairy Barn, Frences, Gates

Plans for a dairy barn that uses a minimum of critical materials may be obtained free from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. by writing or a leaflet on "A Wartime Dairy Barn." How to make fences and gates with a minimum of metals also can be obtained by writing for the folder "Wooden Fences and Gates."

New Ceilings on Beef and Lamb

Retail ceiling prices for beef and lamb will be reduced one to three cents a pound below the ceilings originally scheduled to take effect April 15. The new prices become effect May 17 and will be uniform throughout the country for stores of the same type.

"I Am An American"

"I Am An American Day" will be celebrated throughout the nation on Sunday, May 16, in honor of new citizens. Arrangements for celebrations are in the hands of local communities.

Farm On The Level

Fair weather has enabled all farmers to begin preparing their fields for spring planting. With the damaging results of recent rains still visible, more farmers than ever before have become erosion conscious according to C. Liston Hempfling, Chairman of the Boone Soil Conservation District.

It appears that all farmers are doing all they can to produce more food to win the war. That is, large acreage has been plowed. The vital point though, is how much are we going to produce rather than how much are we going to plant. In some instances a good field of grass will produce more than if it were plowed up and put in corn. One of the most economical ways to produce more on less acreage is to plant on the contour. A recent publication from the U. S. Department of Agriculture points out that 23 bushels more corn per acre was produced on contoured corn fields than adjacent non-contoured fields. Iowa farmers report contouring boosted potato yields 44 bushels pere acre. Reports New York farmers, contouring is easy to do. It doesn't require any new machinery. Layout the contour around the slope, and farm on the level. It increases production, saves labor, fuel, wear and tear on equipment, and most of all it saves soil, that precious materials that is getting away from us.

The Boone Soil Conservation District, with office located in the room back of Production Credit office, will gladly assist any farmer in the county in laying off fields to be cultivated on the contour or with drainage problems. Some very valuable bulletins on conservation can be had for the asking at the local office.

A striking example of what diversion ditches will do can be seen on the Mr. V. W. Gaines farm near Bullittsville Church. Even though the soil on the slopes was poorer than parts of the surrounding fields a better stand of wheat shows up where the diversion plow furrows were used.

REMAKE OLD FROCKS INTO SMART DRESSES

It's smart to be thrifty is the slogan being practiced by many members of homemakers' clubs in Kentucky as they patriotically remake old garments into smart dresses and suits. Mrs. Mack Morgan of Fayette county made a tailored suit for herself from one of her husband's which he could no longer wear. Then she raveled a sweater and knitted a beret to wear with it. The final touch was a quilted envelope purse made to match the suit, and all at a total cost of less than $2.

Mrs. Charles Kettenring of Scott used her going-away wedding suit of 25 years ago from which to make an attractive fall dress. Reports of women using material on hand are heard from various parts of the state where they have been learning new tricks in sewing.

WOMAN MAKES MONEY COVERING FURNITURE

How a member of a homemaker's club built up a worth-while business in slip-covering furniture by using information obtained in her club work, is told by Home Agent Sara Triplett of Madison county, Kentucky. Last year, Mrs. Jerry Parrish slip-covered more than 100 upholstered chairs and davenports. In three months of this year she almost equalled that number in orders and pieces actually done. Mrs. Parrish further aids in the conservation of furniture by repairing springs and padding. Most unique of her accomplishments was the conversion and recovering of a bus seat into a modern divan.

A Week of The War

Washington, April 30—Allied forces in Tunisia have taken most of the important hills protecting the way into the costal plain around Tunis in a full scale offensive that has brought the British about 20 miles from Tunis. The British Eighth Army has advanced from the south against stiff resistance, as the Americans have come within 25 miles of Bizerte. Thousands of land mines planted by the retreating Germans were cleared by United States forces as they captured Sidi Nsir.

The battle line which stretched from Djebel Dardyss on the north, where the Americans took three hills, to Djebel Mdeker in the South, was rapidly contracting as the Axis armies retreated under the heavy infantry and tank attacks of American, British, and French troops. Although there are no signs of collapse, the enemy has been forced to make withdrawals from his most heavily fortified positions, and the Allies have kept up destructive air raids on troop concentrations and ammunition dumps behind the enemy's lines. In a spectacular battle, Allied aircraft intercepted a convoy of 20 huge Merseburg-323 transports each capable of carrying 120 men and shot down all of them.

General Eisenhower's headquarters reported that Axis losses in Tunisia from January 1 to April 15 included—66,000 killed, wounded or captured; 250 tanks, 3,000 vehicles, and 425 guns destroyed or captured; 1,754 planes destroyed, 278 probably destroyed, and 586 damaged—a total of 2,618 put out of action. Losses at sea were also great. It was reported that a single United Nations' submarine flotilla had sunk 85 Axis ships in the Mediterranean since November 8.

In The Pacific

Canadian airmen joined Americans in raids on Kiska, strong outpost of the Japanese, which was bombed 142 times in April. The largest of the Ellice Islands, Funafuti, has been occupied by United States forces. It is about 450 miles south of the Gilbert group where the Japanese have heavy fortifications. Date of the occupation was not revealed, although it was announced that the Marines had taken the island without resistance.

Chungking declared that the Japanese have used poison gas against Chinese troops in one sector, and that the Japanese had advanced as far as Yukiakwen in southeastern Shansi.

Other Developments

The Polish Cabinet, meeting in London, drafted a reply to Russia which was couched in moderate language and left the way clear for the British and Americans to attempt to restore normal relations between Soviets and the Polish Government in exile. Russia suspended diplomatic relations with Premier Sikorski's Government over a German propaganda story that the Reds had executed 10,000 Polish officers.

Saboteurs are active in Europe. Norwegian patriots blew up four ships and a lighthouse in Oslo Harbor. It was reported that an attempt had been made on the life of the Nazi governor of Warsaw and that there had been a wave of attacks on Nazi soldiers in Greece.

GOOD YEAR AHEAD FOR BURLEY MEN

The year 1943 should be another good year for growing Burley tobacco, says the annual outlook report of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Consumption of this type of tobacco is increasing.

During the 12 months ending Oct. 1, last, disappearance of Burley equalled 381,000,000 pounds, or 12 percent more than during the previous year, and by far the largest disappearance on record.

The total supply of Burley tobacco, including the stocks on hand Oct. 1, 1942, plus the 1942 crop, is lower in relation to disappearance than in any year since 1930.

This situation is recognized by an allotment of 421,000 acres for 1943, or 10 percent more than was grown last year. If 90 to 95 percent of this acreage is planted, and yields an acre are the average of the past five years, a crop of 360,-000,000 to 375,000,000 pounds will be produced this year. With increased use in prospect, total supplies a year hence may be even smaller than at present.

Use of cigarette tobacco in the year ending October 1 was 14 percent larger than for the previous year. Chewing tobacco was up 7 percent, but smoking tobacco withdrawals were down at least 10 percent.

If 60 percent of Burley tobacco is used in cigarettes, 10 percent in chewing tobacco and 30 percent in smokin gtobacco, the above figures suggest that 6 percent more Burley was used in 1942 than in 1941.

Restrictions in sizes and forms of asphalt and tarred roofing products and asphalt shingles will save 2,150,000 man hours per year, 250 tons of steel, and 60,000 tons of asphalt.

NORBEH 4-H CLUB

The Norbeh 4-H Club met Wednesday, April 28 for their last meeting. Plans were discussed for the Spring Rally, May 29th at Burlington. Our two leaders and one guest Miss Florence Pfalzgraf a Home Economics Teacher from Indiana was present.

After our regular meeting we had our last community meeting. Our H. D. A. Mrs. Moore was present and 19 girl members. Mrs. Moore told us all about Rally Day and how to get our demonstrations ready. Mrs. Pfalzgraf was appointed to procure a truck to take us to Burlington, Rally Day. Each member will pay part of expenses. —Club Reporter.

RIDES BIKE TO DERBY

George Maher, well-known bicycle expert, took a dose of his own medicine last week by making a week's bike tour of Kentucky and winding up at Louisville for the Derby Saturday. He was accompanied by several members of his bike club, which often makes trips through Boone County.

Mr. Maher's cycling tourists got considerable publicity when they attended the races. When they entered, Metro Movietone and Pathe Weekly photographers took pictures of them, and last Saturday both of the Louisville dailies carried a picture of Mr. Maher and a member of his club. Mr. Maher is proprietor of the Dixie Cycle Shop, 16 East Fifth St., Covington.

WALNUT TIMBER NEEDED IN WAR

Black walnut timber is a vital war material, needed primarly for the manufacture of gunstocks, and secondarily for aircraft and other war uses. To date, the walnut production has been sufficient to meet the nation's greatly expanded need in producing these important implements of war. However, as the war progresses more walnut trees must be used in supplying the fighting men with guns.

This is one more way in which the farmers of Kentucky can aid the war effort. Anyone who owns merchantable walnut trees, 12 inches or more in diameter, measured 4½ feet from the ground, who has not previously wished to sell may now wish to dispose of the timber and thereby help provide one of the war requirements. Many fine walnut trees have been retained on the farm for their beauty, or sentimental reasons, which farmers will now be willing to dispose of in the cause of freedom. Such trees can be replaced by newly planted trees dedicated to the memory of war heroes.

It may be that because of the patriotic appeal and the price incentive, some farmers may be induced to cut down walnut trees of beauty or others with sentimental attachment which may not be suitable for war uses. For example, many trees around farm houses may be of the proper size and appear satisfactory to the owner for war purposes but may contain nails, lead, wire or be defective otherwise which would make the lumber of little or no value for gunstocks or aircraft, which require highest quality material. As a precaution, W. E. Jackson, extension forester of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, said it is advisable that farmers get in touch with their county agricultural agent, or write his office before cutting black walnut trees so as to determine their suitability and to get information on prices and names of buyers.

FARMERS SEE WHAT HYBRID CORN DOES

As a result of a demonstration of hybrid corn in Clark county last summer, more will be planted this year, reports Eugene Culton, Jr., agricultural agent. In one instance, first generation U. S. 13 produced 95 bushels to the acre, with only about a dozen nubbins. In contrast, second generation U. S. 13 produced only 70 bushels, and approximately one-third of them were nubbins. Kentucky 102 produced 94 bushels to the acre.

U. K. ANNOUNCE DISCOVERIES

PRE-HISTORIC PEOPLE WHO LIVED IN BOONE COUNTY CREMATED THEIR KIN, IS BELIEF.

Lexington, Ky.—Surveys made under auspices of the University of Kentucky have shown additional evidence of the practice of cremating and communal deposit of cremated remains by the prehistoric Adena people, who lived at one time at the Boone County section.

The discoveries were made in studies of the "Robbins Mounds" in that county.

In the fifth in a series of six bulletins dealing with the Adena complex in Kentucky, the university reported also additional information on house construction of the Adenas and "a wealth of evidence" on the discovery of types of tombs.

Authors of the bulletin are Dr. W. S. Webb, head of the Department of Anthropology and Archaeology, and John B. Elliott, WPA supervisor of the project.

Among the general conclusions obtained by the authors as a result of the excavation of the two earth mounds are that occupation of the area is shown by the construction of a circular house; that remains of many individuals, cremated elsewhere, were deposited together in the center of the floor of the house, and the house was destroyed by fire, presumably by intention.

It was concluded that a secondary and larger mound was erected covering the primary mound and extending over the area covered by the house floor.

The use of earth walls, logs, bark, clay and earth-covered roofs was found in various types of tombs.

"From the size of the mound and the considerable number of burials in it, it may be inferred that this high ridge in the vicinity of Big Bone Lick was once an important center of Adena occupancy," the authors reported. "The site seems to confirm the opinion previously expressed that Adena occupancy was presumably spread thinly over the occupied area."

Keep cooked meat covered. Chopped and sliced cooked meats spoil more quickly than meat in the piece. Cut or chop just before using.

Don't pour leftover milk back in the main supply. Keep odorous foods—fish, onions, cabbage, melons—away from milk.

$13,000 AWARDED IN AIRPORT SUIT

WHICH NOW COMPLETES LAND PURCHASES FOR BOONE COUNTY AIRPORT SITE—ONE RIGHT-OF-WAY PENDING.

Alfred and Lewis Dolwick were awarded $13,000.00 for their 112-acre farm located in the Boone County Airport site before a jury of twelve men in Boone County Court last week, which completes land condemnation suits in the airport.

Wm. Wehrman and John L. Vest were attorneys for the Kenton County Holding Company, and Rogers & Rogers were attorneys for Alfred and Lewis Dolwick. County Judge C. L. Cropper presided.

This now clears all land to be purchased for the construction of the airport, however, there is one other suit for right-of-way which will be brought into court for settlement in the near future.

The airport is now under construction, although much of the heavy equipment has been unable to operate due to the wet weather and natural conditions of the land in that section which holds moisture and remains soft during the early spring months. Much of the timber and undergrowth is being cleared at present and the project is expected to get underway with all equipment in operation in the near future.

The contract calls for construction work to be completed in approximately 150 days. However, with an unusually wet spring, it is doubtful if the contract can be fulfilled unless the weather is more favorable for this type of work.

Sheep Shearing Work Is Under Way

Sheep shearing began the past week and will continue to around June 10, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Because of the difficulties encountered last year by many farmers in getting their sheep sheared those sheepmen expected to hire their sheep sheared should contact their help early.

It is hoped that all operators who expect to shear for other people will leave their names at the County Agent's office so that farmers may be advised where help is available.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelly Clore, of Frankfort, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eddins.

EQUIPMENT FOR POND BUILDING

AVAILABLE TO BOONE COUNTY FARMERS—IMPROVED WATER SUPPLY ESSENTIAL FOR LIVESTOCK PRODUCTION.

Pond building equipment is now available to Boone County farmers, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Farmers desiring to have ponds or lakes constructed for improved livestock water supply should contact the particular contractor they desire to employ at the earliest possible date. Heavy equipment used in this work is difficult to move. The contractors desire to follow a definite route with a minimum of back tracking.

Al Wolsing of the John G. Esterkamp Company, Covington already has one bulldozer in the county and plans to bring a second outfit in the county this next week. His rate is $6.00 per hour.

Improved water supply is one of the essentials for more profitable livestock production. Good ponds or lakes are one of the cheapest and best sources of water. Farmers who use care in the selection of pond sites will save considerable on cost of overflow or spillway construction and will give greater insurance of a successful pond. Every farmer construction a pond should insist, demand and see that a good clay core of sufficient depth is constructed in the dam to prevent leakage.

J. C. Acree, of the Boone County Soil Conservation Service, phone Burlington 94 will assist farmers in locating dam sites and in contacting contractors who are interested in doing custom work for farmers in the county. College of Agriculture, Extension circular No. 317 on "Earth Dam Construction" is available at the County Agent's office.

Thirteen Persons From Boone County Visits Blood Bank

Thirteen Boone County residents visited the Blood Bank in Cincinnati, Friday of last week, where each person gave a pint of blood. Those attending were: E. G. Stephenson, Mrs. Sara Markesbery, Mrs. Elizabeth Williamson, Mrs. Lena Surface, Mrs. Hazel Knox, Mrs. Katherine Rouse, Miss Mary B. Cropper, Mrs. Effie Herrington, Mrs. Viva Butler, Mrs. Mary Louden, Mrs. Lillian Schram, Mrs. Nannie L. Siekman and Mrs. Elnora Lucas.

Fifteen persons from Boone County will visit the Blood Bank on May 25th, leaving Burlington at 1:00 p. m. Any person interested in donating a pint of blood to the armed forces is requested to contact Wilton Stephens, Burlington.

Miss Rachel Darby

Miss Rachel Rae Darby died early Thursday at the home of a sister, Mrs. J. C. Hollis, near Hebron. She was 34. She was stricken ill Wednesday night and died early Thursday.

Besides Mrs. Hollis she is survived by her father, George H. Darby; two other sisters, Mrs. Charles Carpenter and Mrs. Elmer Cummins, and two brothers, Allen and Brice Darby.

Funeral services were held at the residence of her sister, Mrs. J. C. Hollis of near Hebron at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. Burial was in Hopeful Cemetery.

Phil Taliaferro, Erlanger funeral director was in charge of arrangements.

FEED PRODUCTION INCREASE URGED

GOOD FARMING PRACTICES WILL AID IN PRODUCTION INCREASE—FALL SEEDING WILL HELP SOLVE PROBLEM.

Feed crops, from all present indications, are the coming bottleneck in increased livestock and poultry production, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Farmers are urged to use all possible means to increase feed crop production this year. This increase should be done in line with good farming practices.

Farm machinery and labor represent the two greatest difficulties, however, a great many farmers can increase this production despite these handicaps. Every possible assistance has been promised farmers in their labor.

Chester Davis, War Food Administrator on April 28 issued the following statement. "This is the most important planting season in American farm history. We can still increase the number of acres we plant. In a very few days it will be too late. The War Food Administration is asking the farmers to plant to the limit for critical war crops, food crops and feed for livestock in the drive that has been made to increase the acreage of bean, potatoes, and oil crops. There was no intention to minimize the importance of other essential crops. Expanded production also of feed, grains and hay is vitally necessary if we are to continue our record heavy production of livestock and livestock products. The war food administration is organizing the country's latent labor resources to help with the harvests this year. Acting with manufacturers and with other agencies of Government, we will do our best to see that more harvesting machinery is ready by the time it is needed. We will work for continuing price supports at fair levels in order to minimize risks in the market place, We ask farmers on their part in the days that remain of spring planting to take an extra degree of chance this year for their country—to plant in full the acreage they can expect to handle under the most favorable circumstances."

Feed crops that local farmers may still increase this year includes corn and hays (alfalfa, clovers, soybeans, cowpeas). This fall early sown small grains will also help serve the next winter and spring feeding problem. Many farmers may also want to seed cane and temporary pastures.

Years of research and Extension service progress has shown that we can make many substitutes in our feeding practices. However, an abundance of livestock feed produced where possible on the farm is one of the most convenient essentials in successful livestock production.

PRECINCT REPORT MADE BY CHAIRMAN

OF BOONE COUNTY RED CROSS CAMPAIGN—TOTAL OF $4,733.32 IS COLLECTED FOR ENTIRE COUNTY.

The recent Red Cross War Drive and annual Roll Call which was officially concluded on April 30th in Boone County reached a total of $4,733.32 for the entire county, according to Irvin Rouse chairman.

The listing for each precinct is as follows:

Burlington	$722.57
Verona	236.02
Constance	372.20
Walton	433.75
Hebron	387.30
Bullittsville	238.20
Petersburg	255.60
Florence	718.50
Carlton	143.60
Richwood	190.45
Taylorsport	48.83
Union	521.45
Beaver	264.95
Belleview	199.90

Mr. Rouse stated that he wished to thank all his faithful workers that gave of their time and effors during the recent drive, and also each person who contributed in any way in making the drive a success.

The Boone County Chapter also wishes to express their sincere thanks to the Carrollton Tobacco Warehouse Co., of Carrollton, Ky., for their donation of $599.68, which is not included in the above amount. This fine contribution is made possible through the efforts of Mr. George Baker, president of the Carrollton Company, who has made a practice of collecting one hand of tobacco from every basket of Boone County tobacco that is sold over the Carrollton floor, and at the end of the season this is all put together and sold, and the entire amount turned over to our local Red Cross Chapter to be retained here and used for local purposes.

This practice is of no expense to the farmers, as the hands are not taken from the baskets until the tobacco is weighed and sold. This has been done for several years, and is deeply appreciated by our Red Cross Chapter and all citizens of this County.

Alvin Eddins

Alvin (Pete) Eddins, 45, passed away at the home of his mother, Mrs. Lee Eddins, Florence, Saturday, May 8th, after a week's illness.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday of this week from the home at 8:30, with requiem high mass at St. Paul Church at 9 a. m. Burial was in St. Mary Cemtery, Ft. Mitchell, Ky.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Lee Eddins; 4 daughters, Catherine, Mildred, Ida Margaret, and Ann Jeanette; three sisters, Miss Grace Eddins, Mrs. A. C. Scott and Mrs. Victor Middendorf, all of Florence.

Mr. Eddins was a life-long resident of Florence, a member of St. Paul Church and the Florence Volunteer Fire Department.

Tharp & Stith, Florence funeral directors were in charge of arrangements.

Henry Groves

Henry Groves, age 74, retired blacksmith died at his home last Friday, 514 Linden Ave., Ludlow, after an illness of three days.

He is survived by three brothers George W. of Florence, Noah of Glencoe and Thomas of Covington; one sister, Mrs. Mary Thomas, of Ford, Ky. Mr. Groves was a former resident of Florence.

Funeral services were conducted from Tharp & Stith funeral home, Monday of this week at 2:30. Burial was in Highland Cemetery.

Tharp & Stith were in charge of arrangements.

Hebron Girl Receives Lieut. Commission

Lorraine Reimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reimer, of Hebron was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in Army Nurse's Corps. April 20th and is now stationed at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Miss Reimer is a graduate of Hebron High School and the St. Elizabeth School of Nursing.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hiser and daughter, of Ft. Thomas, Mrs. Fay Hiser, of St. Paul Ind., and Pvt. Esley Hiser were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Smith.

Correction Given On Plant Bed Treatment

The bluestone-lime treatment for tobacco plant beds was given in the issue of this paper two weeks ago by the County Agent's office was incorrect. Fifty gallons of the 3-4-50 bluestone-lime treatment was given as the amount required for 200 square yards of bed. In the same sentence it added a bed 66 feet long by 9 feet wide equalled the 200 square yards. This statement should have read 66 yards long by 3 yards (9) feet wide, 66 yards would equal 198 feet long by 9 feet wide.

No injury would occur if 50 gallons was applied to the 66 feet of bed instead of the 198 feet. A waste of material and expense would occur, however.

Farmers desiring additional information should secure the College of Agriculture leaflet "Recommendations for the Control of Wild Fire and Angular Leafspot of Burley Tobacco."

FINAL REPORT ON WAR BOND DRIVE

REVEALS $560,866.90 SUBSCRIBED BY INDIVIDUALS AND $216,000 BY BANKS—TOTAL FOR COUNTY $776,866.90.

The final week of the Second War Loan Drive ending May 8th shows 79 people subscribed for $6,887.50, making a total of 1442 subscribers for a total of $560,866.90 in the April drive. To this amount $216,000.00 subscribed by the banks must be added to make a grand total of $776,866.90 as Boone County's financial investment in the war effort for the April drive.

The people of this county responded wonderfully and much beyond expectations when the drive started. Several precinct chairmen report they are taking orders for the next drive which will probably be held this Fall.

Results of the past drive reveals what the American people can do when once aroused and become war-minded, and the citizens of Boone County will be right in there pitching again this Fall if necessary.

Diphtheria Immunization To Be Held At Walton

The Walton P.-T. A. will sponsor an immunization clinic at Walton School Friday, May 14th at 9:30 a. m., with Dr. H. F. Mann conducting the clinic, assisted by Elizabeth Lowry, Boone County Red Cross Nurse.

Every child 6 to 9 months of age or older should be immunized against diphtheria, says Miss Lowry. The treatments are safe and harmless. Your babies need this treatment even more than older children.

Mothers in and near Walton are urged to bring their children to this clinic.

COVINGTON FIRM AWARDED PRIZE

IN NATIONWIDE "FOOD FOR FREEDOM" CONTEST CONDUCTED BY PURINA MILLS, OF ST. LOUIS.

The J. H. Fedders' Son Company, of Covington, Ky., has just been named a winner in a nationwide "Food for Production" contest that was sponsored by Purina Mills, of St. Louis, Missouri.

The prize is a $100 United States War Bond. Approximately 3,000 Purina Merchants participated in the contest, which covered a period of 4 months.

Object of the contest was to impress feed dealers with their present opportunity and responsibility of serving their country by helping farm customers "stretch" their feed to produce the greatest possible amount of meat, milk, and eggs.

The J. H. Fedders' Son reached their objective with conspicuous success. Purina Mills feel that this community is to be congratulated on the fine contribution of farmers to the "Food for Freedom" Program—and congratulated again on its public-spirited feed dealer who is today putting service ahead of sales.

CEILING PRICES SET ON 50% OF FOODS

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE SUNDAY BY GEORGE E. McCLELLAN, OPA CINCINNATI DISTRICT DIRECTOR.

Top prices which any retail store in the Cincinnati area may charge, beginning Monday, May 10, for close to half the food items that go into the housewife's market basket were announced Sunday by George E. McClellan, OPA Cincinnati District Director. Stores must post plainly their selling prices for these items.

The OPA action, taken simultaneously in more than 150 cities throughout the nation as a major step in the drive to hold the line of the cost of living, will not alter the general level of present ceilings but will enable the housewife to know in the simplest terms possible the maximum amount which a food store may charge her under any circumstances for a pound, a package, or a dozen of any of the hundred food items listed.

As a result, housewives will find reductions in those prices which haxe exceeded the ceilings.

Week by week the District Office will established similar overall ceilings until virtually every essential item in the family food budget is listed.

1. A top price is specified for each branch, grade, size, or container type of the listed products. The price is the present maximum at which small independent stores have been permitted to sell these particular items.

2. Larger-volume stores having lower ceilings under present regulations, must continue to observe their present ceiling and will not be permitted to use the top prices listed today.

3. A special staff of OPA price investigators will be assigned exclusively to checking stores whose ceilings are below the new top prices to make certain that their lower ceilings are observed.

4. All retail food stores must plainly mark their selling prices for all items on the new list. The selling prices must appear on the item itself or on the shelf or bin where the food is displayed.

5. Top prices apply throughout the following area: Hamilton, Butler, Warren, Clermont, and Brown Counties in Ohio; Kenton, Campbell, and Boone Counties in Kentucky:

6. Outside this area, stores will remain under their present ceiling prices. The area, however, may later be enlarged.

The new list of ceilings, Mr. McClellan said, are the limits under regulations which have been in effect for a number of months. In some instances, they are the ceilings of the General Maximum Price Regulation, which has been in effect nearly a year. Any rollback which may be worked out to lower prices of a number of staple foods—in line with an earlier announcement of Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown—will cut prices below the newly listed tops. tops.

Besides the products listed today, foods already under specific dollars and cents maximums at retail are pork products, for which every meat store, without exception, must display an official OPA poster showing its ceiling prices for individual pork cuts. Similar dollars and cents prices on beef, veal, lamb and mutton, and for soap, will be announced within a week.

In delegating to field offices authority to set community prices, Mr. Brown also authorized regional OPA administrators to instruct local War Price and Rationing Boards to receive complaints from the public, and to investigate prices charged for products listed in the community top prices, to hearing, and to recommend action to the board's district office.

This delegation provides a legal background for the work of the price panels—the committees of citizens which are being added to War Price and Rationing Boards throughout the country to help inform housewives and storekeepers of price regulations as a part of the program of holding the price line.

The list of top prices was worked out in the Cincinnati District OPA office operating under a wide grant of authority from Washington. For most products, the ceilings are determined by applying to the cost of merchandise the maximum mark-up permitted under existing regulations.

The area in which the list of top prices applies was limited to that in which service wholesalers, who supply 90 per cent of staple groceries to small independents, deliver without charge. This restriction, at the outset, at least, was necessary in order to provide a uniform price base for all retail stores under community dollars and cents prices.

A few products, such as bread, have been under the General Maximum Price Regulation, which established each store's maximum selling price at the highest price it charged in March 1942. In listing the flat, community-wide top price for these products, the district office took the ceiling price most generally prevailing among small independent stores.

The list of top prices applies only to retail stores. Route sellers, such as persons delivering bread and pastry to housewives from trucks on established routes, and milkmen delivering at retail from trucks, do not come under the community-wide dollars and cents ceilings, but must continue to observe their present ceilings. This exception is made since many retail route sellers normally have higher costs and slightly higher selling prices.

General provisions of price regulations applying to retail sales receipts or slips to their customers must continue to do so. In addition regardless of store practice, any customer who requests a receipt must be given one, showing the date of sale, the name and address of the store, the customer's name, each food item sold, and the price charged for each.

To protect the customer against indirect price rises by being forced to buy unwanted merchandise in order to obtain food under community-wide ceilings, the provision is expressly set out that the seller "must not, as a condition of selling any food, require a customer to buy anything else."

MAKE APPLICATION EARLY, SAYS BRUGH

MOTORISTS SHOULD BEGIN AT ONCE TO MAKE APPLICATION FOR SUPPLEMENTAL GASOLINE RATIONS.

If the bulk of the motorists in Boone County who operate their vehicles with B and C gasoline rations want to assure themselves of a supply of gasoline on June 1, they will begin at once to go to their local War Price and Rationing Boards or plant transportation committees for renewal application blanks.

The "stitch-in-time-saves-nine" suggestion will have a valid ring to the hundreds of motorists who last February delayed making application for renewed supplemental mileage until the very end of the month and who were stranded for several days in gas-thirsty cars.

R. E. Brugh, chairman of the local WPR board, today reminded drivers of the regulation which permits application for renewed rations a month before the expiration of the old and said the bulk of supplemental rations would expire May 31.

"As our harassed board members well remember, they were overwhelmingly swamped by a last-minute flood of applications which they just could not get to by the end of the month," R. E. Brugh said. "It is for their sake and for the interests of the drivers that we are appealing for early applications."

Applicants need not take their application blanks to the board but may mail them accompanied by their tire inspection records. Several days before the expiration of the old books, the board will mail the new rations and the record back to the applicant.

District mileage rationing representatives of the Office of Price Administration have begun to contact plant transportation committees urging their cooperation in keeping applications flowing evenly to the boards through the month of May. Where committees file applications for their employes War Price and Rationing Boards will process and send the gas ration books immediately to the plants for distribution by the plant committees a few days before the valid period begins.

Boards are also enlisting volunteer workers early for the ration renewal period and are supplied with all the forms needed for a successful, smooth application period.

BOONE CO. DOGS ARE QUARANTINED

LOCAL HEALTH OFFICER ISSUES ORDER FOLLOWING REPORT FROM UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY.

Dr. M. A. Yelton, Boone County Health Officer, issued an order Tuesday, that all dogs in Boone County must be muzzled, placed on a leash or kept in a pen during the remainder of the summer months. This order followed a report from the head of a dog sent the University of Kentucky, Sunday, for examination. The examination proved that the dog was infected with rabies. The dog was killed by Stant Kirtley, colored, in Burlington, Sunday.

This is the second report received from the University within ten days revealing that heads of dogs examined had proved positive.

Dr. Yelton states that the above order must be carried out, and that the Sheriff is authorized to kill any dog found on the streets or highways without a muzzle.

The following is a report from the University of Kentucky, from the dog head sent them Sunday:

"J. T. Williams, Sheriff of Boone County, Burlington. Ky.

"Dear Sir:

"The bacteriological laboratory of this department reports that an examination of the dog head submitted by you and delivered to the laboratory on May 10, 1943 by bus, gave the following results:

Lab. No. 220894. Specimen: Dog head; Owner, name not given; Examination, Positive for rabies.

"Inasmuch as the examination of the brain indicates that this animal was infected with rabies or hydrophobia, anyone exposed to the saliva through handling or feeding or from having been bitten within a period of ten days prior to the first symptoms, should take the Pasteur or anti-rabic treatment immediately to guard against contracting the disease.

"Yours very truly,
GEORGE S. TERRY,
Acting Director Department of Public Service Laboratories, University of Kentucky."

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hall and family of Covington were Sunday guests of Mrs. Susie Stephens. Their son, Pfc. Leroy Hall, who is stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, is home on a fifteen-day furlough.

BOONE CO. BOY RECEIVES PRAISE

FOR PART IN DESTRUCTION OF ENEMY CONVOY OFF NEW GUINEA, BY BRIG. GEN. ENNIS C. WHITEHEAD.

In a recent communication from Brigadier General Ennis C. Whitehead, Deputy Air Force Commander, he sent the following letter of commendation to Tech. Sgt. John R. Darby, formerly of Boone County:

"1. The assignment of credit for the victory of the Fifth Air Force against the enemy in the recent destruction of a convoy off the shores of New Guiena, no small share must go to the Ordnance Officers and enlisted men of the Air Force. Though unable to participate personally in the spectacular battle, you contributed materially to the victory by your untiring efforts. Some of you worked long hours to produce the modified fuses which played so important a role. Other of you brought the bombs and fuses and ammunition to the planes and had them ready to go into combat in a minimum of time. Still others were largely responsible for the readiness of our guns to pour destruction into enemy aircraft which sought to ward off our attacks.

"2. I am deeply and sincerely grateful for the magnificent manner in which you have upheld the fine trations of the Ordnance Department. You are a credit to our Armed Forces, and your country is indebted to you for your devoted service. I am proud to have such men under my Command.

"ENNIS C. WHITEHEAD,
Brigadier General, A. U. S."

Sgt. Darby states that he enjoys receiving mail from his friends back home and wants them to write him. His address is: Tech. Sgt. John R. Darby, 1910th Ordnance Amm. Co., APO 929, care Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif.

FIRE ON THE FARM

It is the patriotic duty of every rural community to promote organized fire prevention on the farm. Farm organizations, the clergy, rural educators, the press, women's clubs, and civic clubs should include fire prevention as a regular activity. A year-round fire prevention committee, representative of all groups, should be appointed. It should be the responsibility of this committee to organize, equip, train, and maintain a rural community fire department. It should arrange for a suitable fire alarm system to assure prompt fire department service. It should provide for the building of cisterns on farms and near rural public buildings, which fire department pumpers can use as sources of water supply. It should provide runways for fire department pumpers to available streams and ponds and to the farm itself to prevent miring. It should arrange to send one or two members of the department to annual state fire colleges or to short fire-safety courses.

Further, the fire prevention committee should initiate a program of better education on such important phases of prevention as fire control, protection from lightning, proper construction, and the simplest common hazards found on the farm.

The nation can ill afford to lose the productive effort of a single farm. And yet nearly $300,000 worth of farm property is destroyed by fire each day. The bulk of this daily waste is directly attributable to individual carelessness and ignorance, just as is the bulk of fire loss in urban areas. The farmers are bending every effort to avoid the loss of production inevitably resulting from preventable fire.

THE GULF GROWS WIDER

The question of whether our country will be able to survive the cost of the war without financial collapse, looms larger daily. In ordinary times a two or three-hundred-billion dollar debt would have been considered insurmountable. But when a nation has its back to the wall, it can often accomplish the impossible. We now have our backs to the wall financially. It remains to be seen whether the people value personal comfort more than they value personal liberty and the integrity of the nation.

Inflation and eventual bankruptcy can be avoided if the people have the determination to follow through on measures designed to curtail excess purchasing power and the accumulation of an unmanageable public debt. In the main, these measures are rigid price controls and rationings, cuts in non-essential government spending, taxation, and bond sales to the people. Except for rationing, we have adopted none of these measures fully as yet.

Too many people and public officials cling to peacetime illusions. They are even so foolish as to plan greater comforts in the future, assuming that they can skip the gulf of sacrifice that lies between. The gulf grows wider as they talk.

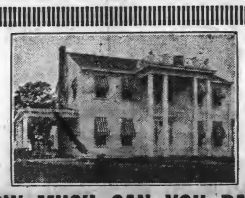
MORAL IN WEST VIRGINIA COAL



In 1941 the coal industry of West Virginia employed directly about one-third of the state's workers, at an average of $1,723 per worker.

Coal paid 15 per cent of all property taxes in the state, millions of dollars in sales taxes, additional millions to the workmen's compensation fund, and nearly $8,000,000 in payroll taxes for unemployment compensation and old-age benefits.

These figures illustrate a condition that prevails in practically every state. That is, either coal, iron, oil, timber, transportation, utilities, agriculture or some other basic industry is the backbone of the employment, the tax revenue, and progress in that particular state. In every case, labor and public treasuries are the greatest beneficiaries of successful operated industries.

Without private enterprise, the states would be "busted." Schools would close, labor would be unemployed, roads would remain unbuilt and taxes on land and homes would be so high that property would revert to the state.

The people have no more important task before them than to work for state and national conditions which will keep basic industries in a healthy condition so that they will be able to employ labor and provide their share of the tax load during the years ahead when a steady job and tax payments will be a major problem for every man and woman.

HOW MUCH CAN YOU PAY?

You know better than anyone how much you could afford to pay for a funeral service; hence the Chambers and Grubbs policy of marking costs in plain figures, and letting each family make its own selection, unhindered.
This policy has brought to our ears much appreciative comment; it is a permanent and highly commendable Chambers and Grubbs policy.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

PETER AND JOHN PREACH TO SAMARITANS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:14-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest.—John 4:35.

The Church as it grows has problems, and so God calls leaders to serve Him in meeting and settling them for His glory and the good of the Church.

Philip had gone to Samaria (as a result of the first persecution of the Church) and there he had been used of God to bring many to faith in Christ. Now that the new groups of believers needed guidance and instruction, Peter and John were sent to help them (v. 14).

A proper understanding of, and attitude toward, God's gracious gift of salvation is of first importance. New converts must recognize that it is a gift: that it cannot be earned or bought, and that it issues in a life of service and testimony.

All three of these matters are covered in our lesson.

I. Spiritual Life and Power Is God's Gift to Believers (vv. 14-17).

The Holy Spirit was received by these early members of the Church by the laying on of the apostles' hands, but later He came directly into the believer's heart the moment he had faith in God. This is now our blessed privilege, and the provision for our every need as followers of Christ, to recognize the indwelling Holy Spirit.

What a glorious truth it is that the believer is indwelt by the Holy Spirit, He who is a divine person, not just a power or influence (I Cor. 6:19). Thus every believer, including the humblest as well as the greatest, has in him the One who gives spiritual life and power, who gives grace for holy living, and empowers for service.

The greatest power in all the world—the power of the infinite God—is thus available to every true and yielded believer, as God's free gift.

Gone then is all boasting of our own strength, and gone are all excuses for weak and careless living. The power and grace are His, and He gives them to us as His gift. Christian friend, are you allowing the Holy Spirit who dwells in you, to infill and use you as He will?

II. Spiritual Life and Power Cannot Be Bought by Works or Money (vv. 18-24).

Men of this world are so used to putting their trust in money that they come to think that one can buy anything. To them every man and every desirable thing must have its price. Let us be clear that there are men who cannot be bought, and that the best things in life bear no price tag. A mother's love, friendship, fellowship with God—priceless they are, but not for sale.

Above all let it be clear that eternal life, and the power of God the Holy Spirit, cannot be gained by piling up good works, nor by payment in the coin of this world.

Simon Magus wanted this power to improve his business as a magician. He made a very gross proposal, but one wonders whether he was any more to be censured than many in the Church today who are doing the same thing, though by more cultured and skillful methods.

Not only are there those who are trying to buy their own way into heaven, but also those who by holding the purse strings, try to control the message of the preacher. What about those who by their financial gifts seek to gain control of church organizations?

Their efforts are doomed to ultimate failure—God will see to that!—but in the meantime they do much harm to the cause of Christ. Many a church and pastor would like to rise up and say with Peter, "Thy money perish with thee."

III. Spiritual Life and Power Should Result in Testimony (v. 25).

Peter and John set the Samaritan Christians a good example as they went back to Jerusalem, by permitting the Holy Spirit to use them to testify and to teach the Word of the Lord in many of their villages.

One of the great hindrances to the carrying out of the great commission has been that Christians have received spiritual life, and even spiritual power, as though it were something for their own gratification or comfort. God saves us to serve Him in testimony and in life.

The Holy Spirit does not speak of Himself. He guides the believer in all truth (John 16:13), particularly the truth regarding Christ. The Spirit's primary interest is to glorify Christ (John 16:14).

It follows then that the Spirit-filled believer will be busy about speaking for Christ and glorifying His name. The Holy Spirit is ready to teach even the words to say that Christ may be lifted up and men be saved.

Peter and John, as good leaders of these new Samaritan believers, gave them by word and example a good foundation for growth in grace and usefulness to Christ.

THE GARDEN

THE INSECTS—FIRST CALL

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

It will not be long now, before the first insects come. In fact, some of them have already started, but the cool weather has held them back.

The crops affected are the early greens and cabbage, and potatoes.

On the former, no doubt here and there crinkling of the leaves has been observed or perhaps the stunting of growth. Looking within the curled leaves are found masses of soft-bodied sluggish insects, the plant lice. On cabbage, particularly, these may be southern lice that came with the plants, and a way to have avoided having to fight them later would have been to douse the slips in a strong tobacco solution or Evergreen or Red Arrow. The way to stop them now, is to spray with any of these materials, or dust with rotenone, taking pains to direct the material against the bodies of the lice themselves, as these are "contact poisons."

Too, during the next few sunny days, yellow "butterflies" will be seen bobbing about touching cabbage leaves here and there. Wherever they touch, small greenish eggs are found, the eggs out of which hatch the well-known green cabbage worms. While one may wait until these can be seen, it is the part of wisdom to apply the control beforehand, namely rotenone dust, as this material holds potency for a week or longer. While it is true that an arsenical would be effective also, as arsenate of lead or Paris green, one would have to give over, anyhow, to using "non-poisonous" rotenone when heating starts.

On potatoes just up, will be found many minute holes, gnawed not quite through, the work of the black fleabeetle. Although the potatoes appear to outgrow this damage, it does handicap them, especially when warm, dry weather comes, and is quite worth while keeping at a minimum.

The best way to combat the fleabeetle is to spray with Bordeaux mixture, starting when the average height is 3 inches. Because the Colorado beetle may always be expected, soon or later, arsenate of lead should be stirred into the Bordeaux. Two weeks after the first, another spraying should be given and another in two weeks, again.

Bordeaux is a double-duty spray for besides stopping the flea-beetle it checks the blight, the leaf-spotting disease that knocks off leaves and causes the potato plants to "die down" sometimes weeks before the tubers have finished making.

BLOCKS--READY MIXED CONCRETE--ROOFING

A Week of The War

Washington—With three allied columns driving forward to pin the Axis armies in North Africa on the shores of the Mediterranean, secretary of war Stimson announced last week that the Tunisian battle apparently "is entering the final phase," but that the German and Italian forces at bay there will probably fight to the bitter end.

The secretary made his announcement three days after American troops rolled up a 15-mile advance toward Bizerte and capped this advance with the capture of Mateur. A later forward drive by American troops increased the pressure on Bizerte by capturing the Djebel Cheniti range of hills, the last high ground before the great naval base. To the south, the British First Army captured the battle-scarred Djebel Bou Aoukaz, the last formidable barrier west of the plain leading to the capital of Tunisia. The northernmost column, made up of French forces, was reported to have driven to the plain lying northwest of lake Bizerte.

Weather Hampers Planes

According to Secretary Stimson, Allied planes have continued their pounding of enemy positions in spite of unfavorable weather conditions. The Secretary said that German planes have stopped seeking combat with Allied craft, with the result that German air losses have declined. Earlier in the week Mr. Stimson revealed that Allied planes were running up a score of approximately 4 to 1 against the enemy in the Tunisian battle area.

Further American success in the air were reported in widely separated theaters of action. From London came the news that a United States bomber force attacked industrial targets in Antwerp and all returned safely. This was the first time in 10 raids that the United States 8th air force had not lost any of its heavy bombers.

In China, the United States army air forces have destroyed Japanese aircraft at the rate of 10 to 1 in air combat and at a greater ration in the aggregate, according to Lt. Col. Herbert Morgan, assistant chief of staff and operations officer for the 14th air force. In making his announcement in Washington, following his arrival there from China, Colonel Morgan said—

"We've destroyed better than 10 to 1 of their planes in the air and counting aircraft destroyed on the ground, about 12 or 15 to 1, with emphasis on the higher figure."

Jap Submarine Menace

Following an unsuccessful air raid on Darwin, the Japanese began a submarine campaign against Allied shipping east of Australia, General MacArthur's headquarters announced early last week. With the evident intention of cutting supply lines from the United States, the Japanese underwater attack was launched "in some force" a communique revealed.

The attack on Darwin was made by 51 enemy bombers and fighters. A spokesman for MacArthur's headquarters declared that outnumbered spitfires, manned mostly by British and Australian veterans of the battle of Britain, "inflicted far heavier damage to the enemy than they received themselves."

This revelation came as General MacArthur's daily communique reported the destruction of four Japanese aircraft in an attack on the Koepang airdrome of Timor by long-range Allied fighters.

The Navy announced that shortly after the complete occupation of Guadalcanal, American forces extended their grip on the southeastern Solomon Islands by occupying the Russell Island, west of Guadalcanal.

OWEN COUNTY ALL OUT FOR 4-H WORK

One hundred percent of all boys and girls of 10 years or older attending school in Owen county have enlisted in the 4-H club campaign to produce, conserve and work for Uncle Sam during the coming months. With 19 schools in the county, there is a total enlistment of 967 members.

New Columbus school with 28 members reached its 100 percent goal the first week in January and is believed to be the first school in the state to make such a record. Miss Margaret Wilson is the teacher.

The summer activities of club members living in neighborhood groups will be under the supervision of an adult, F. F. A. member, or an experienced club member. In This way it is expected that a high total of war production will be accomplished.

In Logan county more poultry and eggs will be available this fall because of a cooperative plan set up between the Swift and Company hatchery in Russellville and 4-H club members who have taken 4,200 chicks to raise to rooster size. Under the plan, the club member received from 50 to 200 chicks and 100 to 400 pounds of feed. On October 2 he will deliver all the roosters to the hatchery, the hens being kept on the farm for layers. Any amount above the cost of the chicks and feed is to be paid the club member.

RECOMMENDS DUST FOR LOUSY CATTLE

When cattle rub off big spots of hair at this season it is usually the sign of lice. The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station recommends dusting with a mixture of two parts of sodium fluosilicated, one part of phenothiazine and one part of white flour. Apply one to two ounces evenly all over the body, rubbing into the hairy parts of the animal, including the tail. Two or three treatments may be necessary. They should be applied at two-week intervals.

TONIGHT AND FRIDAY

To avoid construction of a special set on the studio lot and remain within bounds of set economy limits resulting from the war program, William H. Pine and William C. Thomas, who produced Paramount's "Wrecking Crew," starring Richard Arlen, Chester Morris and Jean Parker, sent a camera cref to a distant city to photograph actual demolition of a towering skyscraper.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY

A romantic murderer, living with distant relatives who are unaware of his crimes, provides the dramatic motivation for Alfred Hitchcock's "Shadow of a Doubt." Declared to be more suspenseful than any of the previous Hitchcock pictures, the new Universal film co-stars Teresa Wright and Joseph Cotten.

Miss Wright appeared recently in "Mrs. Miniver," and "Pride of the Yankees." Cotten scored in "Citizen Kane," "The Magnificent Ambersons," and "Journey Into Fear." Others in the large cast are Macdonald Carey, Patricia Collinge, Henry Travers and Wallace Ford.

Reginald Denny put on his broadest and thickest British accent while rehearsing a scene for Universal's "Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror." It was too good a chance for Director John Rawlins to pass up.

"Oh, now wait a minute, Reg," Rawlins said. "It isn't necessary for your character to have attended both Oxford and Cambridge."

Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce are starred in this modernized detective thriller which is based on Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "His Last Bow."

WED., THURSDAY and FRIDAY

Some of the most beautiful Technicolor seen in a long time is in Paramount's comedy with music, "Happy Go Lucky," starring Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken and Rudy Vallee.

The story is set on a resort island in the Caribbean and the Technicolor points up the beauty of the physical surrounds as well as the personal pulchritude of glamorous Mary Martin and vivacious Betty Hutton.

CONSERVATION NEWS

Diversion ditches were laid out and constructed on the farm operated by Lester Cracraft near Florence last week. Mr. Cracraft sowed this seven-acre field to oats and grass after the ditches were constructed.

Pond digging, clearing and drainage work is now under way in Boone County. Mr. Extercamp has already moved one bulldozer to Boone County and plans on bringing in another machine the latter part of the month. The second machine is new. Thru the efforts of Mr. Extercamp and the Boone County War Board this machine is available for work in Boone County to do farm work on ponds, ditching and land clearing. This work is vital to the War Production Program. Of course the machine belongs to Mr. Extercamp.

Two small ponds were dug last week, and the machine is now in Hamilton community and is lined up to do work on several farms in that section. It is the plan to do all the drainage and clearing work first and then the pond work. Crops must be planted soon.

Orville Kelly will also build ponds this summer. He will use his large tractor and a turnover scraper. It is suggested that you contact these men if you have work to do.

If you want assistance in selecting a place for a pond or any other kind of soil, water or wildlife conservation work, call Burlington 94, the Soil Conservation office. Before building a pond it is suggested that you get Circular No. 317 entitled "Earth Dams and Farm Reservoirs," from the County Agent's office.

In order to conserve moisture farmers should drag down their plowed land as soon as possible after plowing. A good practice is to drag down each morning the land that was plowed the previous day. This is especially true on sod land. A big help in preparing land for cultivation is to disc the land before plowing.

MAY USE HEMP TO MAKE PAPER, CLOTH

Whether hemp growing can be made more profitable by using the stalks to make paper and cloth, is being investigated at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. To date, the hemp hurds, or the stalks left after the fiber is removed, have been wasted. Thousands of tons of this material go up in smoke in Kentucky every spring.

Now research chemists at the Experiment Station at Lexington are analyzing hemp stalks and testing their elements with those of flax, from which fine paper and cloth are made. Flax is now being used to make cigarette paper.

Analysis made at the Experiment Station show that hemp stalks have more crude fiber and less ash than has flax, which would seem to make hemp superior to flax for making paper and cloth. Hemp stalks are 67.86 percent crude fiber, compared to the 56.64 percent crude fiber content of flax.

"I can see no reason why hemp stalks should not make either good paper or cloth," said Dr. J. S. McHargue, head of the research chemistry department at the Experiment Station. "The big stalks, after the fiber is removed, contain a large amount of crude fiber that makes excellent pulp. We are going to see just how far we can go in showing how this pulp can be made into highgrade paper and cloth. It seems quite possible that hemp could become a much more profitable crop than it is today."

HISTORY'S BIGGEST JOB

When this war is over the United States will be in no position to return to isolationism. Hard-headed economists agree that a broad program of international trade is the only sound method by which the American people can hope to service the crushing war debt now accumulating. In plainer words, we will either trade with the world, thus helping to maintain maximum production and employment for American industry and American workers in order that they may pay the taxes that will be needed by a debt-burdened government, or we will retreat toward isolation, bankruptcy and another war.

We have everything to gain by taking the lead in establishing a just and permanent peace, and in breaking down artificial trade barriers between nations. Millions of men now in the armed forces will bring home with them a new understanding of the problems and needs of the rest of the world. These men will have seen demonstrated the hopeless plight of people broken under tyrannical governments. They will have seen why our forefathers fled the old world to set up the American Republic. They will bring home with them a realization that war is a destroyer of freedom; that recurring war abroad will ultimately clutch with bloody fingers at our own freedom.

As good American business men, they will realize that we have ahead of us the biggest organizing and selling job in history if we are to help prevent future wars and save ourselves from bankruptcy and enslavement. We will have to help formulate and enforce a lasting peace, while leading the way in rehabilitating the world through trade.

This job has already commenced under the foreign trade policy of the American government. It should be carried forward in preparation for the day when peace returns.

GUARDING A POWDER KEG

More than a year before Pearl Harbor, oil company executives, engineers, and safety supervisors were faced with the problem of protecting oil against enemy attack, principally sabotage. The task before them was akin to guarding a nopen powder keg in the midst of a forest fire. Included in the physical plant of the oil industry are 40,000 bulk storage plants and terminals, nearly 500 refineries, nearly 700 natural gasoline plants, and 70,000 miles of trunk pipe lines. Obviously it would have been impracticable to secure the necessary steel and other strategic material for fencing, lighting and guarding the entire facilities of the oil industry. Consequently efforts were concentrated upon key plants or plants which might constitute a source of fire exposure to other defense industries.

Employes were fingerprinted and required to prove citizenship. They were investigated to determine the nature of their activities and associations prior to employment. Badge and card identification systems were established. Guard forces were enlarged and trained for wartime conditions. By fateful December 7 the oil industry was prepared for war.

The complete record of American industry in the war effort will never be compiled. Its achievements and praiseworthy actions are too numerous to record. But they all add up to one fact—private enterprise does not let the nation down, in war or in peace.

PAUL BUNYAN PLANNERS

In these days of super social planning, it is well to call attention to the fact that the same kind of steady progress which in the last century and a half brought the people of this country unparalleled comfort and security, is still continuing unhalted.

Medicine is a typical example. An editorial in Hygeia, the Health Magazine, states that: "The American medical profession and the hospitals. In many areas where there is concentration of population due to war industries, the Federal Housing Administration has established great housing projects with which are associated prepayment plans for the distribution of medical service, dispensaries, and clinics in which individual physicians or groups provide medical care. Some of the state medical service plans, such as that of California, have contracted with Federal agencies to supply medical service to the workers who live in such projects. All this progress has been made with regimenting the people, the physicians, or the hospitals of the United States in a politically controlled bureaucracy."

Admittedly this is not a world-shaking development. But American progress is made up of a lot of short steps, always in the right direction. No single step has been startling. We have come a long way with those short steps. We have not come so far that a single long, though spectacular, stride—in the wrong direction—cannot take us back beyond the starting point. Some of the more drastic planners would have us do just that, take a Paul Bunyan step—backward—by making the medical profession an instrument of politics.

LONG SERVICE MAY MEAN BITTER MILK

Milking cows too many months, rather than strongly flavored weeds or feeds, is usually to blame for "off" flavors in milk, cream and butter, says the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, in reply to complaints.

Such long-milked cows may even develop a small amount of soap in their milk, which causes the cream to be foamy and difficult to churn.

The "off" flavor in milk or cream may be corrected by heating in a double boiler to 170 degrees for a minute or 145 degrees for 30 minutes.

The real solution, says the Experiment Station, is to dry off the cow, and then feed her well during her dry period. She probably will be all right after the next calf arrives.

6 TIMELY SUGGESTIONS that will make your trip more convenient— and will help bus travel do its big wartime job

1
If week-end jams you'd help unravel— Then pick a mid-week day to travel

Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays are the best wartime travel-times — and you'll leave more seats for the armed forces on week-ends.

2
Don't wait until mid-summer's here— Go now before the crowds appear

You'll help "balance-up" wartime transportation by going before or after July and August when travel is always heaviest.

3
Now when you take a trip some place Please travel light and save some space

"Budget" your baggage when you travel nowadays—take along less luggage than usual, to save extra handling and extra space.

4
You can't afford to take a chance— Get information in advance

Make a call to Greyhound before you make your plans — get advance information on schedules, fares and bus connections.

5
Please take your Greyhound agent's tips— On which are the least crowded trips

Your Greyhound agent can suggest the right departure times — when more seats are usually available and travel is more convenient.

6
Advice that's good these hectic days— Avoid like sin all Holidays!

There's no place like home on holidays — by avoiding travel at such rush periods you'll avoid overcrowding wartime transportation.

Plus one extra thought—
Remember transportation for the men and women in the armed forces, in war plants and on civilian furloughs comes first—so avoid unnecessary trips!

Electric Washer

It would be irksome indeed to go back to the drudgery of wash tub and scrub board. But you won't have to if you take ordinary good care of your washer. Just give it the proper attention and it will serve you faithfully for the duration.

TIPS ON WASHER CARE

- Drain, rinse and dry washer tub after each use.
- Remove any soap curd or lint from tub, agitator or suction cups with soft cloth or sponge.
- Dry rolls and frame of wringer. Release pressure on wringer to save springs and rubber.
- Wipe connecting cord dry and hang up carefully. Avoid kinking. It cracks rubber insulation.
- Do not try to jam too many pieces through wringer at one time.
- Remove buckles, large buttons, etc., before running clothes through the wringer. Saves rolls from being chewed up.
- Do not overload washer with clothes and do not use too much water. Follow directions.
- Lubricate washer periodically in accordance with manufacturer's recommendations.

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

In behalf of the Boone County Homemakers' Association, appreciation is expressed for the whole hearted support and financial contributions made with reference to the Service Roll which was recently dedicated. Boone County citizens sent checks and cash to members of the committee and dropped their contributions in boxes which had been set in various stores in the community. No effort is being made to list those persons who contributed because the names of many are not known. But records have been kept of sizable contributions that came in through the mail, these would be made available to anyone who wishes to see them.

The committee is glad to announce that the board is paid for and that a small fund remains which will be used for the maintenance of it.

The personal interest shown by Hess Vest of Walton and Noel Walton, of Burlington, did much to cut the expense of the erection of the board. Appreciation is expressed to these gentlemen.

It is the earnest desire of the committee that the board shall be kept up to date, and that the name of no Boone County man or woman serving in the Armed Forces shall be omitted from the list. It is urged that names not found on the board be turned in to members of the committee.

Signed,
MRS. SAM SLEET

The following letter was received from Henry G. Gay, of Shreveport, Louisiana:

"I've been receiving The Recorder for quite sometime. It's good to have an editor in your county that thinks about us boys in the service, for it makes us feel a lot closer to home, when we can read all the home town news. I read the paper from front to back whenever I get time to read.

"Since I've been getting The Recorder I have been kept pretty busy. I have been in Camp Hood, Texas for three months' training and am now in Louisiana on maneuvers for a couple of months. I'll give you my address for I want to receive the Boone County Recorder.

"Tell my many friends in Boone County I appreciate all of the letters I have been receiving from them. I don't have time to answer all of them, but their kindness will long be remembered."

His address is Corp. Henry P. Gay, 35128171, Co. B. Co. 9th T. D. Bn., care Postmaster, APO 93, Shreveport, Louisiana.

Wallace, 873rd Ordnance, H. M. (Co). O., Camp Pickett, Va.

FARMER'S WIFE HELPS SOLVE LABOR PROBLEM

On at least one farm in Calloway county, the labor situation is not a serious problem. This year, as last, Mrs. Hansford Doran of Lynn Grove plans to spend half of her time helping her husband with the field work.

In addition to her homemaking duties last summer, this farmer's wife dragged 60 acres of ground for corn planing, drove a team on the cultivator and then helped harvest 48 acres. On seven acres of tobacco she helped with all the different jobs, as she also did on an acre of hemp. When harvest time came, she helped with the hay. She grew a garden with 29 varieties of vegetables and put considerable time on the truck patches of peas, beans, peanuts, popcorn and irish and sweet potatoes. Then she also raised 500 chickens, and milked from 2 to 4 cows twice a day.

Mrs. Doran found time to can approximately 500 quarts of fruits, vegetables and meats last year. She believes it is just as important to conserve as it is to have a year-around garden, hence every month finds her re-filling empty jars. During the winter she canned such foods as baked beans, orange marmalade, pork, beef, hominy, pumpkin, squash, peanut butter, whole wheat, sweet potatoes, chicken and mincemeat. As a result of the Doran's live-at-home program, their average monthly grocery bill is $1.50.

The secret of Mrs. Doran's ability to do double duty is careful planning. Each week, with pad and pencil, she definitely plans the events of the week. Included are homemakers' club activities, both county and state.

FALL CHICKS BOOST FAMILY MEAT SUPPLY

An extra brood of chicks bought last fall has provided a good supply of meat for Mrs. T. F. Hawkins of Mercer county and her family of five. In November, Mrs. Hawkins bought 200 chicks. She sold 40 of them at fryer size, but the remainder she fried, baked or stewed. Besides providing good eating, this is the kind of plan that helps in the national meat emergency. Mrs. Hawkins has 380 chicks in the brooder now, but hopes to raise more than that number. She will have a truck garden of one and a half acres, too, just as she did last year when she canned more than 900 quarts of fruits and vegetables. A new enterprise is the growing of 500 raspberry bushes which she has just set out. With all her production activities, Mrs. Hawkins finds time to be reading chairman of her homemakers' club.

SAYS TIMBER CAN BE PAYING CROP

How timber can be made a paying crop, is discussed by Forester William E. Jackson in a leaflet called "Hints on Marketing Farm Timber," published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. He tells about the kind of trees to cut, how to measure trees and logs, and lists helps in selling timber and in managing farm woods. Copies of the leaflet may be had at the offices of county agents or by writing to the college.

KENTUCKY TO MARKET GRADED STRAWBERRIES

Through a cooperative arrangement of the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics and the United States Department of Agriculture, Kentucky strawberries are again to be inspected and graded this season. Inspectors will be at 14 points in the state to inspect the berries as they come in for shipment. They will be labelled U. S. No. 1, U. S. No. 2, or unclassified.

"This grading service will help to protect the reputation of Kentucky strawberries," said G. P. Summers of the College, in announcing a continuation of the service this spring. Thirty-two graders were used last season.

While the grading service is entirely voluntary, it was pointed out that more than 95 percent of all Kentucky strawberries sold outside the state last year were graded.

The inspection and grading service will be used for fresh strawberries and for berries to be processed and shipped abroad under lend-lease.

Shipping points where graders will be stationed this spring include Louisville, Fern Creek, Bowling Green, Oakland, Bristow, Franklin, Russellville, Beaver Dam, Greenville, Benton, Mayfield, Paducah, Kevil and Grahamville.

COURSES TO TRAIN COMBINE OPERATORS

To help train men to run combine harvesters, to take the place of operators gone to war, the Kentucky College of Agriculture announces a series of 15 short courses to be given over the state this month. Local implement dealers and representatives of manufacturers will cooperate in the schools.

There now are about 2,500 combines in Kentucky, used to harvest small grains, clover and other legume seed, grass seed and soybeans, and to clean hemp seed. Many of these machines will be used over whole neighborhoods this season. Their use will contribute to the seed-saving program of the College of Agriculture.

It takes about 400,000 Nazi occupation troops in Norway to hold down that country's population of approximately three million inhabitants.

In simplifying manufacture of hand tools for Victory Gardens, 324 types of forks have been cut to 76, styles of rakes have been reduced from 55 to 8, hoses from 362 to 39, and hand cultivators from 14 to 8.

The Government's conservation and simplication program in the manufacture of men's, women's, and children's hosiery is expected to save 14,800,000 pounds annually of cotton, rayon, and wool yarns.

Insurance For Soldiers

All soldiers can get financial protection through the National Service Life Insurance program, if they act before midnight of August 10, the War Department has announced. Maximum policy is $10,000. The payments will be made to beneficiaries only in monthly installments.

Tobacco Can Be Sent to Prisoners

U. S. war prisoners and civilian internees held by Germany and Italy can receive cigarettes, cigars, smoking tobacco, or chewing tobacco sent by relatives and friends under a program worked out by several Government agencies and the American Red Cross. The plan will be extended to include persons held by Japan whenever facilities are available for routing the products to them. Under the program, the next-of-kin of each identified United States war prisoner and civilian internee will receive (without asking for it) two tobacco labels every sixty days. These are to be forwarded, with a money order, to a tobacco manufacturer, who will send the tobacco. No postage or Federal excise tax need be paid. Each label is good for three cartons of cigarettes, or twelve packages or one carton of two-ounce packages of smoking tobacco, 100 cigars, or approximately 24 ounces of chewing tobacco. Smaller amounts or mixed packages cannot be ordered.

Crop Corps Certificates

Certificates of service will be awarded to the 3,500,000 persons who work on farms this year in the U. S. Crop Corps, and to those who work in canning and other food processing plants, the War Food Administration has announced. The certificates will be presented "for patriotic service on a farm or in a food processing factory" and will bear the signatures of Chester C. Davis, War Food Administrator, Paul C. McNutt, Chairman of the War Manpower Commission, and the State Director of Agricultural extension in each state.

Coal Supply Is Low

Stocks of bituminous coal are not large enough to tide the nation over a prolonged suspension of mining, solid fuel administrator Harold L. Ickes said recently, as he urged all users to conserve coal. Regarding the nation's "insecure fuel position," administrator Ickes said, "it is essential that every consumer conserve every pound of coal possible so that the maximum amount of coal will be available in the event the coal emergency continues."

Help Stop Thefts and Forgeries

To safeguard dependents and others who regularly receive Government checks the following procedure is urged by the U. S. Secret Service to help stop thieves and forgers—(1) some member of the family should always be at home when checks are due to be delivered; (2) all mail boxes should be equipped with a lock and the individual's name should be printed clearly on the outside of the box; (3) checks should be cashed in the same place each month, making identification easier; (4) checks should not be endorsed until you are in the presence of the person who is to cash it.

Service Bars For Civilians

For the first time, civilians may earn an official service bar similar to the campaign bars of the armed services, according to a recent announcement of the civilian defense director. Six distinctive bars for service ranging from 500 to 5,000 hours will be given to Civilian Defense volunteers. All Civilian Defense volunteers may qualify for the awards—members of the Citizens Defense Corps, the Citizens Service Corps, Forest Fire Fighters Service, and Civilian Evacuation Service.

Prosecute Poultry Racketeers

New court actions—88 of them—against violators of price ceilings on poultry were started between April 15 and April 30, in OPA's intensified drive to stamp out black markets. Of the 88, 72 were injunction suits and 16 were criminal prosecutions. In addition, the enforcement division issued statutory warnings—first step toward license revocation—to 15 other poultry sellers.

Maximum Prices On Poultry

Poultry raisers who sell live birds at their farms must observe the maximum prices OPA has set for the nearest city, town or village. Ceiling prices for 56 representative cities were recently issued. For broilers, fryers, roosters and light capons the prices range from 27.5 cents per pound for Chicago to 29.51 cents per pound for Miami, Florida.

More Cotton Cloth

Cotton fabric production will be increased by about 220 million yards annually without the use of additional facilities or raw materials, as the result of a recent WPB order. Fabrics will be lighter and less tightly woven, but serviceable and capable of meeting all military and essential needs.

Rural Phone Batteries

A few dry-cell batteries for maintaining telephone service in rural areas have been provided for distribution through hardware stores and other distributors, according to the communications division of the Office of War Utilities. Distributors can get these batteries by submitting Form PD-IX to the wholesale and retail trade division of the War Production Board.

Luggage Restricted to Seven Types

Luggage will be made only in seven basic types and will be drastically limited in size and design after July 1 by a recent order of WPB. All-leather luggage is out for the duration. Canvas, cotton duck, other fabrics, and wood will be used as substitutes when they are available.

Soldiers Get Lots of Mail

United States soldiers overseas receive over 20,000,000 pieces of mail a week, or an average of fourteen pieces per soldier. This is four times as much as the A. E. F. got at the peak of the world war twenty per cent of the mail sent overseas is V-mail.

WFA To Purchase Seed

Pasture and legume seeds, including blue lupine, white clover, wild winter peas, kobe lespedeza, and common lespedeza, Tennessee 76 lespedeza, sericea lespedeza, and yellow hop clover, will be purchased from farmers by the Commodity Credit Corporation, under a new program just announced by the War Food Administration.

Sewage Facilities For Homes

Home owners can now obtain sewage facilities by having their municipal authority write a letter to WPB. The letter must certify that the work is properly authorized; that it will require less than $1,500 for underground, and less than $500 for above-ground construction. The letter itself constitutes an authorization to connect sewage facilities.

Revised Feed Prices

Savings to farmers are expected to result from OPA's revision of retail prices of animal and poultry feeds. Previously, the retailer has been allowed a fixed mark-up of $7.50 a ton on all kinds of feeds. Now, feeds have been classified, and there is a schedule of mark-ups ranging from $5.50 to $10.00 a ton.

Ceiling on Sausage

Frankfurters, bologna, and fresh and smoked sausage, which make up about 60 per cent of all sausage sold in this country, are now under wholesale ceiling prices fixed by OPA. Cents-per-pound retail prices will be established by OPA in the near future.

War Work For Women

Important war work for women includes hundreds of unexciting jobs in stores, restaurants, laundries, offices, schools, hospitals, public institutions, transportation, communications, public utilities, and other necessary community services. A new list has just been compiled by the Women's Advisory Committee of the WMC.

Butter, Cheese Orders

Fifty per cent of all butter and 70 per cent of all cheddar cheese produced in May, June, and July must be held for Government uses, the WFA has announced. Thirty per cent of butter and 50 per cent of cheese has been required for Government use since February.

Hospitals For Civilians

Despite increasing military demands for hospital equipment and medical supplies, substantial efforts are being made to maintain the health of civilians. Since January 1, 1942, construction of 260 new hospitals, or extensive additions to existing hospitals has been approved by WPB. Beds will be increased by 7,000, leaving an estimated shortage for civilian use in war areas of about 14,000 beds.

No Quota On Used Truck Tires

An eligible truck operator who is unable to get rationing certificates for new tires because his rationing board has exhausted its quota can obtain certificates for used tires instead, according to OPA. Local boards have been authorized to issue used truck tire certificates without regard to quota restrictions.

Chicory For Coffee

Consumers who like chickory in their coffee are assured of a supply by a recent order of the war food administration. Because demand for this product has increased since coffee rationing, processors are now allowed to put 25 per cent of their bulk chicory in packages for individual consumers.

New Agency For Civilians

The Office of Civilian Requirements, empowered to provide civilians with essential goods and services, has been set up in WPB. The new agency supersedes the Office of Civilian Supply. "It shall be the objective of the War Production Board," the order states, "to provide consumer goods and services adequate to maintain essential civilian life and the highest productive efficiency."

Traffic Declines

Traffic on rural roads in the eastern rationed area was 48 per cent less in March than the same month of 1941. It was about 37 per cent less in the rest of the country, according to the public roads administration of the Federal Works Agency. Traffic in February was off 52 per cent in the East and 35 per cent elsewhere, compared with February, 1941.

Shrimp Production Decreases

Canned shrimp produced in Gulf and South Atlantic states during the first quarter of 1943 was about 20 per cent less than in 1942. The decrease in shrimp production is largely due to manpower shortages in both fishing and processing.

PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE

HISTORY—Mrs. G. E. M. suffered headaches and neckaches. Her neck ached so intensely at the base of the skull she could hardly see. Days at a time she could not get out of bed because of the severity of the pains. She read one of our ads., telling of the good work we were doing, and decided to see what we could do for her. After a very short time wearing surgical shoes, pain in the head and neck lessened till finally it disappeared entirely and she is well and happy. It is now possible for her to do her own work even when it is necessary for her to climb stepladders. Surgical shoes seemingly worked miracles for her.

COMMENT — Strain on ligaments and tendons naturally has a weakening effect upon muscles. Continued neglect of these conditions may be the cause of your aches and pains in the neck and back and you have been unable to get relief, come in and let us see what we can do for you.

If your ankles are weak and you are constantly rolling them, surgical shoes are definitely the answer to your problem.—Adv.

SALT WILL CURE FEATHER-PICKING

Large feeding space and the use of sale are cures for cannibalism or feather-picking among chicks, says Prof. W. M. Insko, Jr., of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. In most cases, lack of feeding space causes the chicks to begin to pick at one another, he says. Therefore, the first thing to do is , to provide longer troughs so the chicks won't be crowded.

The salt cure consists of putting salt at the rate of one pound to 100 pounds of mash before the chicks, letting them have no other feed for two days only; or putting a tablespoon of salt in a gallon of water for the birds to drink for one day only.

Prof. Insko lists the causes of feather-picking as: 1. Overcrowding in the brooder. 2. Lack of feeding space. 3. Too much light in the brooder. 4. Overheating.

Sales Taxes

Casting about for ways to raise money with which to pay America's huge war bill, the United States Treasury has steadfastly held "thumbs down" on retail sales taxes. "They are irritating to everybody concerned," it is said; "constitute a nuisance to retail merchants and an added expense of doing business." Truly, experience with them in many states has proved that they give rise to endless complaint.

It is only natural for the administration to go slow in its consideration of a sales tax therefore, because the United States still is a government by popular consent. Office holders instinctively shrink from starting movements that are labeled "unpopular". But it is my belief that a sensible sales tax can be made popular; can be sold to the public. Except for the bother of it, nothing fits the nation's immediate needs so well.

Systematic Savings

A big advance toward making a general tax acceptable to the public has been made already by Senator John A. Danaher of Connecticut. He is proposing one that is not strictly a tax; more in the order of an enforced loan to Uncle Sam, returnable in full after the war. You might think that such a plan would require a lot of costly machinery to operate, since payments would come in such small amounts, but not so. The senator has overcome that.

Here's how it would work: For purposes of this illustration, call the rate 10%. Every time a customer bought a dollar's worth of merchandise at a retail store, the merchant would have to demand also the purchase of a 10c savings stamp. Mr. Customer would paste these stamps in a book and when he got $100 worth he could exchange them at the post office for a $100 bond which would bring full face value in cash after the war.

The Poor Must Pay

Frankly I am in favor of the Danaher Plan or something very much like it, for several reasons. First, it is plain now that farmers, laborers and low-income salaried folk are going to be called upon to pay a greater part of the war's cost. There is no other way. If the government should take every penny of this year's income from every person now earning $20,000 a year or more, the resulting revenue would carry on the war only six weeks at the present rate.

Carrying the speculation further: If the government should confiscate the entire income of every person earning $10,000 a year or more, the grand total of revenue raised in this way would be barely enough to pay our war bills for two months. Digging even deeper into the "comfortably situated" class, suppose the government should grab every penny earned by everybody receiving $5,000 a year or more. Even this extreme measure would raise only enough money to keep our war going four months. Obviously the poor must pay.

They Are Willing

People of small income want to help. They are anxious to do their part and it is my opinion that they are entitled to pay their share the cheapest and most direct way (which is by sales tax) now that Senator Danaher has devised a method of making it practically painless. People of low income already are paying hidden taxes up to 20% of their earnings, and I call it only fair that they be allowed to contribute in a way that will bring their money back to them.

The American Federation of Labor made some recommendations to Congress not long ago which contained these two significant sentences:

"Provision should be made for the return, in cash, after the war, of a part of the present high taxes. We can well be guided by the English policy which proposes to return a high percentage of the taxes now assessed against low-income workers."

A sales tax should be 100% returnable because it is the man of small earning who is hit hardest by any sales tax. The reason is obvious: He spends a major share of his earnings just for necessities. Necessary food, shelter and apparel cost as much for a man earning $2,000 a year as for one who earns three times as much.

Combats Inflation

My third reason for favoring the Danaher plan is the main one. The chief purpose of tax legislation this year is to combat inflation. Inflation means run-away prices. When there is not much of anything to buy and everybody has more money to spend, people naturally bid prices up, trying to get what they want. The less they have to spend the less temptation they have to bid prices sky-high.

Besides, there is an honest and patriotic way to escape any sales tax. It is by saving money; the tax is on spending. The Danaher plan is a savings plan. It permits the working man to help finance the war. It helps defeat inflation. It compels some saving for everybody and inspires more saving for others; save now while money is relatively easy to get, so as to have something after the war when it may meet a very serious need.

Some 300 Texas farmers, meeting at Jacksonville, Texas, for a program, "1943 Food Production to Win the War," determined that Texas can produce 25 percent more food this year than was produced in 1942.

HOMEMAKERS ON ALERT FOR MOTHS

Now is the time for every homemaker to be on the alert for moths, warns Miss Dorothy Threlkeld, specialist in clothing at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. At this season of the year, moths are looking for places to lay their eggs, and seldom-used wood garments provide ideal nesting places. Now more than ever wool must be saved, for it is an essential war materials.

Blankets, coats, sweaters, caps, mittens, in fact, all unused wool materials, must be cleaned and carefully packed away for the summer months, else they may become the feeding grounds for these winged fifth columnists.

Exposure to direct sunlight, airing and thorough brushing are the first steps. Special attention should be given to places where lint collects, such as pockets and under seams. This treatment will destroy the moth larvae and the eggs. Washing in thick suds, or dry cleaning, will also destroy them.

While the garments are still out of doors, they should be stored in tight boxes or chests, or wrapped in layers of paper with the edges so tightly sealed that there is no chance of a moth entering. For protection against the larvae or egg that might have escaped detection, homemakers are advised to use paradichlorobenze or naptha flakes, or moth balls, in every bundle, chest or trunk. The gas created discourages the larvae from eating. About a pound is necessary for 100 cubic feet.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

For a satisfying main dish in the meatless meal, try the combination of hard-cooked eggs and an energy-giving starchy food, suggests Miss Florence Imlayl, food specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Although hominy is used in this recipe, thrifty cooks might find it more convenient to use cooked rice, macaroni, spaghetti or diced potatoes. For additional flavor or color, chopped green pepper, pimento, parsley, onion or celery may be added.

Hominy a la Goldenrod

3 c. cooked hominy, 6 hard cooked eggs, 2 c. milk, 4 tblsp. butter, 4 tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. salt.

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt and milk. Dice the whites of the hard-cooked eggs and add to the sauce. Arrange the hot hominy on a platter, make a well in the center and fill with the white sauce. Over the top sprinkle the egg yolks which have been put through a siece.

Menu: Hominy a la goldenrod, combination salar of tender turnip green, mustard greens, chopped radishes and onions mixed together with sour cream dressing, whole-wheat biscuits and butter, canned fruit and cookies.

WOMEN MAKE BANDAGES

Homemakers' clubs in Logan county are devoting considerable time to wartime projects. The Lewisburg club organized a Red Cross bandage room and turned out 10,800 bandages in six weeks. They also helped organize a Red Cross sewing room. The South Union club has likewise started a Red Cross bandage room in their depot-club room.

SOYBEANS VS. HEMP

County Agent Robert L. Rudolph says Livingston county's soybean quota of 1,250 acres could easily be grown if farmers had assurance of help at harvesting time. As the situation is, some farmers wanted to trade soybean acreages for hemp acreages. About 1,000 acres of hemp were signed up.

PICKLES AND TOMATOES

Meade county farmers will grow several hundred acres of cucumber pickles and tomatoes for a Louisville canning company. The contracts call for a price of $3 per 100 pounds for No. 1 pickles; $2 for No. 2 and $1.50 for No. 3. For tomatoes the price is $26 a ton for No. 1 and $16 for No. 2.

TO SELL GREEN TOMATOES

Four hundred thousand plants were ordered for 133 acres of tomatoes in Graves county. A county cooperative marketing association has been organized to handle green wrapped tomatoes. Cooperating agencies include the Farm Bureau, Mayfield Chamber of Commerce and civic clubs and the Illinois Central railroad. The Farm Bureau bought 10 carloads of wheat for farmers to feed.

TENANTS NEEDED

The Ballard county farm labor committee reports the need of 40 to 50 tenant families in the county. Each family would be given an acre and a half to two and a half acres of tobacco and as many acres for gardens and other crops.

In Kenton county, sorghum growers who tried out a number of varieties, found southern Honey Drip and Kentucky Williams produced good quality sorghum.

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yealey

During the Civil War great excitement was caused in Boone County when Gen. Kirby Smith marched his army in and around Lexington. Brig. Gen. Henry Heath with 5000 veteran confederate troops from Gen. Smith's army was camped at Corinth and several companies had reached Snow's pond near Walton, thus threatening the three cities of Cincinnati, Covington and Newport.

Had Gen. Heath moved immediately upon these cities no doubt he could have captured them, but he was prevented by orders from Gen. Smith who held until Gen. Bragg, who had the main army and was at the present time near Paris gave orders to move and Gen. Bragg failed to send such orders. In the meantime the people of Cincinnati were alert. Business houses closed and nearly all business was suspended.

All male citizens, ministers of the gospel, old men, were forced into military service and drilling all these undisciplined men was begun. Large earthworks were thrown up at Ft. Mitchell and Ft. Perry in order to protect these three cities.

Gen. Lew Wallace was in command of all the forces around Cincinnati and Sept. 15, 1862 his pickets encountered the Confederate advance guard at Florence, where an engagement took place between these two forces, and one man was killed. The Confederates fell back as far as Walton. A skirmish took place near here and one Company of Union soldiers was captured and the regiment put to flight, retreating back to the entrenchments south of Covington.

Gen Wallace then ordered several regiments to proceed out the Covington and Lexington Turnpike and when they arrived near Walton General Basil W. Duke, with a regiment of Morgan's Confederate Calvary hastened up the Ohio River in order to make a crossing and threaten Cincinnati from the East, thus expecting to draw back the Union soldiers which were near Walton. The Union officers immeditely sent two gunboats, the Belfast and Allen Collier to prevent this crossing, but the Confederates had howitzers and the gunboats fled down the river and out of range of the cannon fire.

A fierce battle was fought here (Augusta) in which 125 home guards fought so bravely that Gen. Duke after losing 21 killed and 18 wounded fell back towards Brooksville and this ended any further threat by the Confederates.

FORTY-EIGHT A'S RECORDED BY WOOLPER BOY IN FIRST YEAR

Neil Voshell, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Voshell of the Woolper neighborhood, made a fine record during the school year 1942-43 at Burlington. He entered school in September 1942, a members of Mrs. Riley's primary class and made excellent progress in all his studies, making 48 "A's" during the term.

WORMS ARE FOUND IN TOBACCO BEDS

Tobacco beds are being injured in several localities in the state by a large white grub that tunnels in the soil and disturbs the roots of the young plants. The grub is the larva of the green June beetle. When many grubs are present, the entire bed of plants may be destroyed. The most successful control measure, according to the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station entomologists, is a poisoned bait which is broadcast on the bed late in the evening. The bait is made by mixing, when dry, a pound of Paris green with either 25 pounds of wheat bran or corn meal and then adding just enough water so the bait crumbles when picked up in the hand. The bait is used at the rate of 10 to 12 pounds to 100 square yards of plant bed. The bed should be sprinkled with water, if the surface is dry, a short time before the bait is broadcast.

The Norris City, Ill., terminal of the "big inch" oil pipeline dispatches an average of nearly 1,100 railroad tank cars a day on a single track line, or an average of a 75-car train every 52 minutes.

Sperti To Be Honored By Pennsylvania College

WFA To Purchase Kentucky Seed

An announcement was made today by M. D. Royse, chairman of the Kentucky Agricultural Adjustment Agency that the War Food Administration had instituted a purchase program for 1943-crop pasture and winter legume seeds needed for winter legume plantings and to meet next year's demands for increased acreages of forage crops.

The Commodity Credit Corporation is planning to purchase Tennessee 76, common, and sericea lespedeza seed which is being produced in Kentucky. The prices which will be paid will range from 16 to 19 cents a pound.

This seed when purchased will be used this fall and winter by the Agricultural Adjustment Agency in sale to farmers who comply with the Agricultural Conservation Program for 1944 spring seeding.

DAVIS APPEALS FOR LARGER PLANTINGS

An appeal of Chester Davis, War Food Administrator, for larger crop plantings, sent to Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the University of Kentucky Experiment Station has been passed along to all Kentucky county agents.

"This is the most important planting season in American farm history," said Mr. Davis. "We can still increase the number of acres we plant. In a very few days it will be too late. The War Food Administration is asking farmers to plant to the limit for critical war crops, food crops and feed for livestock in the drive that has been made to increase the acreage of beans, potatoes and oil crops.There was no intention to minimize the importance of other essential crops. Expanded production also of feed, grain and hay is vitally necessary, if we are to continue our record heavy production of livestock and livestock products.

"The War Food Administration is organizing the country's latent labor resources to help with the harvests this year. Acting with manufacturers and with other government agencies, we will do our best to see that more harvesting machinery is ready by the time it is needed. We will work for continuing price supports at fair levels in order to minimize risks in the market place. We ask farmers on their part in the days that remain of spring planting to take an extra degree of chance this year for their country—to plant in full the acreage they can expect to handle under the most favorable circumstances."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to all our relatives, friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us in the recent death of our daughter and sister,

Rachel R. Darby

Especially we wish to thank Rev. Robert Carter for his consoling words; the singers for the beautiful songs; the donors of the beautiful floral pieces; Dr. Nunnelley for his service; and Philip Taliaferro for the manner in which he conducted the funeral. 1tc

SERVE AND CONSERVE TO WIN THE WAR

THIRTY-ONE MEN INDUCTED TUESDAY

SIX BOONE COUNTY MEN ENROLLED WITH U. S. NAVY—NEXT CALL EXPECTED IN JULY.

Thirty-one men left Burlington Tuesday morning after reporting to Draft Board 9, for service with the U. S. Armed Forces. Six of the thirty-one men were enrolled with the U. S. Navy.

Those leaving for Great Lakes Naval Training Station were John David Jarrell, Russell Lee Horton, William Herman Middendorf, Harry D. Mayhugh, Jr., George Pericles Barlow and John Henry Getker.

Those reporting for duty at Ft. Thomas Army Post were: Wayne Arrasmith, Roy William Tryling, Isaac Norman Edwards, Clarence Elmer Peeno, George William Heginbotham, Wallace Earl Tanner, Howard Lee Eggleston, Robert Howard Cason, Arthur Fugate, Chester Grant, Jr., James Wm. Sears, John Hayes Pierce, Ernest Kindall, Robert Cecil Klasserner, Lee Roy McNeely, Joe Taylor, Stanley McElroy, Lloyd Franklin Hood, Ralph Gilbert Stone, Alfred Cleves Spence, Robert Louis McWethy, Robert Willoughby, Jr., Robert Doane, Kenneth Burle Cason and Alexander D. Warner, transferred from Jamestown, N. Y.

Another call is expected for July according to Draft Board officials.

Farm Bureau Will Meet Saturday

The Boone County Farm Bureau will hold a directors meeting at Burlington this Saturday, May 22, at 2:00 p. m., according to Lloyd Siekman, president of the county organization.

The purpose of the meeting will be to plan a county program of work and to make plans for the adoption of a county constitution and by-laws.

The directors invite all Farm Bureau members and others interested in Farm Bureau work to meet with them.

Camp Ernst Will Open July 11th

Camp Ernst, operated by the Covington Y. M. C. A., will open July 11 when the first junior boys' group pitches camp on the banks of Gunpowder Creek. The schedule includes three weeks for boys and two weeks for girls.

A physical fitness program both for boys and girls is being arranged to bring them into real contact with outdoor living, according to Willard L. Wade, general secretary of the "Y" outdoor study.

Activities will include swimming, hiking, camperaft, forestry, first aid and all other outdoor subjects.

CONTESTS SET IN HOME ECONOMICS

DIVISION OF 4-H CLUB WORK—LEADERS WILL ASSIST IN PUTTING ON CONTESTS, SAYS HOME AGENT.

Four-H Club girls will participate in the Clothing Exhibit, Style Dress Revue, Clothing Judging, Foods Judging and demonstrations, to be held at Burlington on Saturday, May 29 beginning at 10:00, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. Local leaders will assist in putting on the contests.

All girls who have clothing projects are being urged to exhibit their garments, and the Style Dress Revue, which will be held about 3:00 p. m. will be the climax of this interesting activity.

Each organization will be represented in the clothing judging contest when girls, having two or more projects in clothing, try their hand at judging an exhibit made up of three classes: School dresses, undergarments, and costume plans. This contest will begin at 11:00 E. W. T.

Foods judging will be interesting for girls who have had one or more projects in foods. These girls will judge whole wheat biscuit, gingerbread and Victory menus. This contest will start the events, being scheduled at 10:00 E. W. T.

Parents and patrons of the 4-H Club members are cordially invited to attend.

Tobacco Fertilizer Program Recommended

A ton of tobacco per acre has been set up as a goal by leaders in several Boone County Agricultural Improvement Programs for 1943, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. A great many farmers reached this goal the past year.

The tobacco field fertilizer program recommended and being followed by many of these leading growers is as follows:

1. Seven to fifteen tons of manure per acre turned under.

2. Thirty to fifty pounds of 20 percent phosphate per ton of manure or its equivalent broadcast after the field is plowed.

3. Two hundred seventy-five to 375 pounds or more of a high grade complete fertilizer per acre in the row.

Potash deficiency or the usual burning of the leaf tips in many fields has been noticed on many farms not fertilized in recent years. Manure and the complete fertilizer will take care of this deficiency. Tobacco needs an abundance of plant food in a short time. The recommended fertilizer treatment above should take care of this need.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Craddock, of Hebron entertained Sunday in honor of their son Corp. Harold Craddock, of Upsilante, Michigan. Other guests were Mrs. Elmo Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Tanner, and Bernice Shinkle. Russell Craddock and family called in the evening.

POULTRY DISEASE DESTROYS CHICKS

THROUGHOUT COUNTY DURING PAST TWO WEEKS—PREVENTIVE METHODS OUTLINED BY COUNTY AGENT.

Coccidiosis, sometimes called bloody diarrhea, has destroyed large numbers of young chickens in the county the past two weeks, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. While there are at least six kinds of coccidia, only two kinds cause blood to appear in the droppings. The disease is most likely to attack birds between one and four months of age. The worst months for the disease are May, June and July.

The symptoms of the disease are paleness of beak, shanks and visible membranes, drowsiness and ruffled feathers, drooping wings and diarrhea. The death rate may be high.

The cause is a very small parasite called coccidia. Whenever eaten by poultry these parasites live in the intestinal walls and multiply rapidly. In a few days they develop into egg-like forms and leave the intestines in the droppings. In the presence of air, warmth, and moisture they develop in 18 to 48 hours into the harmful stage and will cause coccidiosis if eaten by poultry.

The control is simple. There is no known medicine remedy. Moisture of any kind aids the development of the disease. The following points are effective in bringing the dispase under control.

1. Confine the chicks to the brooder house and sun porch.

2. Dry clean the brooder house each morning by scraping.

3. Keep feed and water containers clean.

4. If chicks appear cold supply more heat.

5. Use milk instead of water or a flushing mash for five to ten days. Clean ground is a great aid in the prevention.

The control of Coccidiosis will save Boone County poultrymen hundreds of dollars each year.

Farewell Dinner

On May 16, 1943, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Barlow had a farewell dinner for their son Pericles Barlow who left for the Navy May 18. Those present at the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Heist, Constance, Mrs. Chris Whitaker, Hebron; Mrs. Milton Aylor, Bromley; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webster and daughter Anita, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Willoughby and son Bobby, Miss Edith Willoughby all of Hebron; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Barlow and daughters Blanche and Lavon of Constance; Miss Helen Riley, of Latonia; Miss Bernice Muench, Cold Springs; Miss Loraine Lakner, Latonia; William Thurman, Covington; James Turney, Cincinnati, Ohio; Ralph Heist, Norwood, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Ollis Mulligan and daughter Dolores, Bullock Pen Road, Covington.

CEILING PRICES ANNOUNCED TUES.

BY OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION—WILL COVER APPROXIMATELY 1,110 ITEMS IN ALL STORES.

Flat, community-wide dollars-and-cents ceilings, covering approximately 1,100 brands, sizes, grades and varieties of canned vegetables and canned fruits, and applying to all retail stores in Hamilton, Butler, Warren, Clermont and Brown Counties in Ohio, and Kenton, Campbell and Boone Counties in Kentucky were announced today by the OPA Cincinnati District Office. The ceilings will become effective Wednesday, May 19.

Products covered include canned peas, corn, tomatoes, green snap or wax beans, asparagus, beets, carrots, mixed vegetables, mushrooms, peas and carrots, sauerkraut, spinach, succotas, tomato puree, tomato catsup, tomato chili sauce, tomato juice, and V-8 cocktail; also canned peaches, pears, fruit cocktail, pineapple, applesauce, apricots, cherries, fruit salad, grape juice, pineapple juice, and prune juice.

Tuesday's action is the second stem in the program launch last week-end with the issuance of community-wide top prices for staple dry groceries. These two steps, together with dollars-and-cents ceilings now covering meat, bring approximately 80 per cent of the foods in the housewife's market basket under top prices expressed in cents per pound, package or item.

Unlike the community prices issued last week, which were generally ceilings for the smaller independent grocers, Tuesday's list covers all food retailers in the community. For the purpose of regulation, retailers are divided into four groups or classes based on their annual sales volume.

Each retailer must post a sign indicating which group of stores he is in. Each of the four groups has a separate set of ceiling prices. The sign should read: "OPA 1," "OPA 2," "OPA 3," or "OPA 4," according to the class in which the store belongs.

The four groups of retail stores for each of which the price order sets ceilings are:

(1) Class 1: "Independent" retail stores with "annual gross sales" of less than $50,000. A retail store shall be an "independent" retail store if it is not one of a group of 4 or more stores under one ownership whose combined "annual gross sales" are $500,000 or more.

(2) Class 2: "Independent" retail stores with "annual gross sales" of $50,000 or more, but less than $250,000.

(3) Class 3: Retail stores, other than "independent" retail stores with "annual gross sales" of less than $250,000.

(4) Class 4: Any retail store with "annual gross sales" of $250,000 or more.

Housewives who clip out the newspaper list of ceiling prices will be able to tell at a glance the maximum price that the store in which she is shopping can charge her under any circumstances.

For storekeepers, the price order will provide substantial simplification, since the new ceilings become the only ceilings permissible for the particular brands, grades or varieties of products included on the list. For all other items the storekeeper continues to calculate his ceilings under present regulations.

The general level of ceiling prices for products on the new list remains unchanged since the mark-ups used in establishing the top prices are the mark-ups which have been in effect for a number of months. The cost on which the marks-ups were applied are the costs which apply for at least 75 percent of retailers. The uniform ceilings for all stores of a particular class or group will require some adjustment for the small number of stores whose ceilings have been abnormally high or low.

Because of the tremendous number of varieties, sizes, brands and grades of canned fruits and vegetables, the list issued today by OPA contains only the more common items or lines.

"These selective ceilings," Dr. Harold A. Baker, District Price Officer, said, "are reference points and will be a guide to the top prices which can be charged for other varieties. Thus, by setting the top price for a number two can of corn we have also provided the housewife a fair guide to the price which should apply for the next size, the two and one-half can.

"In setting top prices by groups of stores," Dr. Baker said, "we are conforming to trade practice and to long-recognized differences in operating costs. In addition, the mark-ups used in setting the top prices are based on an exhaustive study of store margins made for the OPA by the Bureau of Labor Statistics late last year.

"Smaller independent stores, which customarily provide such additional service as credit and delivery, require and long have received a somewhat wider operating margin. Stores with a larger sales volume, and operating on a self-service cash and carry basis, have lower operating costs and therefore are not to be allowed as great a margin."

Crop And Livestock Notes By County Agent's Office

Pasture and hay crop prospects were greatly improved by the rains of the past week.

The grain market and supply situation justifies farmers to consider their livestock-feed ratio and to produce a maximum of feed crops in 1943.

It is still time to seed alfalfa. Excellent stands in favorable years are secured from seeding as late as June 1st.

Dairy cows will require less feed on good pasture. Where the pasture is excellent Jersey and Guernsey cows should produce up to 2 to 2½ gallons of milk per day with no grain feed. Above this production, feed one pound of grain for each two pounds of milk. Poorer pasture requires more grain feeding.

The largest number of gardens and the best prospects for gardens in many years are now in the making. Remember control the insects and to destroy all weeds in order to produce the maximum amount of food.

Sheep should be drenched for stomach worm control the day after they are sheared. The Bluestone-Black Leaf 40 treatment is the best from now until fall.

Contour cultivation, hillside ditches and other erosion control measures conserves moisture and increases yields.

Adapted hybrid corn varieties out produce open pollinated varieties and carry greater assurance against drouth damage. Stronger germination gives better stands, saves seed and requires less thinning.

Army Nurse Tells Of Ireland Experiences

Lt. Anna Lucille Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Grant, of Burlington, Ky., was called upon while in the British Isles to give a talk to a British hospital, just as they could hear an American woman talk. As Lt. Grant was one of seven older nurses in Ireland service she was elected also as the supervisor of operating room. She has given several talks while overseas.

She was in the first group to establish the base hospital in Ireland when the troops arrived.

She started her speech by saying "Hello to all British forces, May God be with them." The American nurses celebrated their first year in Ireland in January, and of that Lt. Grant says:

"The nurses have been over here for over a year on January 26. We celebrated our first anniversary with a parade and a dinner. In the evening the hall was decorated like the ship that brought us over to our destination. Believe me it certainly did bring back memories of those stormy days and nights we spent aboard ship. Just 17 months ago, we went to and from dinner by the way of horses and buggies. Of course it was raining the day we landed, the grass was green and beautiful even if it was in January. We set our hospital from the basement up. We began arranging wards in order for the coming patients. Much of the British hospital equipment is so different from ours. Everything seems to be reverse. One of our girls, when entering the nurses' mess hall saw a tea wagon and exclaimed, 'We could use that for a dressing table.' We thoroughly enjoyed making up the first American, Irish hospital.

"We are up at 6 a. m. and breakfast at 6:30. It is just a short walk to the hospital from our quarters. You should hear what most of the patients would like to do to Hitler. They invariably speak of their loved ones at home, the most frequent remark is 'how wonderful it is to sleep between clean white sheets again.'

"When we are off duty we can play tennis, ping pong, go horseback riding. They do a lot of riding here, not in automobiles but on horses. There are many places to see, we have romed through ancient Irish castles. I asked one of the boys who had just arrived from America how it was and he replied, 'Just like heaven.' Sometimes we hate to see them go back without us, but we will all return some day.

"On our furloughs we go to England and I just returned. Everyone is grand there in showing us to places of interest, yet no matter how much of another country we see, all of us will still take the good old U. S. A.' We all hope to be back soon."

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Jones and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stephens and family, of Union.

Former Boone Countian Succumbs Saturday

William T. White, a former Boone County resident died at his home, Williamstown, Monday after an extended illness. He was 75.

He is survived by two daughters Mrs. Edith Sebree and Miss Helen White, both of Williamstown; two stepsons, Clifford and S. R. Lowe, Williamstown; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Anna Cook, Covington, and Miss Romania Lowe, Williamstown, and nine grandchildren.

Mr. Huey taught vocational agriculture and coached this past year at South Warren and will retain these duties this coming year.

H. D. A. ANSWERS LOCAL QUESTIONS

CONCERNING WORK OF VARIOUS HOMEMAKERS THRUOUT COUNTY—ARE OF GENERAL INTEREST

Many are the questions asked by the farm Homemaker these days. A few are of general interest and Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent offers the answers that all may profit by them.

House Cleaning

1. Washing painted surfaces: Use a solution of equal parts vinegar, kerosene and water. Begin at bottom and wash upward, carefully overlapping cleaned areas. This method will avoid drip streaks and the solution is easy on hands.

2. Removing grease spots from wallpaper: Make a paste using any dry cleaning solution and talcum powder. Cover grease spot thoroughly and allow to dry over night—dust the powder from the spot. If the first application does not completely remove the grease repeat the method.

3. Dustless dust cloths: These must be prepared in open air away from buildings. Dissolve one tablespoon of linseed oil in one pint of gasoline (enough to process fifteen sizeable cloths). Saturate dust cloths and squeeze out the solution. Hang on lines until gasoline has evaporated. Store carefully in covered glass or metal containers. Sufficient oil will remain after one washing for use again without retreating.

Care of Equipment

1. Refrigerators: Most neglected yet most important point of attention is the condenser of the mechanical refrigerator. It is a grill-like part, usually located on the back or in bottom section of the box. To clean the condenser, turn off current and dust, with upholstery attachment to the vacuum clean, feather duster or whisk broom.

Care of Woolens

1. Protect from moths: Clean woolens before storing. A brisk brushing along seams will help to dislodge moth eggs. Ironing also serves to destroy moth eggs. Paradichlorobenze (P. D. P.) is the recommended protection from moths. This may be bought in crystaline form and put in open containers or cheesecloth bags in top of closets, trunks or garment bags. The gaeous fumes range downward to destroy moths. One pound is sufficient for 100 cubic feet. Use proportionate amounts.

Civilian Defense Meeting Set May 24 At Florence

Special notice is given to all active Civilian Defense members of a meeting to be held at the Florence headquarters on Monday evening, May 24th from 8 p. m. to 9:30.

New and vital information will be given at this time, according to Frank Lee Dils, Commander of Civilian Defense.

SGT. WOLFE HOME ON 30-DAY LEAVE

SUFFERS HAND AND BACK WOUNDS IN BATTLE WITH JAPANESE ZEROS—HAS BEEN CITED FOR BRAVERY.

Sergt. Therman L. Wolfe, who has flown with a U. S. Flying Fortress crew as a gunner in aerial attacks upon the ground installations of the Japanese in the Solomons and upon the enemy sea lanes, is on a furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolfe, Walton R. 2.

Sgt. Wolfe, wounded in the hands and back when their Fortress was attacked by Jap Zeros, has been granted a 30-day sick leave to recuperate.

He was cited for bravery for his participation in the air battles, was credited with bagging one Jap Zero and assisting other crew members in scoring three bomb hits on Jap transports.

One of the planes which the Walton sergeant was aboard, had been forced down in enemy territory. The crew made its way to safety. In a later attack he was wounded.

Sgt. Wolfe is a graduate of the Florence high school. He had been in the Solomons since last September.

Canning Sugar Available To Boone Housewives

Canning sugar can now be obtained from your local Rationing Board for canning fruits. You may apply at the time you know you will have fruit to preserve or can. You must know how many quarts you are going to can. Five pounds per person is allowed, by government order for preserves and jellies.

Applications can be made in person or by your friends or neighbors at the Board office or by mail. Application blanks may be obtained at your local banks. If application is made by mail you must send your War Ration Book No. 1, for each member of the family. State the number of quarters of fruit you want to can; and the number of quarts of preserves and jellies (not to exceed 5 pounds per persoi).

Applications may be made at the Rationing office between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. Eastern War Time, except on Monday and Saturday. No applications will be filled on Monday or Saturday.

JITNEY SUPPER PLANNED BY FLORENCE LADIES

The ladies of the Florence Methodist Church will have their monthly Jitney supper Saturday, May 22 from 5 to 8 p. m. The public is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Congleton and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick, Sunday.

4-H CLUBS PLAN SPRING RALLY

CLOTHING DEMONSTRATIONS, HOME ECONOMICS DEMONSTRATION AND TEAM CONTESTS TO FEATURE PROGRAM

Boone County 4-H Club members are planning their annual 4-H Club Spring Rally to be held at Burlington, Saturday, May 29, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. All club members and leaders are urged to attend only where it does not greatly interfere with their war food production production programs. Food production, for the duration, will receive first consideration by all members.

The morning program will be devoted to discussion on 4-H Club work in the war effort. The afternoon program will include clothing demonstrations, home economic demonstrations, team contests and agricultural demonstration team contests on clean milk production, poultry culling, laying out hillside ditches and others.

The public is invited to attend and to take part in the Rally Day program.

PATRIOTIC INVESTORS

With the success of the second war loan campaign, it is clear that the American people are not forgetting the value of investing in the future of their country. Viewed as a straight business proposition, it would be hard to find a sounder investment. But we know that is not the real purpose behind American purchases of war bonds. It is plain American patriotism—the desire to give every assistance to our fighting men, the desire to see our nation victorious in a righteous war.

An outstanding example of how Americans feel about war bond purchases is provided by the recent announcement by C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, that employes of the Corporation throughout the country have purchased, through pay roll deductions, war bonds with a maturity value of more than $100,000,000. This is in addition to their cash purchases of bonds, of which the company has no record. Cutrently, 363,563 G. M. workers—97 percent of the number employed—are patriotically and wisely investing a portion of their earnings in Series "E" bonds. Thus far they have purchased 3,058,838 certificates.

Mr. Wilson pointed out that all of this had been done on a wholly voluntary basis, with the Corporation agreeing to handle deductions, purchase and deliver the bonds only at the employe's request. This is a fine demonstration of the manner in which a big job can be done when everyone works together in a common cause, and with justifiable pride all G. M. plants are displaying this message from the Secretary of the Treasury:

"Congratulations to the employes of General Motors who, in addition to producing the tools for victory, have purchased more than $100,000,000 worth of War Bonds during the 'Save and Serve for Victory campaign. May the second anniversary of this program show even greater accomplishment in War Bond purchases."

Indeed, in the light of this record, one is inclined to agree with Mr. Wilson when he says, "we have every reason to believe that this fine showing will be maintained or even exceeded in the future."

FREIGHT BY FLIGHT

A year ago the handling of the "air cargo" was in the trial stages. Air ships were increasing their loads of mail, express and freight, and the growth of the "freight by flight" was almost unbelievable. But now the figures are added and reported. The air lines increased their cargoes 108 percent in 1942 over 1941.

The domestic air lines carried a total of 40,101,657 pounds of express and flew 40,096,554,805 pound miles of mail. The revenue passenger miles flown in 1942 were 1,398,042,146.

The air lines under contract with the armed forces, are engaged in transport services to the principal battle fronts of the world —men and boys from your own locality.

"THE EVER-NORMAL POCKETBOOK"

When the United States went to war the volume of consumers short-term debts had reached a high record of 9.7 billion dollars, a jump of a billion over the previous year. Shortly after the beginning of the war restrictions were placed on installment buying, all the way from furniture and store goods to automobiles and buying a home. Drastic restrictions have put crimps in installment credits. Restrictions and limitations on bank credits have been put into effect. New debts have been spaced out so they can be paid in small sums.

Mortgages have been paid off to an unusual degree since the beginning of the war. Debts have been reduced. The Office of War Information says it "helps to maintain the ever normal pocketbook." More than that these limitations of credit may serve to impress the people of our country to bridge the gap between war and peace.

People who can—and do—save money should be quite "hunky-dunky" in post-war times. But the rest of the population will look for the return of the 'installment plan" and terms of credit that were good enough when they wanted radios, tires, and the comforts of home, or a way to meet their insurance premiums. There's a practical post-war program that deserves early attention.

NAME AND NICKNAME

There is a big issue in Washington which the two big political parties will fight a battle over in the next few weeks. For more than half a century it was called the "protective tariff"—now it is called by its nickname: "trade treaties." Examine the two, and remember that shifts in politics like roses on a bush always smell the same, no matter what you call them.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Hurry-up meals seems necessary these days with the Victory garden and baby chicks takings hours of time. Even so, meals must be well balanced if they are to provide the necessary strength and build-up every worker needs, say food specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

It's planning ahead of time, and doing part of the preparation before going to the garden, if need be, that results in the most satisfying menus. In the following, the dessert supplies an important part of the protein of the meal and is refreshing as well, when it is served cold.

Menu: Hash (meat, potatoes and onion), creamed asparagus, lettuce salad, corn sticks and butter, floating island.

Floating Island

2 c. hot milk, 3 egg yolks, one-eighth tsp. salt, one-fourth c. sugar, honey or syrup, one-half tsp. vanilla.

Beat the egg yolks, add sweetening, salt, hot milk and flavoring. Place in double boiler and cook until mixture coats the spoon. Make a meringue by beating 3 egg whites, to which is added gradually one-third cup of sugar, 1 cup blackbegrries or other canned fruit put through a strainer or sieve, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Continue beating until stiff. Chill and serve on the custard.

Spread peaches, pears, plums to keep from bruising. Keep the ripe fruit cool. Let underripe fruits ripen at room temperature.

POSTED

All persons are hereby notified that the lands of the following are posted against hunting, and trespassing. Violators of this notice are subject to fines:

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON WINE'S DECEITFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 20:1; 23:29-35; Matthew 24:45-51.
GOLDEN TEXT—At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.—Proverbs 23:32.

Deceitful is a good word to describe both the product and the propaganda of the liquor business. Alcoholic beverages are in themselves most deceitful, and the methods by which they are sold to the public certainly cannot commend themselves to right-thinking people.

Intoxicants are associated with social preferment, festive occasions, radiant beauty, when they ought to be connected with the bleary eye, the babbling tongue, the ragged children and brokenhearted mothers. What about the men who have lost their positions and their characters, and the women who have paid with their virtue for their love of intoxicants? Why not picture them in the beautiful magazine advertisements?

I. Wine Is a Deceiver (Prov. 20:1). Wine is personified here as an evil demon who leads men on in the hope of some pleasure or advantage, and then lets him down to the depths of destruction. It makes him think he is great and powerful, when he is only weak and degraded. It excites him to foolishness and wild boisterousness, when he would normally be sensible, quiet and orderly.

He who thought he was wise in partaking of its stimulation, finds himself deceived, and to his regret he realizes that he is a fool in the hands of a malicious deceiver.

II. Wine Is a Depraver (Prof. 23: 29-35).

Depravity is a word not used as much as it was a generation ago, but it well describes the condition to which the drunkard comes in due time. And it is wine and other liquor which has depraved or corrupted him. A number of things appear in the text.

1. Liquor Destroys (vv. 29, 30). This is true morally, mentally, physically, and spiritually. Red eyes, wounds, complaining—these are only the outward signs of inward physical destruction of alcohol. Woe and sorrow speak of mental and social distress. The moral and spiritual destruction follow.

2. Liquor Deludes (vv. 31, 32). Its color, its sparkle and effervescence, its smooth appearance—all excite the anticipation of goodness and pleasure. And what does the drinker receive? The bite of the serpent and the sting of the adder. How true!

3. Liquor Demoralizes (v. 33). Alcohol is the handmaiden of immorality. "Strange women" come into the picture very quickly. They and the drinker soon find that drink sets them free from the limitations of decency and good sense, and the result is beyond description.

Those who defend liquor, or temporize with this problem, may as well recognize that they are encouraging the moral destruction of our boys and girls. It is a terrifying responsibility!

4. Liquor Dulls Man's Senses and Dazes Man's Mind (vv. 34, 35). Only a fool would lie down to sleep in the midst of the sea, or on top of the mast of a ship, or in the gutter, or against a lamp post. That's what drink does for a man.

His perceptions become so dull that he can be beaten, and he does not know he has been hurt. Exposed to inclement weather, he knows not enough to seek shelter. His money is lost or given away without concern on his part.

And when he sobers up—what then? His faculties are so dazed that he can think of only one thing to do, and that is to seek more wine. What is it that Scripture says about the dog and the fool? (See Prov. 26:11).

III. Wine Is a Destroyer (Matt. 24:45-51).

We have already touched on that point in its personal application, but now we see it in its bearing on his occupation and standing in the community.

The contrast is between the good servant who recognizes that his one and constant obligation is to serve, whether his master is present or absent, and the evil servant who violates his trust.

Notice that his first thought after cruelty to his fellow servants is to satisfy his appetite "to drink with the drunken."

Cruelty, mismanagement, unfaithfulness are tied up without question with drinking. Is it not so today? If you doubt it, read your daily newspaper. Why trifle with anything which keeps such evil company? You may find yourself mixed up with them beyond your ability to get free.

The final result is the loss of his position and of his life. Who will deny that this aptly states the end of the drunkard's way. But someone says: "I do not intend to be a drunkard. I only take a social drink." That is the way the drunkard started. Why begin to travel that road?

MAY 30 NAMED AS RURAL LIFE SUNDAY

The Kentucky Rural Church Council announces that May 30 will be observed as Rural Life Sunday. Both rural and city churches have been asked to place special emphasis upon the meaning of Christianity for rural life, on that Sunday. Some churches make it a day for dinner on the grounds. In other instances country and city pastors exchange pulpits that day. Local farm organizations, such as 4-H clubs, the Farm Bureau and Future Farmers, sometimes take prominent parts in services. Rural Life Sunday is the fifth Sunday after Easter.

SHARE WASTE FAT WITH UNCLE SAM

If you can't give all of your waste fat to Uncle Sam, at least share it, is the urgent appeal of Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work. Many thrifty Kentucky homemakers have long been in the habit of making soap at home. Worthy as such a practice is, it means that the glycerine contained in the fat is lost, instead of being used for powder, nitro-glycerine and dynamite. Approximately 10 percent of waste fat is glycerine. It is emphasized that fat salvage is more than a campaign; it is a program which homemakers are urged to carry on day after day, as long as the war lasts. Every tablespoonful helps.

MOTHER HEN STILL GOOD CHICK RAISER

In Greenup county where chicks are hard to get, Mrs. W. C. Sherman is well on the way to meeting her record of last year when she raised 250 baby chicks. Now, as then, old Mother Hen is her hatchery. Last month, Mrs. Sherman sold 36 hens and five roosters for $71. To further help in food production, she is milking six cows this year instead of four, and she plans to put up more than the 500 quarts of fruits and vegetables canned last season. Mrs. Sherman is a leader in her homemakers' club and for five years has been present at every meeting.

SUGAR PROMISED FOR HOME CANNING

The Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics has been informed that sugar will be available for home canning this season on about the same basis as last year. No deduction of blue point stamps will be made from War Ration Book 2 for sugar obtained for canning.

Last year, housewives applied to their local rationing boards for allotments of sugar on the basis of one pound for each four quarts of fruit that it was planned to can, and, in addition, for one pound for each member of the family. Roughly the same pattern will be used to give home-canning sugar allotments this year, the college was informed.

MARKED BONDS FOR HOME IMPROVEMENT

That war bonds be ear-marked for home and community improvement, so there will be work for the boys when they return from war, was proposed to about 2,500 members of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers, at six district meetings this spring.

The contribution of farm women to the war effort was the central theme of discussion at all meetings. Farm women are producing vast amounts of food, doing Red Cross work, helping in the school lunch program, and in many instances taking the places of men in the fields and in other work.

Some idea of what English women are enduring was brought to the Kentucky homemakers by Miss Hilda Beal of York, England, a speaker at all meetings. Other speakers were Mrs. Ralph Scearce of Shelbyville, president of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers, Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work, and Miss Mena Hogan, of Washington, regional field agent in home demonstration work.

U. K. SUMMER TERM OPENS JUNE 14TH

"A summer quarter planned to meet every immediate and practical demand of the war, at the same time retaining the essential integrity of its liberal and professional schools, in order that it may broaden the social understanding, intellectual power, good will and tolerance of its students," has been announced by the University of Kentucky in its summer quarter bulletin.

The summer quarter at the University will be divided into two terms the first term to open June 14 and continue through July 21, and the second term to open July 22 and end on Saturday, August 28.

The schedule is tentative, and the University reserves the right to withdraw courses for which the demand proves to be slight or negligible.

Classes during the summer quarter will begin at seven a. m. and each period will be for one and one-quarter hours. Housing arrangements for summer quarter students will in no way be interrupted by the advent of the army units on the campus, and adequate housing and boarding facilities will be provided for all civilian students entered in the University's summer school.

U. K. TO CONDUCT EIGHT SUMMER WORKSHOPS

Eight summer workshops for Kentucky teachers will be held by the University of Kentucky this year in Breathitt, Daviess, Estill, Harlan, Jackson, Leslie, McCreary and Pulaski counties, for the purpose of giving the teachers in those areas an opportunity to build programs around the immediate educational needs of their own counties, and at the same time to obtain University credit for their work.

This is the second summer the University of Kentucky has sponsored such a project, and the three workshops held last year, in Harlan, Jackson and Estill counties met with such marked success that many more demands than the University could supply this summer, have come in from other counties for the establishment of similar projects.

Each workshop will last six weeks, and students attending will obtain nine quarter hours of college credit for their work. It has been set up so that teachers in neighboring counties, who find it feasible to reach these centers, may also enroll for the work. Each workshop will be under the direction of a member of the University staff.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

At least half the corn planted in Hancock county will be hybrid seed, the Farm Bureau having sold double the amount of a year ago.

Muhlenberg county poultrymen purchasing chicks from disease-free hatcheries had a low death-rate, while others had many losses.

In April, 126 first-aid kits were equipped by homemakers in Garrard county.

During the past month, 107 Green county farmers placed orders for 12,000 bushels of government wheat.

Cabbage and alfalfa salad, a good source of vitamins, was included in the menu prepared at Todd county homemakers' club meetings.

Gayety Theatre

SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Henry Fonda has had many inspiring roles, but none will top his latest in "Immortal Sergeant."

Critics have taken full cognizance of the fact that Fonda's portrayals in "Jesse James," "Drums Along the Mohawk" and "The Grapes of Wraght" are tops in filmland. But they insist that his work in the filmization of John Brophy's outstanding novel is the best that he has ever done. Which will give fans a lot to remember, for the film is Fonda's last for the duration as a civilian—he's in the Navy now.

TUESDAY (Double Feature)

A capable cast of screen favorites is seen in the top roles of RKO Radio's "Army Surgeon," a stirring drama of life in an underground battle-field hospital. Jane Wyatt is seen as a young woman physician, who enlists as an army nurse. Kent Taylor has the role of a daring combat flier who feigns injuries in order to be near the girl he loves. James Ellison plays the title role, that of a courageous medical officer who insists upon carrying on under fire in order to save a higher percentage of lives than if he worked back of the lines in safety.

Backgrounds for the action include air- land and sea battles of two World Wars.

Plus

Jane Frazee, who studied ballet for twelve years and never danced a professional step, presents a terpsichorean routine in Universal's "Moonlight in Havana," one of the pictures of a double bill at the Gayety, Tuesday. She "fronts" a chorus line for a theater sequence in the musical film in which she co-stars with Allan Jones.

Marjorie Lord, Don Terry and William Frawley are featured in "Moonlight in Havana."

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yeatey

The story of the Civil War has been told and all of us have read it or may read it in our school histories. Yet our school histories would become too voluminous if historians attempted to describe in detail the local happenings each of the 108 counties which had been previously established in our state.

The writer will attempt to give the reader a few of the chief events that applied to Boone County during the period of the Civil War.

Kentucky tried to remain neutral, but she finally abandoned this position and being a border State she became at once the recruiting station and battle ground for both North and South. So we find Boone County men enlisting in the Northern Army and also in the Southern Army. Yes, brothers in the same family pitted against each other in battle.

A great number of slaves escaped their master or were stolen and transported over the Ohio River and secreted for the absolute purpose of enlisting them in the U. S. Army for the sake of bounty of which they got a very small part and oftimes none. All these slaves who had left their masters were ordered arrested and enlisted in Kentucky regiments by the Provost Marshall of each county, also Gen. Burbridge ordered the arrest of a great number of prominent citizens of Boone County because they had been reported as having sympathized with the South. Several of these names will be quite familiar to some of the families of Boone to day: Dr. John Dulaney, Spencer Fish, Henry Terrell, Warren Rogers, Edmond Grant, James T. Grant, Julius Rouse, Geo. E. Rouse and the writer could mention many others.

Mr. Fish will be remembered as owning a great many acres of land west of Shelby St. in Florence. Dr. John Dulaney was a practicing physician who had a wide practice throughout Boone County during that period.

The writer will give readers a question and answer outline given by one of these men who was arrested. The conversation took place 45 years ago while splitting rails in the woods on Gunpowder hills and kept for this purpose.

CARE OF WOOLENS IS IMPORTANT HOME FRONT JOB

For each new service man there must be about 200 pounds of fleece wool for warm uniforms and blankets. Our country's wool supply is limited and imports are uncertain. So it's up to us at home to use wool clothing and household articles with care—make them serve us long and well.

Chief Axis-aiders in this war to preserve wool are the clothes moth and the carpet beetle. But their larvae don't eat into paper, can't stand bright sun, can't take some gases. You can kill them by washing wool in thick suds, sunning and airing your garments. You can give your wool further protection by using flake napthalene, paradischlorobenzene, mothballs, or a spray.

Don't and Don'ts

When you take good care of wool things, they keep their fresh, fluffy look, hold their friendly warmth, give longer wear. Do this:

Keep It Clean. Dirt and perspiration weaken, and may cut, wool.

GIVE IT AIR. A gentle airing blows stale odors away and lifts matted nap. Sunshine kills larvae, but may cause fading.

Mend It In Time. "A stitch in time" is a good rule.

Don't shock it. Sharp temperature changes shrink wool, harden it.

Protect It From Pests. Keep them down—and out.

Before storing wool for the summer, be sure it's clean and free from pests. Protect it from light and keep it dry and cool in a tightly sealed storage place.

For further information on cleaning, washing, pressing, mending and storing wool, write the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for the pamphlet "Take Care of the Wool You Have."

HEMP SEED PLANTED BY TOBACCO SETTER

Because fields were small and irregular in shape, many Kentucky farmers growing hemp for seed last year planted the seed by hand. However, planting was done successfully with hand jobbers, two-row corn planters, grain drills and tobacco setters.

A review of planting methods, made by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, includes all ways of planting, and gives plans for changing a tobacco setter into a hemp seed planter. Where proper changes are made the tobacco setter becomes an automatic hemp seed hill dropper. with only one man needed in its operation.

Interested farmers should write to the Agricultural Engineering department College of Agriculture, Lexington, for the circular called "Machinery for Planting Hemp for the Production of Seed."

Seed Grazing Crops Now, Will Help Avert Mid-Summer Milk Slump

By planting annual grazing crops now, farmers can help avert the usual mid-summer slump in milk production, says C. L. Hempfling, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the Boone County Soil Conservation District.

The crops most generally planted are soybeans, sudan grass, cowpeas, velvet beans, and pearl or cattail millet. Ample acreages of these crops used in conjunction with the permanent pasture will do much to improve summer grazing, the chairman stated.

He explained that when the average cow is turned on pasture in the spring, her milk flow increases. But by mid-summer, pastures have usually become exhausted and unable to supply sufficient grazing. Then milk production falls off.

By having such crops as soybeans, sudan grass, and so on, farmers can avoid the necessity of buying supplemental food while the permanent pastures are not producing. Any excess growth can be made into hay for winter feeding or plowed under as green manure. A cover crop should be planted immediately after the crop is harvested or plowed under. Balbo rye appears to do better than any of the other small grain crops in Boone county. This crop too, when sown early will give some winter pasture and an excellent spring pasture.

In making seedings, especially where you use a drill or disk in the small grain, you should seed on the contour, to prevent the small gullying.

BACK TO THIS?

Back to soot-scouring, an overheated kitchen and all of the other disadvantages of old-fashioned flame-type cooking? Not if you take proper care of your electric range! An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, so give your range the attention it deserves and it will serve you well for the duration!

..not if you take good care of your

Electric Range

POINTERS ON RANGE CARE

- Clean outside of range as you would a china plate. Wash, when cool, with warm soapy water; rinse and wipe dry. Never put cold water or cold objects on hot porcelain. It may crack or craze the finish.
- Avoid letting spilled foods harden on range. Food spilled on surface units should be allowed to burn off. Do not use stiff brush or sharp instrument.
- Scour pans under surface units daily to prevent burning-in of spillovers.
- Don't let utensils burn dry on surface units. The metal will melt and run into the coil and ruin it.
- To clean oven, wait until it cools, then remove units by pulling them straight out. Wash oven linings with warm soap and water, scouring charred spots with steel wool or thick mixture of powdered chalk and household ammonia.
- Never wash oven or surface units. Keep dripping rags away from units. Water may damage connections.
- Get oven units back securely after removing them for cleaning. If they are barely in receptacle, they may heat up, yet the electricity may be "arcing" and burning out the terminals
- Scour aluminum deep well cookers with steel wool and soap and water. Do not allow water to drip into the cooker unit.
- Do not heat porcelain enamel cookers before putting in fat, water or foods and do not allow to boil dry or subject to sudden changes in temperatures.
- Don't put an insulated cooker top in water or it will seep into insulation and warp cover.
- Have a serviceman check your range occasionally to see that it is "sitting level," units are operating satisfactorily and that wiring is in tip-top shape.

Out with the December sweepings of the 77th Congress went H.R. 7762, its revisions, modifications and amendments, bag and baggage. If this bill had passed it would have authorized the President to suspend federal laws at will, in whole or in part, "for the effective prosecution of the war," to give free movement of people, property and information into or out of the United States.

Formerly this Congress had given the administration everything it asked. H.R. 7762 was the first declined request from the President for a war measure. What caused Congress, at the year's end, to deviate from its unbroken record of granting all war legislation requested by the President? I have tried earnestly to get the truth, and I will report what I have heard.

Why the Change?

After talking with a number of congressmen and studying discussions of the measure in meetings of the Ways and Means Committee, I am satisfied that Congress has experienced a complete change of sentiment about passing out its legislative powers to others. I predict that bureau chiefs aspiring to make their own rules this year will be disappointed. Even those who have been doing so for ten years may encounter difficulty.

Many congressmen, without casting the least shadow of blame in the direction of the Chief Executive, claim that subordinate executives have used the President's influence to obtain, through legislation, powers which Congress did not want them to have nor imagined they would get. The President is busy every waking minute with numberless complicated problems of a world-wide war. Obviously he can't watch everybody. He must trust a great many people.

Fear Carte Blanche

Congressmen express belief, not without resentment, that some of the President's advisers have taken advantage of his preoccupation. They point to a series of disappointing experiences with laws requested by administration executives; cases where congressmen found quite a little difference between their understanding of a bill before it was passed and the uses made of it after it became a law. Consequently they are reluctant (not to say unwilling) to keep on giving a free hand to miscellaneous executives.

The price ceiling miff makes a good example: For some time, House members sensed an effort to force them to place legal price limits on food (products of the farm) without permitting them at the same time to fix an up-stop on wages—fruits of the laborer's toil. And finally, last September, Congress gave in, accepting assurances that the President would take care of Wages. Now certain congressmen complain that the law they passed is being used, not as administration men led them to believe when they voted, but quite differently.

Flouting the Senate

Then, too, there was the circumstance about salary limitations. Three times Congress had silenced with decisive vote, proposals to name a top figure for anybody to draw as a salary. Then an administration bill came along to give James F. Byrnes potent authority over payrolls. Some of its backers said the bill would not be used to lower existing salaries, but soon after passage, it WAS used for just that. Moreover the high limit was pegged at the very figure Congress had three times disapproved: $25,000.

Probably the most comment grew out of the construction of a certain building in Washington, D. C., after the Senate had refused authority to erect it. Subordinate executives used money obtained from one of the "blank checks" Congress had given the President, and built it anyway. Naturally the Senate is a little particular about who "goes over its head."

Congressmen Speak

May I present some hand-picked utterances? Rep. Gearhart of California said, "We have begun to lose faith in some of the promises made, in the light of what has transpired since." And, with reference to the anti-inflation bill, Rep. Disney of Oklahoma remarked, "We have learned a lot of things since we passed that bill that we did not know then, and which we do not like now."

Opposition to giving the President authority to suspend laws controlling the importation of undesirable food products brought representatives of 4,500 farm associations to Washington. This has strengthened the conviction of congressmen that they should retain all of the legislative powers of Congress.

A Still Worse Example

Probably the shoddiest suit of second-hand law making power, with which a bureaucrat was ever clothed, came with a law providing for re-negotiation of war contracts. It gives power, not to bureau chiefs alone. It permits thousands of auditors and other special clerks to exercise many authorities which the Constitution gives to Congress alone, even to break government contracts and revise prices as they please. I predict the authority of these underlings will be reduced sharply by the new Congress.

VERONA

This community is still having cool, damp weather and the farmers are behind with their farming.

The W. M. S. held their regular meeting at the Church Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Gertrude Brewster as leader.

Friends of Betty Jo Chapman, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Roberts will be glad to know that she is recovering nicely after having had a bobbie pin removed from her lung.

Mr. and Mrs. Lefty Shelter and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele and Mrs. Steele's little daughter were callers at the J. T. Roberts home, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stewart, of Patriot, Ind., have purchased the Jack Code property.

This community congratulates our two graduates of the Walton-Verona School along with those of Walton, Miss Mary Blanche Webster and Elmer Richards. Especial congratulations to Mary Blanche for being Valedictorian.

Mrs. A. T. Hunt and son Albert visited her sister, Mrs. Bud Hamilton and Mr. Hamilton, of Winchester, last week.

Friends of Mrs. Kate Ryan will regret to hear that she is at St. Elizabeth Hospital awaiting an operation some time this week.

SIMPLE WAY TO HAVE MORE EGGS

Here's a simple way whereby farmers and poultry keepers can produce the increased number of eggs wanted this year: keep a bountiful supply of clean limestone or oystershell before the hens.

Dr. W. M. Insko, Jr., head of the poultry section of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, says that this is all that need be done, in addition to what was done last year. Of course the hens must be fed well, housed well, and supplied with plenty of water.

But the biggest problem, as Dr. Insko sees it, is none other than keeping clean eggshell-building material at hand, where the birds can see it and get to it at will. Too often, he says, poultry keepers have the box in a dark corner, where the hens can't find it. Then, also, the limestone or oystershell often gets dirty, and it needs stirring up and renewing frequently.

Last year Kentucky farmers were asked for 15 percent more eggs: they put 30 percent more on the market. Now they are asked for a further increase. There are plenty of hens on farms, ready to produce the eggs, says Dr. Insko, provided they get the proper care. It is not a question of more hens or more feed, he believes, but rather the problem of giving the birds better care.

CONSTANCE HOMEMAKERS

The Constance Homemakers met at Mrs. Thomas Kenyon's for their May meeting with ten members, three visitors and the Home Demonstration Agent, Mrs. Moore, present.

The morning session was taken up by the regular routine of business. We were glad to have with us Mrs. Vernon Pope of the Burlington Homemakers, who gave a report on the District Homemakers' meeting held at Lexington on April 27th. She also gave the lesson on "Care for Electrical Equipment."

Mrs. George Kottmyer and Mrs. Elmer Peeno were appointed by by the president to serve on the nominating committee to select officers for the year 1943-44.

The major project training school will be held at Florence on May 26th at 11 E. W. T. Subject of the day will be "Stretching the Family Dollar."

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Peeno

Publicity Chairman.

KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB NEWS

Five hundred 4-H club members in Pendleton county will be carrying 805 wartime projects this summer and 150 members, or four times the usual number, raising poultry. The quota of 25 acres of castor beans will also be grown.

The Indian Creek 4-H club in Warren county has successfully carried a school lunch program. Each child brought a part of the week's food from home and 10 cents. All food was prepared by the club boys and girls.

It is expected that more than 300 club members will take advantage of the offer of the Laurel 4-H club council to supply each member with 50 chicks and 100 pounds of feed, to be paid for later with 12-week-old roosters to the amount of $10.35.

Eddie Schadler of Alexandria, Campbell county, had 450 chicks hatch about March 1 and is keeping them in a new brooder house with a brick brooder. There are 150 4-H'ers in the county who are raising poultry.

Six members of the Athens 4-H club in Fayette county are members of one family. They are feeding 18 calves and raising 500 chickens, in addition to growing a garden and being enrolled in canning projects.

Thirty-five 4-H members in Muhlenberg county are raising 2,000 chicks in cooperation with the Central City Commercial Club which also supplied 100 pounds of feed for every 50 chicks. At roasting size, roosters will be returned to settle the account.

William H. May A Candidate For Lieutenant Gov.

William H. May, the present Commissioner of Agriculture of Kentucky, has announced his candidacy for the office of Lieutenant Governor, subject to the action of the Democratic party in the primary to be held August 7th of this year.

Mr. May is a native of Prestonsburg, Ky., and a nephew of Congressman A. J. May, Chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee. May has been Commissioner of Agriculture for the past four years. Previous to his election to State Office he was affiliated with the Farm Credit Administration and the Federal Land Bank of Louisville, occupying the position of Farm Supervisor with that institution. He has been land appraiser for the Interstate Commerce Commission and various railroad companies throughout the southern part of the United States.

Mr. May was educated at Randolph Macon Academy at Front Royal, Virginia, and the University of Kentucky. He was married to Miss Betsy Simpson of Nicholasville and Madisonville in 1931. They have two children.

By virtue of his office, Mr. May is a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky; Chairman of the State Board of Agriculture; a member of the State Fair Board, and a member of the State Board of Veterinary Examiners.

WOMAN AND 20 ACRES SOLVE FOOD PROBLEM

How women can help in food production was demonstrated last year by a farm woman in Johnson county, Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Neal and their three children, 7, 8 and 13 years old, live on a 20-acre farm. Because Mr. Neal is engaged in work elsewhere, the business of farming as well as homemaking falls on Mrs. Neal.

When the farm was purchased it produced little. Last year, because of careful building of the soil with lime and phosphate, 100 bushels of hybrid corn were produced on two acres, six tons of hay from three cuttings were grown on one acre, another acre planted to hemp produced a crop worth approximately $114.

In addition there were a garden, berry patch and fruit trees, so that Mrs. Neal was able to put up 1,100 quarts of vegetables and fruits, "all home-grown with the exception of peaches."

Chickens did well, too. In January, 24 dozen eggs a week were sold, netting $51 above feed costs. In February the culls were sold, bringing a profit of $81 for poultry and eggs. Mrs. Neal, who hopes to increase her wartime flock to 500 this year, now has 90 laying hens and 240 five-week old fryers.

With three cows, there is always an ample supply of milk and butter.

Although an additional 10 acres for wartime production will be farmed this year, Mrs. Neal is not worried about the labor situation. Except for the help of a 14-year-old boy, and a man to do the plowing, she will, as last year, do the disking and dragging of the fields and then the seeding.

The Neal home is equipped with electrical conveniences and running water. Using a pressure cooker, Mrs. Neal cans in the basement.

With all her farm and home work, Mrs. Neal finds time to sew for her three children, with the assistance of the 13-year-old daughter. This mother is also active in community affairs. For the past four years she has been a 4-H club leader, she is secretary of both the county homemakers' club association and her own local homemakers' club and is president of the parent-teacher association.

A 4-H club victory garden contest in Woodford county is being sponsored by the Versailles Chamber of Commerce with the county newspaper cooperating. Prizes amounting to $80 will be distributed among seven districts.

I KNOW THY CONGRESS

By DR. GEORGE S. BENSON

President, Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

(Editor's Note: Dr. George S. Benson is the president of Harding College of Searcy, Arkansas, a co-educational institution noted for having no unemployed graduates. Dr. Benson found himself catapulted into the headlines in 1941 when he appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee, and Senate Finance Committee, and offered a concrete plan for cutting non-defense expenditures by two billion dollars. Self-reliant Harding College students recently hit the headlines when they asked the National Youth Administration to accept the return of funds allotted to them, requesting that the sum be invested in "tools for MacArthur's men.")

Are you critical of Congress? I was before going to Washington and having direct experience with various Congressional committees.

For years I read the good-natured wise cracks of Will Rogers about Congress. I also read numerous other articles which deliberately criticized Congress. Then I watched the aggressive executive branch of the Government making ever greater and more detailed demands of Congress, and finally found myself wondering whether Congress was still a capable, independent, representative law making body.

Having a measure of Scotch blood which has always given me considerable appreciation for the value of a dollar, I was also disturbed about the huge appropriations, which, from 1930 to 1940, averaged about $3 billion a year above National income, and which were creating an unfavorable background for a long hard war, which was evidently before us.

Putting all of this together made me wonder if there was not some truth in statements made by "cracker-barrel philosophers" to the effect that Congressmen were only a group of professional politicians, whose chief concern was keeping their jobs.

In May 1941, I decided to go to Washington and personally request the Ways and Means Committee of the House to reduce extravagant non-defense expenditures of the Government about $2 billion. While I knew that any private citizen had that right, I nevertheless started to Washington with grave misgivings. Why should that group of Congressmen be interested in me—an average citizen with only one vote. Moreover, I wanted to talk common sense, straight from the shoulder, and wondered if that would make them want to throw me out. Having bolstered my courage with a sense of public duty, however, I faced that august body, determined to speak my mind and take the consequences.

My turn came toward the close of a long weary day of hearings, and I was almost frightened to observe every member of the Committee following me closely, and apparently analyzing my every sentence. Having finished, I stood almost breathless, awaiting their reaction, and expecting criticism of my suggestions.

Then came the most astonishing moment in my life. Not a single question was asked or a single statement made for the purpose of confusing or embarrassing me. On the contrary, I was thanked for coming and the testimony was complimented. Sympathetic, intelligent, comprehensive questions were asked, demonstrating both their genuine deep concern in the general welfare of the Nation and their familiarity with economics and National budgets. They were thoroughly aware of the need for greater National economy, and interested in proper steps to achieve it.

That one experience completely revolutionized my opinion of Congress.

Three months later, I appeared before the Senate Finance Committee. Again I was treated with unsurpassed courtesy. My growing esteem for Congress was further enhanced.

Still more recently I appeared before a third group—a Senatorial subcommittee. This time one member of the group spent about an hour, apparently trying only to heckle, embarrass, confuse, or discredit me. His conduct was quite different from that of his colleagues, and I later found that he had not been elected at all. He was a recent appointee, who evidently had not yet become familiar with the dignity and honor which customarily characterizes the distinguished body of which he had suddenly become a member. He was the type I had heard so much about, the rare exception—not the rule.

During this most critical period in our history, national unity is of extreme importance. For the purpose of winning the war and protecting our National interests, it is imperative that Congress receive the respect and enjoy the confidence of the public to which it is justly entitled, and of which it is proving itself worthy.

In later articles I want to explain why I believe that Congress is the most important of our three branches of Government; why I believe a Congressional Committee is the best jury in the world; and why I believe a respected Congress is positively essential to the future of democracy in America. These statements will be proven by first hand factual information.

WITH OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

"Due to my recent change of camps, I am asking that you change my address to that mentioned at the close of this letter.

"We left Camp Gordon, Ga., yesterday, May 12, and landed here last evening. I have not had an opportunity to see anything here as yet. Of course we do not know just how long we will be here. In fact we were placed on the alert this afternoon. We might leave soon, but our mail will be transferred to us until we have ample time to change the address. We have been really busy today getting everything set up.

"Hope that you and the Mrs. are feeling good, and that everything is going nicely with the paper and the force. Give my regards to the gang. Pete, I really appreciate receiving your paper. It is always a thing that I look forward to each week. Thus my immediate notifying of my address change.

"Thanking you in advance for your immediate attention, I remain,

The following letter was received from Pfc. James O. Dudgeon, stationed at Vancouver Barracks, Washington:

"Dear Sir:

"Thanks a lot for the weekly copy of The Boone County Recorder. That is really a thrill to see that paper arrive each week. When one is so far from home it is just like meeting someone from Boone County.

I didn't know Private Hollis was in the 615th until I read about him in last week's copy. He is located just across the company street from me.

"I'm sorry I haven't written before, but the only excuse I have is that I have been very busy, but now that my training is almost at and end I will have more time to write, so tell my friends to write.

"Would you do me a favor by publishing Hubert Hollis address in the next copy so I could write to him. Thank you.

"As I said before, thanks a million for the paper, I really enjoy reading it."

We are sorry that we cannot give the address requested by Pfc. Dudgeon. If there is anyone in the county having this address please write Pfc. James O. Dudgeon, Co. D. 4th P. 615th Q. M. Bky. Bn., Vancouver Barracks, Washington.

"MOTHER"

As I sit here thinking of you mother dear,
I lose all sorrow, grief and fear,
Because I can look to heaven above
And see God, the greatest and mightiest man of love.
Although I've gone to do my duty,
I haven't lost the yearning for love or beauty,
Of the sweetest person I've ever known,
My mother, while up through the ages has grown,
To be the first to miss my presence while I'm gone.
Since I have come to serve Uncle Sam,
I know I am a better man.
I have no worries while I am here,
Because he feeds me and clothes me and lets me be near
The one and only God above
The greatest and mightiest man of love.
So mom don't worry for I'll be back
I will come in some day carrying my pack
You'll know the war is over,
I'll no longer be a rover.
I can sit at home and think of the day
How much money I would draw that day;
I can tell my children to banish their tears,
And think of God and how He brought me through,
Then they'll turn to Mom and say,
"Is it true?"
Mom still remember and don't forget
Your son loves you as always,
But yet God is our God as much as ever
And we will worship Him together forever and ever.

Your son in the service,
Pvt. Leslie I. McMullen.

Town And Farm In Wartime

What Is "Home-Canned?"

Foods are "home-canned," says OPA, if—(1) they have been canned in a kitchen primarily used for the preparation of meals, or to demonstrate the preparation of meals; (2) they have been canned in a separate building or shed, which a farm home has equipped for canning purposes, provided that the owner has first obtained permission from his local ration board to use such facilities.

Farm Meat Regulation

New meat-rationing regulations provide that a farmer and his family may consume meat raised on any farm he owns or operates, and may transfer meat from one of his farms to another to provide food for members of the household, without giving up ration points, even if the meat is not slaughtered on his farm. However, if the farm owner does not live on a farm, he must give up ration points for any meat he consumes elsewhere. Under the original regulations, a farmer who brought his own cattle to a custom slaughtering plant had to surrender red point stamps for the meat, while, if he killed and dressed the animal himself, the meat was "ration-free." A farm or ranch employer who feeds his employees in a bunkhouse or dining hall may now use meat and other rationed food raised on his farm on the same basis as if the employees were fed in the household.

Sugar Allowed For Canning

Sugar for home canning will be limited to one pound for each four quarts (or eight pound) of the finished product and may be secured on written application to the housewife's local board. Each person is allowed not more than 25 pounds. Any family can apply for sugar to put up jams, jellies, and preserves at the rate of five pounds per person. Last year, sugar for preserves was limited to one person per pound.

Ceilings Set On Market Basket Foods

Maximum prices now being established by OPA for the market areas of about 130 cities are expected to cover 80 percent of the foods in the family market basket by June 1. These maximums will be top prices in each principal city and its "market area," which the district offices of the OPA have defined. By June, the OPA expects to complete prices for the first 160 cities and then undertake the same job for other localities. Community-wide top prices are intended to simplify regulations for the storekeeper and the housewife and to make the consumer a partner in the enforcement of wartime price ceilings.

Less Points For "Farm Butter"

Some grades of "farm butter" may be reduced in point value to prevent waste or spoilage, as a result of an amendment to the meats-fats rationing regulations of OPA. "Farm butter" or "country butter" usually is produced in small quantities by farmers and sold locally. Since it is not of uniform quality, it is considerably more perishable than commercially produced butter. The amendment empowers the OPA regional directors, when authorized by the Washington office, to deal with local emergency cases.

Overseas Parcel Post

Packages may now be mailed to a soldier overseas if a request is received from the soldier and the envelope bearing the APO cancellation mark is presented at the time of mailing. Formerly, the approval of the commanding officer was required. Current restrictions as to weight and size of packages remain in effect.

Fight Potato Black Market

OPA investigators are being sent into major shipping centers of the early crop of white potatoes, and into approximately 30 of the country's principal terminal market areas in an effort to prevent black market practices. Maximum prices for country shippers of early crop potatoes in the south and southwest range from $2.00 to $2.50 a hundredweight, except for Florida where the maximum is $3.10. Some arrests have already been made.

Farm Machinery Rationing

At their discretion, state war boards can now cancel county quotas on any or all types of farm machinery according to revised farm machinery rationing order issued by the War Food Administration. If a state board exercises this authority, farmers will be required to locate the machinery they want to buy before they are given a purchase certificate. Furthermore, county farm rationing committees may set the expiration date of purchase certificates any time between 10 and 60 days after issuance, or may cancel the certificate after the holder has had a reasonable time to buy the specified machinery.

Must Carry Draft Cards

Selective Service registrants who were 18 years old on or before November 13, 1942, must have their local board classification cards (Selective Service Form 57), as well as their registration certificate (Form 2), in their personal possession after May 13. Men without both cards are liable to fine and imprisonment, Selective Service headquarters warns.

Freight Rates Reduced

More than $350 million will be saved annually by a reduction in railroad rates that goes into effect May 15. In most cases, the savings will be reflected automatically in reduced prices through the operation of existing maximum price regulations. Added to current actions to roll back the cost of living, these freight reductions will contribute substantially to the prevention of inflation.

Twine and Rope for 43 Harvest

Farmers can expect reasonable supplies of hay rope, binder twine, and other cordage for harvesting their 1943 crops, the War Food Administration has announced. However, farmers are warned to buy only what they actually need and to conserve supplies now on hand. Many substitute materials are being used and supplies will require more careful handling than in the past.

Gas For Furloughs

Members of the armed forces on leave or furlough for three days or more may get a special gasoline ration (up to five gallons) for personal errands when other means of transportation are not available. The ration is obtained by presenting pass, leave, or furlough papers to a rationing board.

Oil, Coal, or Wood

A householder no longer has to prove that his oil-burning furnace cannot be converted to coal or wood to get supplementary fuel oil rations. Formerly, extra rations were denied unless this proof was presented, although basic rations have been provided regardless of convertibility. There will be no charge in basic rations procedure. It is still necessary that other than household users convert to coal or wood whenever possible.

Cotton Hosiery

Here's what your full-fashioned cotton hosiery will be like according to recent WPB specifications. (1) Length not to exceed 30 inches; (2) Length of welt no more than 3½ inches; (3) not less than 16 stitches to the inch for seams; (4) no more than four colors for any one style during each six-months period; (5) no more lace bands, lace stripes, fancy designs or numbers in the welt or after-welt. Full fashioned rayon hosiery must now have cotton reinforcement in the toe.

Save Feed Proteins

Livestock and poultry raisers are urged to conserve livestock feeds, especially those of high-protein content, by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Feed manufacturers are voluntarily limiting the proportions of proteins in various types of feeds, and farmers or ranchmen who mix their own are asked to do likewise. They are also requested to conserve purchased protein by liberal feeding of grain and nutritious roughage. Poultrymen are advised to make no further expansions in commercial broiler production, to maintain a balance between feed and feed needs.

Ham Prices Reduced

Maximum retail prices for all parts of processed hams (bone-in) and processed picnic hams, have been reduced from one to three cents per pound by OPA. One-third of a ham may now be sold in slices, to accommodate consumers who do not have enough points to buy a larger piece.

Hearings on Gas Rations

New rules permit local war price and rationing boards to conduct hearings to revoke gasoline rations if—(1) The motorists is charged with speeding (driving over 35 miles an hour); (2) The motorist is charged with abuse of his tires; (3) An applicant for a new gasoline ration is believed to have committed a previous violation; (4) A ration holder charged with a violation demands return of his book before a written notice of hearing can be sent him.

Save Typewriter Ribbon Spools

Saving typewrtier ribbon spools will postpone the day when ribbons must be wound on wooden "carriers" says WPB. All materials for ribbon spools are scarce and substitutes for steel—such as paper—have not proved satisfactory. Typists are asked to turn in a used spool when buying a new typewriter ribbon.

War Alarm Clocks at $1.65

The new war alarm clock will be sold for not more than $1.65 exclusive of tax. WPB is allocating materials for 1,700,000 of these clocks to ease a national shortage.

Letter Sent Seniors By Former Principal Now In U. S. Army

The following letter was sent to the Seniors by Edwin Walton and read to the class on Commencement night:

"To the Class of 1943:

"First of all I extend to you congratulations. I congratulate you, not only upon your graduation but in addiiton, for your perserverence in continuing to a satisfactory end your high school work in spite of many temptations existing today. The determination you have shown in bringing your present job to an end will, no doubt serve you well in the times ahead. Be careful not to lose this determination for it must be at the heart of every effort we put forth in the present struggle if we are to bring it to a satisfactory close.

"Although it would be easier and a lot more pleasant on my part to tell you these things personally, that, as you know is impossible. However, as I write, each of your faces stands out as vividly in my mind as if I were with you.

"Just now I see V. D. who smiles whether mad or glad. I can't turn your tassel "John" but you know I'd like to. Just keep smiling for Uncle Sam as you did for me.

"Now there's Mayme. I know you didn't like physics one bit but you did a good job in spite of your dislike for it. That's a good trait in you. My personal 'good wishes' to you.

"Next comes well-dressed Nelson. How are you going to like it when you have to pack all of your best uniforms in a duffle bag over night and then next morning, stand inspection in them, wrinkles and all, before the scruitizing eyes of a Major? Nelson, I'll always remember your dependability as an outstanding trait. This quality, together with your 'good looks' should insure you a pleasant future.

"What is that I hear? Oh! Yes, it is Sally just talking, talking, and talking. Don't you ever tire of it Sally? Laying all jokes aside, there seems little advice I can give you. Evidently you always made a well-planned course and followed it for I cannot remember a single big mistake you ever made. Be careful of a let down and don't let your first big mistake discourage you. Congratulations on a job well done, Sally.

"Then there's Clifford who just takes things in stride without any show of effort. How much I would like to shake your hand tonight Clifford. To the little boy with the big voice, I wish all the luck in the world.

"There is one senior who has my sympathy and that is you Dorothy. The chewing gum shortage hurt us both, but I can get two packs at a time here and I doubt if you can get any. How you must miss your Dentyne. I feel sorry for you in that respect but am happy for you in that you graduate tonight. Good luck!

"Hello Mildred! You are the girl who could take it on the chin and come back smiling. After all, wasn't it worth it and aren't you glad you saw your job through to a finish? In spite of all the hard work I'll bet the pleasant memories far outnumber the unpleasant ones. Yours is another hand I would like to shake in recognition of your accomplishment, but I'll have to substitute with a brief 'congratulations.'

"Londalea, it wasn't so bad after all, was it? You know, that old school work that you always wished was over. Now that there will be no class rings, invitations, and class plays to fret over, what will take their place? Don't worry, something will come along to take their place. After all your bark was always worse than your bite for I always knew I could count on you to do a good job when you were called on. Thanks for everything you did for the school, and congratulations also.

"Goldie, someone had to be last, but it was not intentional that you were placed there. Remember dessert always follows the regular meal. I do hope that your trials as a senior haven't erased that ever-present smile from your face. Honestly, why don't you join the WAACS and give the boys a treat. My best wishes also go to you at this time.

"Now to the teachers and Mr. Norris. I know that you have completed a very successful year's work. You were doing well when I left and I know each of you well enough to predict that you would never think of letting down. You also are to be congratulated on giving your all to this group of youngsters in a time when they need all the training and encouragement that was yours to give.

"In spite of the seeming monotony and difficulties of your work with this group don't you think they are a fine lot of kids? I always thought so. I believe in them so much that I am sure their later success will prove a reward for your efforts.

"I now make a request of each of you present. So far this letter has been one well-wishing on my part. From now on the reverse will be true. No matter how busy each of you becomes surely you can continue to remember me in your prayers. I have the assurance that you have done this in the past but it will mean a lot to me to know that you are remembering me thus in the future.

"My best wishes to each of you,

"Sincerely,
SKEETS".

HOMEMAKERS GIVE TIME TO WAR WORK

Homemakers' clubs in Fayette county salvaged 1,039 pounds of fat and 1,434 pairs of silk and nylon stockings during the past three months. One member reported turning in 76 pounds of grease. Working two at a time, homemakers work daily at the county ration office to direct people and answer inquiries. When War Ration Book 2 was issued, homemakers gave approximately 218 hours of their time to this work. The making of afghans is another wartime activity in this county, 21 having been made for Darnall hospital in the past month. One club not only made 15 of the laprobes, but completed 61 comforts as well.

The Great Toe

N. TULCH

Foot Comfort Specialist at—

PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE

814-816 Madison, Covington

Did you know that the great toe supports the entire weight of the body for an instant, in the last act of walking?

The foot muscles acting upon the four lesser toes preserve the balance of the body, by causing the toes to grip in the shoes, and in the last act of walking to give the final spring, or "take off." By their attachment the toes flex at their first (holongel) points and extend at their second and third joints, so that the ends of the toes are pressed upon and grip in standing so as to form powerful propelling levers as the body swings forward upon the toes.

Now, take off your shoes—and look at the bottoms of your toes. In every case (there are few exceptions) you will see where the fleshy tissue on the bottom ends of the toes come to a point, from being forced tight together and in many cases the toes themselves lap over one another. This is positive evidence of ill fitted and ill shaped shoes. This continued distortion of toes in many cases leads to bunions, Hommar toes and other toe defects.

Lack of balance will cause you to walk incorrectly and create strain in other parts of the body, inducing fatigue, pain and more misery, NOT ONLY in the feet, but even in the back of the neck and headaches. Resolve right now to correct this condition.

It costs you nothing for a thorough analysis of your foot problems and difficulties. Remember you can't be HAPPY with UNHAPPY FEET.—Adv.

BURLINGTON R. 2

Sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Fannie Gaines. We extend sympathy to the family.

Word was received from Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ryle that they are located at 4949 Cedar Ave., Relay, Md.

Glad to report Dave Caudill able to be out again.

Kermit Mallicoat's children have three-day measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Williamson and daughter were in Covington, Saturday.

Mrs. Wm. Kruse has returned home from nursing her daughter, Mrs. Orville Hodges of Indiana, who has had the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cook spent the week-end with home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee McNeely and son and Mrs. Rena Presser were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Presser.

Bro. and Mrs. Sam Hamilton were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cam White at the farm.

HOME-MADE DRIER TO HELP PRESERVE FOOD

A home-made vegetable and fruit dehydrator or drier designed at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station should help families dry the products of their victory gardens, where there is electricity. It is a box-like affair of easy construction which uses electric light bulbs for heat and a small fan to circulate hot air through vegetables or fruit placed on screen shelves.

The model made at the Experiment Station is 20 inches square and 30 inches high. On its eight shelves can be dried in 8 to 10 hours 19 pounds of carrots, 12 pounds of snap beans or a half-bushel of apples.

The dehydrator is not to take the place of canning, but can be used to dry corn, carrots, beans and other non-acid vegetables which are hard to can, and also apples and peaches.

MEAT CANNING BOOSTED

A total of 8,622 quarts of meat have been canned by 221 homemakers in Nelson county this year, reports Home Agent Florine Hurt. This is an increase of 1,138 quarts over the amount put up last year. Included are 223 quarts of liver, 390 quarts of beef and 288 quarts of chicken.

To keep cooking fats well, strain fat drippings to remove food particles and store in clean covered jars in a cool, dark, dry place until used.

COUNTY AGENTS TO HELP FARMERS IN SECURING WORKERS

Under provisions of a recent act of Congress, the Extension Service of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics is helping farmers find additional workers this season. Offices of county agents are being used as clearing houses where farmers can file applications for workers, and where men, women and boys and girls can offer their services on farms.

Cooperating with county agents, in the farm labor program, are local farm labor committees, local boards of defense, the United States Employment Service, the Farm Security Administration and other agencies.

Farmers are urged to try to determine how much help they will need, and when they will need it, and then file applications with county agents, or other agencies, as soon as possible. This will give the agents, and cooperating agencies, time to locate workers.

The State College of Agriculture has found farmers in eastern counties who have too little land to keep them busy all the season, and who might work for farmers in other sections. The college suggests that farmers exchange labor, trade hand work for machine work, and help one another to get certain jobs done.

National plan for recruiting farm labor include a U. S. Crop Corps of several hundred thousand men; a half-million non-farm youth, principally high school students, to be known as Victory Farm Volunteers; and possibly 60,000 women enrolled in a Women's Land Army. Workers also will be brought in from Mexico, the Bahamas and Jamaica.

The Clay county farmers' cooperative is making plans to grade its potatoes and sell them to the Food Distribution Administration.

Crittenden county will have an increase of 25 percent in the number of chicks raised this year.

THE GARDEN

VINE CROP INSECTS

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

Each year gardeners who grow cucumbers, squashes and cantaloupes observe that of the 6 or 8 seeds dropped in each hill, only a few make plants, and that of these few, still less stay alive long enough to produce fruit. On pulling up the dying plants the cause is seen, that all the side roots have been bitten off, only the aproot left. But, this injury is 4 to 6 weeks old, done when the first soil cracks were made by the first seedlings breaking through. The culprit is larva that hatched from the eggs of the cucumber beetles, laid way back then.

Inasmuch as the damage starts early, so must the control. And, because the injury is so sure to come, it is the part of good sense to anticipate it.

The best way to do it is to use a dust, made of 1 part of calcium arsenate and 15 parts gypsum, "fibre-plaster" obtainable of dealers in building materials. This dust is too heavy to put through most hand dusters, but it is sifted through a sack of tobacco canvas or other loose-mesh material.

Dusting should be begun when first the soil heavyes over the hills, a "blob" of dust placed. This serves to repel the beetles, and some of the dust drops down the soil-cracks as they are made. Three days later, another dusting is given, this time to fall into the cracks, down to the roots of the seedlings.

At least 3 more dustings should follow, always at the middles of the hills. By then, the cracks will have closed up.

Now, despite the care and thoroughness with which these 5 dustings have been given, some of the larvae will have escaped, to grow up into adult black-and-yellow striped cucumber beetles, to continue their kind of damage, which is gnawing the barks of the runners, causing them, or at least their tips, to wilt and die. Though this is serious anywhere on the plant it is much more so, occurring on the main stem.

To forestall it is to keep on dusting, 3 days apart, always at the center of the hill ,until at least 5 more dustings are given, or 15 days' protection. The dustings will not stop then, but 5 more may be given, or 10 more, to give in all 60 days' protection, and just that much more picking.

But, the time to start is just as the first seedlings begin breaking through.

STILL TIME TO PUT OUT HEMP FOR SEED

There is still time to plant hemp for seed, according to the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Information sent out earlier indicated that seed hemp should be planted up to June 1, and even later, and still make a good seed crop. It is a little more difficult to get a stand when planting is delayed. The seed should go in a little deeper, probably an inch or more, since the ground dries out rapidly in hot weather.

YOUR MEDICINE CABINET

Don't keep medicines on the same shelves with toilet articles such as toothpaste, hair tonic, mouth wash and nail polish. Doing so can result in tragic mistakes.

Don't save old prescriptions. Many drugs deteriorate with age, become actually harmful or too weak to be effective.

Don't choose your remedies by guess. You can't afford to gamble with health.

Do keep all medicines in a special place and high above the reach of children.

Do keep all poisons apart from other medicines and mark them well.

Do keep labels clean so they can be read distinctly.

Do consult your doctor to learn what emergency remedies he prefers.

Do keep your emergency medical shelf or cabinet clean, in good order and properly supplied. The list would include:

An antiseptic for cuts and scratches
A application for burns
A stimulant for fainting or shock
A laxative—for occasional use only
A tube of white vaseline
A roll of adhesive tape
A small box of absorbent cotton
A few packages of finger dressings
A few sterile gauze squares
A few gauze bandages of different widths (or clean white cotton cloth strips may be used if ironed with a scorching hot iron as they are rolled, and then wrapped in oil paper)
A pair of tweezers to remove splinters
A fever thermometer
A medicine glass
A medicine dropper or two.

DIRT PREVENTS ANEMIA IN PIGS

A statement published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics says pigs that develop anemia as a result of close confinement can be cured by turning them out on clean soil to eat dirt.

Confinement of newly born pigs away from soil for more than a week after birth results in low homoglobin content of the blood. This means anemia, a nutritional trouble characterized by wrinkled skin, dull, listless appearance, quickened breathing, rough hair and drooping ears and tail. In severe cases the pigs have respiratory convulsions and die.

Anemia is one of the important causes of pig losses during the suckling period. It is most commonly found in pigs which are confined in central farrowing houses or similar quarters for several weeks after they are born. Pigs that survive anemia are unthrifty and because of their lowered vitality they are susceptible to other diseases.

Anemia may be prevented in pigs by giving them access to clean sod, starting before they are a week old. The best plan is to have the sows and litters quartered on clean pasture so the pigs can get their noses into the sod as soon as they get out of the house. When the ground is frozen or covered with snow, throw a piece of sod free of round worms into the pen each day. The pig will nibble the sod and soil and thus obtain the minerals necessary for normal blood development.

If severe anemia has developed in pigs, the teats and udder of the sow can be treated with a solution of one pound of copperas (iron sulfate) and three pints of water. This solution also may be sprinkled on sod.

W. M. U. NEWS

The Women's Missionary Society of the Union Baptist Church held its regular monthly meeting at the church on Wednesday afternoon, May 14th, with 17 members present. We were very happy to have two of our most faithful members, Mrs. J. T. Bristow and Mrs. William Greenup back with us after long absences, due to illness.

The meeting opened at 2 p. m. with Mrs. Winston Mason president, presiding. "All Hail The Power" was opening hymn, with our Watchwords repeated in unison following. Opening prayer was offered by Mrs. Emerson Smith. Secretary's report was given followed by treasurer's report, which were good.

Mrs. Mason announced an appeal from the Glendale Orphan's Home of Louisville, Ky., for large napkins, bed linens and towels and other household items that are badly needed. This society voted to contribute bath towels of the 27x36-inch size to be brought in at our next meeting on June 9th.

This closed the business session and Mrs. J. A. Fothergill, program chairman took charge with the following members taking part from both The Commission and Royal Service: Mrs. Ray Newman, Mrs. William Greenup, Mrs. Sallie K. Hicks, Miss Lucy Newman, Mrs. Flora Mullins, Mrs. Myrtle Marshall and Miss Newman.

Hymns, "I Love to Tell the Story," and "More Like the Master" were sung with prayer offered by the the following ladies: Mrs. Pearl Blankenbeker, Mrs. Arch Rouse and Mrs. Myrtle Marshall.

Devotional was taken from Job 1:1-3; 13-22, 42:10 and was very ably brought by Mrs. Winston Mason.

We were dismissed with prayer by Mrs. J. A. Huey.

We sincerely hope it will be possible for every member, friend and visitors to attend our June 9th meeting and that each one will remember to bring their gift towels for our boys and girls at Glendale, for it is through sharing with others, that we ourselves may become more Christ-like.

Mrs. Sherman Friend, Pub. Ch.

BOOST PRODUCTION IN MONROE COUNTY

Farmers are enthusiastically behind the program to boost production in Monroe county, Kentucky, according to County Agent Justus Ellis.

Farmers formerly milking only enough cows to take care of home needs, are now milking from four to 14 cows. With 800 brooder houses and several hundred good laying houses in the county, indications are that the goal in poultry production will be exceeded. Dealers in hog feed report selling more than double the amount of feed usually sold. The live-at-home program as explained by neighborhood leaders is being well received in the county.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deep appreciation to our many friends for their kindness and thoughtfulness during our recent bereavement in the death of our dear mother,

Ella Getker

We also thank Dr. Nunnelley for his untiring efforts; Rev. Hauter for his consoling words; and Bullock and Catherman for the efficient manner in which they conducted the services.

BOONE AWARDED BOND QUOTA FLAG

IN RECENT ACHIEVEMENTS IN SECOND WAR LOAN DRIVE, RECENTLY COMPLETED—HONOR PENNANT ALSO AWARDED.

A. B. Renaker, County Chairman of the Victory Fund Committee in Boone County has just been informed that Boone County will be awarded the "Quota Flag" for having gone over its quota in the Bond Drive, recently completed.

In a special letter, M. J. Fleming, Chairman of the War Finance Committee for the Fourth Federal Reserve District, stated Boone County will also receive an honor pennant to be flown just below the "Quota Flag" because of our magnificient achievement in going over 150 percent of the non-banking quota assigned to this county.

The people of Boone County are taking considerable pride in their accomplishments in the Second War Loan Drive, and now that we are being awarded these two flags to be flown below the American flag in the courthouse yard, it will be a constant reminder that Boone County people on the home front are doing their part to back up our boys on the battle fronts the world over.

The two new flags are expected to arrive here this week, and it is hoped that the three flags will be raised daily in order that persons visiting our county will be able to note our accomplishments in this worthy cause.

Training School Is Held At Florence For Local Homemakers

At a major project training school held Wednesday, May 26 at the Town Hall in Florence, local leaders from Boone County Homemakers studied household economics under the subject "Stretching the Family Dollar." This timely project was conducted by Miss Ida Hagman, Specialist from the University of Kentucky, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, who made arrangements for the meeting.

During the month the Homemakers have kept records of all household expenditures and of home produced foods used by the family. These records will serve as a basis of study in seeking leakages of finances. The leaders will conduct the study at their local meetings during June. Visitors are invited to attend local meetings.

As an addition to the lesson, and a follow-up of the information given at clubs last month concerning the care of electrical appliances, Miss Hagman taught leaders how to rewire a lamp socket or replace a broken plug. This practical help will also be given to the local clubs.

4-H WAR PROGRAM WILL BE FEATURED

AT BOONE COUNTY SPRING RALLY DAY TO BE HELD AT BURLINGTON SCHOOL SATURDAY, MAY 29TH.

The 1943 4-H War Program will be a feature of the Boone County 4-H Spring Rally day to be held at Burlington school on Saturday May 29, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

D. H. Norris, County Superintendent of schools will address those attending the morning program on the subject "Boys' and Girls' Responsibilities in the War."

Rev. Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant, will discuss the boys' and girls' labor programs, the Women's Land Army, the U. S. Crop Corps involving non-farm youth and other features of the labor program.

The morning program will be devoted to group singing, group games, contests and 4-H club discussions. A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour. The afternoon program will be devoted to agricultural and home economics improved practice demonstration team contests, clothing girls' style revue, judging contests and other special events.

The public is cordially invited to attend and take part in the Rally.

Bureau Recommends Increased Machinery To Farmers In 1943-44

The Boone County Farm Bureau directors in a meeting at Burlington last Saturday went on record recommending that increased amounts of farm machinery be made available to farmers in 1943 and 1944. They also recommended that immediate steps be taken to relieve the acute market shortage of feeds including both corn and protein supplements.

The secretary was authorized to notify both the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation and the American Farm Bureau Federation on the above actions.

Directors and members present at the meeting recommended that the uniform county Farm Bureau constitution and by-laws be adopted by the local organization. Quarterly meetings of the directors to be held.

Farm Bureau directors attending the meeting were S. D. S. Ranson, Joseph A. Huey, J. C. Acree, George Heil, M. L. Presser, Charles B. Beall and John E. Crigler. Ben Bedinger and Will Smith, members were also present.

Mrs. Kathryn Griffiths

Requiem High Mass for Mrs. Kathryn Griffiths, Dixie View Lake Dixie Highway, Devon, was sung at St. Mary's Cathedral at 8 a. m. Tuesday. Burial was in Highland cemetery.

Mrs. Griffiths, 54, passed away Friday at Holmes Hospital, Cincinnati.

She is survived by her husband, William Griffiths; one brother and one sister.

REGISTRATION CLOSES JUNE 8

FOR ALL PERSON DESIRING TO VOTE IN AUGUST PRIMARY—PROMPT ATTENTION IS URGED.

C. D. Benson, County Court Clerk, stated Tuesday that all citizens of Boone County, who have not properly registered for the coming primary election to be held Saturday, August 7, 1943 must do so before June 8th.

There are many persons thruout the county who have changed their voting precincts or have reached the age of 21 since the last election that have not changed their registration and therefore will be unable to vote in the August primary.

According to Mr. Benson, many persons overlook their registration until a short time before the election and then are disappointed because they cannot participate in selecting the county and state officials. It is a state law that the registration books must be closed 60 days prior to the election, and all changes and new registrations must be filed before that time.

4-H Girls Prepare For Rally May 29th

Interesting costumes and practical demonstrations are getting finishing touches in preparation for the annual 4-H Spring Rally to be held at the Burlington School, Saturday, May 29, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, said today. Local 4-H leaders are directing these activities and will assist with the events at the Rally.

The Home Economics contests, which will be a side-line attraction of considerable interest, are scheduled as follows:

10:00 EWT.—Foods Judging, in cafeteria.

11:00 EWT—Clothing Judging, room to be announced.

9:45 to 10:30—Clothing Exhibit, club room.

1:00 EWT—Junior Demonstrations, auditorium.

2:00 EWT—Senior Demonstrations, auditorium.

3:00 EWT—Style Dress Revue, auditorium.

The public is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Norris and family and Mrs. Everett Kidwell, of Erlanger, attended the commencement exercises of Bethesda Hospital, Cincinnati, Monday night of this week. Miss Pauline Norris was a member of the graduating class.

WILL SMITH NAMED LABOR ASSISTANT

WILL ACT AS FARM LABOR ASSISTANT IN BOONE, KENTON AND CAMPBELL COUNTIES.

Rev. Will Smith, Burlington, R. 2 was appointed Farm Labor Assistant to the county agents' office of Boone, Kenton and Campbell Counties, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Mr. Smith will spend part of his time each week in each of the three counties assisting farmers in securing sufficient farm labor to plant, harvest and carry on their 1943 farm operations.

The Federal Farm Labor Program has been placed under the supervision of the Extension Service. The program is coming late in the year and will prove a most difficult one to conduct. However, the county agent's office is anxious to make the labor program of most help possible to the farmer.

Sheep shearing is the first project on which the new farm labor assistant began work on Monday morning in Boone County. It is estimated that there are approximately two hundred flocks in the county that are depending on commercial shearers to clip before June 15.

The labor program will include all phases of assistance including year round dairy hands, day laborers to custom machinery operations; farmers desiring to hire help, those who wish to hire out for farm work and all machinery operators who wish to do custom work are urged to register at the county agent's office at an early date. Let's all work together on this program in order to help plant, grow and harvest the largest amount of needed food products to win the war in the quickest possible time.

Rev. J. W. McAtee

Rev. J. W. McAtee, of St. Louis, Mo., died Monday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Owen Blankenbeker, of Union. He was 71.

Rev. McAtee, a native of Boone County was visiting at the home of his sister at the time of his death, and was planning to participate in the centennial celebration of Big Bone Baptist Church, May 30th.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Albert Leudcke, St. Louis, Mo.; two sons, John and James E. McAtee, both of Kansas City, Mo.; another sister, Mrs. C. E. McNeely, of Belleview; one brother, F. R. McAtee, Aurora, Ind., and three granddaughters.

The body was sent to St. Louis for services and burial.

Philip Taliaferro, Erlanger funeral director was in charge of arrangements.

Labor Program Will Assist Sheep Shearers

The Boone County Labor Program will assist custom sheep shearers and farmers in organizing their work, according to Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant.

Getting the county's 14,000 sheep sheared before June 15, is presenting a most difficult job. Most custom shearers are also farmers and the rainy season has put all farmers behind in their work. Again much of the hired help assisting in this work last year are either in the Army or doing other work.

The following men are doing some custom shearing and have agreed to cooperate in the county program: Lebus Stephenson, Walton; Brewster Bros., Verona; Roy Kinney, Beaver; Wilford Dixon, Burlington; Wendell Louden and Paul Presser, Burlington R. 2; and Melvin Kelly, Burlington R. 2.

Farmers desiring to have sheep sheared should contact one of the above operators. Those who cannot contact one of the above should notify the county agent's office stating whom they want to shear their sheep.

Other operators who would like to assist in the shearing work should notify the county office.

Most operators are charging from 30 to 40c per head for shearing.

Corp. Elf Hawn, of Ft. Riley, Kansas, spent a seven-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hawn.

PASTOR BIG BONE CHURCH

Rev. S. L. Branham

100TH BIRTHDAY WILL BE OBSERVED

SUNDAY, MAY 30TH BY BIG BONE BAPTIST CHURCH—NUMBER OF SPEAKERS WILL BE HEARD DURING DAY.

The 100th anniversary of the Big Bone Baptist Church will be observed at the church Sunday, May 30th, with services beginning at 10:00 o'clock C. W. T., according to Rev. S. L. Branham, pastor.

Speakers for the day will be as follows: Rev. J. S. Kirtley, Erlanger, Ky.; Rev. Robt. McNeely, Patriot, Ind.; Rev. Roy Jhonson, Burlington, Ky.; and Rev. Raymond Smith, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The history of the church from its organization until the present time will be read. The program will be closed in the afternoon by the dedication of the service flag for the twenty-nine boys from the church now in the service of our country. Rev. Branham urges that the parents, wives and relatives of these boys be in attendance as there will be reserved seats for them in the afternoon.

A cordial invitation is extended to members, friends, and all, and especially to the churches from which this organization was founded, and those which have gone out of this church.

Due to rationing, please bring lunch, which will be spread together on the table at the rear of the church.

Service Station Attendants Required To Check Ration Book

The Office of Price Administration urges all attendants to ask his customer to display their Ration Book, and windshield stickers and license plate before he serves them with gasoline in order to eliminate the black market in gasoline ration coupons. The OPA has rules for him to comply with and he is not doubting your honesty when he requests the above information before he pumps your gasoline. He is doing his patriotic duty in preventing unscrupulous persons to get gas he is not legally entitled to.

Berkshire-Tully

The marriage of Miss Roberta Ewing Berkshire, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Berkshire, of Norwood, O., to Lieut. Elmer R. Tully, formerly of Lexington, Ky., was solemnized at the Christian Church in Tampa, Fla., May 12th, with the Rev. Walter Carpenter, officiating.

Miss Berkshire was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. John M. Collins, Jr., of Lexington, Ky.

Kays-Kindall

Miss Virginia Tanner Kays, the granddaughter of Mrs. Mae Tanner and the late Harvey L. Tanner, and Mr. Ernest "Bud" Kindall, son of Mrs. Nancy Kindall and the late Will Kindall, formerly of Sparta, but now of Florence, were quietly married at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Harold Wainscott, of Florence April 24, 1943.

The attendants were Mr. Alex Schneider of Elsmere and Miss Geraldine Herrington, of Florence.

Mr. Kindall is now a Private in Uncle Sam's Army.

REGISTRATION POSTS NAMED

FOR RATION BOOK NO. 3—P.-T. A. ORGANIZATIONS WILL AID IN REGISTRATION WORK, ACCORDING TO DELLA B. DILS.

Applications for Book 3 are being distributed by your postman beginning May 20th, Mrs. Della B. Dils, Public Relation Officer of Board No. 8 announced this week. If there are people in Boone County having any difficulty in filling out these forms, your public relation officer is informing you that the following designated places have been arranged for your benefit: Post Offices in your local community, banks, neighborhood grocery or general stores, and all public school buildings.

Registration posts at public schools will be open Wednesday, June 2, Friday, June 4 and Monday, June 7th from 1:00 p. m. until 4:00 p. m. Mrs. Dils requests the now presiding president of the Parent-Teacher Association of each school in Boone County to contact her at Florence 106 for the instruction sheet to be used in each school. Mrs. Dils and your County Supefintendent, Mr. Norris, who have planned these arrangements feel that this will eliminate all delinquents in filling out the War Ration Book No. 3.

Mrs. Dils is appointing the P.-T A. president, chairman of their own school and she can arrange to have an assistant or appoint some one to take her place if she is unable to be present. Ladies this is a part of the Home Front we must carry on to help win this war.

All applications must be in the mail by June 10th.

Donaldson To Open Campaign With Radio Address June 1st

J. Lyter Donaldson, Democratic candidate for governor, will open his campaign in a radio address to be delivered from his home in Carrollton at 8:00 p. m. Central War Time Tuesday, June 1st. The address will be carried by WHAS Louisville, and a State-wide hookup of all other Kentucky radio stations.

In his initial speech to Kentuckians, Donaldson will confine his audience to radio listeners since there will be no one present in his home at the time except members of his immediate family circle. He will discuss fully the whole field of State issues in his opening address and will announce the measures he will advocate as a candidate for governor.

In announcing his plans, the Carroll county candidate said that his decision to open his campaign from his home is in keeping with the spirit of the times and that, as a family man, he desires to address other Kentucky families upon the problems of government which confront them today.

Donaldson resigned as Commissioner of Highways April 1st, after serving in that capacity since January 1, 1940. Shortly afterward he announced his intention to become a candidate for governor. Since relinquishing his post as Commissioner of Highways he has spent much of his time at his State headquarters at Frankfort in a factual study of the various departments of the State government.

Since the time during which Mr. Donaldson's address will be broadcast is not available on stations WCKY, Covington, Ky., and WLAP, Lexington, Ky., the address will be rebroadcast over WCKY at 10 o'clock p. m., E. W. T., and WLAP at 9 p. m., C. W. T.

Piatts Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Piatt celebrated the coming wedding of Miss Virginia Malone of Park Hills and Mr. Joseph Von Lehman of S. Ft. Mitchell, Ky., with a dinner last Saturday evening at the Piatt home near Walton. Others present were Miss Barbara Duer and Sgt. John P. Lockwood, of Covington.

Bullittsville Christian Church Will Conduct Fifth Sunday Service

In addition to regular services, the Bullittsville Christian Church will hold services on fifth Sunday morning, beginning May 30. There will be no evening service on the fifth Sunday.

New Service Roll Board Will Be Rededicated At Florence Soon

The Florence P.-T. A. have assumed the responsibility of repainting, redecorating and inscribing names up-to-date on the Florence Service Board. The board at this time is being revised and a rededication ceremony is expected to be called for in the very near future.

When completed the board is to be erected again in the corner of the yard of Mrs. Virginia Goodridge who has so graciously consented to the usage of this spot.

Recently installed officers of the Florence P.-T. A. are as follows: President, Mrs. Geo. Morith; vice president, Mrs. Chas. Popham; secretary, Mrs. Ruby Bradford; treasurer, Mrs. Charlotte Wilson; historian, Mrs. Owen Martin; auditor, Mrs. B. M. Stephens; membership chairman, Mrs. Robt. Horton; program chairman, Mrs. Sarah Markesbery; publication chairman, Mrs. O'Hara; publicity chairman, Mrs. Bill Lotten; health chairman, Mrs. Robt. Eastman; music chairman, Miss Dorothy McHenry; child welfare, Miss Cora Lutes; hospitality chairman, Mrs. Louella Huston; card chairman, Mrs. Roy Adams; parlimentarian, F. D. Caton; refreshments, Mrs. Andy Ward.

Labor Committee Named

A County Labor Commtitee has been appointed to assist in planning and advising on a county labor program, according to Will Smith, County Labor Assistant.

The committee is composed of C. L. Hempfling, H. E. White and Joseph H. Huey.

WOOL GROWERS URGED TO USE CARE

IN SHEARING AND HANDLING 1943 WOOL CLIP—GOOD PRICE OBTAINED FOR COUNTY POOL WOOL.

Boone County wool growers are urged to used care in the shearing and handling of their 1943 wool clips, according to H. E. White, president of the county pool. The county pooled clip has been sold for a good price. Nothing makes more for satisfaction of both the buyer and seller than well handled wool.

The unusual long rainy period may cause many sheepmen to become impatient. The sheep should be sheared only when the wool is thoroughly dry and then it should be sacked and kept in a clean dry place. All tags, hay, straw and other foreign material should be removed before tying the fleeces up. Only paper twine should be used in tying as binder twine mixes with the fibers and injures the value of the wool.

A large part of the sheep this year will be sheared by hired help or commercial shearers. These men expect the farmer to have someone present to take the wool as soon as it is sheared. The handling job is and should be from this point in the hands of the farmer. Practically all pool members will take pride in seeing the wool is delivered in the best possible market condition. Those who have questions on handling their wool should contact their local solicitors, or the county agent's office.

Mrs. Sallie Carpenter

Mrs. Sallie Carpenter, 81, sister of W. T. Carpenter, of Burlington, passed away Sunday morning at 4:00 a. m. at her home, Owenton, Ky., following a paralytic stroke Saturday. She never regained consciousness.

Besides her brother she is survived by one niece and one nephew.

Funeral services were held at Owenton Tuesday at 10 a. m., with burial in Warsaw Cemetery.

FEDERAL RENT CONTROL

Have you rented a room to a tenant since March 1, 1942?

Anyone who has rented a room or group of rooms for the first time since March 1, 1942 must register by not later than May 31, 1943. Only three days remain! Such registration may be made at the Area Rent Office, 126 E. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio or at the Covington Post Office on May 31, 1943.

FLORENCE YOUTH RECEIVES CITATION

FOR BRAVERY—PARTICIPATED IN TEN-MAN RAID ON ENEMY SUBMARINE—SON OF HARRY TAYLOR.

Cpl. George E. Taylor, son of Harry R. Taylor, Florence, has been cited for bravery in action, according to a message from the War Department.

Corporal Taylor and nine other men took part in an attack on a submarine March 22.

According to the citation, lookouts at the post where Corporal Taylor was stationed saw the periscope of an unidentified submarine. Corporal Taylor and nine others under the command of First Lieutenant Clarence O. Hallberk, entered a tugboat and started for the submarine. They were armed with a .50 caliber machine gun. Their object was to force the submarine to surface, so it could be attacked by coastal guns, or cause it to depart.

The tugboat approached to within 300 yards of the submarine. Then the men opened fire, aiming at the periscope. The submarine submerged.

The citation was signed by Major Paul P. Hollyfield, commanding officer of Taylor's station.

Cpl. Taylor, 20 years old, enlisted in the Army shortly before the attack on Pearl Harbor and was stationed there when the Japs attacked. He attended school at Florence. His father is employed as an ordnance inspector in Muncie, Ind.

Ceiling Prices Placed On Used Equipment

The Office of Price Control has placed a dollars and cents ceiling on all used commercial motor vehicles (or trucks), used mechanical refrigerators and used domestic washing machines. These items are not being manufactured any more and it is absolutely necessary that the prices be controlled at consumer levels to assure an adequate distribution of the above used commodities.

The sale of the three above items is governed by special regulations, whether by private owners, dealers or reconditioners. It is suggested that you call your Local War Price and Rationing Board when there is any doubt as to the price that should be charged or any other information regarding these regulations.

Tire Inspection Notes

Second inspection of tires will be necessary on the following dates says Mrs. Dils: A Book by September 30; B Book by June 30th; and C Books by May 31. All commercial vehicles every 60 days or 5000 miles.

THREE PUREBRED BULLS PURCHASED

BY BOONE COUNTY FARMERS THIS SPRING—WILL HELP TO BUILD UP LIVESTOCK ON FARMS.

Three purebred bulls have been purchased in Boone County this spring, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent. Although the farmers are exerting every effort to produce more of everything that comes from the farm it is interesting to note that they are trying to maintain, and in some cases, improve the class of livestock on the farm.

Mr. Jesse Wilson has purchased a purebred Jersey bull, Royal Volunteer Oxford No. 42763. This bull comes from the P. B. Gaines herd at Carrollton, Ky. His dam, Volunteer Royal Queen, has a record of 8,853 milk and 455.9 butterfat. His sire, Royal Mighty Oxford, is a two star bull with a credible record in the showing

Mr. Grant Maddox has purchased a purebred Jersey bull from John Peterson at Lenor, Ky. This bull is bred for production and is a very good individual.

THE NEW FRONTIER

Every great war opens a new frontier. Prior to the first world war, the frontiers were geographic. The civil war was followed by the great westward trek of war weary men and women looking for new opportunities and a new life. With the close of the current conflict, at least a major portion of the new frontier, like that of twenty-five years ago, will be in the industrial field. But instead of automobiles, it will lie this time in the scientific development of the nation's natural resources. Research men of the coal, metal mining and oil industries, working quietly in laboratories surrounded by military secrecy, have lifted the veil of the future. They have seen the new frontier in all its promise, and enough hints regarding its nature and extent have leaked out to stir the imagination of the man in the street.

The miracles of the sulfa drugs, derivatives of coal, are just one phase of the coming revolution in discovery and research. Rubber synthetics are multiplying almost by the score, along with plastics and other materials, each of which can easily mean the establishment and growth of an entire new industry. Beyond these is a vast realm of discovery of which the public as yet knows nothing. There is a petroleum synthetic, for example, that is effective for its purpose even when diluted in a ration of one part in 100,000,000; it is handled in a "concentrate" of 91 per cent. The future will see 100,000-mile tires, 20,000-mile lubricating oil, 50 to 70-mile-to-the-gallon gasoline, and sealed cooling system with petroleum-product liquids in both cars and planes.

This country has just begun to grow. Individual initiative and the capitalistic system are inseparable from the American republic type of government. They have barely begun to flex their muscles. If the way is kept clear, they will make the past seem puny by comparison with the future. The way for future achievements can be kept clear only by a steadfast resolution that in this country government must not be the sinister competitor of free enterprise. This is as true of the natural resource industries as of the smallest popcorn stand. These industries hold the future of a new frontier. It will never materialize except by the efforts of free men under the stimulant of private ownership and management.

—o—

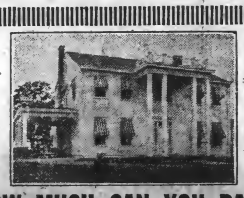
PATRIOTISM TO WHOM?

This country has just witnessed the humiliation of our government by American coal miners and their leaders, in war time.

There is no use trying to overlook the facts—the men walked off the job in defiance of requests of the President of the United States; they refused to go back to work at his request, and only returned to work on order from the head of their union.

This flagrant disregard of public welfare, and established agencies of government, was but one step removed from open revolution in war time.

And yet the head of the United Mine Workers, according to news reports of May 4, says to the men who struck: "Your record of patriotism can never be challenged."



—o—

NEVER TOO LITTLE OR TO LATE

The people have been so busy listening to political attacks on the electric light and power industry for many years past that some remarkable facts in connection with it have gone almost unnoticed.

For example, while wages have advanced to record highs since 1933 and living costs have jumped in proportion, the price of electricity has actually dropped 22 per cent in that period. There has been no rationing or shortage of electric power, as there has been of other commodities, in territories served by this outstanding private enterprise.

Commenting on this remarkable record, J. A. Krug, Director, Office of War Utilities War Production Board, said: "Power men, public and private, should be proud of the job that has been done in providing power supply. Power has never been too little or too late. There is today no shortage of power. This is in sharp contrast to the situation as to many other vital necessities . . . The job has been done with the minimum possible interference with the rest of the war program."

HOW MUCH CAN YOU PAY?

You know better than anyone how much you could afford to pay for a funeral service; hence the Chambers and Grubbs policy of marking costs in plain figures, and letting each family make its own selection, unhindered.
This policy has brought to our ears much appreciative comment; it is a permanent and highly commendable Chambers and Grubbs policy.

PETER'S COUNSEL TO SCATTERED CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 1:1; 2:11-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king.—I Peter 2:17.

Persecution for Christ's sake has been the lot of believers from the first century down to 1943. Sometimes it has been official, but more often unofficial, yet nonetheless severe and trying.

The manner in which Christians face their difficulties is one of the best testimonies to the reality of their professed faith. Sometimes, however, in the midst of their trials the enemy of their souls brings discouragement—and then they need the counsel and encouragement of others.

Such was the situation when Peter addressed his first epistle to the early believers who were scattered abroad (1:1). His counsel was just what they needed, and is equally helpful to us. They were to be

I. Separated As Pilgrims (1:1; 2:11, 12).

Christians are in this world but not of it. They are passing through, wayfarers on their way to the eternal dwelling place of God. That does not mean that they are not interested in the welfare of those round about them, or delinquent in sharing the responsibilities of life, but it does mean that they are to have the pilgrim's detachment from the things of the world and the flesh.

In the days of Peter, membership in the church was not considered a normal or respectable thing. It marked a person as belonging to a hated sect, one which was falsely accused of many evil deeds. For example, Christians met at night, men and women together for communion service. Because they spoke of this as a "love feast," they were accused of immorality, and because they spoke of the body and blood of Christ they were said to be eaters of human flesh.

Christians must meet such malicious reports. How? By silencing their accusers by their good works.

II. Submissive As Citizens (2:13-18).

One of the hallmarks of Christian character is willing and gracious recognition of proper authority, whether it be in the state, in the school, or in the home. He does this for the Lord's sake (v. 13), and even when that authority is in the hands of an unreasonable man.

This does not mean that the Christian is to encourage or countenance tyranny and oppression, but that he is loyal to the state and to his employer, even though the present representative be a hard, unjust man. In all well ordered society there will be proper and effective means to correct injustice. But in and through it all the Christian shows his faith by his behavior.

Observe that government, in the plan of God, is for the purpose of keeping order, encouraging the good, and punishing the evil (vv. 13, 14). The powerful influence of the Christian Church should keep it in that right channel, or bring it back if it has strayed. Always loyal and obedient, the believer should use his ballot and his personal influence to establish and support good government.

III. Suffering As Christians (2:19-25).

Christ is our "example" (v. 21). Since some have interpreted this word and the statement "that ye should follow in his steps" as indicating that we are saved by our imitation of Christ, it is well to point out that this would be quite impossible. We would have to begin where He began—He was without sin (v. 22). But we have all "sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). We need a Saviour—not an example as far as redemption is concerned.

In the ever present problem of suffering, we as redeemed ones do have Christ as our example. He who was sinless and without fault bore the shame and suffering of Calvary without complaint. When He was reviled He did not retaliate, when He was hurt He did not threaten revenge (vv. 22, 23), but was willing to leave the ultimate judgment in the hands of God, who will have the final word.

We ought to do the same when we suffer for Christ's sake. If we suffer because of our own sin or folly, we can claim no credit for bearing it patiently (v. 20). But when we have done well and then are persecuted, we have opportunity to show whether our profession of being followers of Christ really means anything. At this point some Christians lose their testimony and influence by a bitter, vengeful spirit.

These are trying days for the souls of men. In many parts of the world Christians are forced to drink the bitter cup of persecution. To the glory of God we record the fact that they are doing it heroically and in a true Christian spirit.

The awakening of China's teeming millions to battle against age-old oppression is the basis of a thrilling romance of intrigue and adventure, "The General Died at Dawn."

With Gary Cooper as a dashing soldier-of-fortune who links his fate with the oppressed, and with beautiful Madeline Carroll as the woman whose charms are used by a scheming war-lord to destroy him, "The General Died at Dawn" was based on factual background.

Enmeshed in the web she helped to prepare, Miss Carroll finds her admiration for her victim blooming into love. She offers her life in return for his freedom. But their destinies are worked out as they could be only in the modern, war-torn Orient.

The picture is more timely today than when first seen several years ago, with the war in China a front-page story every day of our lives. And Gary Cooper, who in "The General Died at Dawn" is acknowledged to have portrayed his most adventurous role, is more popular than ever before with the twin success of the past year "Sergeant York," and "The Pride of the Yankees" added to his impressive screen record.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY

The world's dumbest reporter cracks the biggest story of the year in Samuel Goldwyn's "They Got Me Covered," a hilarious spy comedy starring Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour in the top roles.

The exciting action takes place in New York City and in Washington, D. C., and includes a sensational kidnapping and a daring public murder by Axis agents. Although everything he does is wrong, the reporter, with the aid of a news-service girl who loves him, finally solves the crimes and rounds up the enemy criminals.

The supporting cast includes Otto Preminger, Edward Ciannelli, Marion Martin, Wonald Meek, Lenore Aubert and Donald MacBride.

TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

Simultaneously with her biggest break to date as the leading lady in Sol Lesser's "Tarzan Triumphs" comes Frances Gifford's opportunity to dance before the cameras for the first time.

For the sequences, beautiful Miss Gifford, who portrays the part of "Zandra" the jungle dances devised by the RKO Radio research department. As she is supposed to be a member of a lost Arab tribe residing in the African jungles, limitations were put upon the exact process of her dance. The final result was a weird and rhythmic bit of terpsichore that allows for full attention to her beauty, yet has the stamp of authenticity attached to it.

BLOCKS--READY MIXED CONCRETE--ROOFING

A Week of The War

Washington, May 21—While American land forces were sweeping back the Japanese on fog-bound Attu Island for a last-stand fight on the neck of the land between Holtz Bay and Chichagof Bay, American Air Forces roared thru the skies over Europe, Asia and the South Pacific to deliver crashing blows on Axis strongholds. The battle for Attu progressed stubbornly with two American columns forcing their way across the island from Holtz Bay on the north and Massacre Bay on the south. According to Secretary of War Stimson, American casualties were comparatively light up to the time the two columns joined on the central ridge for the attack on the man Japanese positions in the Chichagof Bay area.

Secretary Stimson also announced that several new U. S. Army Air Force units have recently gone into combat against Germany from Great Britain. At a press conference the secretary declared that the American air offensive against the continent is being stepped up not only in frequency of attacks but also in power of individual raids. He added that large numbers of the new American fighter plane, the P-47 thunderbolt, are now engaged in almost daily sorties. He said the thunderbolt—a powerful high-altitude fighter—was proving highly satisfactory in combat.

The net results of the coordinated use of air power in the Tunisian campaign was summaried in a War Department announcement last week. According to the announcement, in the 6 months and 3 days of the African campaign the USAAF and the RAF destroyed 2,000 enemy planes while losing 770 of their own. In the first 11 days of May alone, the score was 300 Axis planes down against 49 Allied planes lost—a ration of 6 to 1.

And from May 7, the announcement said, the enemy's air strength was almost at the mercy of the Allies, with the Axis losing approximately 11 planes for every plane the Allies lost. May 7 was the day Tunis and Bizerte fell to the British First Army and the U. S. Second Army Corps. On that day, Allied planes flew 2,748 sorties an average of almost 2 a minute for the 24 hours. (A sotie is a single flight by one plane.)

But this record of plane against plane, impressive as it is, relates only a fragment, the War Department said, of the air forces' contribution to the victorious North American campaign culminating in the Axis debacle on Cape Bon. The Mediterranean Air Command, under Sir Arthur Tedder, provided in the Tunisian campaign the first large-scale demonstration of the "resistlessness" of an aerial striking force employing all its capabilities in an integrated pattern.

Air Divisions Explained

Here in this announcement, the War Department explained the composition of the Mediterranean Air Command and made clear the division of U. S. air power into the strategic force, the tactical force, the reconnaissance wing, the costal force, the troop carrier command, the training command, and the air service command.

The strategic air force cut the enemy's lines of supply and communications, which began in Italy and led through Sicily to Tunis and Bizerte. Composed of heavy bombers, medium bombers, and long-range fighters, it struck continuously at Axis shipping, ports, harbors, bases, and other points from which the Axis might dispatch reinforcements of men and material.

The tactical air force, operating in close cooperation with its Allied ground forces, threw its weight into "support bombing," striking at enemy troops, armored forces, fortifications, airfields—targets in the area of actual fighting or in the support of a battle at sea.

To the troop carrier command went the job of operating scheduled courier planes to transport military personnel, mail, and supplies throughout the entire Allied-held northwest African coastline, the aerial protection of our convoys and the handling of anti-submarine operations. The job of the training command was to give all newly-arrived combat crews training for the operations peculiar to the theater. The Air Service Command worked to supply and maintain the theater's tactical organizations.

All of these commands, forces and services, the War Department said, provided the "team" that drove the Axis out of Africa.

HOME-PRODUCED FOOD WORTH 2,765 POINTS

Ration coupon books with their red and blue stamps seem less important to Mrs. D. W. Satterfield of Caldwell county than to some of her town and city friends. It's all because of the home-produced food which she has canned. When Mrs. Satterfield took an inventory of her canned meats, vegetables and fruits on April 1, she found that, had they been rationed, they would have a coupon value of 2,765 points. With only two in the family plus a farm laborer and occasional extra help to be fed, that amount will last a good part of a year. Besides, she has three coupon books to fall back on.

Mrs. Satterfield makes good use of her canned foods by keeping a supply on a special shelf in the kitchen for emergency meals. From her well stocked cellar she selected three varieties of meat, six of vegetables and five of fruits, besides relishes and pickles, jams and jellies, for this purpose. A well balanced and tasty meal can be quickly prepared, notes Home Agent Nancy Scrugham, when this plan is followed.

ROOSTERS PAY FOR FLOCK

Mrs. John M. Kelley of Carlisle county purchased 250 chicks about the first of February. By April 15, she had sold enough roosters to pay all costs up to that time, and had 125 pullets left.

Lost and found columns of Tokio newspapers are crowded these days. Every time an American buys a War Bond, the Japs lose face. Buy your 10% every pay day.

Month Of June Proclaimed As WAVE Month In Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky., May 27—Governor Keen Johnson today proclaimed the month of June as "WAVE" month in Kentucky. In his proclamation Governor Johnson urged all patriotic citizens to lend every possible assistance to the United States Navy Recruiting Service in the enlistment of women to serve in the WAVES.

The proclamation pointed out that the Navy now has many experienced men assigned to shore duty who are needed at sea to fight ships and keep supply lines open to all branches of the military service.

"These shore jobs can be capably administered by patriotic and intelligent women who enlist in the WAVES, the women's division of the U. S. Naval Reserve, thus releasing men to fight on the high seas," the Governor pointed out in his proclamation.

DEHYDRATING PLANT FOR HOPKINSVILLE

Arrangements are announced for a dehydrating plant at Hopkinsville, Ky., to handle 1,000 acres or more of sweet potatoes grown in Christian and adjoining counties. It is reported contracting farmers will receive $1.15 a bushel for sweet potatoes delivered at the plant. White potatoes also may be hydrated. A branch plant may be located as Russellville. The plants will be operated by the Kentucky-Tennessee Food Cooperative, a subsidiary of the Eastern Dark-Fired Tobacco Growers Association.

After July 1, luggage will be made in 7 basic types and will be drastically limited in size and design.

New passenger autos rationed to buyers from March 2, 1942, to March 1, 1943, totaled 305,876 cars.

Electric Iron

Back to the old, stove-heated sad iron with its arm-tiring weight and uneven heat? Never, you say! But that's what may happen if you don't take proper care of your electric iron. No new ones have been made in over a year, so guard your iron from neglect and misuse. Make it last for the duration.

TIMELY TIPS ON IRON CARE

- Keep bottom of iron clean. Wipe with damp cloth when cool. If necessary, use mild scouring powder to remove sticking starch, but never scrape sole plate with a knife. Burned rayon may be removed with lacquer-thinner or paint remover.
- Clean top of iron with damp cloth or mild powder like Bon Ami or Bab-O. Never immerse iron in water.
- Avoid ironing over buttons, buckles, zippers and other hard objects that may scratch sole plate.
- Be careful not to drop your iron. Dropping puts more irons out of commission than any other one thing.
- In disconnecting iron pull plug at wall outlet instead of iron socket. Constant plugging in and out at iron socket wears out the terminal points.
- Never let iron cord touch hot iron or rub continuously against edge of the board. Either will hasten cord wear.
- If iron sticks, run it over a little salt sprinkled on a piece of old waxed bread wrapper.
- Keep iron handle tight. A rickety handle causes cord plug to rock on terminals in socket and eventually wears out terminal points.
- Rub the sole plate of your iron about once a month with paraffin or beeswax. Wipe off on paper or cloth.
- Always disconnect iron when not in use. Use heel stand or iron rest when pausing momentarily to fold or arrange ironing.
- Be sure iron is perfectly cold before wrapping cord around it and putting it away.

The following letter was received from Cpl. L. R. Loomis stationed somewhere in Iran:

"Well Pete how's everything in Boone County. Hope it isn't as hot as it is here in Iran. The last week or so has been well above 110, so that's plenty hot for us Kentuckians.

"We have four Kentucky boys here in the 19th St. Hospital, two of them are from Paducah. Pfc. Artie Tungate, formerly of Limaburg, is stationed here also. There are quite a few fellows from Northern Kentucky in this Command.

"I have charge of the lighting system here. We have our own generator which is pulled by a large Diesel. Pfc. Tungate is our Detachment painter. Tungate and I want to thank you for the paper, as we enjoy it very much, as it helps us keep track of other Boone County boys in the service as well as the local news. . . Will say so long."

His address is Cpl. L. R. Loomis, 19 St. Hospital, APO 795 ASN 35122505, care Postmaster, New York City, N. Y.

The following letter was received from Freddie Highhouse, stationed somewhere in Alaska:

"Have just received two copies of The Boone County Recorder, and I'm most happy to have it in my possession, as I am in the hospital and I have plenty of time to peruse over every last line of the home town news.

"I have been having quite a few visitors lately and much to my surprise but who walked in—two old buddies from Burlington, Ky., Allen and Bill Walker. After two long years, it was just like a gift from home. We chatted over some good times we used to have and reviewed some of our old friends back home.

"On my stand was a copy of The Boone County Recorder and they asked me if they could have it to take along with them, and you know I couldn't turn them down as it has done so much for me to bolster my morale and I know it would make them feel good to read about all the goings-on back there in Kentucky.

"I had a slight fracture of the left leg but nothing serious. In my idle hours I have plenty of time to think and you can guess where my thoughts are, back there with my family and dear friends. I'm always wondering what they're doing and how everybody's health is.

"The war news is very good lately so maybe it won't be so long before we boys can come marching home and resume our lives in the good old way,

So with best wishes and good luck to all the folks at home, I remain the same,

Pfc. Freddie Highhouse."

The following letter addressed to the editor was received Monday from Everett E. Cress, stationed somewhere in the South Pacific with the U. S. Navy:

"It was a year yesterday that I left home to go to Great Lakes Training Station, and I have never, until now took time to write and let you know how much I enjoy The Recorder. Everyone I get, I never stop until I have read everything in it. It is really a lift to read about different friends all over the County, and the changes that are made.

"Do you remember before I left you asked me to get you a hunk or two of skull if I ever had the chance? I got them for you, but they are not much, as I have let too many cut pieces off of them, but you can still tell what they are. I am sending a box of souvenirs or 'junk' home and I will try to send the pieces of skull along.

"I guess Ty and Sickum are getting along O. K. I never hear anything about them—tell them hello for me and give my regards to Bill when you see him.

"I hardly believe you got my latest address on The Recorder list, it is now: Everett E. Cress MSMTH 1-c, 6th Construction Battalion Co. C., care Fleet Post Office San Francisco, Calif."

The following letter was received from Bob Surface, of Fort Sill, Okla:

"I just finished reading the most welcome and appreciated news from home which found in The Recorder. You can't realize how much it helps.

"We, who are in the service, often wonder what's going on, or who, is now, somewhere else, and your paper answers so many of those questions in addition to how things are in our 'old home town.'

"May you be able to continue your helpful work, as you have so wonderfully in the past.

"Tell all my friends 'hello' in Burlington, and surrounding communities.

"I am now in a new camp but still well, 'being well fed,' and like all the rest, trying my best to do my part in accomplishing what we all want—Peace."

His complete address is Cpl. Robert H. Surface, Det. Q. M. C., Fort Sill, Okla.

Arthur E. Blythe, Detachment No. 6, Box 278, Clallum Bay, Wash., writes: "I want to express my appreciation for the paper I receive each week, and wish to say 'hello' to all my friends in Boone County. . . . We, the boys in the Armed Forces of America are sacrificing by doing with half supply of coffee, sugar and butter in our camp, that the boys in the other world may have it. We agreed to this half-ration in order that our boys overseas may have more on the battle fronts. . . I also wish to state that 95 percent of the boys of Detachment No. 6 are buying bonds, too."

The following poem was composed by Arthur E. Blythe, and mailed us for publication:

We may not have our coffee,
Or the sugar for our tea,
And we can't spread our butter
Like in the days that used to be;
We may need a ration card
To get a juicy steak,
But if we love our country,
What difference does that make?

We may not get the gasoline
To run our cars each day;
We may have deductions
For War Bonds in our pay.
We may not live on "Easy Street"
The way we used to do
But we won't whine or grumble—
To Uncle Sam we're true.

We may not have the chance to
Bask in the sun's bright rays;
We may have to work and slave
On Sultry summer days,
But we can sacrifice these things
We'll give up all our joys,
All we want is VICTORY,
And the safety of our boys.

I have been in the Arizona desert. I have been receiving it quite a while now and it sure makes me feel as though I just came from good old Boone County. . . . I am supposed to get my furlough in July and I sure want to see that Honor Roll, I know we are just as proud of it as anyone. I like it here, and my work is guard duty. I work six hours and off twenty-four."

NOTICE

TO OUR OUT-OF-STATE SUBSCRIBERS

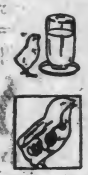
We are receiving many complaints from our out-of-state subscribers that they are not receiving their papers as they should, and in many cases their paper is several days late.

Our papers leave this office at 3:30 p. m. each Wednesday, and after they leave this office properly addressed, we have no control over the mail service that brings your paper to you.

The Government now has many new employees in the postal service, and inexperienced help combined with over-crowded mail sacks are the only reasons for the delays.

We ask your indulgence in these matters, over which we have no control. —THE EDITOR.

NOTICE



To the residents of Burlington and vicinity:

The Burlington Volunteer Fire Department announces that their fire equipment is now beginning to come in, and it is going to be necessary for all this equipment to be tested, while it is being installed.

All persons are warned not to become alarmed by the blowing of the siren or by test and practice runs of the fire trucks as it will take considerable practice by actually handling the equipment before our men will be able to fight fires efficiently.

Therefore, until further notice is given all signals will be for the purpose of testing and practice drills and there will be no cause for alarm on the part of the people.

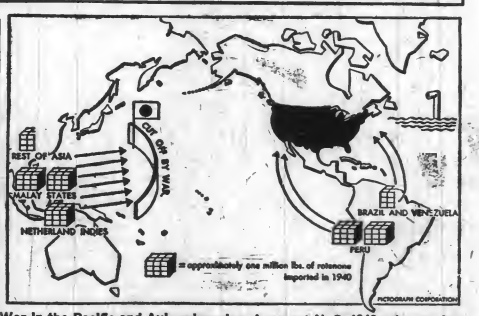
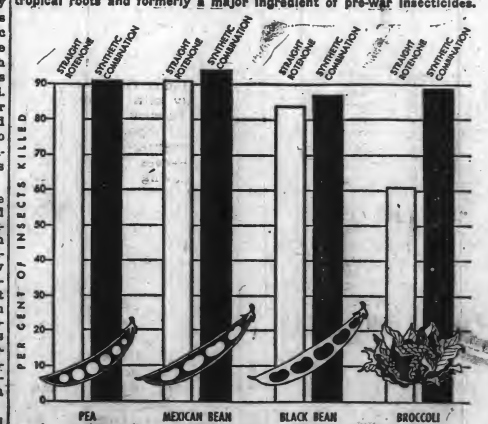
NEW INSECTICIDE REPORTED SUCCESSFUL

"Lethane" Effective as Rotenone Replacement on Pea, Bean and Cole Crops



INSECT destruction of essential U. S. vegetable crops threatened by the rotenone shortage can be prevented by a synthetic insecticide, according to large vegetable growers and State Experiment Stations who have completed extensive tests with a new "thiocyanate" type of insecticide known as Lethane.

Addition of this new insect-killer to rotenone dusts saves half to a third of the rotenone previously required for controlling insects infesting pea, bean and cole crops. It is expected that enough Lethane will be produced this year to replace the 3,000,000 lbs. of badly needed rotenone roots which Axis Submarines and War in the Pacific will keep from this country. The limited amount of rotenone which South America is getting to us is about half the amount we need. To stretch available supplies as far as possible the W. P. B. has limited the rotenone content of dusts to no more than ½ of 1%, which is considerably less than the amounts previously thought essential.



Recently published tests on the pea aphid by Dr. H. E. Wilson and E. J. Campau of the Wisconsin Experiment Station in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine show that replacing the bulk of the rotenone with Lethane yielded a dust absolutely safe to plants and even more effective than straight pre-war rotenone dusts. These results have been confirmed by the Virginia Truck Crop Experiment Stations, by Stokely Brothers' Tennessee Farms and other large pea growers.

On the Mexican Bean Beetle and the Black Bean Aphid, which together annually devour at least 12% of our bean crops, results also show that Lethane successfully replaces at least 50% to 65% of the rotenone usually used.

Dr. Frank App, experimenting at the Seabrook Farms in New Jersey, reports that he has had outstanding results with as little as ¼ of 1% rotenone and Lethane combinations in controlling the insects menacing pea, bean and cole crops.

War in the Pacific and Axis submarines have cut U. S. 1943 rotenone imports to half of the 1940 supply. Rotenone is the bug-killer extracted from tropical roots and formerly a major ingredient of pre-war insecticides.

An American-made synthetic insecticide, called Lethane, halves the amount of scarce rotenone needed for insect control, and gives results frequently better than straight rotenone dusts.

Town And Farm In Wartime

Destroy Expired Ration Stamps

Housewives are urged to destroy all expired red or blue ration stamps to help guard against black markets in food. Reports to OPA indicate that many storekeepers have asked their customers for expired stamps, and in turn have used them to buy more food from wholesalers. Because foods bought at wholesale with these stamps can be sold at retail without points, every expired stamps given to a storekeeper is a potential contribution to an illegal market

New Way To Get Canning Sugar

Sugar for home canning can be obtained by using stamps 15 and 16 in War Ration Book One, instead of "sugar allowance coupons" as previously announced. Each stamp is worth five pounds. Consumers who require more than ten pounds per son for canning will apply to their local ration boards for additional allowance.

OCR to Supply Farmers Needs

The newly-created Office of Civilian Requirements, WPB, has worked out an emergency farmers supply program which will quickly make available to farmers some 50 items essential in the production of food. The procedure will enable a farmer to buy reasonable amounts of needed items directly from his dealer without complicated forms. Materials to be made available under the program include adjustable wrenches, agricultural forks, auger bits, barbed wire, clevises, dehorning saws, fence pliers, garden hoes, batteries, motors, grain scoops, grease guns, harness hardware, horse collars, nails, neck yokes, poultry netting, cold chisels, hog rings, knives, and many other products.

Applications For Ration Book 3

Applications for War Ration Book No. 3, which will provide stamps to replace those now running out in existing books, are now being distributed by letter carriers. Each application is good for a single individual or an entire family. Consumers will fill out and return application cards, which are pre-addressed to OPA mail centers between June 1 and June 10. Around June 20 and up to July 21, OPA centers will mail books to applicants.

Can Buy Ice Cream Alone

Retailers cannot force their customers to buy an equal amount of sherbet or any other frozen confection to obtain any given quantity of mulk or packaged ice cream, OPA and WFA have emphasized. This requirement is a violation of the prohibition against tie-in sales under the general maximum price regulation.

Farmers First For Gas

Any person in the east coast shortage area using gasoline for non-highway farm purposes will be given preference by a recent order of the Petroleum Administrator. The requirements of any person who presents valid E, R, or bulk coupons for motor fuel for non-highway farm uses will receive first consideration by all suppliers. A 10-day inventory restriction on fuel oil has also been removed, to permit stocks to be built up in preparation for next winter.

Inner Tubes Are Ration-Free

Used inner tubes for passenger car or truck tires can now be purchased without a ration certificate. It is estimated that there are about 765,000 used passenger car tubes and 225,000 used truck tubes now idle in dealers stocks. All rationing regulations have been removed on used tubes to help conserve the supply of new ones.

Longer Furlough Granted

The War Department has authorized extension of the furlough period between the day of induction and the date men must report for duty from seven days to fourteen days. This change will be made in all commands not later than July 1. After July, but before September 1, the period will be increased from fourteen days to twenty-one days.

Stoves To Be Rationed

Rationing of six types of stoves (including laundry stoves, but excluding water heaters) will begin late in June. They include coal or wood, oil and gas heating stoves, oil and gas cooking stoves. After the plan becomes effective, you must have a purchase certificate from your ration board to buy a stove. Certificates will be issued on the basis of need.

Meat Processed Without Points

Farmers and consumers are permitted to have meats and fats smoked, cured, rendered, frozen, packaged or otherwise processed, by a recent OPA amendment to rationing regulations. No points need be transferred, but the processor must keep adequate records.

No Special Gas For Vacations

Vacations are fine, but there will be no extra gasoline for vacation travel this year, says Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown. Both rubber and gasoline supplies are too critical to allow motorists any "luxury" gasoline rations. Mr. Brown pointed out that gasoline coupons in an "A" book could be saved, and that gasoline could be carried over in the tank of an auto from one period to the next. In this way, a motorist may save fuel for 180 miles for a vacation trip by car.

Stop Egg Shortage

No more shell eggs can be kept in storage after June 15, the War Food Administration says, except—(1) to fill government contracts, and (2) for a small "working inventory." Putting eggs in storage has been prohibited since May 20, when all eggs in storage were reserved for government purchases.

Scouting For Scrap

More than a million boy scouts and cub scouts will tramp the woods and valleys of America this summer on a new kind of scouting expedition. They will be exploring for heavy scrap iron that can later be brought in to collection points. Overnight camps will permit the boys to cover a wider territory and to carry some light scrap back to collection trucks.

To Renew Gas Rations By Mail

The country's 25,000,000 car owners and 160,000 motorcycle owners may renew their present basic gasoline rations ("A" and "D" coupon books) by mail. Motorists and Motorcycle owners outside the eastern gasoline shortage area will pick up a simple application form about June 22 at a place designated by local ration boards. The form must be filled out and mailed to the War Price and Rationing Board with (A) the signed back cover of the present "A" book, and (B) the current tire inspection record showing that proper inspections have been made. All new "A" books should reach the motorists by mail before July 21. Plans for eastern motorists, whose basic rations expire at a late date, are not completed but will be similar.

More Radio Batteries

To bring relief to farmers in non-electrified areas of the nation, production of radio batteries has been boosted to 425,000 a month, the consumers durable goods division of WPB has announced. If the present rate of production is continued over a twelve-month period, normal requirements for the 3,200,000 radios estimated to be on farms will be met.

Get 50 Gals. of Gas Any Time

Farmers will benefit from a change made in petroleum Administrative Order No. 4 which allows bulk deliveries of gasoline in quantities of 50 gallons or more, to be made at any time. This will be particularly helpful to farmers who drive to town after work and buy gasoline in steel drums of 50 gallons or more capacity.

Public Exceeding Speed Limit

Recent checks in 11 states showed average speeds as high as 47 miles an hour, the Public Roads Administration has announced. Speeds approximated the 35-mile limit only in Maine, Minnesota, North Carolina, and Oklahoma, except that in Minnesota the average speed of buses was 45 miles per hour. Earlier this year, speed counts showed national averages of 37 miles an hour for passenger cars, 35 for trucks, and 37 for busses. The present national average cannot be accurately determined until additional reports are received.

Guard Against Carbon Monoxide

Because the hazards of carbon monoxide poisoning have increased greatly with the shortages of certain fuels, the U. S. Bureau of Mines has published a circular describing home protective measures to minimize dangers from this gas and methods of treating persons affected by it. A colorless, odorless, and tasteless gas, carbon monoxide is deadly when inhaled with an insufficient supply of oxygen.

Poultry Price Violations

More poultry price violators are facing OPA inforcement proceedings. Between April 15 and May 15 court actions were started against another 113—84 asked for injunctions to restrain sellers from charging too much, and 29 were criminal actions.

Salmon Season Opens

Salmon fishing—which will contribute 5,500,000 cases of high-protein food to the nation's supply, has started in Alaskan waters close to military operations. The total pack is expected to exceed last year's by at least 10 percent.

OPA Warns Garment Makers

Because they violated ceiling prices for women's and children's dresses, coats, suits, blouses, and skirts, 150 garment makers have been formally warned by OPA. Their license will be suspended if they are guilty of further violations.

May Adjust Machinery Prices

In exceptional cases where production of farm equipment is threatened, manufacturers may get an adjustment in their ceiling prices, OPA said in issuing Amendment No. 5 to Maximum Price Regulation No. 246 (manufacturers and wholesale prices for farm equipment), which became effective May 20, 1943. However, any adjustment of manufacturer prices will result in a price increase to the individual farmer.

PRACTICE WHAT WE PREACH

Many opponents of the reciprocal trade policy instituted by this country under the Trade Agreements Acts, feel that "agriculture has been sold down the river." They believe that our trade agreements with other nations have resulted in letting down tariff barriers on agricultural imports, while manufacturing industries received most of the export benefits.

As a matter of fact, the result of our trade agreements with other countries under the reciprocal trade program should satisfy the shrewdest farmer.

Countries with which we have such agreements have granted import concessions on 73.9 per cent of the agricultural products our farmers sell to them, in contrast with concessions on 48.5 per cent of non-agricultural goods sold to them by our manufacturers.

Moreover, agricultural exports from the United States to the 16 countries with which agreements were effective for the year ended June 30, 1939, were 15 per cent higher than 1935-36; in same period exports to non-agreement countries declined by 19 per cent.

In the case of imports, duties had been reduced up to 1939 on only 14.6 per cent of our agricultural purchases from abroad—close to half of this figure representing Cuban sugar—compared with reductions amounting to 23.4 per cent on other imports.

It is worth noting that many of the agricultural concessions made by the United States are relatively insignificant, especially when restrictions by tariff quotas are considered.

The Trade Agreements Act has brought financial benefits to this country. But suppose business men and farmers had been temporarily forced to make a small financial sacrifice? Would it not be worth it if, through trade, a lasting peace could be established? Immediate financial profit is not the real issue underlying the trade question. The real issue is peace or war. Idealism and isolation won't prevent war. That was proved after the last war. War can only be prevented by good business relations between nations. And now is the time to promote those relations by renewing the Trade Agreements Act in June.

We hear a lot of talk about daring plans for a new world. There is no better place to be daring than in the pioneering of trade relations. If we are not daring, if we stick to old-fashioned, tight-fisted methods of bargaining with "foreigners," we can begin training the army of 1965 as soon as it gets out of diapers.

FOOT TEST

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

Usually the first sign of foot trouble is the running over of the heels of shoes.

In a strong healthy human foot the 26 bones are held together to form a substantial support for the weight of the body and they are held together in place by strong ligaments, tendons, and muscles. These bones are so arranged that they form four separate and natural arches.

The heel bone and ankle bone lean out of position more or less in almost every kind of foot trouble. The cause, is that ligaments, muscles and tendons which hold the heel bone and ankle bone in place, become weakened, and are not strong enough to hold these bones in their normal position.

Backaches, headaches and many body ills may be traced to feet. Even symptoms like those of rheumatism and arthritis now are being banished with proper shoes. Also nervous indigestion, sleepless nights, etc.—Adv.

MILITARY VERSUS CIVILIAN NEEDS

The primary objective today is to win the war. War production must come first where it conflicts with civilian needs in the face of equipment, materials or manpower shortages. However, the war can be won only if a sound home-front is maintained at the same time.

That means production for essential civilian needs must be maintained at such a level as to safeguard morale and health of those doing their bit for the war effort on the home front. In the strictest sense, therefore, military and essential civilian needs must be regarded on a par. The dividing line is not between them but rather between essential and unessential civilian needs.

The Office of Price Administration has repeatedly granted price increases because, in its opinion, these were necessary to maintain war production at maximum level. Thus far it has refused to accept the same principle for the maintenance of essential civilian production of such items, as, say, canned goods or underwear, however.

Evidently processed foods and textiles, such as heavy fall and winter underwear, fall into the category of essential civilian goods. Yet under a mistaken interpretation of the President's recent "Hold-the-Line" order, OPA is refusing to grant price adjustments for these groups of commodities despite the fact that it has been clearly demonstrated that many manufacturers cannot continue to operate at present ceiling prices.

OPA has been warned time and again that there will be a serious shortage of underwear next fall and winter unless manufacturers are given price ceilings which will enable them to continue operation and avoid bankruptcy. The health of the nation would be seriously jeopardized if this were allowed to happen. Such an outcome would constitute a threat to the war effort since it would directly affect the protection of war workers.

Maintenance of underwear production sufficiently large to cover essential civilian needs next fall and winter is now one of the responsibilities of the newly created Office of Civilian Requirements under the direction of Arthur D. Whiteside. It is to this agency that manufacturers are looking for help in working with the Office of Price Administration where current price ceilings threaten to curtail production of essential civilian goods, such as in the case of heavy fall and winter underwear.

RADIO TAKES THE RAP

The Supreme Court of the United States in a decision handed down a few days ago said that the power of Congress to license radio broadcasting gives the Federal Communications Commission the right to regulate the entire business conduct of all broadcasting chains and stations. The decision is held as another danger to the freedom of the press.

Radio is in a straight jacket, and the chains and stations as they now exist are held to constitute monopolies. The theory of the radio case is very much like the case against the Associated Press. New socialistic theories are challenging freedom of all forms of communication.

FARMERS FED UP

Many large dairies have gone out of business. more and more is the nation having to rely for its food on the family farm where the members get in the early hours, milk the cows, tend to the farming during the day, milk the cows at night, and at a late hour call it a day, go to bed, and get up to do the job all over again, seven days a week.

If the farmer worked the short hours and received the high pay of workers in war plants who are constantly striking for even higher wages, those workers would probably be paying a dollar a quart for milk.

Nature's requirements on the farm recognize no artificial production limitations and slow-down sabotage.

There are two good places to put strikers today--in the Army and on the farms. They would then get an idea of what real work is.

Russell county farmers have surpassed their hemp acreage allotment by approximately 34 percent, and castor beans, 57 percent.

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yealey

The reader should bear in mind that Boone County borders the Ohio River for about 40 miles and what was said pro or con was soon in possession of the officers of the North or South as Boone county had sympathizers on both sides of the slavery question.

Those actions or words spoken previously had been forwarded by a sympathizer of the North, and the Union officers stationed at Ft. Mitchell, soon were alert in Boone and knew before they came whom they wanted and where they lived and what they had said and done.

The person questioned, said he had ground wheat and corn at his mill for the confederate soldiers that had reached Snow's Pond and were stationed there at the time. (This pond is near Walton). Of course the Union officers questioned him about this and finally arrested him and his father, then proceeded to where the mill was located and blew it into atoms.

Question: Where were you when the mill blew up?

Answer: I was standing on the back porch under guard and saw the mill go up and debris go in all directions.

"What happened after the mill was blown up?"

"The men returned and said, 'We want to search your house as we understand you have a gun and pistol in your bedroom.'

Question: "Did you show any disposition to prevent the search?"

Answer: "No, they seemed to know exactly where the gun and pistol were hidden."

Question: "What happened after the search?"

Answer: "They came out on the porch with gun and pistol."

Question: "What happened to the gun and pistol?"

Answer: "One of the men asked me if the gun was loaded."

Question: "State what you told him."

Question: "What did he then do?"

Answer: "He stepped off the porch and fired it into the air."

Question: "What effect did this have on you?"

Answer: "I was wishing all the time that it had been loaded to the end of the barrel."

Question: "What was the next procedure?"

Answer: "The officers then went to the barn and saddled a riding horse and had father and myself to accompany them which we did."

BIG BONE BAPTIST W. M. S.

The Big Bone Baptist W. M. S. met Thursday, May 20th at the home of Mrs. Francis Aylor for their regular meeting. A fine social time was enjoyed in the morning and after a bountiful feast at the noon hour, we opened our meeting with song, "Sweet Bye and Bye" and our president Mrs. Gruelle presided.

Watchwords were repeated, devotional was brought by Mrs. Emma Jane Aylor from Job 1; 1-3; 13-22; 42-10, followed with prayer by Mrs. Frances Aylor. Mrs. Gruelle acted as program chairman in the absence of Mrs. Branham.

Those taking part on the program were Mrs. Myrtle Marsh, Mrs. Lillian Hubbard, Mrs. Frances Aylor and Mrs. Aileen Stephens. Prayer by Mrs. Huff.

We then entered our business session by the reading of minutes and treasurer's report by our secretary, Mrs. Ella Rouse. Roll call and paying of dues was next on the program.

After the reports of the different chairmen, Mrs. Ella Rouse led in special prayer for shut-ins. We were happy to welcome two new members to our society, Mrs. Lillian Hubbard and Mrs. Eileen Stephens. Our visitors were Mrs. Iva Lee Bowen, of Covington, Mrs. Dora Shields, Mrs. Beatrice Aylor and Dorothy Shields. Mrs. Myrtle Marsh dismissed with prayer. We will meet in June with Mrs. Myrtle Marsh. All members are urged to attend.

WHEAT USED AS LIVESTOCK FEED

In step with the war's demand for greater production of meat and milk, Kentucky farmers have taken the wheat feed program as a substitute for other grains and have increased wheat feedings this year to where in less than forty-five days more than 1,400,000 bushels have been distributed to feeders, dealers, and processions . . . in the state.

It is estimated that if the wheat feed program in Kentucky continues as it has during the past month that by the end of the year Kentucky farmers will have used more than 12 percent of the available 100,000,000 bushels which had been approved by Congressional action for the program in the 48 states.

MORE HEMP IN CARTER

In Carter county, 241 farmers have contracted to grow 614 acres of hemp for seed. Farm Agent R. H. King reports that the increase in acreage over last year is due to the urgent need for more seed, the profitableness of the crop as determined by those who grew it last year, and the increase of $2 per bushel for this year's crop.

THE GARDEN

BEANS

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

The first beans are planted, and what comes of them will depend on how the season has treated them. But, now begins the year's bean "schedule." For beans should be planted methodically, to make the supply continuous and large enough to meet the canned-bean schedule through the next winter.

What constitutes a sufficiency is a family matter, but a compromise appears to be 10 feet of row or 5 "poles" per person, every 2 weeks with any 3 plantings doubled for canning.

The best single bush variety is Stringless Greenpod, but Refugee and Bountiful (or plentiful) are excellent, too. Of pole sorts, Kentucky Wonder is easily the favorite, with Lazy Wife a close second. Those for whom gathering poles is a chore will appreciate Commodore, the bush type Kentucky Wonder.

Now that the soil is settledly warm, lima or "butter" beans should be planted. Unfortunately, the low humidity of Kentucky's summer precludes the possibility of growing most large-seeded sorts, but Bunrpee's Bush succeeds fairly well. The small-seeded Henderson Bush and Yopp's Bush are better to use, and so is Florida Speckled, the "cranberry" lima. Of the pole sorts, King of the Garden is best.

A common complaint about lima beans is that they "grow to top" where the garden's fertilizing is with stable manure only. Superphosphate is need to balance the "richness" of manure, 30 pounds per ton, or used in the row, 1 pound to 40 feet.

There is a distinct advantage in planting limas, "eye down," so they will not break their necks coming up.

Also, now that the ground is warm, edible soybeans may be started. The seed is dropped 4 inches apart; one pound plants 400 feet. Fertilizing is as for limas.

Good varieties are Bansei and Funk's Delicious, the latter especially valued because of its large seeds.

Part of the tediousness of shelling soys is avoided by boiling them 4 minutes to make the pods start opening.

The main pest hazard is rabbits; the Mexican bean bettle goes to them only when no other beans offer.

CANCER CONTROL DRIVE UNDER WAY

IN BOONE COUNTY CONTRIBUTIONS MAY BE SENT TO EITHER MRS. S. B. NUNNELLEY OR MRS. M. A. YELTON.

During the past few weeks we have concentrated upon various types of Red Cross work. We have given our time, our money and our blood in order that our boys on the numerous war fronts, who are giving so much for us, might have the things which they need when they need them. We have been glad to do all that we could to help them. In fact, we have felt that all that we could do would be little indeed as compared with what is demanded of them.

There is another service which we can render our boys at the front. We can strive to protect their homes from an enemy which is more deadly and is taking a greater toll of lives in our country than the war. An enemy which took the lives of 160,000 Americans last year, is second only to heart disease as the cause of death among adults, and is the cause of about one-tenth of all deaths in our country. This enemy strikes relentlessly in our homes, and without warning. It is no respecter of persons. It may strike either sex and at any age. It may strike you or me. In most sections of our country cancer is more prevalent in women than in men, however this is not always true since in Minnesota more men than women fall victim to the disease. Our people must be able to recognize symptoms and act quickly if lives are to be saved. Our boys are better soldiers when they are not worried about the folks back home. So let us help protect the home front.

Each year the President of the United States proclaims April as Cancer Control Month but this year we have purposely waited until the Red Cross drive had closed before mentioning our cancer work since we felt that we should concentrate upon but one thing at a time. Now words of our slogan for 1943, "With your aid, we shall be victorious," and give as generously as you can to this worthy cause. You may save the life of a friend or loved one.

Our State Chairman has again reminded us that we of the Fifth District have always fallen short of what other districts of the state have done in this fight against cancer. I see no reason why this should be true. I am sure that the people of the Fifth District are as capable and as willing to do their part as those of other districts. Won't you help prove this is our report for 1943?

In the bright lexicon of youth there is no such word as can't. Let us not recognize the existence of the word as applied to our fight against the greatest of all enemies.

Mrs. S. B. Nunnelley and Mrs. M. A. Yelton have been appointed to solicit funds for this worthy cause in Boone County. Anyone not contacted and desiring to contribute may send same to either of the above mentioned committee. In some towns boxes will be placed in post office or stores in which to drop contributions.

The small sum of ten or fifteen cents from every family will be aiding a worthy cause and rendering an infinite service to humanity.

County Machinery Quotas Are Lifted

Acting on authority granted by the Director of the Food Production Administration, M. D. Royse, Chairman of the Kentucky USDA War Board, announced Monday the cancellation of county quotas on seventy-nine items of farm machinery.

Although county quotas have been cancelled on certain items of machinery, the state quota will remain in effect and the machinery referred to will be rationed.

Heretofore, farmers with purchase certificates granted by the county USDA War Board purchased the desired machinery from allocations made to the county where the certificate was issued. The new regulation permits farmers with certificates to purchase any of the seventy-nine items anywhere in the state.

Machinery items which were lifted from county quotas are included under the classifications of planting, seeding, and fertilizing machinery; plows and listers; harrows, rollers, and pulverizers, cultivators and weeds; sprayers and dusters; harvesting machinery; machines for preparing crops for market or use; garden tractors; engines; farm wagons and trucks.

There is no change in items of farm machinery not affected by the recent order.

During 1942, American forces stationed in Australia and New Zealand received through reverse Lend-Lease 80 million pounds of fruit and vegetables and 30 million pounds of beef, veal, lamb, and mutton.

FULTON COUNTY TO HAVE MORE SPUDS

The potato acreage in Fulton county shows a big gain over last year, notes S. V. Foy, agricultural agent. T. E. Parks has planted 40 acres, E. D. Johnson, 15 acres, and farmers generally have planted three acres or more. Fulton county is also meeting its goal for 300 acres of sweet potatoes and an effort is being made to have 100 acres planted in tomatoes. Indications are that the goal of 750 acres of hemp acreage will be exceeded by a third.

The Nazi "Gauleiter" for the Baltic States has ordered the removal of all church bells as a total mobilization measure.

PRICE PANEL IS NAMED FOR BOONE

WILL EDUCATE AND INFORM RETAIL MERCHANTS AND CONSUMERS OF CEILING PRICES.

R. E. Brugh, Chairman of our War Price and Rationing Board. announces this week to retail merchants and consumers of Boone County, appointment of a Price Panel composed of friends and neighbors. Its functions will be to educate and inform retail merchants and consumers alike of the ceiling prices to be charged and paid for a large group of cost-of-living commodities.

The newly formed Price Panel will act as a local friendly part of the Office of Price Administration in receiving and checking complaints in this county with available information as to prices that should be charged and of new regulations which affect price changes for commodities they may carry in stock.

R. E. Brugh wishes to inform our retail merchants and consumers in Boone County that Miss Goldie Robbins, Price Clerk, located in our Local War Price and Rationing Board, will be glad to receive complaints and give information regarding price problems.

MAXIMUM FEED CROPS URGED

BY COUNTY AGENT H. R. FORKNER—INCREASE IN POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK WILL REQUIRE MORE FEED.

Farmers are urged to plant their maximum of food and feed crops, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The U. S. government crop and markets report for April states the following:

"If this liberal feeding (livestock) continues, stocks of corn and oats remaining on farms on July 1, will be down to about the 1938-41 average for that date, whereas units of livestock and poultry on farms are likely to be 20 to 25 percent above the average in those years."

The College of Agriculture report, points out the increased difficulties in transportation of feed or the surplus feed producing states to Kentucky, a deficit producing area.

The whole program points out the great need for the farmer to produce a maximum of food and feed crops.

This need is in the face of one of the most backward seasons and of the most acute labor shortages on record.

We will all get farther on our food and feed production program if we work together. The following accomplishments will aid:

1. Solve your labor, machinery and seeding problems locally in your own neighborhood through hiring, exchanging or other plans.

2. Take those labor and machinery problems to your county labor assistant at the County Agent's office in Burlington where they cannot be solved locally.

3. Don't give up—Get the job done.

Flock Owners Should Treat Sheep Regularly

All sheepmen should treat their flocks regularly for stomach worms according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent Stomach worms are practically always present and regular treatments and pasture rotation seems to be the best control measures.

The College of Agriculture is recommending two treatments especially this year.

Phenothiazine a shore time before and a short time after lambing for the control of nodular worms are probably not controlled by any other treatment.

Bluestone-Black Leaf 40 combinations treatment given about every three weeks to a month during the summer and fall until freezing weather. One ounce of Bluestone and three-fourths of one ounce of Black Leaf 40 to three quarts of water, will make enough solution to treat 25 adult sheep

College of Agriculture Extension circular No. 152 gives some helpful hints on stomach worm treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hambrick and daughter spent last Sunday with relatives in Lockland, Ohio.

Pvt. James Edward Stephens, of Camp Atterbury, Ind.. spent the week-end with his wife and relatives, of Burlington.

FIVE INJURED IN WRECK SUNDAY

NEAR FLORENCE WHEN CARS COLLIDE HEAD-ON—REMOVED TO ST. ELIZABETH HOSPITAL FOR TREATMENT.

Four Cleveland, Ohio residents and a Florence man suffered injuries in an automobile crash 1½ miles southwest of Florence on U. U. 42, Sunday when the cars in which they were riding crashed head-on.

Eva Young, 1837 Grantham Ave., suffered a right ear cut; Ella Snyder, 1390 Alder street, cut right arm; Fred Davis, 1839 Grantham avenue, right eye cut and bruises; Mary Davis, right eye cut and bruises. All the above are residents of Cleveland, Ohio. F. A. Markesbery, Florence suffered a cut upper lip.

Occupants of the Ohio car were enroute to Florida when the accident occurred. Both cars were demolished.

Occupants of both cars were removed to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington by Deputy Sheriff Rouse and Harold Roland and were released after treatment.

Mickler-Conner

The marriage of Lt. James Conner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Conner, of Hebron, to Miss Mary Jean Michler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Michler, of Lexington, was solemnized on Tuesday, May 25, at the Central Christian Church Lexington ,by the officiating minister, Rev. A. W. Fortune.

The bride wore a suit of light blue and brown, with a corsage of orchids, while her attendant, Miss Sarah Moore, wore a light blue suit, with a corsage of pink roses.

The groom had as his best man Lt. Glenn Padgett, who is now stationed at Cambridge, Mass.

Lt. Conner is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and is now in the Signal Corps, a branch of the U. S. Army. Mrs. Conner also attended the University of Kentucky.

The couple plan to reside at Cambridge, Mass., where Lt. Conner reported for duty May 28.

Harry R. Conrad Pledged To Phalanx Fraternity At U. Of K

Harry Russell Conrad, freshman in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics at the University of Kentucky, was recently pledged to Phalanx fraternity, a recently chartered social organization for men.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Conrad, R. F. D.-1. Burlington, Kentucky. He graduated from the Hebron High School.

225 ATTEND 4-H SPRING RALLY

HELD AT BURLINGTON, SATURDAY, MAY 29—COMPETITION KEEN IN ALL AGRICULTURE PROJECTS.

Two hundred twenty-five 4-H members, leaders and parents attended the annual 4-H Spring Rally held at Burlington on last Saturday, May 29, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

D. H. Norris, Chairman of the 4-H and Utopia Club Council presided at the morning session. Speakers on the morning program included Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant; O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent and Mary Scott More, Home Demonstration Agent, Alberta Tanner and Shirley Howard, Florence club members.

Winners in the various contests were as follows:

Farm Practice Demonstrations

Six teams gave demonstrations in agriculture projects. Blue ribbons were awarded to Billie Acree and Tommy Atha of the Hamilton 4-H Club, for the Clean Milk Demonstration. Lafe Miller and Everett Stevens of Grant 4-H Club received blue ribbons for the poultry culling demonstration. Wilbur Ryle, Jr., and Everett Stephens received blue ribbons for the Mexican bean beetle demonstration. In the land terracing demonstration the following teams participated: David King and Billy Waller, of Verona club won first place; Barney Hogan and Melvin McGlasson of Hebron club won second; and Billie Acree and Tommy Atha won third place. The clean milk demonstration was judged the best agriculture demonstration given. For this performance Billie Acree and Tommy Atha were awarded the championship ribbon.

Home Practice Demonstrations

Bernice Sebree, Florence, was the champion individual demonstrator. Her subject was "Sugarless Desserts" and she demonstrated the making of baked custard and oatmeal cookies, using syrup as the sweetening agent. Individual Junior demonstrators, each receiving blue ribbons were: Helen Rogers, Hebron demonstrating accurate methods of measuring for baking, and Eva May Setters demonstrating the correct method for hemming towels.

In the team demonstration contests, championship was awarded to Betty Lou Setters and Martha Pfalzgraf of Hebron for their demonstration on "Setting the Breakfast Table." Helen Rogers and Rella Faye Pepper, Hebron demonstrated "How to Use A Commercial Dress Pattern" and received a blue ribbon. Red ribbons were awarded to Vivian Tuttle and Edith Willoughby of Hebron for their demonstration on "How to Equip a Sewing Box." Also red ribbons to Betty Lou Setters and Martha Pfalzgraf of Hebron for their demonstration on the correct method of marking an even hem line for a dress.

The white ribbon signifying a rating of good were awarded to: Alice Hiles, of Verona; Eva Mae Setters, Frances Moore, Margaret Pepper, of Hebron; Wanda Caldwell of Walton; Wilma Lee Easton, of Burlington.

Trophies Awarded

Constance and Hebron 4-H Clubs were awarded the trophies for outstanding work during 1942. These trophies are given by the Boone County Bankers Association, and are awarded each year on an achievement basis.

Appreciation

Volunteer local leaders work faithfully throughout the year to aid and instruct the 4-H club members with their projects. These leaders were very much a factor in the success of the Rally on Saturday and the Extension Service Agents hereby express congratulation to them and their groups for the splendid exhibits which they prepared. Boone County citizenship is indebted to these leaders.

Homemakers Will Stretch Family Dollar

"Stretch the Family Dollar" will become a reality when Homemakers, who have kept records of their cash spending and home produced foods used during the month, will use these records as a basis for their study of household economics at local meetings during June. Project leaders found the discussion at the training school most helpful and with the use of charts and symbols they will assist Homemakers in making a picture of the use of their own money. It has been demonstrated that this method of locating leaks in the family budget is very satisfactory, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore.

Homemakers will also plan summer activities to include neighborhood canning demonstrations, community garden meetings, and special recreational activities. The citizenship chairman will lead a discussion on International Relations as one of the contributions to the A. C. W. W. Reading chairmen will direct a rocking chair tour around the Mediterranean.

Homemakers will welcome anyone interested in these subjects at their local meetings which be held:

June 2, Constance, Mrs. Elmer Peeno, 11:00.

June 3, Burlington courthouse at 1:30 p. m.

June 4, Verona, Mrs. Frances McCormick, 11:00.

June 9, Hebron, Lodge Hall 11:00

June 10, Petersburg, schoolhouse at 11:00.

June 11, Walton, Mrs. Sam Sleet, 1:30.

June 11, New Haven, to be announced, 11:00.

June 16, Taylorsport, to be announced, 11:00.

June 17, Bullittsville, Mrs. Chester Grant, 11:00.

June 18, Hamilton schoolhouse, at 2:00.

June 22, Florence, Town Hall at 10:30.

June 16, Colored Club, Matilda Ingram, 8:00.

Mrs. Grace Hopper

Mrs. Grace Hopper passed away at her home, Union, Ky., May 24 at the age of 83 years, following an illness of two weeks.

She is survived by her husband Amon Hopper; two sons Ezra and Clarence; four daughters, Clara Rider, Leora Hopperton, Jessie Allphin and Ethyl Rider and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at Paint Lick Baptist Church, Wednesday at 2:00 p. m.

Mrs. Ettie Weaver has been quite ill for the past several days.

LOCAL WOMEN IN LAND ARMY

MRS. MARY SCOTT MOORE HAS BEEN NAMED AS CONTACT AGENT FOR WOMEN WISHING TO JOIN ORGANIZATION.

Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, has been named as contact person for those who wish to enlist in the Woman's Land Army, and for those who wish to have a member of the Land Army serve on their farm.

The Women's Land Army is an organization of town and city women, sponsored by the Federal Government under the direction of the Agricultural Extension Service as a part of the U. S. Crop Corps. Any city or town woman who has reached her eighteenth birthday and can furnish a satisfactory doctor's certificate as to her fitness to do farm work can make application. Women with a farm background or some farm experience are especially desirable as members of the WLA. Applications can be obtained at the County extension office or from the nearest U. S. Employment Service.

Women accepted for the Women's Land Army will wear the regulation blue uniform of cotton denim which the women buy at a nominal cost. She must work a minimum period of one month.

The year-round workers will probably find work on dairy and poultry farm where the need for labor is very acute. Truck and fruit farms use a great deal of hand labor. Seasonal workers will do more of the planting, hoeing, or harvesting jobs when extra help is needed for a short time. The year-round workers will usually live at the farm employing them and seasonal workers will live at the farm or in a nearby town. She will be paid by the farmer employing her at rates agreeable to each other.

Farm women with experience and skill in farm work can be more valuable to each other. Farm women with experience and skill in farm work can be more valuable in the field and city women may have experience and skill which they will be willing to contribute in such jobs as caring for children, preparing meals, laundrerings, canning, cleaning, or doing general housework to free a farm woman for the job of food production.

The farm family employing a woman of the Land Army is responsible for providing satisfactory housing, including clean, sanitary living. quarters. The farm family is also expected to see that the worker has an opportunity to take part in the social and recreational life of the community. The farmer will teach the Land Army woman farming skills she lacks.

In Boone County there is a labor shortage which would merit the employment of members of the WLA. Persons interested in enlisting or hiring members of the Land Army should contact Mrs. Moore.

Nichols-Hightower

Miss Corrine Nichols, daughter of Mrs. Effie Nichols, of Burlington and Raymond Hightower, of Burlington were quietly married Saturday evening at Petersburg, Ky. Rev. Noble Lucas was the officiating minister.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. Hightower will make their home with the bride's mother, of East Bend Road.

L. C. Weaver Takes Sixteen-Pound Fish

L. C. Weaver, assistant postmaster, Burlington, landed a 16-pound catfish Sunday while fishing in Wohrley's lake near Hebron. This is the largest fish caught on pole and line by a Boone Countian so far this year, according to all reports.

Weaver took the fish on the lowly fishing worm, which in our opinion is one of the best baits for catfish.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Lee Huey, Mrs. Anna Gaines, Mrs. Josie Maurer, Mrs. Carrie Botts, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Walton and family, Rev. Roy Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hoard and Albert W. Weaver attended the one hundredth anniversary celebration of Big Bone Baptist Church, Sunday.

Local Leaders Attend Farm Labor Meeting

C. L. Hempfling, H. E. White and Joseph Huey, members of the Boone County Labor Planning Committee, Will Smith, H R. Forkner and O. D. Perkinson attended the Northern Kentucky County Labor Committee's meeting held at Covington last Wednesday evening.

The developments from the meeting brought out the following points:

1. The labor problems in each county are different and must be worked out on an individual basis.

2. There is a scarcity of farm labor especially day labor that can be hired when needed.

3. Agriculture is an essential industry and under the rulings of the Man Power Commission.

4. Will Smith beginning this week will devote his full time to the farmers of Boone and Kenton Counties working individually and in groups to solve their timely labor problems.

Boone County Farm Sold

Earl O'Hara sold his farm and modern home on Burlington Pike to Albert Requardt, of Dudley Pike.

Baxter Blair sold his modern home and farm on the Dixie Highway at Devon to William Lewis, of Nicholson.

Both sales were made by Rel C. Wayman, 623 Washington Street, Covington.

REDEDICATION SERVICES SET

FOR SERVICE BOARD AT FLORENCE — INTERESTING PROGRAM BEING ARRANGED BY COMMITTEE IN CHARGE.

Rededication services will be held Sunday, June 6th at 3:00 p. m. for the Florence Service Board, located in the yard of Miss Virginia Goodridge, according to the committee in charge.

An interesting program is being arranged and a special speaker will be heard during the exercises.

As an added feature on the program, the Boone County Band, composed of Hebron, Florence and Burlington Schools will furnish music for the occasion.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services, at which time the attractive board will be viewed, for which credit goes to Mrs. Loften.

The P.-T. A. and citizens of Florence wish to take this means of express their sincere appreciation to Mrs. Loften for this beautiful work of art.

Mrs. Georgia Black

Mrs. Georgia Black, aged 75 years passed away Saturday noon at the home of her son John Black, 320 Erlanger Road, Erlanger, Ky., after several months illness. The remains were removed to the Taliaferro funeral home for preparation.

In addition to John she is survived by two other sons, Robert, Covington, Ky., Pfc. William, Gulfport Field, Gulfport, Miss., 7 grandchildren, 6 great grandchildren, 2 sisters, Mrs. Tillie Niemeyer, Cincinnati, O., and Mrs. Janie Head, Lebanon, Ky., and one brother Hillard, Lexington, Ky.

Services were conducted at Mussel Shoals Baptist Church, Owen County, Ky., Tuesday at 2:30, interment following in the nearby cemetery.

Funeral director Philip Taliaferro had charge of funeral arrangements.

Louis Wiedemann

Louis Wiedemann, aged 42 years passed away Wednesday night at Veterans Hospital, Dayton, Ohio. He had received his honorable discharge from the army on account of ill health and three weeks prior to his passing entered the Veterans Hospital.

He is survived by two sisters Mrs. Joseph Leiprecht, 46 Riggs Ave., Erlanger and Mrs. Josie Quinlick, Ingelwood, Calif.

The pallbearers were Joseph and Carl Kuchle, Emil Hildebrant and Fred Wocherhauser.

Funeral was from the Taliaferro funeral home, Saturday at 8:30 a. m., with requiem high mass at St. Henry's Church at 9 a. m. Burial was in St. John's Cemetery.

FIREMEN WILL MEET FRIDAY

FINANCE COMMITTEE WILL MAKE REPORT ON CONTRIBUTIONS—PUBLIC INVITED TO ATTEND.

A call meeting of the Burlington Volunteer Fire Department will be held at the Burlington courthouse Friday night, June 4th, 7:30 p. m. Business of the department will be disscussed at this meeting, according to officials.

Reports will be heard from the finance committee, appointed at the last meeting to solicit contributions within a radius of three miles of Burlington. Results of these reports will determine equipment to be purchased for fire prevention.

Farmers and businessmen thruout this section of the county are urged to attend this meeting. The fire department's business is your business, show your interest by your presence.

At the last meeting of the department several hundred dollars of equipment were ordered by the firemen, all of which must be paid for upon delivery. This equipment is due to arrive here within the next few days, and we must have the money on hand to pay for this equipment. Your contribution will be highly appreciated.

This department is being organized for your protection and may be the means of saving you many thousands of dollars during the coming months.

Let's all get behind this project and put it over, making our community a safer place in which to live.

STOP WORLD WAR III NOW

Powerful arguments can be advanced, solely from a dollars and cents standpoint, to show why this country should participate in world affairs and lead the way in promoting international trade. Over and above these arguments is the fundamental proposition that thru sound trade relations permanent peace can be established. The truth of this proposition should be the ultimate determining factor in rallying support for any trade program. If trade will insure peace, trade there must be. Individuals or groups who oppose extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act because of an imagined possibility that the profits of their business may suffer in some degree, and who wholly overlook the consideration of future peace, deserve little consideration from the million of parents whose sons and daughters are fighting the present war.

Twelve hundred of the nation's economists have united in warning against abandonment of the policy of reciprocal trade agreements. Their action is unique in that, while the group included widely divergent philosophies and economic beliefs, on the question of reciprocal trade there was firm agreement, as is eloquently attested to from the following signed statement: "Some of us would like to turn toward laissez-faire; some toward a greater measure of planning. But all of us stand on this common ground: We are convinced (1) that a worldwide reversion toward nationalistic protectionism after the war will hinder the development of all types of reasonable reconstruction programs, (2) that the pattern of cooperative action which the American trade agreement program provides is the minimum basis of United States post-war policy, and (3) that the repudiation of this policy by Congress would inevitably start an avalanche of trade restrictions in foreign countries. The economic preparation for World War III would have begun."

THIS MEANS ME

The Office of Defense Transportation advises that non-essential travel for other than vacation purposes must be wholly eliminated, and that vacations should be spent at home or as near home as possible. Director Eastman of the ODT asks the public to "avoid overnight trips, travels on day coaches, and carry box lunches on the trains, so as not to add to the strain on Pullman and dining car facilities—carry as little baggage as possible . . . Be prepared to expect delayed arrivals, crowded conditions and lack of the usual travel comforts. The cooperation of employers and of individuals in . . . minimizing vacation travel . . . is urgently necessary . . .

"There is no pleasure in giving such advice as this, and I know that many will find it difficult to realize that there is need for it. If they will think for a moment of what the induction, training, and final embarkation of many millions of servicemen means in the way of a load upon our railroads and busses, combined with the continued travel of these men on furlough and leave, of service women, and of relatives and friends, plus the extraordinary business travel which the tremendous productive activity of the country requires, and if they will also bear in mind that the railroads and bus lines have been given practically no new equipment and have lost the help of the private automobile, I think they will understand what we are up against.

"Many will approve the advice as good for the other fellow, but will regard a personal pleasure trip now and then as a harmless exception. The advice will do no good unless everyone will realize that it 'means me' and applies today as well as tomorrow."

BIG PROGRAM FOR CANNING TOMATOES

Farm families in Casey county will have their vitamin C next winter if the suggestions of Home Agent Virginia Colley are carried out. She has recommended that each family can from 275 to 300 jars of tomatoes and tomato juice. The size of the family will determine the size of the cans; pints for families of two; quarts for families of three to five, and half gallons for families of five to 10 members.

JUST COME IN!

Anytime you are conveniently near our funeral home, pay us a visit. It will be a privilege to show you through, and you will learn much about the facilities offered by our establishment.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 6

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

PETER COMFORTS PERSECUTED CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 3:13-17; 4:12-16; 5:6-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well-doing, than for evil-doing.—I Peter 3:17.

What shall we do? Where shall we turn? Is there no help for us? Such are the natural and understandable cries of those who bear the heavy heartbreak of persecution. God's Word has the answer, for from the very beginning the followers of Christ have had to meet that problem.

Peter is especially the apostle of comfort, and the portion now before us is rich in helpful instruction. His word to persecuted people is fivefold.

I. Do Not Be Afraid—Christ Is Lord (3:13-17).

By doing good the Christian will escape much suffering (v. 13), but if even then it comes, he is not to be afraid (v. 14). He is to sanctify Christ in his heart, that is, fully recognize the holiness of Christ and all that He is and can do for him. This is to be done in his heart. That means the exercise of full faith in Christ the Lord as the indwelling Presence. Who then can be afraid?

Note that this is not just a subjective spiritual exercise for his own enjoyment—it will show in his "good manner of life in Christ" which will put his persecutors "to shame" (v. 16). How effectively that has worked only recently in Germany, Norway and elsewhere.

II. Do Not Be Surprised—the Enemy Will Attack (4:12, 13).

Surprise attack is effective. Remember Pearl Harbor! Satan is an expert in strategy, and is eager to keep Christians in an easy and comfortable mood, so that he may strike a vicious blow when it is not expected. We best prepare to meet him when we recognize that persecution and suffering will come.

We are to bear in mind that it is not some "strange thing" which has happened; we who suffer as Christians are "partakers of Christ's sufferings." Joy and glory are ahead.

III. Do Not Be Ashamed—You Suffer for Christ (4:14-16).

Sadness and depression rest upon the one who suffers for his own evil deeds, but those who suffer for Christ's sake may be ever rejoicing. Can you not see that "the spirit of glory and the Spirit of God" are resting (v. 14) even now on some who sit in prisons and concentration camps? What a glorious picture of His grace!

It is proper to observe here that the believer is not to be guilty of that which justly brings the law's condemnation (v. 15). Do not fail to note the last of the list of crimes—"meddler in other men's matters." Has not just that caused endless trouble in the church, and harmed its testimony before the world? Let's quit meddling!

IV. Do Not Worry—He Careth for You (5:6, 7).

Worry! Worry! How it does crowd itself into our thinking. Yes, we know we are Christians, that we are unjustly accused or persecuted, that we are suffering for Christ's sake. That's all true, but how is it all coming out? What about my family? Will they harm my children? If I do survive will I be able to start life anew? And so on—questions without end; and soon comes the corroding touch of worry.

What shall we do? The answer is plain. Cast all your care on Christ—"He careth for you" (v. 7). That takes an act of faith just as it does to become a Christian in the first place, but it works.

The cure for all anxiety is right there—but it can only be reached by the path of humility. "Humble yourselves" (v. 6). There is the gateway to comfort, and to true exaltation in God's own good time (cf. Jas. 6:4-10).

V. Do Not Waver—God Is Your Strength (5:8-10).

Steady, perfected, established in Christ, sure of his eternal destiny and with the eyes of faith seeing the glory to come—such is the man who is ready and able to meet the devil when, like a roaring lion, he seeks to disturb and devour God's people. The believer should be ready and equipped.

That does not mean that the Christian sits with his hands folded waiting in a fatalistic way for the inevitable to happen. Never! He is "on the alert", with his spiritual ears attuned to hear the approach of the enemy's "bombers." He is "sober and watchful" against the "roaring lion" (v. 8).

Satan is unusually busy in our day. Alert Christian people see his deadly onslaughts on their brethren, which are possibly more severe now than for many years. He is seeking to break them down physically, mentally and spiritually, to make them fearful, to make them timid about work for Christ, to limit their usefulness, and to steal from them their victorious assurance. He is busy—let us be alert against him.

A Week of The War

Last week was a relatively quiet one in the war. The battle for Attu Island entered its final phase, Allied planes kept up a steady rain of bombs on Axis Mediterranean ports and European production centers. Storms raging over most of the Southwest Pacific hampered air activity in the Solomons and in New Guinea.

When the week opened, the trapped Japanese garrison on Attu had been split up into three groups—isolated pockets harassed continually by low-flying American fighter planes. Attu village had been virtually wiped off the map by U. S. bombing and strafing planes. Then, on Wednesday, the Navy announced that one of the three Jap pockets had been wiped out and that army ground troops were attacking another.

Attack By Combined Forces

Enemy forces trapped in the area around Chichagof pass were cleaned up by combined northern and southern American ground forces. The assault was made along the ridge of Chichagof valley, and was supported by army bomber and fighter planes. The same forces then attacked the second isolated Jap group, the garrison holding out farther north in the area around Chichagof harbor, and after hard fighting in a co-ordinated attack along the ridge south of the corridor, U. S. army troops succeeded in gaining a foothold on the high ground south of the harbor.

A U. S. naval ship bombarded Japanese shore installations in the area and started numerous fires, as the ground troops continued their drive. All buildings in the area were destroyed.

The Japanese have fought back, but their retaliatory bombing raids have had little effect on the American advances. Secretary of War Stimson, holding a press conference in Washington, said these attacks were carried out with bombers which appeared from and departed for the west, and suggested that the planes were operating from bases in the Kurile Island group.

Casualties Comparatively Light

Incomplete reports of American casualties in the struggle for Attu show 127 killed, 399 wounded and 118 missing. Secretary Stimson, in giving out these figures, said Japanese losses were believed to be heavier.

Bad weather, which aided the Americans in their initial landing, subsequently hampered their progress in the campaign, interfering with naval artillery and aerial bombardment. The army has been advancing steadily under conditions of sleet and snow, but freezing temperatures and heavy fog have prevented the full use of supporting air power. Most of the fighting has been between infantry units using bayonets and hand grenades.

Secretary Stimson predicted that if air operations can be continued in good weather, the clean-up of the Japanese will be expedited.

Mediterranean Bombing Attacks

The heavy pounding of Allied bombings was inflicted over and over last week on Italy's most important ports. Harbor installations, supply centers, rail and road facilities, airfields, warehouses, ships, in Sicily, Sardinia, and Italy felt the destructive might of Allied planes. In one daylight attack, more than 300 planes of Maj. Gen. James Doolittle's strategic air force swarmed over Sardinia, meeting no fighter opposition and no anti-aircraft fire, wrecking ships, buildings and airfields. In another series of raids, flying fortresses and liberators roared over the Sicilian ferry terminus of Messina in one of the most successful attacks of the North African campaign, virtually paralyzed that port, and in 24 hours brought down 23 enemy aircraft over Sicily, Sardinia and Pantelleria.

Raids On New Guinea

After several days of limited activity, forced upon them by bad weather, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Allied fliers, using one-ton bombs, raided the Japanese bases at Lae and Madang, and attacked a long stretch of the New Guinea coastline.

Twenty-eight tons of explosives and fire bombs were dropped on Lae on Huon Gulf along the northeast New Guinea coast. Fires, visible 75 miles, were set in supply dumps and direct hits were scored on two grounded enemy planes.

The planes at tree-top height strafed Japanese installations with 12,000 rounds of machine gun fire. Intense enemy anti-aircraft fire brought down one fighter of the firce of liberators, Mitchells and Beaufighters that made the attack.

Eight-Day Blitz Over Europe

In twin attacks on the Nazi submarine bases at Wilhelsven and Emden, in Germany, American flying fortresses and liberators brought down 74 enemy fighter planes, losing only 12 American bombers. This was a new record, and boosted to 269 the number of German fighters shot down in combat in an eight-day blitz over Europe. The loss ration in these attacks was more than six enemy planes for every American bomber lost.

NOT IN UNIFORM— BUT IN THE ARMY

The milker on the nation's farms may not be in khaki or in service blue, but he surely is in the army, so far as victory is concerned. He's part, yes, and a vital part, of the production army and fighters can't win without food as well as guns.

Never has the dairy industry been asked to do so much—the needs of the armed forces, lend-lease demands, and the nutrition program on the "home front." A three-way call for more, more and more milk and milk products.

Every day the milk does his part to keep full milk cans rolling to city and factory. There's no "time off" in the milk business—Old Madam Cow keeps producing and must be milked twice a day or three times every day in the week.

The milker is just as important to the fighter, as the man on the production line who sends him bullets and guns, for a sick, starved soldier cannot fight to victory, and milk products are vital in fighting rations.

The young man, milking, may feel that he should be in khaki or service blue, but he may well be serving victory best by staying where he is—keeping the milk supply on its way to soldier, sailor, allies and civilians.

Salute the dairy farmer and his crew of milkers who make possible the "crop" of milk and milk products, cheese, butter, dried milk, evaporated milk and ice cream which the world today so urgently requires. "U. S. needs us strong."

WITH THE REDS

Results of the weekly starting time poll recently conducted by the Reds show that war workers in the defense plants are heavily in favor of morning games, and that fans attending games at Crosley Field are in favor of afternoon and twilight games General Manager Warren Giles has announced that the schedule will be arranged to include games around the clock, in keeping with the preferences of the voters.

Defense workers' ballots, cast at the plants, were 60 percent in favor of the morning contests, while at Crosley Field 49 percent favored regular afternoon games at the present starting time. and an additional 30 percent voted for games at 5 to 5:30 p. m.. Only 2 percent voted for morning games.

A composite tabulation of all the ballots, including those at the defense plants and at Crosley Field. reveals that 25 percent voted for the present afternoon starting time of weekday games, 22 percent voted for twilight games from 5 to 5:30 p. m. and 31 percent voted for morning games from 10:30 to 11.

Many voters wrote on their ballots requests for additional night games. The Reds' present schedule calls for seven night games, seven less than the limit of 14 allowed in the major leagues. General Manager Warren Giles wants to study the night game situation before making any definite decision as to an increase in the number of games.

Two morning games already have been played at Crosley Field on May 3 and 28. One twilight game was played on May 7. The third morning game will be played on Thursday, June 24, between the Reds and St. Louis.

Following is the new schedule of starting times:

Morning games. 11 a. m.
Weekday afternoon games 3 p.m.
Twilight games, 5:30 p. m.
Night games, 9 p. m.
Saturday and Sunday single games, 2:30 p. m.
Doubleheaders, 1:30 p. m.

Conservation News

The old excecuse "Just around the corner," can be corrected by saying "Around the hill to Victory." This applies to farmers who want to help do their part by increasing production.

A recent U. S. D. A. leaflet states that Iowa farmers had 23 bushels increase per acre in their yield of corn; 40 Kentucky farmers report a 21-bushel increase per acre on their corn yield; and still another 25 Kentucky farmers report a 362-pound increase on tobacco per acre. All these increases were due to conservation farming, or planting and cultivating their crops around the hill on the level. To purchase fertilizer for use to make these increases would be rather expensive. They also report that they save fuel, horse power and man power which again lowers the cost of production.

Are your crop rows going to be "Soil Gutters" or "Soil Savers." Level cultivation holds soil, water and fertilizer on the land. Stop and think how much fertilizer is lost with the soil and water on cultivated land where the furrows are laid off to form Soil Gutters.

Farm on the level. Assistance in establishing contour lines may be obtained by calling the County Agent or the Soil Conservation District offices. Telephone numbers are 412 and 94.

STATE 4-H DAIRY FOODS GIRLS SHOW HOW TO KEEP FIT TO WORK AND FIGHT

A feminine army, comprising thousands of 4-H Club girls in Kentucky and practically all other states, is bringing home the paramount wartime need of making the fullest use of milk and other dairy products to keep rural America in working and fighting trim.

The girls are accomplishing this task through public demonstrations, which include the preparation of nutritious drink, custards, cream and cheese pies, soups, salads and other dishes utilizing milk and dairy products. They are also demonstrating how to make and handle butter, cheese, cottage cheese, and ice cream.

Many of these youthful workers are enrolled in the 1943 National 4-H Dairy Foods Demonstration activity, in which outstanding records of achievement will be recognized. These recognitions include medals to county individual team winners, and awards of $50 War Savings Bonds provided by the Kraft Cheese Company, to the two highest rating individual demonstrators, and to members of the two top teams in the State.

This activity is being conducted along with other wartime projects of production and conservation by the Extension Service of the State Agricultural Colleges. and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Full details may be obtained from county extension agents.

DAIRY AND POULTRY PRODUCTS SELL WELL

That dairy and poultry products will continue to sell at present levels, throughout most of the summer, is the opinion report of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Prices have been near ceiling levels.

People are using more milk, butter, eggs and poultry meat. The college says the demand has been unprecedented. Also, rationing has helped to secure a better distribution of food products. During the flush production months of May, June and July, butter makers are to set aside half of their production, which will reduce the amount available for civilian uses and tend to bolster prices.

Assurances have been given producers that egg prices will be near present levels throughout the summer. With stable prices in prospect, the college's report says attention can well be directed toward good management of flocks and care of eggs.

Roosters should be sold as soon as the hatching season is over. If kept in the flocks, eggs will begin to incubate at normal summer temperatures and depreciate in quality. Farmers who sell their roosters save their feed and produce better eggs.

The college also brings out that in view of feed cost and prices of chickens, culling and selling should be done just as soon as hens become unprofitable; that is, do not lay well.

A plea is made that egg losses, due to spoilage, be kept at a low point this summer. At present prices, buyers cannot absorb losses resulting from spoilage or careless handling without lowering prices generally. In past years 6 to 8 percent of eggs sold in summer spoiled before they reached a market. The sale of roosters and more care in handling eggs would help reduce this loss.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Many farmers in Edmonson county found that Fulwin oats withstood the winter, while common winter oats has frozen out.

A bushel of Bansei edible soybeans for seed have been purchased for distribution among members of homemakers' clubs in Harlan county.

A probable Franklin county record in individual fat collection for the war effort was made by Mrs. Lucien Trumbo when she turned in 30 pounds.

In Livingston county, farmers have agreed to grow 890 acres of soybeans for oil this year.

..not if you take good care of your

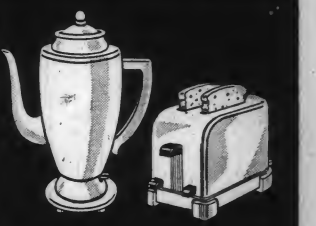

Table Appliances

Go back to boiled coffee and burned toast? Not if you keep your automatic toaster and electric percolator in tip-top shape! Just give them the proper care—use them but don't abuse them—and they'll last you for years!

POINTERS ON TOASTER CARE

- Keep toaster clean by wiping outside with damp cloth, using a mild abrasive powder if necessary. Heating element cleans itself when current is on.
- Use small soft brush for removing crumbs from base if toaster has no crumb tray. Never use a knife or fork in contact with heating elements as they are easily damaged.
- Never immerse toaster in water. Keep dripping rags away from heating elements and electrical connections
- Do not put buttered bread or bread with cheese spread in toaster. Spread these on hot toast after it is made.
- Be careful not to drop your toaster. You may damage thermostat or heating elements.

TIPS ON PERCOLATOR CARE

- A clean percolator is the secret of good coffee. Wash inside with warm soapy water, rinse and dry. Wash outside with damp cloth and mild scouring powder. Never immerse percolator in water.
- About once a week substitute a tablespoon of baking soda for coffee and percolate as though making coffee. This will get rid of rancid coffee oils that cling to metal.
- Always make sure you have put in water before connecting percolator. Otherwise you will blow out fuse in base of percolator.
- If you have a glass coffee maker with cloth filter, rinse filter cloth thoroughly after each using. Between usings keep cloth in glass of cold water.
- Guard against dropping glass coffee maker bowls. Do not let cold water come in contact with hot bowls.

WITH OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

Ralph Maurer, of Camp Van Dorn, Miss., writes:

"Have been intending to write for sometime but personal time here is at a premium, so just don't get the opportunity to write many of whom I think of quite often.

"The weather is extremely hot here now but native Mississippians say that hotter weather is yet to come.

"Trust that the newspaper business is flourishing and needless for me to say how I enjoy receiving the paper each week.

"Give my best regards to Ty and 'Abbie.' Tell Combs that I'm just as tought and mean as the enclosed picture indicates.

"My work now consists chiefly of duties as Hq. Co. clerk and teaching illiterates, but within a few days I will be transferred into the Adjutant General's section doing personnel consultant and classification work. It is really a break, in that the work itself calls for professional experience and duties whereas my present job is only routine clerical duties; too the chance for promotion there is good and here it is not.

"Again thanks for the paper, and the very best to you all."

Cpl. Wilbur Shinkle of Columbia, S. C., writes:

"I am sorry I have waited so long to write and thank you for the weekly edition of The Recorder which you so thoughtfully send me.

"Until the last month or so we had received The Recorder now and then from home, after the family and neighbors had finished with it. Now we receive it every Saturday morning and get to read it while the news is still news. I really mean we read every word of it—even advertisements and want ads.

"I was transferred from Camp Wheeler, Ga., to Ft. Jackson, here at Columbia, S. C., last December. I have been in the Quartermaster Corp ever since I first came into the army.

"I have been fortunate enough to be permitted to live at our apartment in town for over a year.

"As everyone tries to stress the important of buying War Bonds, I would like to tell you what one of the high schools here bought with the proceeds of War Bonds and Stamps purchased by its students.

"Approximately 1,200 high school students purchased more than $26,090 worth of Bonds and Stamps during a six weeks' period. With these proceeds they bought 29 new jeeps just off shipment. Twenty-nine 'Non Comms' drove them to the steps of the school house where where ceremonies were held in recognition of the school's meritorious service.

"I had the honor of driving the first jeep—the one which carried Gov. Olin D. Johnson, Brig. Gen. Royden and James H. Hammond, chairman of the State War Savings Committee.

"Mr. Hammond presented them with a certificate for the pupils having participated 90 percent in buyings Bonds, and a plaque signed by Henry Morgenthau, designed with 29 stars, depicting the school's contribution to the government and The Minute Man flag for exceptional service.

"The principal of the school presented the jeeps to Gen. Beebe. When Gen. Beebe accepted them, in his speech, he offered this design for winning the war: 'We've all got to keep on peeling potatoes, even when we get tired of the task.'

"Students of the representative council were taken for an around-the-block-ride in the jeeps which they had collected the money to buy.

"Even though we soldiers make only a small percentage of the salaries most of you back home draw on pay day—everyone of us buy a part of a bond each pay day.

"If these students and we soldiers buy our share, I'm sure everyone at home is doing his part.

"I hope I haven't bored you telling about these students and their bond buying, but everyone here is proud of them and really it's the least any of you can do to help.

"Again I want to thank you for The Recorder. When we boys write to thank you it is only a lot of words sent home to you. You, yourself must be away from home and receive The Recorder as we do in order to really know how much we appreciate your kindness and The Recorder."

The following letter was received from Charles E. Newman with the U. S. Navy:

"I have been receiving your paper for quite sometime now, but since I have been so busy I just couldn't find time to thank you for your thoughtfulness in sending it to me. Words cannot express my appreciation—it sure does a lot in keeping me up with home news and after all that means a lot to us fellows in this service, especially one as far from home as I. After completing my duties for the day I look forward to a very enjoyable evening reading of the happenings at home. After reading what you folks back there are doing to help. It sure gives a fellow plenty of courage and will to go ahead and do his darndest for the good old U. S. A.

"I wish I could tell you about my duties and all things that has happened to me since enlisting in the Navy. I know you will understand though it is impossible for me to tell you all I would like to, due to the fact a lot of it would be military information, which I cannot disclose.

"Well Pete here's thanking you again, so keep the home fires burning because I hope to be seeing you soon.

"Tell your wife and all the folks back home I said hello and keep the letters coming."

Harry Papet, F 1-c of the U. S. Navy writes:

"I can't find words to express my thanks for The Recorder. You can't imagine how I felt on that rainy Sunday when I received my first Recorder. It surely did brighten the day after all. You can't realize how that helps a person's morale when they are remembered by a County paper.

"You do your best for us and we will do our best for you and 'Old Glory.'"

Cpl. J. W. Watts, son of Mrs. Ida Watts, of Hebron returned to Camp Van Dorn, Miss., after spending a ten-day furlough with his mother and other relatives. While here, he paid The Recorder office a visit Friday, expressing his thanks for the news from home each week. Cpl. Watts apparently is enjoying the best of health and stated that he is well pleased with army life.

PRODUCTS OF TWO COWS WORTH $300

How an investment of $300 in two cows brought $1,100 in two and a half years to James M. Gillihan, former 4-H club member in Livingston county, is related by Farm Agent Robert L. Rudolph. In October, 1940, Gillihan bought two registered Hereford cows for which he paid $150 each. Recently he sold them, along with two of their calves and a yearling heifer, for $950. Earlier, a registered bull from one of the cows had brought $150. For keeping and feeding the two cows and their calves for two and a half years, Gillihan realized $800.

Town And Farm In Wartime

More Canned Food For Civilians

Civilians will gain 30 million cases of canned fruits and vegetables as a result of reduced Government requirements, the War Food Administration has announced. The reductions are mainly for corn, peas, spinach, tomatoes, snap beans, fruit cocktail, sweet cherries, peaches, pineapple, and pineapple juice. Since the 1943 production is not known, current point values for these items will not be immediately affected.

May Use Oil Stoves

Householders may use their oil cooking stoves this summer regardless of the availability of coal or wood-fired stoves, OPA has announced. The present restrictions denying fuel oil rations for domestic cooking and water heating if adequate "stand-by" equipment is available has been lifted because of the shortage of all fuels.

Pay Off Farm Debt

Increased revenue from crops and livestock should be used to pay off farm debt, said Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard recently. He emphasized that the payment of outstanding obligations, along with as large an investment as possible in war bonds, is a sound protection for the future.

Food For 3-Day Furlough

A serviceman on a leave or furlough of at least 3 days hereafter will be provided with a complete application form for obtaining rationed food before he leaves camp. He will give the application to the person who provides his meals, who will submit it to the local board for food certificates within fifteen days after the furlough ends.

Further Cheese Rationing

To conserve supplies of milk, rationing will be extended to include all cheeses and cheese products, except cottage, bakers, and pot cheese, the War Food Administration and OPA have announced. All hard cheeses and most cheese foods have been rationed since March 29. Early in June, soft perishable cheeses such as cream cheese, Neufchatel, Camembert, Liederkrantz, Brie, and blue cheese are to be added to the ration list.

Women Must Work

By December, 1943, one-third of the female population of working age—17.4 million women—will be required for the civilian labor force and the armed forces, said WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt. At least 2 million women must be added to the labor force in 1943.

Lower Potato Prices 7 Per Cent

Consumers' ceiling prices on potatoes have been decreased about 7 per cent according to a recent OPA announcement. At the same time, the price paid growers was increased 30 cents per hundredweight on the 1943 early crop.

Sugar Supply For 1943

On the basis of prospective 1943 supplies of sugar, the current level of consumption in this country probably can be maintained the War Food Administration has announced. The allocation of the prospective supply will be as follows: 1,153,000 tons for the armed forces, lend-lease, and other exports, and 4,600,000 tons for civilian uses. The civilian uses include an estimated 2,258,000 tons for household use and home canning, and 2,342,000 tons for industrial and institutional sugar users.

Stocking Regulations

OPA'S new regulation setting definite maximum prices on rayon stockings is based upon construction, which in turn governs quality. All full-fashioned rayon hosiery sold at retail must be marked with the ceiling price and the gauge or needle count. Gauge and needle count govern wearability, not sheerness. First quality, full-fashioned rayon hosiery prices now range from 71 cents to $1.31. Hosiery with special features, such as "non-run," or mesh, reinforced heel, sole and welt, etc., are now priced from 98 cents to $1.67. Irregulars, seconds and thirds are cheaper.

First quality, circular knit rayon hosiery prices range from 28 cents to 64 cents. Hosiery with special features is priced from 36 cents to 66 cents and irregular, seconds and thirds for less.

Teachers Can Take Summer Jobs

School teachers will not be prevented from taking jobs at higher pay under WMC regulation No. 4, the "hold the line" order, nor will they endanger their regular positions by working during the summer vacation in war plants, agriculture, or necessary civilian services, said Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission recently.

Price Support For Butter

Dairy farmers have been assured that wholesale prices of butter will continue to be supported at a level equivalent to 46 cents a pound, Chicago basis, until June 30, 1944, by the War Food Administration. The support was pledged last December at the time farmers were called upon to meet 1943 production goals.

Gas To Get To Garden

Driving to victory gardens will be permitted under the non-essential driving ban in the 12 eastern states only if other means of transportation are inadequate, and if the trips are necessary to assure top food production from the garden, OPA has declared.

Prices Set On Pressure Canners

Specific ceilings on three war models of pressure canners have been announced by OPA. Except in the far western zone, the consumer will pay $13.90 for the national model, $14.90 for the Wisconsin model, and $15.90 for the Burpee. In the far western zone, prices are 60 cents higher because of transportation costs. Production of another 125,000 pressure cookers has been authorized by the consumers' durable goods division of WPB, bringing the total during 1943 to about 175,000, more than in any other year.

Maternity Care Provided

Wives of men in the four lowest pay grades of the armed forces can now get maternity care plus medical, hospital, and nursing care for their babies in 23 states without cost to the family, the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor has announced. To apply for such aid, the wife must fill out a form secured from the State Health Department. Additional states are expected to have approved programs soon.

Mileage From Scrap Tires

To obtain additional mileage from tires that can be made serviceable with the addition of reliners, the Office of Rubber Director has excluded reusable tire carcasses from rubber scrap going to reclaiming plants. Because of this order, some half-million otherwise unusuable tires can be placed in service through the Defense Supplies Corps.

Fuel Ration Change Simple

Any upward adjustment in next year's fuel oil ration for owners of small homes will be made without a special application or extra forms, OPA has announced. The adjustments, to correct excessive cuts for consumers heating small houses, will be made automatically by war price and rationing boards with the regular application for renewal of fuel rations.

Lumber For Farms

To relieve lumber shortages on farms for all repairs except those to farm dwellings, WPB has set aside a total of 500 million board feet of lumber for delivery on an AA-2 preference rating during June, July, August and September. Farmers who cannot obtain lumber with present ratings, should apply to the County Farm Rationing Committee for certificates to purchase lumber for maintenance, repair, and new construction necessary to the food production program.

Canning Workers Needed

About 400,000 workers for the food canning and processing industry will be needed at the peak season this year. Canning is essentially a seasonal, hometown industry, manned by local workers —youths, housewives, mechanics, and others—who normally work at other occupations during the rest of the year.

Food Dealers Well Off

Under community-wide dollars-and-cents ceilings now being established, food retailers and wholesalers will continue to enjoy the most favorable economic position on record, says OPA. The volume of business done, dollar margins over cost, and profits before taxes stand today at high levels, a favorable situation reflected in the fact that business failures are currently at the lowest point in half a century.

Saving On Farm Fertilizer

Farmers who use nitrogenous fertilizers—used mainly for top-soil reconditions—will be saved approximately $225,000 within a year by the six per cent freight reductions which became effective May 15, 1943. This saving will chiefly affect sales and purchases next year, since most farmers have already bought their 1943 requirements. The individual's saving will depend upon his location and upon the delivery system of the seller.

Frills Removed From Women's Wear

A clothing conservation program adopted by WPB will affect every branch of the women's and children's outerwear industry. Manufacture of dresses is now subject to two controls: square-inch limitations on the amount of material which may be used for trimmings, collars, pockets, etc., and restrictions on the size and design of the trimmings, and control of the basic silhouette to specified measurements of length, sweep, hip, hem, etc., listed in Amended Order L-58.

Rubber Boots For Workers

Rubber boots are now available to the following classes of workers: miners, loggers, communications linemen, construction workers, oil drillers, quarry workers, and clay extractors. Formerly, only miners and loggers were on the eligible list. Applicants must show ration boards definite occupational need for rubber boots, but a purchaser is no longer required to turn in worn-out rubber footwear when he buys a new pair.

Extra Meat Rations

Loggers, miners, prospectors, fishermen, sheepherds, and others who live or work far from population centers and who cannot supplement their meats-fats ratibns with fresh fish, poultry, and eggs can get extra points for rationed meats by two new OPA amendments.

Care Of The Feet

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SEOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

The human body, a wonderful structure of energy and beauty and, like an architectural structure, depends primarily on the strength of its foundation — the feet.

The feet are the most overworked part of the body, and functioning under unfavorable conditions, usually results in (1) weakening, (2) impairment and (3) discomfort.

Facts — Ninety per cent of all people in the country suffer from some kind of foot trouble, and many of them suffer all their lives without knowing the source of their ailments.

Just think, the skeleton or framework of the human foot contains 26 bones. (A person's foot contains more than one-fourth of the two hundred bones in the entire human frame.) When the bones become abnormally positioned as when the metatarsel bones or arches drop, it affects other component parts of the foot such as muscles, ligaments, tendons and nerves.

When you step on a hose it pinches it, and the flood water is stopped at the point of pressure.

The same applies when a bone is pressing on the blood vessels that traverse the foot. Then pains are the result of this pressure, they can and should be relieved.

Always remember this, painful feet interfere with one's work, discourage the exercise so vital to health, and spoil life's pleasures. —Adv.

ICE CREAM IS THE ANSWER

One of the best solutions of the problem of getting more milk into the diet of many people is through ice cream. Professor W. H. Martin of Kansas State College points out that ice cream contains all the ingredients of milk. It is highly palatable and liked by everyone. For the nearly one-half of the adult population of the country not drinking milk regularly, ice cream provides an excellent source of the nutrients of milk. It ranks high among the list of protective foods.

Ice cream is a quick source of energy. Its refreshing qualities and important protective values not only make it a most important food but also give it the high degree of popularity it holds with all groups in all walks of life.

"An average serving of vanilla ice cream," states Mrs. Ethel Austin Martin, nutritionist of the National Dairy Council, "furnishes nearly one-sixth of all the calcium needed by an adult daily and generous amounts of other minerals found in milk. The same high quality proteins of milk are present in significant amounts."

FARMERS' SPIRIT HIGH DESPITE THREE FLOODS

Three floods in four months failed to dampen the spirit of farmers in Henderson county in their determination to carry on in helping to win the war. With soybeans urgently needed for oil and hemp needed for seed, these farmers have contracted to grow the largest acreages of these crops in the history of the county. Farm Agent H. R. Jackson reports that 4,200 acres of hemp and 26,000 acres of soybeans will be planted. How this unusually large hemp crop is to be harvested with the present labor shortage is another problem to be faced in the county. New methods of threshing as recommended by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics are receiving attention.

Henderson county's large hemp planting is in response to the request of the government that Kentucky grow hemp to supply seed for the entire nation. Some of the seed produced will be used to grow another seed crop in 1944, but most of it will be used to provide hemp for fiber.

Money Talks

By FREDERICK W. STAMM, Economist, Director of Adult Education, UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The "back-to-the-farm" movement is gaining in popularity in this country, and city folks, farmers, and even investors are competing for farms everywhere. The recent survey of the National Association of Real Estate Boards indicated that "farmers make up about 56 percent of farm land purchasers; that investors make up 38 percent, and the remaining 6 percent seem to be 'city people' satisfying their urge to own a farm." The most encouraging part of this report is that farmers are not buying land on a "shoestring" as they did in the last World War but are making a substantial down payment in most instances. "Farmers are doing two things with their money" a spokesman for the Farm Bureau Federation stated, "buying bonds and paying their debts." Farm Credit Administration reports show that farmers last year (1942) repaid more than $300 million on loans at their land banks and on commissioners loans. More than 100,000 farmers paid off their loans in full. If this trend continues, farmers will be in a sound financial condition after the war and we should not witness the wholesale foreclosure of farm mortgages we did after the last World War and in the early '30's.

Investors are buying farms because they are looking for a safe place to put their money with the hope of realizing a fair return. With our farm income estimated at $18 billion for 1943 or over twice that for 1939, farms should prove a very profitable investment.

City people are buying farms for security. Many persons still believe we are going to have a business depression after this war, and a small farm near their work or near a city offers them an excellent way to "ride out" a depression.

An encouraging sign is the fact that in spite of the large demand for farm land there has not been the spectacular land boom we had in 1917 and 1918. Farm prices have risen about 15 percent over a year ago, and if we can keep land values down during this war we should not have a farm depression such as we have had after past wars. Debt-free farms now seem to be one of the best investments in America.

4-H CLUBBERS CARRY WARTIME PRODUCTION

That unusual wartime production is being carried on by 4-H club members in Montgomery county is told by Farm Agent Floyd McDaniel. Many members have enlisted in a number of projects to help increase the nation's food supply. Charles P. Prewitt is feeding 22 lambs for the district show and sale and five beef calves. He is also growing four and a half acres of tobacco and, with his mother, is managing a flock of 200 chickens. Tommy and Bobby Sutton as brother partners have a flock of 20 sheep, two brood sows, two cows with calves and, in addition, they are brooding chicks. Prospects are good that 60 4-H club lambs and 30 Utopia club lambs from the county will be ready for the district show and sale.

SEVEN OF FAMILY IN ONE 4-H CLUB

Seven members of the Botland 4-H club in Nelson county are members of one family, the youngest being 8 years old and the oldest 18. The mother, Mrs. Dewey Allen, is the leader of the club. Nelson county's 4-H club membership now totals 889.

MEAT CANNING POPULAR

Three times as much meat canned this year as was canned in the same length of time last year, is the record of members of Breathitt county homemakers' clubs in their live-at-home program. In February, they canned 860 quarts of sausage and ribs, 111 quarts of beef and 68 quarts of chicken. They also made 256 pounds of lard and 130 pounds of souse meat.

WOMEN WORKING ON FARM SHOULD GUARD AGAINST ACCIDENTS

To help out in the labor situation, many women in Kentucky will be doing farm work for the first time this year. Rules for protecting themselves against accidents have been issued at Washington, and are being distributed by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Tired, worried workers are the ones who are most likely to have accidents. To save worry, it is suggested that both the housework and farm work be organized, that meals be planned ahead of time, that every member of the family be given a definite job to do, and that eight or nine hours of sleep be had every night.

For safety when handling machinery, check it before starting; stop it for all adjustments and repairs; wear coveralls with no loose parts to catch in the machine. Unhitch horses from the machine before making adjustments, and speak quietly when going close to animals.

Avoid over-exposure by wearing weather-resistant clothing in cold, wind and rain; wear gloves for doing rough work; protect against the sun with a broadbrimmed hat and dark glasses, and protect nose and throat in dusty jobs.

Watch your health by having a medical check-up to be sure it is safe for you to do heavy work; have a first-aid kit handy; cleanse cuts and scratches and cover with sterile material; wear comfortable well-fitting shoes and stockings.

Eat three well-planned meals each day, with mid-morning and afternoon snacks when the days are especially long and hard; use one-eighth to a fourth teaspoonful of salt to each glass of drinking water when perspiring freely.

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yealey

Question: "Where did they proceed with you?"

Answer: "On leaving the farm the officers had us to ride ahead of them to the Burlington and Florence pike, then we followed the pike to Limaburg, and we were held there until two of the officers went beyond Burlington and returned with several men. Then we followed the Limaburg and Hebron road to the farm of (the writer here will blank the name). The officers were treated to a pitcher full of cold water and cake. A lengthy conversation took place, then we moved forward to Hebron. When we reached Hebron we turned left and followed the road towards Petersburg until we reached Bullittsburg where we were halted again, and several officers reconnoitered and came back with several men. Then we began our journey forward and finally crossed the Ohio River and were put in a prison camp near Lawrenceburg, Ind. Tents were used for sleeping and shelter."

Question: "What opinion did you have of a military prison camp?"

Answer: "Well it would do all right but every Sunday visitors came and in roaming about they would pull back the flaps of our tents and stare at us as if we were wild animals."

Question: "How long were you in this prison camp?"

Answer: "About two weeks and then we were sent to Cincinnati and we sent for an influential citizen which resided at Hebron, Boone County, to come over and he came over and through him we took the oath of Allegiance to the U. S. Government and were told then to go home."

After the return home an organization was established among a goodly number of these men in order when they became drafted they pooled their money and would purchase a substitute. Several of these men were drafted, but evaded service in this way, yet by skillful manipulation substitutes seldom received what was alloted for them. One man who was treasurer of the above organization told the writer that he had in his possession oft times as much as $5,000 for the purpose of purchasing substitutes.

THE GARDEN

BEAN BEETLES

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

The round holes currently in bean leaves are giving much concern to gardeners, if the letters that keep coming are any indication. These are not the work of the Mexican bean beetle, but that of the spotted cucumber beetle or of the southern bean beetle, and both leave when their favorite weeds get ready. While unsightly, the damage is seldom fatal, but those who wish may check it by dusting with rotenone or with magnesium arsenate and lime, 1 part to 6. The material may be applied to the top surface of the foliage, as both these beetles eat the leaf through.

With the coming of settled warm weather, the Mexican beetle will begin to bestir himself in his winter quarters, and fly to the gardens, there to stay and multiply until the beans are entirely consumed, if that is permitted.

The coming of the first beetles and the breeding of the next generation are so insidious that many gardeners ignore them, but the secret of this insect's controlling is to "get on the job" when it does. The signal for the campaign's start is when the first eggs are seen, about 10 days after the first beetles appear.

Dusting or spraying then, surrounds all the clusters of eggs that are laid that generation, to ensure lethal doses for the infant beetles, sometimes within only a few minutes after they hatch out.

The materials to use are named above, but magnesium arsenate may be used only until the forming of pods starts; then, a switch must be made to rotenone, non-poisonous to humans in the amounts used.

While rotenone could be used throughout, it is the part of patriotism, and economy, too, to use arsenate as long as it may be used safely, to save rotenone, the supplies of which are grieviously cut down by the Japanese occupation of the Dutch East Indies, rotenone's chief source.

Unlike the other two, the Mexican beetle does not eat the leaves through, but feeds only on their under sides. Accordingly, the control material should always be applied there.

DECISION

Men must be decided on what they will do, and then they are able to act with vigor in what they ought to do.—Mencius.

There is nothing more to be esteemed than manly firmness and decision of character.—Hazlitt.

No man, for any considerable period, can wear one face to himself and another to the multitude, without finally getting bewildered as to which may be true.

—Hawthorne

Be sure that God directs your way; then, hasten to follow under every circumstance.

—Mary Baker Eddy

A determinate purpose in life and a steady adhesion to it thru all disadvantages, are indispensable conditions of success.

—W. M. Punshon

A double minded man is unstable in all his ways.—James 1:8.

THE ARMY FIGHTS WASTE OF FOOD

In maintaining the best fed army in history many problems arise as to which foods soldiers eat and which ones they leave on their plates. The solution of some of these questions has a definite bearing on circumstances to be met in keeping the armed forces well fed. To learn how to eliminate as much as possible of the resulting waste the War Department detailed Master Sergeant Horace Scherwin and fifty aides to a 12-month study involving 2,474,362 meals. The study was later the object of a Truman Senate Committee hearing.

The investigation pointed to substantial losses of certain types of foods. Such losses were due in part to the fact that meals are cooked for all soldiers while in many cases part of them are absent on leave. They were also due partly to food preferences of the soldiers. Losses were comparatively heavy in the case of soups, potatoes and certain meats.

Dairy products and fruits head the list of food preferences with vegetables (except potatoes) well toward the top. Among the dairy products there is almost no loss of food. Ice cream consumption is especially significant with practically 100 percent of all available ice cream being eaten. Milk comes a very close second. "The high popularity of dairy products among the armed forces indicated a definite trend in American food habits," states Milton Hult, President of the National Dairy Council.

The study shows that 25 years of nutrition education in this country is bearing fruit. It is significant to note that by eliminating waste and using foods more acceptable to the soldiers the army ration has been reduced from 6 pounds to 5 pounds daily. At the same time the caloric content has been reduced from 4,200 to 3,700 calories daily.

Farm Labor Notes

The sheep shearing program to-date is working satisfactory. Lots of work remains to be done.

Approximately fifteen applications for tenants, farm help by day and month, and custom work has been received to date. Dairy hands and help by the month remains the greatest labor problem.

Grant Maddox of Florence, thru the County Labor Assistant was able to secure an experienced dairy and farm helper.

Dr. R. C. Garrison of Burlington is badly in need of a good dairy helper Doc ought to be a good man to work with. House can be furnished

Charles Black in East Bend bottoms wants a helper by the month. Will furnish room and board.

A. T Hunt, Verona wants a tenant to raise 47 acres of tobacco and do general farm work or will hire man by the month.

These are just samples of the farmers' many labor problems.

A start this week will be made to list all power machinery that will be available for hire or custom work in plowing. disking. planting, cultivating, mowing, harvesting and other work. It is estimated that the average farm tractor works less than 25 days per year. There is enough machinery in the county to plant and harvest all the crops that should be produced. The owners of this valuable machinery will not and should not trust this machinery with inexperienced or irresponsible help. The result is what we have and would normally have under these conditions is an acute power machinery shortage. Every step should be made to keep all needed power machinery working full time.

The labor shortage in the county is serious. All who can work or desire to assist in relieving the present labor shortage should leave their name at the County Agent's office in Burlington, or phone Burlington 412. Owners of all power machinery that will be available for custom work are urged to list their machinery.

We have a big job on the home front. Let's all PLAN, WORK and PRODUCE to conserve and supply our nation, our Armed Forces and our Allies with food.

MODERN MAGIC CARPET

The report of Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, Pres., Air Transport Association of America on performance of domestic airlines in 1942, reads like the tale of the flying carpet.

Airplanes that flew 1,200 miles a day before Pearl Harbor, now fly from 1,600 to 1,800 miles. Although commercial airlines turned over to the government much of their equipment for war purposes, the lines were able to set new records in 1942 over 1941 in cargo, mail and revenue passenger miles flown. Air cargo increased 108 per cent, mail 55 per cent—463,000,000 separate pieces—while express totaled 40,101,657 pounds.

Colonel Gorrell's report shows that transportation is only one of the wartime jobs of our airlines. The carriers are on a 24-hour schedule. Their shops are always open for the servicing of military and naval planes. Their Wartime Training Institute gives specialized schooling to thousands of officers and men of the Air Transport Command. In addition to their domestic routes, they reach every battlefront, maintaining schedules of remarkable frequency and incredible distance to serve the armed services. They have met their major challenge in a fashion of which they and this nation can be proud.

—o—

THE FAMILY WASHTUB

We have read much of the attempts of the War Production Board to make available to the civilian population increased quantities of civilian goods in which shortages have become critical. For example, it is difficult for the average person to realize the function of the galvanized washtub to millions of our people. Over half the homes of America are without bathrooms, and the galvanized tub, used for laundry, is the only bathing facility for the family. Despite this need, however, there has been for many months an acute shortage of large galvanized tubs.

This situation is cited to illustrate the importance of renewing supplies of essential domestic items which the majority of our citizens must eat, wear, and use in order to maintain the morale and health of the country. Only the local storekeeper and the people affected know the importance of such items.

Mistakes were inevitable in establishing any rationing program of food and commodity supplies, but the time for correction has arrived, and washtubs point the way.

A homemakers' club in Madison county has worked out a definite car-sharing system, members meeting at a central neighborhood store.

Ships of the Royal Indian Navy guarding India's coast and on patrol and convoy duty in 1942 traveled a distance equal to 33 times around the earth at the Equator.

URGES "F. I. B." IN EVERY HOME IN STATE TO CONTROL "FIFTH COLUMN"

Establishment of an "F. I. B." in every home in the State in order to control the country's most deadly fifth column was suggested today by D. R. Peel, Fire Marshal of the State of Kentucky. He explained that the "F. I. B." to which he referred was a "fire inspection bureau" and the fifth column was the mass of fire hazards which accumulate unless they are ruthlessly searched out and eliminated. He continued:

"Fire is really the nation's most dreaded fifth column. It takes an average annual toll of 10,000 lives and approximately one-third of a billion dollars in property values. This enemy works just as effectively in interfering with our war production as would a flight of Axis bombers, dropping explosives and incendiary bombs.

Is Double-Barreled Effort

"Every family in the State should mobilize itself to fight this threat to an early victory by forming its own "F. I. B." to take part in the Spring Clean-Up effort which is being sponsored by fire department chiefs and other fire prevention authorities. Such cooperation would bring dual benefits—it would not only aid in preventing fires but would furnish waste materials and scrap so vital to the flow of war production.

"Every member of the family can take part in this slap at the Axis. Little Willie can clean up the attic: Discard old newspapers and magazines that have accumulated during the winter; sell the broken furniture to the junk can and buy war stamps with the proceeds; give that old metal bed and spring to the scrap metal pile.

"Mother and Sister can wash oil-soaked mops and polishing cloths if they can still be used; be sure that worn electric wires are replaced; have faulty gas stove burners adjusted; see that plenty of ash trays are placed where they can be used.

As soon as the furnace is no longer used, Father should see that it and the chimney are thoroughly cleaned and any rusted-out parts replaced; check the electric fuses to be sure they are the 15-amperes size recommended for home use; clean up the basement generally and be ready for an early cold snap in the fall."

CORN CROP IN DANGER; SHOULD PLANT HYBRID THIS LATE IN SEASON

It seems evident that in many parts of Kentucky much corn planting will be delayed until early June or even later. For such late planting, the State College of Agriculture says seed of quick-maturing hybrids or varieties should be planted. If planting can be completed during the first week to 10 days of June, the earlier hybrids widely grown in Kentucky may be safely used. These are the two yellow hybrids U. S. 13 and Ky. 203, and the white hybrids 69, 72 and 72B. Where later planting is necessary, the safest plan will be to purchase seed of hybrids or open-pollinated varieties used in the more northern parts of the Corn Belt states—Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The earliest of these should mature in Kentucky if planted by July 1.

Members of homemakers' clubs in Carroll county have purchased approximately 2,000 gladioli bulbs for home beautification.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Cuts of meat which have little or no waste are generally thrifty buys in both money and points, say home economists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and home economists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Such a cut is the flank steak. Prepared with a dressing, the flavor is extended to make a number of satisfying servings.

Stuffed Flank Steak

2 lbs. flank steak, 2 tsp. salt, pepper, 2 c. tomato soup or juice, 2 tbsp. flour, 2 tbs. fat.

Season steak with salt and pepper. Cover with dressing, then roll with the fiber of the meat. Fasten with toothpicks, or tie with string. Roll in flour and brown in fat. All half the tomato soup or juice, cover tightly and cook at a low temperature, 300 degrees, for two hours or until tender. Add the remainder of the soup or juice as it cooks, thicken if necessary, and serve over the meat.

Dressing: 3c. breadcrubs, one-fourth c. finely chopped onion, 1 tsp. salt, pepper, 2 tbsp. fat, 2 tbsp. parsley, one-fourth cup water.

Combine ingredients and spread over flank steak. Chopped celery or green pepper may be added if desired.

Menu: Stuffed flank steak, carrots with cream, mixed greens, onions and radishes, whole wheat muffins and butter, rhubarb shortcake.

SERVICE BOARD REDEDICATED SUN.

AT FLORENCE—123 NAMES ARE LISTED FROM FLORENCE PRECINCT—JUDGE CROPPER WAS PRINCIPAL SPEAKER.

Unveiling services of the Service Board at Florence. Sunday afternoon at 3:00 p. m. was somewhat marred due to the heavy rain which fell at that time, preventing the carrying out in its entirety the excellent program which the committee from the local P. T. A. had arranged.

The board is located in the beautiful lawn of Mrs. Virginia Goodridge, who graciously granted the space for it between two trees and close to the pavement where it shows up well. The upper part of the board is ornamented with three eagles, a large one in the center and smaller ones at each corner. Decorating and lettering were done by Mrs. Kathleen Loftin, whose husband, William Loftin, made the board. It contains the names of 123 men and boys from Florence precinct.

The program began with music by the bands from Burlington and Florence schools under the able direction of Noel Walton, of Burlington. They were sheltered on Mrs. L. P. Aylor's porch, across the street from the board. Then followed the impressive invocation by Rev. Robert Carter, pastor of the Christian Church. The community singing which was next on the program was postponed on account of the rain.

Speaker of the afternoon, County Judge C. L. Cropper was introduced by A. M. Yealey, who for so many years was principal in the Florence school. Judge Cropper, a veteran of World War I spoke of our pride in our boys who are serving our county so well. His address was appropriate and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The unveiling was accomplished by four little children, Harold V. Markesbery in the uniform of a Marine, Shirley Howard in the uniform of a Red Cross Nurse, Lela Lee Oliver in the uniform of a WAAC and Dickie Wilson in the uniform of an Army officer.

The program was closed with the benediction by Rev. Harold Wainscott, pastor of Florence Baptist Church.

There are three Florence boys on the deferred list who are completing their education in order to be of more service to Uncle Sam. They are George Robert Tanner and Thomas Lutes, who are studying medicine and Marvin Lutes, who is studying dentistry. Upon completing of their training they will be placed in uniform and their names added to the list on the board, as well as any other boys who may be inducted later.

The committee hopes they have not missed anyone, but if they have, will be glad to be notified to that effect.

FLORENCE MAN SUFFERS INJURIES

IN FLORENCE CRASH SUNDAY—THREE COVINGTONIANS INJURED IN CRASH NEAR UNION EARLY SUNDAY.

Silva Maze, of Lloyd Avenue, suffered fracture of the right foot and cuts on his nose and arm Sunday when the automobile he was driving crashed into a tree near Florence. Maze, a worker at the Wright Aeronautical Corporation fell asleep at the wheel while returning home from his work. He was removed to the hospital for treatment.

Three Covingtonians suffered head and body bruises early Sunday morning when the car in which they were riding struck a concrete bridge, near Union on the Union-Big Bone Road. Those injured in the crash were Louis Johnson, 35, of 648 Elm Street, Covington, Mary West, 35, of 223 E. Fifth Street and Grace Ward, 40. Details of the accidents were not learned.

Blood Donors Will Meet At Burlington

Boone County residents who have volunteered to give a pint of blood at the Blood Bank in Cincinnati, are requested to meet at the courthouse in Burlington, June 14, at 11:30 a. m., where transportation will be furnished to all desiring to visit the Blood Bank.

Tobacco Setting Now In Full Swing

Tobacco setting over the county started in full swing Monday morning following the heavy rains Sunday, according to the county agent's office. Some plantings had previously been made from earlier local seasons, but the Monday season was general over the county.

Plants generally are reported good. Many farmers have had difficulty in getting their ground ready, but indications are a large portion of the crop will be set this week.

Some hay was put up the past week. Large acreages of alfalfa have been ready for cutting for more than a week. The quality of this hay will be lowered if it is not harvested in the near future.

Prospects for both hay and pasture yields are generally good over the county.

Soybean Meal Helps Relieve Protein Feed Shortage

Soybean meal purchased from the Commodity Credit Corporation is helping to relieve the protein feed shortage. Two carloads have been received to date and a third car is due in the near future. The price of the meal is around $47.00 per ton at the car door. This price makes it the cheapest protein supplement on the market today.

Farmers desiring to purchase soybean meal in the cooperative car that has been ordered, should call John E. Crigler at the county agricultural office in Burlington.

Government wheat purchased through the CCC has been a cheaper feed than corn. The sales of this wheat will stop in the near future when the dealer's present supply will be exhausted.

FARM LABOR IS LARGEST PROBLEM

IN FOOD AND FEED PRODUCTION—SURVEY STARTED IN COUNTY LAST WEEK REVEALS COOPERATIVE SPIRIT.

Farm labor today remains the most difficult problem in food and feed production in the county, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

A survey of the food and feed situation in the county was started this past week through neighborhood leaders and farm machinery custom operators. A large number of the survey reports received at the county office to date indicates the following outstanding points.

1. An outstanding wholesome spirit of cooperation between farmers exists. Every report received indicates the farmers are 100 percent patriotic in their outlook.

2. Farm machinery owners are willing to do custom work for neighbors provided suitable help to operate the machinery can be secured. Many have expressed a desire to trade work done with machinery for return labor in crops. Others will operate at a reasonable charge. A few operators who have help are plowing, discing and preparing land for planting on a twenty-four hour basis.

3. Many farmers need help to harvest hay this week. The securing of some of this needed help seems practically impossible. Six thousand farm people and four thousand non-farm people can solve this problem more quickly and better than any one man or agency. Feed crops will be the bottleneck in food production next winter. Let's help keep Boone County out of this bottleneck by cooperating, planning, working and sweating to save every pound of needed hay and grain crops. Lend a hand to your neighbor in need. Let's hope he returns the favor.

4. Despite the weather and the late season, prospects for food and feed production in Boone County are good provided full plantings can be made and the crops can be harvested.

The county labor program can be of only limited assistance at the best. However, all farmers who have difficulties with labor problems that cannot be solved locally should immediately notify the county agent's office in Burlington. Because it usually takes a few days before suitable help can be located, all requests should be made as far in advance of the time needed as possible.

FUEL OIL RATION MADE BY MAIL

ACCORDING TO REPORT OF ROBERT E. BRUGH—AMOUNT OF INCREASE WILL BE DETERMINED BY REVISED TABLE.

Allotments for next fall's fuel oil ration to home owners will be made automatically through the mails by the ration boards when the regular application for a renewal of rations are processed this month, Robert E. Brugh, Chairman of the Boone County War Price and Rationing Board, announced today.

This is how the adjustment will be made:

1. Householders in the 33 fuel oil ration states, will fill out a simple form sent them through the mail by their rationing boards in June. These application forms, properly filled out, will be mailed back to the boards as soon as possible.

2. In processing the application, the board will review the householder's last year's application now on file for information necessary to issue the new ration. The amount of any increase will be determined by a revised table to be furnished the boards by OPA.

Need for larger rations for many modest-sized homes was demonstrated, Robert E. Brugh pointed out, by a special nation-wide analysis of more than 30,000 individual rations which showed that the method of determining rations, geared to curtailments of approximately one-third of normal on the average, resulted in disproportionately large cuts for small homes.

SOME COVINGTON STORES TO CLOSE WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

This issue of The Recorder carries an announcement of a number of Covington stores that will close every Wednesday at 1 P. M., during June, July and August.

This is to give their employees an afternoon holiday during the hot weather.

It is suggested that you save this list for reference.

4-H Club Members Must Budget Time

The swimming hole has its good points in this early summer weather, but 4-H members must learn to budget their time and not neglect their 4-H projects, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent.

Garden

The garden must claim a large amount of our attention just now because the potato bug and bean beetle and many other insects are active. The potato bug can be controlled by dusting or spraying arsenate of lead and the bean beetle is best controlled by dusting with rotenone.

Cultivate shallow and often and don't attempt to work the ground when it is too wet.

Poultry

Keep the chicken house clean and dry. Keep plenty of water before your chickens at all times. If they are allowed out doors range chickens should have shade. Find the feed and method of feeding which suits your project best. It is best not to change feeds, buy enough feed now to do for several weeks.

Dairy

The mid-summer slump in milk production will come when the grass gets short and the flies are bad. We should start now to do what we can to prevent the slump. First feed a small amount of grain now while the grass is good. Supply the cow with plenty of water and shade. A darkened stable where the cow can get away from flies will help. Regular habits of milking is very important in keeping up the milk flow.

Tobacco

Work ground thoroughly before setting plants. Apply five hundred pounds of fertilizer per acre. To apply this amount drill four pounds for each one hundred feet of row. Do shallow cultivation often enough to keep down all weeds. Finish up setting by June 20. Cultivate as soon as plants are set.

Corn

Be sure you have a good seed bed before planting. Plant only early maturing varieties, hybrid if possible. Do shallow cultivation enough to keep down weeds.

Shepherd-Martin

The Erlanger Church of God was the scene of a lovely wedding on Tuesday evening, May 25, when Miss Alice Shepherd, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Blaine Shepherd of Charter Oak Road, Kenton County, was married to Pfc. Robert Craim Martin H, only son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Martin, of Erlanger.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Juanita Otten, of Crescent Springs, accompanied by Miss Ruth Sitton, music director of Lloyd High School, Erlanger, sang, "I Love You Truly" and "Always."

Master Larry Yelton, the ringbearer wore a white suit and carried the rings for a double ring ceremony on a white satin pillow. Miss Jo Ann Wingate, the flower girl, wore pink organdy and carried a bouquet of pink roses, daises and baby breath.

Miss Janet L. Martin, sister of the groom, was Miss Shepherd's maid of honor. Her gown was yellow marquisette studded with blue star flowers. Her bouquet was Talisman roses and baby breath. Mr. Grover E. Shepherd, the bride's brother, served as best man.

The bride, a lovely blonde, wore a gown of white lace and marquisette. Her fingertip veil hung from a tiara of seed pearls. Her colonial bouquet was white roses and baby breath.

The Rev. Marion K. Johnson performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Martin is a graduate of Dixie Heights High School and is employed by the H. & S. Pogue Co.

Pfc. Martin is stationed at Camp McCain, Mississippi. Prior to his induction into the army in January, he was employed by the Cincinnati Greyhound Terminal. He is a graduate of Lloyd High School, where he was active in Northern Kentucky sports.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for their numerous friends and relatives.

Shinkle-Kottmyer

The Petersburg Christian Church was tastefully decorated with ferns and white syringa for a beautiful summer wedding Saturday evening, June 5th.

Miss Ruth Vivian Shinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bolivar Shinkle of Petersburg and Mr. Richard Lee Kottmyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kottmyer, Jr., of Constance were married with a double ring ceremony, Rev. Noble Lucas officiating at 7:45 p. m.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. A. Stevens played a selection followed by Mr. Hodge of Hebron singing "Because." After the wedding party had assembled at the altar Mr. Hodge sang, "I Love You Truly."

The bride entered on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage and was lovely in her white satin gown and fingertip veil. She carried a bridal bouquet of white calla lilies.

The matron of honor Mrs. Duncan Huey, sister of the groom was attractively gowned in baby blue nylon. She wore a blue valot bow in her hair and carried a bouquet of red rosebuds and baby breath.

The groom wore a blue suit of summer weight wool. The best man Sgt. Samuel Shinkle, brother of the bride was attired in a military uniform.

Refreshments were served to the immediate families at the bride's home, after which the happy young couple left for a few days' wedding trip.

Our wish for these two fine young people is a long and prosperous married life.

Mrs. Elizabeth Oesting

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Oesting, were held at 9 a. m. Monday morning at the Tallaferro funeral home. Burial was in Florence Cemetery.

Mrs. Oesting died Friday at her home on Shaw Avenue after an illness of eight years. She was 77. She had been a resident of Elsmere for more than 20 years.

She is survived by her husband, Joseph Oesting; three stepdaughters, Mrs. Anna Kehler, Mrs. Mary Rogers and Mrs. Frances Dunn, all of Cincinnati; a stepson, John Joe Oesting, Covington, and a number of grandchildren.

J. E. GAINES IMPROVING

Mr. J. E. "Bert" Gaines, of Petersburg Pike, is reported to be improved late Tuesday afternoon from a very severe heart attack.

Mr. Gaines has been in failing health for sometime, but we are now glad to report that he is considerably improved, although still confined to his bed.

SPECIAL SERVICES SET AT ST. HENRY

HUNDREDS OF SPECIAL GUESTS ARE EXPECTED FROM CINCINNATI AND NORTHERN KENTUCKY.

A summer reunion of members and former parishioners of St. Henry Church, Erlanger, Ky., on Saturday, June 26 on the church grounds is expected to bring hundreds of special guests from Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky. The Rev. Herbert J. Egbring, pastor of the church notified the congregation of the reunion outing date at the Masses on Sunday.

Plans for the outing were to be reviewed at a meeting 8 o'clock Wednesday night, June 9th.

Mrs. A. P. Kern, Wild Rose Drive, Erlanger has been chosen chairman of the dinner committee. The meal will be served from 5 to 8 p. m.

An afternoon card party will begin at 2 p. m. with social games at night.

A special movie will be shown by arrangements made by Albert Becker, Florence, Ky., a member of the parish. The children's band is preparing a special concert for the afternoon.

Father Egbring said that proceeds of the reunion outing will be given to the church fund.

Fish And Game Club Change Meeting Day To Friday, June 11th

Russell Smith, president of The Boone County Fish and Game Protective Association announced this week that the meeting day for the club will be Friday, June 11th instead of Thursday. This change is being made in order that club members will receive notice of the various meetings through the columns of this paper.

All members are urged to attend this meeting, as there are several matters of business to come before the club at this time. Prospective members are also invited to attend.

All former members who have not paid their dues for the year 1943 are urged to send their dues of $1.00 to the Secretary, Albert Wm. Weaver, Burlington, Ky., if they are unable to attend this meeting. Many members are delinquent for the year 1943, and their support is needed to carry on activities of the club.

Month Of June Set Aside As Attendance Month At Local Baptist Church

Special recognition is being given to the attendance of all the membership of the Burlington Baptist Church during the month of June. It is the hope of the church that all members will make a special effort to attend all the services of the church during this month. A check is being made at each service to determine the number of members present.

The month of June has been set aside as attendance month thruout the Southern Baptist Convention. Each member is urged to be present at one service or as many as possible. All other persons who are not members of the church but who attend are given a cordial invitation to all services.

Daily Vacation Bible School In Progress At Burlington Church

Daily Vacation Bible School opened Monday at the Burlington Baptist Church, under the direction of Rev. R. A. Johnson pastor. Approximately fifty students were present for the opening exercises, a much smaller number than last year, due to many children helping farmers in setting tobacco. A much larger attendance was expected as the week progressed.

The school will continue thruout this week and three days of next week, with graduation exercises held Wednesday night, June 16th at the church.

A special invitation is extended to all children in and around Burlington to attend the school, regardless of their church affiliations.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kirkpatrick entertained relatives from Carrollton, Sunday.

Local Girl Initiated Into Kappa Delta Pi

Sixteen Eastern Teachers College students were initiated in the Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society in education on Tuesday evening, May 25, in the study of Danforth Chapel in Berea.

Following the initiation and a program of organ music by one of the senior music students of Miss Gertrude Cheney of the Berea College faculty, the Eastern group held a dinner meeting at Boone Tavern. Mrs. Virginia Carlson Smith, president of the club, presided.

Membership in the organization is by election and invitation. To be eligible for election the student must be at least a junior and must be in the upper one-fourth of the students in scholastic standing. The members consider those who meet the academic requirements and select from this group the students who posses the qualities of leadership necessary for success in the profession of teaching.

Among the students initiated into the organization was Mary Margaret Yates, Burlington.

Home Demonstration Agent Attends Meeting

Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, is attending the special conference for the Home Demonstration Agents of the state at the Bingham 4-H Club Camp, Willisburg, Ky., this week. The chief concern of this meeting will be the place of Extension Service in the program to produce and conserve food during the war emergency. Mrs. Moore will return Saturday.

CHANGES NEEDED IN PRODUCTION

OF LIVESTOCK ON MANY FARMS ACCORDING TO AGRICULTURE COLLEGE — MOST CHANGES RELATE TO FEED SHORTAGE

The College of Agriculture has a letter to county agents indicating the need for important changes in livestock production on many farms, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Most of these needed changes are directly related to a prospective feed shortage unless increased feed production is secured.

Brief notes on important timely livestock problems are listed below. The information is given in general terms and may not apply to all farms alike.

Hogs

1. Hogs should be fed to weights around 200 to 225 pounds instead of 250 to 300 pounds.

2. More efficient production instead of increased hog production should be the goal of the immediate future. The College leaflet "One Third More Pork With the Same Feed and Labor" is available at the county office.

3. Healthy pig production means more economical production. Remember: Every pig farrowed dead represents a loss of four bushels of corn and every pig dying at market weight represents a loss of nearly eighteen bushels of corn. Save the pigs, keep them healthy and fatten them efficiently.

Sheep

Control parasites for successful sheep production. Regular treatments for stomach worm control is the best assurance.

Bluestone-Black Leaf 40 is the best tapeworm and one of the best round worm treatments.

Phenothiazine is best nodular worm control. The Phenothiazine salt treatment has been helpful in controlling both nodular and round worms. The mixture is nine parts salt and part Phenothiazine. Further information on this treatment will be available later.

Lambs

Lambs should be held until they weigh ninety pounds or more before selling. OPA ceiling price on meat and good pastures make this practice especially important this year.

Large Bass Caught At Walton Reservoir

Earl Tapp, Covington took a 6¾-pound large mouth bass from the Walton Reservior, Sunday, according to Edwin Johnson, State Conservation officer. The bass was taken on artificial bait.

TWO FARM LABOR MEETINGS PLANNED

PRELIMINARY SURVEY SHOWS ACUTE SHORTAGE OF LABOR IN COUNTY, SAYS H. R. FORKNER.

Two neighborhood farm labor meetings will be held in the county this week, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

A meeting for farmers in Burlington community will be held at the county agent's office this Thursday evening at 9:00 p. m. E. W. T.

A meeting of farmers in East Bend bottoms will be held at the home of Hugh Stephens of near Rabbit Hash at 9:00 p. m. E. W. T., Friday evening, June 11th.

A preliminary survey of the county shows that there is an acute labor shortage and that no extra labor in the county is available. Exchange of farm work and farm machinery seems temporarily one of the most workable solutions to this acute production problem. All farmers and leaders are invited to attend the meetings in their communities, and to take part in the discussion toward solving local labor and machinery problems.

Farmers in communities desiring to hold similar meetings should notify the county agent's office.

Special Emphasis Placed On Services By Florence Baptists

Rev. Harold Wainscott and the Florence Baptist Church are putting special emphasis on the services Sunday, June 13. The occasion is the first anniversary of Brother Wainscott as pastor of the church. The goal is to have every member of the church present at all three services that day—every member in the Bible School, morning worship and evangelistic service. Friends of the church are also urged to attend. A souvenir will be given all who attend that day. They also want all of the members present that have come into the church in the past year. They plan to give them a memento in the morning service.

The subject of the morning message will be: "Retrospect and Prospect of Every Member a Pastor's Helper."

Plans for the evening service will center around the dedication of the service flag of the church. The subject for the evening message will be "What Price This Freedom of Ours?"

Mrs. Harry Holtzclaw and two children of Ft. Thomas, spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cropper.

FARMERS ASSISTED IN SECURING HELP

DUBING PAST WEEK, ACCORDING TO REV. WILL SMITH, COUNTY FARM LABOR ASSISTANT.

Several farmers were assisted in securing labor assistance the past week according to Rev. Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant.

Several other farmers are badly in need of full time help and a much larger number in need of day help.

Dr. O. E. Senour needs a full time man to assist in milking and doing general farm work on his farm located on the Frogtown road. House, garden, etc., will be furnished.

Charles Black in East Bend bottoms needs a full time helper to do general farm work. Board will be furnished.

Twenty-three farmers have requested help in shearing seven hundred and eighty-eight sheep. Commercial shearers are cooperating in getting this work done.

A survey of available power machinery is being completed. A number of operators have agreed to cooperate in getting plowing, discing, planting and mowing work done.

Farmers are urged to solve their problems locally where possible. Where this is not possible call the county agent's office, phone Burlington 412, or write the county office. Give details that will enable the labor assistant to locate the type of service to be filled.

AFTER THE WAR IS OVER

It is a part of wishful thinking to look ahead to the end of this global war, and plan for "reconversion" of our finincial, economic, manufacturing, chemical, social and peacetime activities. In a general sort of a way most of us know that scientists, inventors, industrial leaders and chemists are prepared to furnish us with at least seven new wonders for our own U. S. A. The production of passenger automobiles and trucks will pass through the reconstruction processes within 4 to 5 months when peace is declared and the probabilities are that there will be full production of automobiles three months later. There will be millions of new jobs that do not now exist. New materials will be used to build houses, and the sky will be full of privately owned airplanes. Recently we have been told that the helicopter type of plane will make it practical for a business man to live 50 to 100 miles away from his office and used the roofs of building for landing and taking off.

It would be impossible to overlook the fact that wars and post wars are breeders for booms, and depressions. We had both kinds after World War I. But the Captains of American industry are right in warning the public that we may expect that men who are now wearing their country's uniform will come back home and face revolutionary changes. They may find television replacing radio, fabricated materials used in place of steel and iron. Some people view these changes as following closely upon the cessation of hostilities. Others reason that more time will pass before we see the effects of the changes going on in laboratories and in men's minds. But of one thing we can be sure; the changes will come.

FIXING UP A TAX BILL

Senate and House tax conferees have finally agreed upon a compromise pay-as-you-go tax plan which they believe will be passed and get the approval of President Roosevelt. A great many people are trying to figure out how much "forgiveness" there is in the bill; but they need not be too hopeful because about the only real virtue of the tax measure is that assessments will be easier to pay under the new plan.

—o—

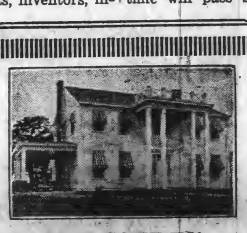
BIG THINGS ARE IN THE PLANNING

The statements made by President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill during the past few days indicate that the invation of Europe will take place soon. The Mediterranean is open to our ships and Italy and the French Riviera are certain to fall under control of the combined forces of the United States, Britain and France. It doesn't take even a "typewriter strategist" who follows the news of Allied air might to discover that there are gaping holes all round the Axis war machine. The Russians are driving the invading Germans Westward, and the United Nations are driving them into new pockets. Washington isn't talking very much about the European war of 1944 these days because there are high hopes that it will all be over before that time.

—o—

LACK OF BALANCE

Washington has been suffering from a gas famine, a lack of potatoes, a shortage of rubber, high prices of food, and the inability of the food-price division of the Government to regulate the supplies of prices.



Manpower Chief McNutt hasn't convinced anybody that he will be able to strike a balance in the distribution, and locating of men in different kinds of employment. Union labor is showing dangerous discontent. Parcelling-out authority in all directions has not worked successfully. The War news is favorable, and that's why there is so little criticism—no one wants to throw monkey-wrenches into the war machinery.

Passenger transportation in Charleston, S. C., has increased 622 per cent since December, 1938.

The 54 billion passenger-miles traveled by Americans on trains in 1942 was an all-time high.

During the 1942 African campaign, a British signal cypher "Rommel"s panzers retire" was decoded as "Rommel's pants are on fire."

R. M. Morris of Taylor county sold two ton-litters during the past month.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

GOD'S EXCEEDING GREAT PROMISES

LESSON TEXT—II Peter 1:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—He hath granted unto us His precious and exceeding great promises; that through these ye may become partakers of the divine nature.—II Peter 1:4, R. V.

Growth in grace and in knowledge of Christ are as normal and expected of the child of God as bodily growth of the physical child. Tragic as is the failure of one to develop physically, it is even more distressing and sad in the spiritual realm. Yet it is a common thing in our churches, where only comparatively few believers even come to full stature in Christ, where more have only a partial growth, and some are forever babes in Christ.

God has made perfect provision for us, and has in His Word given plain and explicit instructions on how to gain spiritual development.

I. All Things Provided (vv. 1-4).

In the physical world we are able to provide, at least in some degree, what is needed. We also know where to find mental food. Spiritual provision can come only from God, and we find from these verses that He has provided not just a small portion, or a limited ration, but "all things that pertain unto life and godliness," through the knowledge of Christ.

The "exceeding great and precious promises" of God are the abundant portion of the believer. They are sure promises, based in the altogether dependable Word of God.

God's provision for us in Christ has made it unnecessary to look elsewhere. Here is escape from the world's corruption, the new nature in Christ, faith, grace, peace, power —all in Him.

The opposite is also true, that without Christ men have only the weak and disappointing help of men on which to draw. Of such foolish ones the Lord said through Jeremiah the prophet that they "have committed two evils: They have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water" (Jer. 2:13).

II. All Diligence Required (vv. 5-7).

There is something that the Christian can do to insure his growth in grace. He is to be diligent, that is, have an earnest purpose and zeal to go ahead spiritually. This calls for application and endeavor, just as progress in any other sphere of life, and possibly more.

Faith is the foundation of all such growth and without it there is nothing on which to build. But on it, or better, "in" it, we have all these other Christian graces springing up, as we give "all diligence" to encourage their growth.

Notice the ascending scale. Faith leads to virtue, that is, courageous, resolute Christian character. Then comes knowledge—the intelligent understanding and discernment of truth. This is bound together by temperance, meaning self-control. Next is patience, that steady endurance which keeps going in spite of trial or disappointment.

The sixth note in this octave of graces is godliness, which speaks of piety, true devotion to God, and reverence for His name. Such a believer will love his brethren in all brotherly kindness; and that leads us to the high point of love (the real meaning of "charity," v. 7). Here love for God is obviously in mind, as the crowning grace of the believer.

III. All Eternity Assured (vv. 8-11).

We should look forward to that abundant "entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" spoken of in verse 11. There is such a thing as being saved "so as by fire" (I Cor. 3:15), slipping into heaven with nothing to show for our life as followers of Christ here on earth (read I Cor. 3:12-15).

God does not want for His people such an unseemly entrance upon eternity. Why should we be satisfied so to live that it may be true of us. Saved? Yes, but that is all! Are you satisfied with that prospect?

We should note, too, that this growth in grace will show itself in our daily life. It will keep us from being "barren (idle) and unfruitful" (v. 8). The Christian life must not be barren of true service for Christ, nor unfruitful of gracious harvest for Him. We are not on a sort of spiritual joy ride, sitting at ease as we speed on to the heavenly dwelling places.

Works do not save a man. We are justified before God by faith. But our faith is justified before men by our works of righteousness. Fruit grows on the living and healthy tree.

Observe that the Christian who lacks these graces (Do you?) is a nearsighted one who lacks both vision and grateful remembrance of God's loving-kindness (v. 9). How many members of our churches need their spiritual memory jogged and their spiritual eyes anointed with God's "eyesalve" (Rev. 3:18).

Just Let Me Tell You A Few Facts About Walking, So You'll Realize Just How Much It Can Do For You

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

The normal heart, you know, beats about seventy-two times a minute and pumps about six ounces of blood with each beat. Now, in fast walking, or at the rate of four miles an hour—(which is how fast you should walk to do you some good)—you'll find the normal hearts will INCREASE its beat ten times to the minute, pumping six ounces of blood at each beat, gives sixty ounces per minute or 3600 an hour, which is 225 pounds. You can easily see that 225 ADDITIONAL pounds of blood pumped DAILY through your veins means just that much more life to your whole body.

There's no use of my telling you to get out and walk if you are having trouble with your feet, because I know you won't do it, BUT—if I tell you how to get rid of those aching, paining feet, first—then there's nothing to keep you from walking every day and benefitting your health by this wonderful exercise.

It has also been found that millions suffer without knowing the reason why—those headaches, those leg pains, and even sleepless nights may be caused by the shoes you are wearing.—Adv.

GROWTH

All growth depends upon activity. There is no development physically or intellectually without effort, and effort means work.
—Calvin Coolidge.

Every failure teaches a man something if he will learn.
—Charles Dickens.

If what shone afar so grand,
Turn to nothing in thy hand,
On again, the virtue lies
In the struggle, not the prize.
—R. M. Milnes.

Growth is governed by intelligence; by the active, all-wise, law-creating, law-discipling, law-abiding Principle, God.
—Mary Baker Eddy.

The improvement of the understanding is for two ends; first, our own increase of knowledge; secondly, to enable us to deliver that knowledge to others.—Locke.

We cannot flatter ourselves that we have understood a truth until it is impossible for us not to shape our lives in accordance with it.
—Maeterlinck.

KITCHEN GREASE SALVAGE

Salvage offers all women an opportunity to do something to help win the war. Every woman who saves kitchen grease and enlists others to do the same thing is an important soldier on the home front.

At the present time kitchen grease is a critically needed war material. The Government's quota calls for 16,667,000 pounds per month and less than half of this is now being salvaged. If every housewife would participate in this salvage, it would go a long way toward meeting the glycerine requirements of the war.

A few words about what happens to kitchen grease will indicate how important it is. The grease saved in the kitchen is taken by the housewife to the butcher who sells it to the renderer, who in turn sells it to the soap maker, who extracts the glycerine. At the present time the Government and the soap manufacturers say there will be enough soap to meet all civilian needs this year. This favorable condition will continue, if all housewives participate in the salvaging of kitchen grease. A tablespoonful of kitchen grease saved each day results in a pound in 31 days. In August, 1942, when this salvage was started, American housewives saved enough to fire 12 million anti-aircraft guns. The amount increased each month and in March, 1943, it was enough to fire 28 million anti-aircraft guns. In 1943 more ammunition will be required than ever before and it will be necessary to provide more grease.

Glycerine is also used for vital mechanisms in big field and naval guns, for ship compasses, for hydraulic and steering apparatus, and as an ingredient of the protective coating on ships, tanks and guns. In addition to these uses, it is an important ingredient of the ointments and salves that are used to alleviate suffering from burns and wounds.

The lives and welfare of millions of our fighting men depend upon the cooperation of American women in saving small amounts of grease from their kitchens. A tiny drop has sufficient value to make it worth bothering about.

The Government does not ask you to put fats that can be used for frying or other cooking purposes into the waste fat can, but only after you have completely used up the food value. All meat cooked under the broiler or in the roasting pan should make a substantial contribution to the waste fat collection. If drippings are used for gravy, then put what is left into the waste fat can. Whenever greasy pans or skillets are washed, a little hot water should be poured into them and when the fat is loosened this should be poured into a dish to cool until the fat rises to the top and solidifies. This fat should then be lifted off and dropped into the waste fat can. The same thing may be done with the surplus fats from soups and stews. There are other valuable fats, such as excess margarine and butter substitutes. These should be put into the wast fat can along with the grease from fowl, beef, lamb, fish, pork, sausage and bacon. All fat of vegetable or animal origin produces glycerine and is valuable when it is strained.

If possible, keep the fats can in a cool place. However, even rancid grease produces glycerine. As for the container, any tin can will do except an oil can. Do not put grease in either glass or pasteboard containers.

If every woman will save grease and influence her neighbors to do likewise, then we will be able to pass the ammunition in sufficient quantity to insure victory.

GARRARD 4-H GIRLS ENROLL IN CANNING

Home Demonstration Agent Anna Evans reports that every 4-H club girl in Garrard county is enrolled in canning. There are 495 club girls in the county. They are either helping their mothers can the family food supply or are putting up 50 to 100 quarts of vegetables and fruits by themselves. In order that every girl may know the latest and best canning methods, 64 local leaders have agreed to put on demonstrations and otherwise assist the girls in their food preservation work. These women, comments Miss Evans, are unselfishly giving their time and efforts to this important phase of food production.

4-H CLUB PROVIDES MONEY FOR 4 JEEPS

Four more jeeps to be added to those of the Armed Forces, or $4,440.20 earned, was the recent achievement of the Simpsonville 4-H club in Shelby county. With one jeep as their goal, the members planned a war bond rally and auction at the school auditorium. Admission fees brought $70.80 in war bonds and stamps. The auction added $303.10 more. Then $4,066.30 was accounted for through a beauty contest in which each class from the seventh grade up had an entry for the honor of war-bond queen. It was won by Jane Chandler of the Junior class. Elaine Peterson, president of the Simpsonville 4-H club, and Mrs. Astor Tackett, faculty advisor, planned and directed the affair.

STATE SHEEP MEN TO MEET JUNE 15

The program of the annual state meeting of sheep raisers, to be held at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington June 15, will deal principally with sheep in the war effort, it is announced by Richard C. Miller.

There will be a demonstration and discussion of wartime grades of lambs, both on foot and in the carcass. The shearling program will be considered and newer methods of parasite control will be discussed and demonstrated. Another part of the program will be an exhibit of ewes of various types and their lambs by rams of different breeds. Changes in weight and market trend of lambs as a result of the war will be considered, as will the pasture and feed situation.

Several farmers and a number of out-of-state speakers, including R. F. Cox, head of the sheep department at Kansas Agricultural College, have been invited to take part in the program. The meeting will start at 10 a. m., in the Livestock Pavilion.

Night grain-shocking parties by local business men and other town volunteers helped save the grain crop in Walworth County, Wis., last year, as many as 10 grain fields being cleaned up in a single night.

Almost 3,000 miles of access roads to mines, quarries, and forests will be built in 1943 to serve war production purposes, with the largest unit cost for New York State, one mile at $39,300.

The demand for hybrid seed corn in Marion county is about double that of last year.

Would Make Idleless Unpopular As Long As Farmers Need Workers

With farmers needing help, idleness should be unpopular and unpatriotic, says Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

"With the great need for food to supply our armed forces all over the world, such loafing as has existed in past years around court house squares, corner stores, filling stations and the like, should not exist this year," he declared.

Dean Cooper thinks farm labor problems will be solved locally, in that help will be found in towns and villages and on small farms, for the most part. In the State as a whole, he believes there are enough persons to do the farming, although a shortage of labor may occur in some localities.

"It is important that farmers have help so they can meet their production goals," he stressed. "Aroused public opinion will do much to direct and develop the labor needed in producing food. It should be unpopular as well as unpatriotic to be idle as long as farmers need help."

Farmers in need of help should make their wants known at the office of their county agent. Also, men, women and young people who can work on farms should make that fact known to the county agent.

Cooperating with the College of Agriculture in a program to secure farm labor are the United States Employment Service, the Farm Security Administration, Vocational Agriculture and the Office of Education, the War Manpower Commission, the Office of Civilian Defense, and other agencies.

SETTLEMENTS BY RENEGOTIATIONS

The Government is spending billions of dollars on war production, and it is also getting back amazing sums of money from the contractors. That's how "renegotiations" of contracts operate. The War and Navy Departments and the Maritime Commission recently reported refunds and recoveries from these contracts amounting to $2,539,000,000. When these contracts were made the Government and the contractors were obliged to depend upon estimates. Speed was one of the requirements and procurement of material was none too certain. Contracts had to be made in a hurry, and these undertakings involved the manufacture of new products from new materials, with newly developed tools and facilities.

The contracts for war products are generally on a fixed price basis. In order to protect both the Government and the concerns having war contracts it is agreed that all contracts are subject to cancellation. This plan has proved to be fair to the Government and the contracts during one year represented $955,120,000 of actual refunds by contractors, and $1,583,000 reductions in contract prices.

A statement issued on behalf of two Government Departments and the Maritime Commission explains that maximum output is essential in the production of war materials and that the system has worked so satisfactorily that there has been very little waste of money, manpower, or natural resources. The decision to enact renegotiation legislation was based largely on experience of World War I.

DRAFTING OF FATHERS WILL WORK HARDSHIP ON INTERCITY BUS SERVICE

If the Selective Service program drafts an appreciable number of fathers this year, it will present an extremely difficult manpower problem for the intercity bus industry to overcome, the National Association of Motor Bus Operators reported today. In studies recently conducted, the organization learned that 73 percent of the maintenance crews fall between the ages of 18 and 37.

Already the bus industry has been called upon to meet a difficult manpower situation. Last year nearly half of the employed bus drivers went into the armed services, war industries or other forms of work, although their transportation vocation is considered essential to increase the total number by 27 per cent to take care of wartime transportation demands.

As a result, the major operators hired 8,558 drivers in 1942 as compared with less than 3,000 the previous year. The problem is not only one of employment, but also of training because new drivers are required to take a lengthy course of instruction in the interests of public safety.

An even higher rate of turnover was experienced in the maintenance departments, where nine out of ten employees joined the military forces or went into other industries. Their total number was replaced by an additional twenty per cent. The increase was necessary to provide service for the larger number of buses now operating to meet transportation needs of the war period.

JEFFERSON COUNTY BOY SEVEN TIMES HOLSTEIN WINNER

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America, Brattleboro, has again named John Elmer Kalmey of Jefferson county, Kentucky state champion 4-H Holstein calf club member. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Kalmey of Valley Station.

John has completed nine years of club work. In addition to his dairy projects he has also complete projects with swine, corn, wild life conservation, soil conservation, and castor beans. On the basis of his achievements this is the 7th year he has been named state champion 4-H Holstein calf club member. He has also been state dairy champion two years and was state corn champion in 1941.

Despite the set-back he received in 1937 when he lost nine cattle in the Ohio river flood, his herd has grown to 32 animals.

He has exhibited at county, district and state cattle shows since 1934. Prize money received for his efforts plus the sale of cattle helped him to clear the debt he incurred to replace the cattle lost in the flood.

Along with the successful showing of his cattle and his ability to select animals for their good type, John has also demonstrated his ability to select animals and feed them to give good results in production. On twice-a-day milking, his herd has averaged nearly 400 pounds of butterfat, he reports.

In 1942 he was awarded a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

He is president of the Jefferson county 4-H Junior Council, former president of his local 4-H club and is now acting as assistant leader of this local club, and is a director in the Kentucky Holstein Cattle Club.

He is eligible for consideration for the national 1942 championship to be announced soon by The Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Shipbuilding is the biggest single item in Wisconsin's war contracts, with the first fleet of submarines to be launched on the Great Lakes coming from Manitowoc, Wis., ways.

Eighteen Billions in Bonds Asked Of Individuals

In a recent news release by the United States Treasury Department Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury says:

"Of the forty-five billion dollars still necessary to complete our war financing needs for 1943, at least eighteen billions, or almost 25 percent of the national income for the remainder of the year should come from purchases of bonds by individuals. From those workers earning one thousand to five thousand now who will have seven-eighths of all the current available individual savings, 25 cents of each dollars is not too much to expect. In fact they should and must invest more if our goal is to be met." Mr. Morgenthau continued, "By the end of 1943 the average American family should be investing approximately 25 cents of every dollar of income in War Bonds."

We are in receipt of very nice letter from Pvt. Ben R. Stephens, Camp Livington, Louisiana. He writes, "Tell all my friends in old Boone, I said hello, that I would like to write and every one a letter but don't have the time to do that. . . . We are sure doing plenty of drilling down here—one day to the rifle range, next day we go to combat range and the following day we go on a battalion problem. We take twenty-five mile hikes, and are on the go most of the time, working sometimes on Saturday and Sunday. . . . This is a nice camp—the best I have been in since I have been in the army."

Thanks for the letter Ben. His address is Pvt. Ben R. Stephens, Co. K. 149 Inf. APO 38, Camp Livington, La.

The following letter was received from Pfc. Paul L. Clore:

"How is everything around Burlington? Well, I've got a different address now, I'll probably keep this one, for I'm on the Atlantic Ocean headed for Africa. I guess we will get there in the next few days. Would you please send me The Recorder? I'm always glad to get it, and hear what's going on back home.

"This letter won't go as fast as V-mail, but I guess you will get this sometime. Thanks a lot, Pete, and so long."

His address is Pfc. Paul L. Clore 35663236, Co. A. 338th Engrs. APO 3922 care Postmaster, New York, N. Y.

In a letter from Floyd E. McArthur, S 3-c, he writes: "I received The Boone County Recorder every week, it makes me feel almost like I was back there myself. . . I know everyone back there is doing their part to get this war over with as soon as possible, so all of us who are in the service can get back home and live in peace again. The ones who are not in the service can help win this war as much as the ones who are in it. So just keep up the good work and it won't be long until we will have the Axis powers on the run . . . I hope to be home on a furlough before long. I will graduate from here July 17. I hope to be a Petty Officer 3rd Class when I graduate. Then I will join either the Naval Fleet or the Merchant Fleet. If I go to the Merchant Fleet I will then go to school for six more weeks at Roton Heights, Conn. . . . There is nothing like the navy for gaining weight! I came in December 29, 1942, weighing 137 pounds, now, five months later I weigh 167 pounds."

His address is Floyd E. McArthur S. 3-c, U. S. N. R., Naval Training Schools, U. of I., Urbana, Ill.

We are in receipt of a letter from Cpl. Frank Blaker, 10th Academic Sqd. Bks. 226, Seymour Johnson Field, N. C. he writes: "I am instructing in the airplane mechanic school here at this field and I like my work just fine . . . It's awfully hot here now—the old thermometer goes over a hundred almost every day . . . Tell all my friends back in Boone County hello for me and I hope that all of us will be back home soon."

NOTICE

Ever since the beginning of Selective Service, this newspaper has been sent free of charge to any Boone County boy or girl in the service, regardless of where they may be stationed.

We hope to continue this service to our boys, but our list from this county is very large now and is growing every day. In order that the boys may receive their papers regularly, it is imperative that we be informed of their change of addresses when they are moved from camp to camp.

When reporting a change of address or the name of a boy who desires The Recorder, please follow these simple rules:

1. Write, do not call in the name and address.

2. Please state whether or not the boy has been receiving the paper before this change, if so give his former address as well as his new address.

3. Be sure the entire name and address is printed plain, as an error will result in his failure to receive the paper.

If these three rules are followed, it will greatly assist us with our mailing list of the boys, and also insure them that they will receive their papers regularly.

Employment of women in shipyards has more than tripled within the past year.

Town And Farm In Wartime

More Money Into Bonds

The average American family "should and must" be investing 25 percent of its income in War Bonds by the end of 1943, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., said recently in announcing a new "streamlined" bond campaign. "Of the 45 billion dollars still necessary to complete our war financing needs for 1943," Morgenthau said, "at least 18 billion dollars, or almost 25 percent of the national income for the remainder of the year, should come from purchases of bonds by individuals. From those workers earning $1,000 to $5,000 net, who will have seven-eighths of all the current available individual savings, 25 cents of each dollar is not too much to expect. In fact, they should and must invest more if our goal is to be met."

May Still Reduce Points

Retailers may lower the point values of rationed meats and fats which are in danger of spoiling until July 31, OPA has decided. These emergency reductions must be accompanied by a cut of at least 25 percent in the established ceiling price of the item. If the point value is lowered more than 25 percent, the price must be reduced proportionately, but never more than 50 percent below the ceiling.

Ice Boxes For Civilians

A total of 239,575 ice-boxes are to be produced in the next three months for civilian use, according to a new order of WPB. Despite limited factory capacities and scarcity of materials, the production rate is expected to reach about 75,000 units a month.

How To Get Farm Supplies

According to a new WPB priority regulation a dealer must furnish farm supplies if the farmer signs a certificate stating: "I certify to the War Production Board that I am a farmer and that the supplies covered by this order are needed now and will be used for the operation of a farm." A total of 140 items are affected by this order. Such certification will enable the farmer to buy up to $25 worth of any of the items on the list, and more if the certificate is approved by his local county farm rationing committee.

Butter Price Reduced

A reduction of five to six cents a pound in the retail price of butter will go into effect Thursday, June 10. The OPA intends to effect the roll-back with a minimum of financial loss to the dairy industry, from the farm through the retailer. With the subsidy paid to them by the government, buyers of butterfat will get as much for their butter as before, and will be expected to continue to pay going prices to the farmer. "Butter shall include butter manufactured by a farmer on his farm from milk produced on his farm" according to an amendment to Maximum Price Regulation No. 289 under which maximum prices were established from creamery butter.

Replant Flooded Gardens

Victory gardens destroyed by excessive rains should be replanted immediately, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture in urging gardeners to replant with "late," rather than "early," crops. Crops that can still be planted in flooded areas include tomatoes, snap beans lima beans, beets, swiss chard, summer squash, peppers, eggplant, sweet corn, and sweet potatoes. Cool weather crops such as potatoes, peas, early cabbage, spinach, and lettuce cannot be expected to give satisfactory yields if planted this late in the spring.

Funds For Flooded Areas

Credit to aid farm families in the midwestern flood area and to bring flooded cropland back into wartime food production will be available from a fund of $235,000 set up by the Farm Security Administration to provide emergency food, shelter, and medical attention for homeless farm families. FSA county supervisors are authorized to make small grants, usually $30 or less, to distressed families for emergency needs. When families can return to their farms, FSA loans will be made to those without credit sources to put in new crops. About $780,000 has been made available for such loans.

OPA Prosecuts Violators.

In the four months ended April 30, the courts handed down decisions in 1,495 civil and criminal cases involving 1,676 defendants accused of violating the price and rationing regulations, according to OPA. Of the total 1,437 cases involving 1,613 defendants were decided in favor of OPA. Only 58 cases involving 63 defendants, or less than 4 percent of the total, were dismissed.

Flags For Flag Day

New flags for Flag Day, June 14, are still available, but there will not be enough to meet the demand, says the War Production Board. Manufacturers are still permitted to use four types of cotton fabric and two types of rayon in making flags for civilians. Silk, commonly used for high-quality flags before the war, has not been available for some time. Wool may be used only for flags for the armed services. Metal flag accessories for civilians use are out.

Fuel For Used Oil Stoves

Buyers of used oil stoves are eligible for fuel under the terms of a recent amendment to the fuel oil rationing regulations. Fuel oil rations for use in oil stoves acquired after December 19, 1942 (or March 15, 1943) in Washington and Oregon) have been denied unless the heaters were acquired under stove rationing provisions. Since only new stoves have been rationed ,buyers of used or second-hand stoves have so far been ineligible for fuel oil allotments.

Go Fishing Without Gas

It's okay with Mr. Ickes if the country's ardent fishermen continue their sport but he says, "We still think it's a good idea for them to fish when they can and where they can without extra gasoline." Gasoline for fishing trips won't be available, no matter how productive of food the sport may be.

Milk Added To Ration List

Evaporated and condensed milk are now on the list of rationed foods with a value of one point per pound. Red stamps in War Ration Book Two will be used for buying canned milk and no additional points will be made available to consumers for such purchases. The rationing is intended to conserve limited supplies for infant feeding, special diets, and for persons unable to obtain adequate supplies of fresh milk.

Don't Write "Round Robins"

Writing soldiers "round robins," or news letters, and inviting composite replies by the group is inadvisable, the War Department has warned. Replies tend to become anthologies of military information, and a custom that arose from innocent motives become a security hazard.

No More Wheat For Feed

Sales of wheat for feed have been discontinued by the Commodity Credit Corporation. However, farmers may still obtain some feed wheat through dealers and county AAA committees to whom shipments have already been made. Additional orders will not be accepted by the corporation unless the state U. S. Department of Agriculture War Board determines that the wheat is needed to feed livestock during June.

Adjust AAA Crop Payments

Farmers who fail to plant 90 percent of their war crop goals will not suffer the regular agricultural conservation deductions if the weather has interfered with their crop plans. The War Food Administration has relaxed the provisions in all areas where hay and pasture goals have been established. The action is designed to offset the effect of recent unfavorable weather conditions.

Flooded Cotton Lands

Cotton acreage allotments provisions have been modified to relieve cotton planters whose seedings have been destroyed by flood. All or any part of the acreage allotments for the flooded farms may be apportioned by the county agricultural conservation committee to other farms. Lands that cannot be re-seeded to cotton, should be planted with soybeans, peanuts, corn and other war crops, said WFA.

More Gas For Farmers

To assure farmers sufficient gasoline to operate agricultural equipment, refiners in the midwestern states have been authorized to increase their yields of motor gasoline temporarily to 90 percent of the corresponding figure for the last half of 1941, as compared with the 85 percent maximum ordered on May 8.

Shoe Prices Regulated

Shoes, chiefly women's models which are made of such sole material as plastic, felt, wood, combinations of wools and cotton, cord and friction belting and some other fabric and synthetic substances, are now under ceiling prices. Fabrics used for the uppers include linen, gabardine, faille, "imitation leather" and other types of cloth. Prices set by OPA for manufacturers of these shoes range from around $1.25 to about $4.00 a pair.

Lumber Production Good

Lumber production in the United States for the first quarter of 1943 is estimated at 7,141,109,000 board feet. This is close to the first-quarter goal needed to meet military and essential civilian requirements of 32 billion board feet for 1943, says the WPB's lumber and lumber products division.

Army To Help Farmers

The Army is going to help repair flood-damaged automotive farm machinery. The War Department has announced that mobile automotive repair units of the Army service forces are standing by in the recently flooded areas of six central states ready to give farmers such help in the repair of damaged automotive equipment used for farm purposes as is possible without interfering with necessary military training. Farmers who have no facilities for getting their machinery back into operation should report to their local county Agricultural agents.

Typewriter Renters

Persons renting class A typewriters (standard size machines made since 1934) will be given until June 30 either to purchase the machines or to return them to their owners, the OPA has announced.

Bikes For The East

In 16 of the 17 states in the eastern gasoline shortage area, bicycles will be issued without quota restrictions in June, the OPA has announced. In the eastern shortage area where gasoline rations for automobiles have been cut, bicycles are rationed to anyone gainfully employed in any occupation or doing work necessary to the war program or public welfare. Children are also eligible if they need a bicycle for transportation to and from school.

Report Shows Traffic Drop

Throughout the nation, 479 automatic counters on rural roads in 39 states recorded traffic in April as 56 percent of pre-war normal. Motor-fuel tax collections in 28 states in April totaled $38,209,000 and were three-fourths of pre-war normal, according to reports from state motor-vehicle administrators.

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yealey

We shall now give you the speech which was delivered at the close of school in 1847 by Louis C. Yager. This building was torn down years ago, but the writer still can show the place where it stood, or a part of the old rock foundation still remains. This school building was on the Price Pike opposite the Lewis Rouse property:

The speech follows:

"Fellow Students:

"The term has drawn to a close and our departure is at hand. God only knows whether we shall ever meet again. Let us then take a retrospect of the past, and also contemplate the future.

"I have met with some of you from the time I was a child, and could scarce lisp the letters of the alphabet, until the present time. I wish many of you, have received in this place and under this roof, my only instruction.

"We have climbed thus far up the rugged hill of science—we have stood side by side in the same class, bearing off alternately the palm of victory.

"We have experienced together the cares and perplexities of the school room, and sighed like the caged bird, to be free again; we have formed associations which the grave can only efface from the tablets of our minds.

"We have had our joys and our sorrows, as all children do, and like all youths we have longed to be men. Time will soon roll round and our wishes will be gratified. We shall soon launch our frail barks upon times tempestuous sea, and then when bewildered in the whirling mists of life's discordant waves, or dazzling fame, or shining wealth, or shipwrecked upon the coral reefs of disappointment, or meager poverty, our minds will wander back to the halcyon scenes and joyous sports of other days.

"In dreams we will revisit our playgrounds and grasp again the hands of our classmates.

"In imaginations airy and fantastic gambols, we will engage again in the innocent sports of schoolboy days. But I said that we must part; yes we part, perhaps to meet no more till the pitcher is broken at the cistern, or the golden bowl at the fountain. Some of you may meet here again to travel on in the green sward paths of science. May Minerva strew your paths with roses and enable you to bear in faith, the heat and burden of the day, to smile, not frown, at the perplexities of scholastic disquistitions. Let me then say good bye, and joy go with you all.

"You Sir, who have guided our young and wayward minds in the pursuit of knowledge, with profit to us and honor to yourself, no doubt feel something of the emotions which this occasion is calculated to inspire. Although you have presided over us with firmness, seeming at times to border on rigor, yet it has at all times been marked with moderation, and we have often seen the smile of approbation lingring upon your lips. Although there may be animosities in the bosom of some of your scholars, yet when their minds shall have been matured, they will say in their cooler reflection, that you have done right, and will remember you with gratitude, which I fear, alas! we will never will repay.

"Have I not reason to be grateful? It was you sir, that gave me the first and last ideas of grammar, a science well calculated to discipline and adorn the mind. You have directed my exertions in and acquisition of the useful and important knowledge of Numbers, and you have stored my mind with the rich treasures of Philosophy.

"Have I not cause for gratitude? Is there a scholar in this house that has not the same cause? No! And in future times they will reward you.

"You, the Trustees of this school district, have come out to witness the results of a system of Common School education, brought about by your unwearied perserverance and untiring industry. How well you are satisfied I am unable to say, but this much I would ask and entreat, that you will not become languid in the cause, but will cherish this system of education, until a school shall be kept upon every hill and in every vale, where all of the poor as well as the rich, may store their minds with useful knowledge, and then will Kentucky boast as great as any other state.

"If you love your country, the firm base and pillar of which is education, if you would have your children patriots, if you would have the smiles of the widow and the orphan, go on in the cause of education.

"Heaven will reward you, posterity will rise up to bless, and your graves shall be moistened with the tears of grateful remembrance.

A Week of The War

American land forces completed the Attu campaign last week, as Allied air power rained new and increasingly sever blows at Italy, Germany and Japan.

Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war, announced that the successful completion of the three-week Attu campaign had placed American forces "within striking distance of Japanese territory."

The Navy announced that the Attu campaign cost the U. S. forces 1,535 casualties including 342 killed. This compared with Japanese losses of 1,791 dead counted by our forces, and eleven prisoners captured. The Japanese were reported to have buried or cremated many additional members of their forces. The Tokyo radio had placed Japanese losses at 3,000. Fifty-eight American soldiers are missing in the action, the Navy announced.

Earlier, the American forces ended organized Japanese resistance by driving two deep wedges into the enemy lines, isolating the enemy into small pockets which were swiftly wiped up. The isolated "pockets" were scattered all over the island. At the end of the week, it was reported that a few isolated small units were hiding in sections of the island.

Heavy bombardment of Germany and Nazi-occupied territory continued all week, as the R. A. F. and American Army Air Force flyers set new records in increasingly severe aerial warfare.

American Air Force headquarters in London announced that American Flying Fortresses and Liberators reached a new high by shooting down seventy-four enemy aircraft in a single day's raids on May 21 in twin attacks on the Nazi submarine bases at Wilhelmshave and Emden.

The largest force of heavy bombers ever employed by the Eighth U. S. Air Force raided St. Nazaire, La Pallice and Rennes in France, dropping 2,000 pound blockbusters on Nazi submarine pens.

French Ships Join Allies

London announced last week that the French fleet of nine warships which has been immobilized at Alexandria since the start of the war have joined the Allies. Naval experts said the nine vessels, which include the 22,189-ton battleship, Lorraine, three 10,000-ton eight-inch cruisers, and the 7,249-ton six-inch gun cruiser, Duquay-Trouin, can be made ready for combat in about six months.

North African Action

Action on the North African front last week was seen by large units of Major General James H. Doolittle's strategic bombardment group which kept up a steady bombardment of Italian island outposts and coastal areas. Allied destroyers sank two enemy supply ships and a torpedo boat and drove an enemy destroyer ashore in attack on a convoy off the southern tip of Sardinia early in the week.

Powerful forces of American four-engined bombers loosed a powerful assault on Italy inflicting "great damage" on the oil refinery and shipyards at Leghorn, Italy's third largest port. Allied naval forces bombarded the harbor and battery area of Pantelleria in the Sicilian narrows twice in twelve hours Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

The Northwest, African air forces dropped a total of 3,000,000 pounds of bombs on Italy proper and Italian outposts during the week ending May 28, it was announced. In daylight raids, the American forces carried out heavy attacks at Naples and Foggia, destroying oil storage depots, grounded planes, and airdrome installations.

Army Is Ready For New Tasks

General Eisenhower summed up effects of the drive which wiped the Axis out of North Africa last week, by declaring that the enemy's morale has been "jolted." The Commander of Allied forces in the African theater declared that his armies are now ready to "undertake any further task that our countries may choose to assign them.

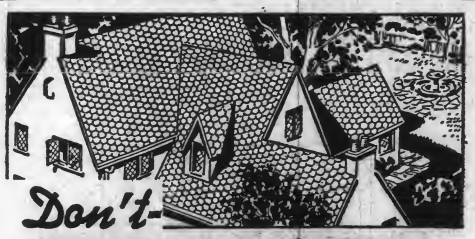
Money Talks



By FREDERICK W. STAMM, Economist, Director of Adult Education, UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The United States, among other things, is a country of "fads." Nowhere else in the world are people as willing and anxious to try out this idea or that one as in this country. Several years ago everyone was playing miniature golf; today the fad seems to be growing chickens whether you live in New York, a city of six million people, or in Pumpkin Center, a hamlet of one hundred souls. Spurred on by point rationing of meat and the high prices for eggs and poultry, families the country over have turned to chicken raising on an astonishing scale.

Undoubtedly, the meat shortage started it all. Last year Secretary of Agriculture Wickard advised everyone, and especially farmers, to produce more poultry and eggs. He even advised city people to "keep chickens." That was all the encouragement that was needed. In some communities, laws were relaxed to aid the amateur farmers. In others, city ordinances have been passed regulating poultry raising. For example, Evanston, Illinois, a city of 65,000 has revised its building code reducing the permit feet for chicken coops from $5 to $2. South Pasadena, California, has limited the number of chickens a householder may keep to twelve hens and not more than fifty baby chicks.

Last week R. H. Macy and Company, the world's largest department store, operating in the heart of New York City, ran a full-page advertisement in the Wall Street Journal (financial newspaper) telling about its new poultry department. This store offer everything a prospective chicken raiser could need—the chicks, brooders, houses and feed. It has even hired experts to give advice on such important subjects as proper diet for poultry and city zoning laws. It is interesting to note that most of Macy's customers are families with children who live in Brooklyn, on Long Island, or in the Queens, or in the Bronx. Many of them have never raised chickens before, but they are, nevertihless, enthusiastic about their new venture.

Victory gardens and poultry yards are now common sights in every large city. Undoubtedly, many of these amateur gardeners and poultry growers will be disappointed in the results. But it seems to me it indicates the spirit of Americans which has been evident throughout the years and which has made this the greatest nation on earth. It is the spirit of adventure, even though confined to a commonplace thing, the spirit of resourcefulness, and the will to meet every obstacle and overcome it by some means. The pioneer spirit of our ancestors still lives in the hearts of many Americans.

LABOR SHORTAGE IN TODD COUNTY

That operators of 27 farms in south Todd county may fall short of their usual crop and livestock production because of the labor scarcity was brought out in a survey made by the farm management department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The survey showed that in 1942 there were 66 regular year-hands or croppers on these farms; this year there are but 50. Six of the 27 farmers are looking for year-hands, while 20 of the 27 farmers need extra seasonal labor. Two farmers who signed up to grow hemp have changed their plans, due to the labor situation, said Farm Agent Stuart Brabant.

TONIGHT AND FRIDAY

Monty Woolley, master of all situations in his previous films, is handled rather roughly by fate in his latest picture, 20th Century-Fox's "Life Begins at Eight-Thirty" but Woolley, who is co-starred with Ida Lupino, ignores his misfortunes and enjoys himself to the hilt.

Still the old master of his art, Monty has the audience roaring with laughter one minute . . . and winking away the mist in their eyes the next. He's grander—and gruffer—than ever!

SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Warner Bros.' "The Hard Way" is a dream-come-true picture for four stars. They'll do the things they always wanted to do but never have done before the camera. Ida Lupino, who has looked like Cinderella in the fireplace in all her recent pictures, has 28 costume changes;

Joan Leslie, still regarded as a schoolgirl (which she is), has a grown-up role and two marriages;

Jack Carson, a comedian, will play a straight dramatic role and will achieve the height of all funnymen's ambitions a death scene;

And Dennis Morgan will sing. Morgan, who has been angling to sing in a feature-length show ever since he hit Hollywood, has always been cast as a non-musical leading man.

TUESDAY

"Saddles and Sagebrush," fifth hit in the exciting Columbia series of western dramas featuring Russell Hayden and Bob Willis and His Texas Playboys, is scheduled to make its local bow Tuesday at the Gayety. Dub Taylor and Anna Savage are also to be seen in the new film.

Plus

Combining a happy blend of thrills and comedy, "The Hidden Hand," Warner Bros.' adventure picture, will be shown at the Gayety.

Cast in a story full of intrigue are Craig Stevens, Elizabeth Fraser and Julie Bishop. "The Hidden Hand" tells the tale of an eccentric spinister who uses her insane brother to terrorize her family, only to get more horror than she bargained for.

THE GARDEN

CULTIVATION

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

In those portions of the state where the weather has been rainy, gardeners have just been able to keep abreast of the weeds. This may be rather fortunate, as working soil as used to be the custom may do more harm than good. There is little, if any, virtue in stirring the soil; stopping the weeds is what's important.

Where the soil was occasionally dry enough to keep the garden in regular cultivation, the hope is that cultivation was shallowy enough done not to get into the vegetable roots.

The vegetables are valued for their crispness, their high content of water. In seasons like Lexington's so far this year, rains being almost continuous, the probability is that a few vegetable roots could be lost with no permanent harm, but in dry times or in seasons of moderate rainfall, setback must result until the wounded roots ends heal.

Vegetables must be grown quickly to be of best quality. If there is only slight interruption in growth, because of root loss thru deep working, quality must suffer. In dry weather, which may come, catastrophe may result.

This is to say that there is never warrant for deep stirring of the soil; rather, it should be entered only to the depth needed to upset the small weeds and to shave off the larger ones below their growing point.

The best hand tool with which to accomplish this is a sharp hoe, with its blade held flat with the garden surface, and moved with a gliding, scalping motion. Much more rapid is a wheel-hoe with the slide-hoe attachment.

The best horse-drawn tool is a sweep, a slide-hoe of larger size, that skims the surface and leaves it level. Next best is the 14-tooth or 16-tooth "scratch harrow, which combs out the weeds, but leaves a level surface behind it.

The best time, and the only time, to cultivate is when there is any start of weeds; unless weeds threaten, the garden may be assumed to be taking excellent care of itself.

LABOR SURVEY IS SCHEDULED

BOYS AND GIRLS FROM 14 TO 18 YEARS OF AGE WILL BE ASKED TO WORK ON FARMS DURING CRISIS.

Local committeemen assisted by neighborhood leaders are making a complete survey of all available farm labor and machinery available for custom work, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

A preliminary survey by leaders shows that generally speaking there is no such thing as available farm labor that can be secured when needed. A complete survey is being made of all boys and girls from 14 to 18 years of age who are not employed but would be willing to work on farm. This program is being correlated with a program in Kenton County in which a survey is being made through the city schools. Help located through these surveys will be made available to all farmers.

Local leaders who will assist in setting up community farm labor centers for locating and placing farm help are as follows:

HDA TO CONDUCT DEMONSTRATION

IN CANNING AT BURLINGTON SCHOOL, JUNE 24—NEW CANNING EQUIPMENT WILL BE ON DISPLAY.

The first in the series of canning demonstrations will be held at the cafeteria of the Burlington school Thursday afternoon, June 24th at 1:30 p. m. (E. W. T.) Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent will demonstrate procedures, show new canning equipment, and answer questions and home canning problems.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Never before have rural people been so dependent upon their home grown, home canned, and home stored food supplies. It may be more true than can be realized, that all food raised must be saved. Boone County people can and will contribute much to the Food for Freedom Program. Come to the demonstration and bring your neighbors with you.

Custom Operator Renders Valuable Service To Farmers

Farmers who own power machinery and who are helping their neighbors in plowing, discing and planting jobs are enabling farmers to produce thousands of bushels of corn and other feed crops this year, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Many of these tractor owners planned only to do their own farm work but to help out in the war effort are hiring their equipment to neighbors, who, because of labor and machinery shortages and the late season, are unable to get their land prepared. A complete list of all machinery available for custom work is being prepared at the county office. One man with good power machinery can do, on many farm jobs, five times the work ordinarily done with horse drawn equipment.

Hathaway-Bradburn

Sgt. Ralph Bradburn, of Camp Atterbury, Ind., surprised his many friends by announcing his marriage to Miss Elma Hathaway. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Allen in the Episcopal Church, at Fernbank, Ohio, June 5th.

Very best wishes are extended to him and his bride for a very successful and happy life by his many friends in Boone Co.

Sgt. Bradburn is well known in Boone County, having been active in the sports of baseball and basketball.

MORE MILK CONCERNS PCA

EIGHT POINT PROGRAM OUTLINED TO GUIDE FARMERS IN AVERTING USUAL SUMMER MILK SLUMP.

The critical need for averting the usual summer slump in milk flow and maintaining maximum production of all dairy products is currently being emphasized to all Boone County members of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association, reports Leonard C. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the association.

Mr. Taylor said an eight-point program to guide farmers in their efforts for greater efficiency and higher production of milk has been inaugaurated by the War Food Administration and dairy industry committee through the Agricultural Extension service. The program stresses abundant pasture, supplementing short pastures with dry feed, liberal feeding of roughages, 400 to 500 pounds of hay a month more of silage per cow per year, per cow, two and one-half tons of balanced rations, an eight weeks rest period before freshening, and raising calves with less milk.

He said that although some producers are handicapped shortage of labor or inadequate facilities to increase materially the size of their herds, these same producers can by using temporary pasture crops through the heat of the summer, supplemental feed, and better balanced rations keep their cows in heavier production over a longer period of time. If each cow can be fed good enough to produce an additional 80 pounds of milk—two or three days production for the average cow—the nation's 2,000,000,000 pound increase will be met.

"Farmers who have a sound basis for credit may obtain loans thru the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association to maintain production through increased feed, better balanced rations, to pay for extra labor, milking machines, cooling equipment, improvement or additions to barns, seeding and renovating pastures and meadows, to increase their herds or any other expense involved in obtaining high production," Mr. Taylor said. "Loans can be repaid on a monthly basis from milk or cream checks, with interest charged on outstanding balances only."

Two Men Fined In Judge Cropper's Court

Harry White, colored, Covington, Ky., and George Williams, colored, Cincinnati, each were fined $29.50 in Judge Cropper's court Sunday, when arraigned on a charge of fishing without licenses.

The offenders were arrested by Lennie Busby on Gunpowder Creek.

FLORENCE MAN IS CANDIDATE

FOR REPRESENTATIVE FROM BOONE AND GALLATIN COUNTIES—LIFE LONG RESIDENT OF FLORENCE.

J. D. Lucas, of Florence makes his formal bow to the voters of Boone and Gallatin County in this issue of The Recorder, for the office of Representative.

Mr. Lucas is well known in Boone County. He is the first candidate to announce for this office.

He makes the following statement:

"I hereby announce my candidacy for representative to the Kentucky Legislature from the district comprising Boone and Gallatin Counties.

"I have been a lifelong Democrat and a resident of Florence, Kentucky, receiving my education in the frade and high schools of Boone County.

"I have not previously asked for state office, but have served the town of Florence as a member of Council and have been a close student of County, State and Federal affairs.

"For the past ten years I have worked as an accountant in the dairy industry.

"I earnestly solicit your support and vote in the coming election and promise if elected I will use my efforts to further the interests of my district."

Butter Price Roll-Back

Inasmuch as the United States Department of Agriculture will support the wholesale prices of butter at levels equivalent to 46 cents per pound until June 30, 1944, farmers should continue to receive the same prices they've been getting for butterfat despite the 5 to 6 cents a pound roll-back in the retail price of butter at grocery stores, was an announcement made today by the Kentucky USDA War Board.

The Government 5-cents-a-pound subsidy to creameries and other buyers of butterfat is being paid to all creameries who make 100 pounds or more of butter a month. Therefore, creameries are receiving as much for butter now as they were, and are expected to continue paying the going prices to farmers.

Farmers who sell their butterfat to a creamery and buy back butter for their own needs should receive the five cents a pound reduction in price on their butter, because the creamery receives the 5 cents a pound subsidy on that butter the same as on all other.

Farmers generally will not be eligible for the 5-cents a pound subsidy, but in the event a dairy farmer produces 1000 pounds or more for any month he will be eligible for subsidy payment for that month.

Mrs. Margaret Oxley

Mrs. Margaret Oxley, Independence passed away in her home on Tuesday, June 8, following a long illness.

Mrs. Oxley was a member of one of the pioneer families of Kenton County, being 95 years of age at her death.

Quality In Hay Means Feed Value

Quality in hay is more important than kind or variety of hay, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent. Quality in hay really means feed value. First, we must remind ourselves that the hay we get is no better than the meadow from which it is cut. If the land is in a high state of cultivation, the hay will carry a large amount of feed elements. With a good field of hay to start with the following points determine the quality of hay we get (1) Stage of maturity or ripeness when cut; (2) Percent of leaves remaining on stem after hay is in the barn; (3) Percentage of natural green color; (4) Percentage of foreign material; (5) Size and pliability of stem.

Quality in hay from a chemical standpoint, refers mainly to protein carbohydrates mineral and vitamin content. Protein is necessary in the animal ration to build tissues. Legume hay has a higher protein content than no-legume hay. Legume hay always contains sufficient calcium for animal requirements, but grass hays do not always contain enough.

A common fault is to delay cutting too long as the quality of many excellent crops of grass and legume is virtually sacrificed because they are not cut early enough. Even with perfect curing weather it is impossible to make a high quality hay from a late cut grass clover crop. The percentage of protein in hay plants decreases and the percentage of crude fiber increases from the early stage of growth to maturity.

Alfalfa should be cut when it is about one-fourth in bloom or about the time bare shoots appear. In localities where alfalfa blooms sparingly or does not send up shoots it should be cut when the foliage shows a yellowish ring indicating the slowing or stopping of growth.

Soybeans should be cut when the leaves are one-half to three-fourths developed, red clover from one-half to full bloom stage, timothy from the early to full bloom stage, Johnson grass when the first heads appear from the boot.

Timeliness is important in the making of high-grade hay. As a rule, it is not economical to try to grow more hay than can properly be cared for with the labor and equipment available, but this year is an exception. It will pay every farmer to go all out for saving any green crop that will make hay. The indications now are that hay will be scarce and very expensive next winter.

WOOL DELIVERY IS POSTPONED

TO ALLOW TIME FOR SHEARING —APPROXIMATELY 2,000 HEAD OF SHEEP HAVE NOT BEEN SHEARED IN COUNTY.

The delivery of the Boone County Wool Pool has been postponed for about two weeks to allow time for shearing, according to the County Agent's office.

There are approximately 2,000 sheep not sheared at the present time. Most of these sheep are in the north section of the county. Custom shearers have promised to shear these sheep inside the next ten days.

The pool will announce the date for delivery through the county papers the week before the clip is to be delivered.

RENEWAL PLAN IS OUTLINED

FOR "A" GASOLINE COUPON BOOKS BY R. E. BRUGH, LOCAL CHAIRMAN OF WAR PRICE AND RATIONING BOARD.

Plans to renew motorists' "A" gasoline coupon books by mail under the streamline renewal plan recently announced by the OPA beginning June 22 have been completed by the Boone County War Price and Rationing Board, R. E. Brugh, Chairman, announced today.

He coupled this announcement with a request that car owners file their applications as soon as possible so that the board may process them and mail out all new books before the present "A" rations expire July 21.

The mail renewal plan, which also includes renewals of the basic "D" motorcycle rations, eliminates the school-house registration that was necessary when basic rations were issued last autumn. To get his new "A" or "D" books a car or motorcycle owner needs take only the following simple steps:

1. Pick up an application form at any service station or your local bank. The forms will be available at these places beginning June 22.

2. Fill out the form and mail it to the War Price and Rationing Board together with (a) the back cover of the present "A" or "D" book (properly filled out, and (b) the current tires inspection record showing that proper inspections have been made.

"With volunteer help now being enlisted the board will begin processing the applications as soon as they start coming in," R. E. Brugh said. "New ration books will be mailed back as soon as they are ready. Every effort will be made to have new books in the hands of all car and motorcycle owners by July 21, when their present books expire. But this can be assured only if motorists and motorcycle owners cooperate by getting their application forms as soon as possible and filing them promptly."

The new application forms, like those used last year, will have a tire inspection record attached, R. E. Brugh pointed out. In filling out the form, applicants should make sure that their tire serial numbers are accurately written in. These numbers may be copied from the old tire record, as corrected at the time of the last inspection, unless the applicant has acquired a new tire since then. In this case, he should write in the new tire number and attach a note explaining this to the board.

The back cover of the present ration book is required as part of the application because it is evidence that the owner held a properly issued ration and is entitled to a renewal, the chairman explained.

Any motorists who have not had at least one tire inspection by a qualified inspector will be denied a renewal.

Impossible To Replace Gas Ration Books In Less Than Thirty Days

If you lose your rations books, under the new regulations it will be impossible for you to get a duplicate gasoline book for thirty days and all other Ration Books for a period of sivty days, according to an announcement issued by R. E. Brugh, Chairman of Boone County War Price and Rationing Board No. 8.

There have been approximately 15 ration books lost in Boone County within the past thirty days.

Andrew Glacken

Andrew Glacken, 416 Fox Street, Elsmere, passed away Sunday at his home. Mr. Fox was 80 years old. He was a retired elevator operator for the Heekin Can Company, Cincinnati.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dora Glacken; four daughters, Mrs. Walter Landrum. Mrs. Russell White, Mrs. Howard McKinley, and Mrs. Floyd Bowling, all of Kenton County, eight grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 2:30 Tuesday at the residence. Burial was in Highland Cemetery.

Philip Taliaferro, Erlanger funeral director was in charge of arrangements.

FOUR-H CANNING PROJECTS STARTED

RECORD SHEETS AND INSTRUCTIONS DISTRIBUTED TO MEMBERS—DEMONSTRATIONS TO BE HELD.

The 145 members of 4-H canning project groups throughout Boone County have received their instructions and record sheets during the past week, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. These young people are giving up vacation hours to contribute to the national food emergency, and it is estimated that they will can a minimum of 3,000 quarts of fruit and vegetables and devote 7,000 hours to this work, or in assisting their mothers with canning operations.

The canning projects are being directed by local leaders or the mothers of the club members. Demonstrations will be held in each community by the Home Demonstration Agent, members of Homemakers Clubs and 4-H Club leaders. These demonstrations will be open to all who wish to attend.

More Are Needed

The state 4-H Club program this year is set up to include 100 percent enlistment of the girls between 8 and 21 in Victory canning projects. Boys may also enlist for this work.

Outline of Projects

Girls, 8-10 years: Help at least 25 hours. Keep a record of working hours.

Girls, 11-13 years: Choose either —1. Can 30 quarts of fruits or tomatoes or both; 2. Assist with canning all fruits and tomatoes for the family. At least 50 hours. Keep a record of your work.

Girls, 14-16 years: Choose either —1. Can 50-100 quarts of fruits and vegetables; 2. Assist with canning the entire fruit and vegetable budget for the family. At last 100 hours. Keep a record of your work.

Girls, 16 years and older: Choose one—1. Can 100 quarts or more of fruits and vegetables; 2. Can 100 quarts or more of food and dry 10 or more pounds of fruits and vegetables; 3. Can and store the entire food supply for your family according to "Food Canning and Shortage Budget."

Anyone wishing to enlist should contact Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, Burlington.

JITNEY SUPPER POSTPONED

Due to the firemen having their picnic June 26th, the Florence Methodist Church will not have its regular monthly Jitney Supper in June, according to an announcement made this week.

Miss Ruth Kelly, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Charles Kelly, who has been ill, returned last week to her home in Washington, D. C.

FARMERS SECURE OUT-OF-CO. HELP

STATE EXTENSION SERVICE IS LOCATING PROSPECTIVE HELP FOR LOCAL FARMERS—SEVAL MEN TO BE INTERVIEWED.

Arrangements have been completed for several farmers to go to Eastern Kentucky the first of the week to interview prospective farm help, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The State Extension Service is locating prospective help for local farmers. The farmers in turn will interview this help in view of employment by the month or longer.

The most practical solutions to the farm labor problem will be found in the farm family, the employment of custom machinery for special jobs and in the cooperative exchange of labor, machinery and equipment between neighbors. We are all in a war which involves obligations of duty and service from every citizen. We must become more neighborily and co-operative in production of food for Victory.

Farmers who cannot secure needed help locally for producing their 1943 crops should file their applications for labor at the County Agent's office in Burlington.

Gospel Magician To Be At Florence

The Florence Baptist Church and the surrounding neighborhood is in for a treat when Evangelist and Gospel Magician Robert J. Smith from Chicago, Illinois comes to be with them June 21 to June 30th.

The services will be held each evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. The service will begin in the form of a Daily Vacation Bible School for the children at 7 o'clock in the evening. Classes will begin at 7:45. There will be a class for everyone regardless of age. All the families are invited to attend these classes, regardless of church relationship.

After the classes Rev. Smith will bring a message suitable to all. Come and hear these messages. They are thrilling Gospel messages presented with magic, chemicals, rops, ties, lantern slides, motion pictures, travelogues in color film, etc.

This meeting is not for children alone, all are invited regardless of age. Children will meet at 7 o'clock, all others meet at 7:45. Come! For further announcements listen to WCPO (1240 on your radio) Sunday morning at five minutes past nine.

Contracts Given By State For Highway Projects

Contracts for thirteen highway improvement jobs were awarded by the State Thursday of last week, totalling $260,000.

The largest contract was $63,547.65 for bituminous resurfacing of a group of rural highways in Boone and Campbell Counties, awarded to the Eaton Oil Works, Covington, and the Kentucky Road Oiling Company, Frankfort, on a joint bid.

DRIVER'S LICENSE 43-44 NOW ON SALE

ACCORDING TO CIRCUIT COURT CLERK, A. D. YELTON—WILL VISIT VARIOUS TOWNS TO ISSUE LICENSE, SAYS CLERK.

A. D. Yelton, Clerk of the Circuit Court has announced that the new Operator's License are now ready for sale, and that they may be purchased at any time from now on.

Mr. Yelton further announced that he intended to carry out the plan which he has used for the last several years in visiting the various towns in the County for the purpose of selling Operator's License, and that he would announce his schedule within a few weeks. He further said that he hoped people would watch for the schedule and take advantage of the chance to purchase their license. If this is done much necessary gasoline and rubber can be saved for more necessary driving.

IT MUST ALWAYS BE SO

Reports drift back from the fighting fronts which indicate that some of the men in the service believe the government alone has been responsible for production achievements on the home front. Apparently they feel that the government has turned out the record-breaking number of tanks, guns and planes, and therefore it should take over industry, lock stock and barrel after the war. Erroneous information of this character should be dispelled, even though it is held by only a small minority, for it is upon just fallacies that the demagogue hinges his appeal.

Private industry is producing the equipment with which to win the war. Private industry is producing nearly seven thousand planes a month. Private industry in this country has done in two years what the dictatorships took a decade to accomplish in the way of preparation for mechanized war. Private industry has built ships—millions of tons of them—faster than they were ever built before.

Government regulations the flow of strategic materials and takes over the finished goods. In between these acts of government, the great bulk of the war effort is being carried on by civilians. The natural resource industries, oil, mining, timber, and electric power, are the starting point in a vast assembly line that terminates on the battlefield. Private enterprise and private citizens keep the line moving. That is the fundamental difference between this country and dictatorships. On the other side of no-man's-land the initiative comes from government. Here the initiatives comes from the individual. It must always be so in a free country.

SAVE PUERTO RICO

There is a bill before Congress to grant independence to the island of Puerto Rico. Anything that suggests independence for any country today has an appeal, and therein lies one of the dangers of this prosposal. The people of the United States are totally unfamiliar with Puerto Rico and what it means to this nation. They do not realize it is a territory of the United States and can be the 49th state. It is therefore of the utmost importance that the widest possible understanding of this issue be gained immediately.

Puerto Rico is one of our most important island bases. It guards the Panama Canal and provides a point from which we could intercept an enemy attacking our eastern coast.

There are foreign powers that would like to see Puerto Rico given so-called independence on the chance they could gobble it up.

Talk about "freeing" our fellow citizens in Puerto Rico, 99 per cent of whom are citizens of the United States, and 50 per cent of whom are natural born citizens of this country, is fantastic.

The representative of Puerto Rico in our Congress recommends statehood for the island.

It would be costly folly to cast our island possession adrift. They are a fortified ring around our nation. They have real freedom and protection under our government.

Instead of throwing Puerto Rico away under a false banner of independence, we would better give it statehood, as advocated in both the Republican and Democratic national platforms of 1940, and add a new star to our flag.

The danger of allowing any island outpost of the American continent to fall into the hands of another power is illustrated by our loss of Kiska and Attu.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 20

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JOHN DESCRIBES TRUE CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I John 2:1-6; 3:13-18; 4:15-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.—I John 1:7.

Religion and life go together. To hold the tenets of Christian truth in one's head and not to have them move the heart is to deny the very faith one professes. Yet this is the danger which faces the believer—a temptation before which many have fallen. The result is that much of "what passes for Christianity, in these days is very thin stuff, very remote from the original" (Shoemaker).

John was not content with such a weak imitation, and in his writings he set up the true standard of a forgiven and transformed life, living itself out in love and sacrificial service. If we have forgotten what God meant us to be in Christ, or are members of a church which has strayed from the true and living way, this lesson affords an opportunity for penitence and works meet thereunto.

The true Christian life must have

I. Sin Forgiven and Life Transformed (I John 2:1-6).

Not only at the beginning of the Christian life is sin dealt with and put away, but day by day—yes, moment by moment—we have the cleansing power of the blood of our Divine Advocate.

This is of the utmost importance, for God can only use clean channels for the outgoing of His power and grace to the world. We know our own weakness and the defiling presence of the world. But unlike the unregenerate man, we do not submit and go down; we turn to Christ for forgiveness and cleansing.

The transformation of life which thus comes to the believer is shown in obedience to the commandments of God. In the early church there were those who said that if they only believed in Christ as Saviour it made no difference how they lived—and they have their followers in our day.

Be sure of this, the essential thing in Christian profession is not how you talk about Christ, but how you walk in obedience to His commandments.

Real Christianity will cause us to be

II. Hated by the World and Loved by the Brethren (I John 3:13-18).

The world, that is, unregenerate mankind, hates a genuine Christian no matter how kind and loving he may be. Why? "Because the Christian believer gives the non-believer an uncomfortable sense of inferiority. The presence of high Christian ideals in marked contrast to his own selfish policies arouses his anger and resentment" (Douglass).

The presence of a clean, godly life in a community makes every sinner look that much blacker, and the world, the flesh, and the devil will do everything possible to break down and destroy such a testimony.

We, as Christians, should not be surprised that the world hates us. In fact, we should be troubled if it does not hate us, for if our Christianity really means anything, it is distasteful to a God-hating world. Beware if sinners find nothing in your life which distresses them and convicts them of sin.

In the midst of enmity the Christian is not afraid, for he is

III. Indwelt by God and Unafraid in the World (I John 4:15-17).

A sincere confession of Christ as Saviour brings a man into that close relationship to God which is expressed in the words, "God abideth in him, and he in God" (v. 15).

The full depth of meaning of these words is obviously beyond our limited understanding, but we accept the fact by faith and rejoice in it. We recognize that it means that we are brought by our faith in Christ, into the very center of God's love. Christ, the well-beloved Son, who stands in that blessed place, draws us into the circle and there we stand in Him.

God's love showed itself in the giving of His Son as the Redeemer of the world. It was and is unselfish and sacrificial devotion to the eternal welfare of those who merited only judgment. We do not love until we reflect that quality in our lives.

Such love casts out fear. Fellowship is impossible in an atmosphere of fear, but love rules it out. In Christ we realize that God first loved us, and then our hearts go out in warm devotion to him.

Not only does the Christian no longer fear the day of judgment, but he is unafraid in the present evil world. This is not because of his own strength or ability, but because through faith in Christ he is "in God," and "as He is, so are we in this world" (v. 17). No more perfect or blessed ground of assurance could possibly be provided. Let us recognize our position in Him, and be strong and unafraid.

TAX EQUALITY ESSENTIAL

In spite of the generally expressed public desire for "pay-as-you go" tax collections, there is determined governmental opposition to the plan.

There is a feeling in the minds of many persons that the desire of governmental authorities is not so much to have equality before the law in matters of taxation as it is to enact a tax law that will charge "all the traffic will bear," depending on the individual.

We are drifting far away from the foundation principle of our government—equality and justice for all—when our Treasury Department insists on tax legislation which would make one man pay double taxes while forgiving the tax bill of another.

It makes no difference whether the amount involved is one dollar or a million—such a punitive tax system would be the rankest kind of immorality in government.

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yealey

The compliment that Tandy Ellis gave the writer in the Times-Star in reference to the article in the Walton Advertiser entitled "Early History of Boone County" about toll gates and the toll from Florence to Burlington being $2.40 a round trip. This was the price 20c per mile for motor driven vehicles as the owners of the road will verify.

The writer never failed to read the "Tang of the South." Mr. Ellis tells us of Uncle Pat Lowry keeping a toll gate near Ghent and a stranger appearing one night asked for lodging. Mr. Lowry feeling sorry for him told him he could stay, expecting to receive his pay for his keep and toll the next morning, but when Mr. Lowry arose the morning his guest had disappeared and fail to pay. Uncle Pat from that day locked the pole down and then somebody sawed the pole. About three months later Uncle Pat received a money order stating that his guest had no money at the time he stayed with him, but was now in the bootlegging business and had plenty money.

The writer refers to the above in order to illustrate the predicament of a man who had never seen a toll gate.

The writer was driving a stranger in Boone County from Limaburg to Constance over the road that leads past where the airport is now being constructed. A toll gate used to be here and a Mr. Souther had charge of it. The house stood back perhaps 30 feet from the road. As we approached the stranger sitting beside me said, "Stop, I will get that stick out of the road." So for curiosity sake I stopped the horse and the stranger alighted and ran full flight ahead and I did not urge the horse forward and he tried and tried and could not get the pole up. He finally called to me and said it was fastened down and he could not get it loose, but thought perhaps I could get between it and the fence. So by the time I got there Mr. Souther had arrived and asked the man what he was trying to do and he said, "I have been trying to get this pole out of the way so we can pass on the road." I hastened forward as quick as possible and stopped the argument as Mr. Souther knew me quite well as having been an instructor to his children at the Pt. Pleasant School a couple of years previous to this episode. This was the first toll gate that this stranger had ever seen and I had so impressed it on his mind that if he ever would chance to see another stick across the road please let the driver of the vehicle see that it was removed in the proper way, and not be so hatsy and run 100 yards ahead and do something in a strange land and among strangers.

I had occasion to see this same person about 30 years ago and he said, "Do you still have those sticks across the roads down there in Kentucky."

Why Be Old At 40?

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

Do you have sever pains in the muscles of your legs?
Do you walk with toes pointed out?
Are you bedeviled by a thousand demons tearing at your back?
Do you hate to get up in the morning?
Do you experience foot pain when walking?
Can you be on your feet all day without fatigue?
Any or all of these conditions may indicate that one or more of the four arches of your feet are on the verge of collapse. There is really no end of the trouble that such a condition could cause. Around the bones and muscles of your feet are numerous nerves, all of which are directly connected with the nerve center. Severe pains in your feet are transmitted to every part of your body.
What can you do about it?
For years men and women have withstood the aches and misery due to some foot condition and have always decided "There is nothing you can do about it."
Now Comes a Sure Way to Relief for many aches and pains due to faulty foot condition. You will be eager to rise each morning and meet the conditions of the new day. You will have the springy active step of a youngster of eighteen. You will not be old at forty! There is no secret to it. You don't have to take a long rest, nor a change of climate. You need only to be correctly fitted in a pair of surgical shoes. You may think this is a simple way to end all of pain and misery, you have been suffering for a good many years, but after all don't the simplest things in life bring the greatest joy?
Resolve today that you will pronounce the death sentence on the misery, aches and pains due to foot trouble.—Adv.

Do you WANT Black Markets!

NO!—But what are you doing to stop them?

Sure, it was all right to give Bill those gas coupons you didn't need.

Or was it?

That thick steak you got from an accommodating dealer, without surrendering enough points — the canned foods, or tires, or coffee or sugar you managed to obtain outside the rationing rules —

They didn't amount to anything — or did they?

Well, let's see.

The only reason these things are rationed is because there aren't enough of any of them to go 'round.

Why aren't there enough?

It's because boys fighting on every front and sea need rubber and gas and nourishing foods to keep them fit to fight.

It's because the men and women in the factories need stout shoes to work in, solid food to work on.

It's because you yourself can't get along without these things that they have been rationed—for you.

Suppose you do get a little extra something to which you are not entitled. And a lot of other people get "just a little extra", too.

Then, there isn't enough to meet those coupons.

So, people begin offering bribes to get merchandise. And Black Markets spring up everywhere — in tires and gas, shoes and canned goods, meat and sugar, and butter and coffee.

You'd soon find the price-bribes you'd have to pay so exorbitant you couldn't meet them. And you'd find the merchandise so scarce in the legal market that, coupons or no, you couldn't buy anything.

• • •

There is only one way to protect your share of the nation's products.

Buy no rationed products without surrendering the proper number of ration points.

Don't take advantage of somebody else's ration points to get things you're not entitled to.

Pay no more than ceiling prices.

Bible School, 10 a. m. C. W. T., Tommie Stevens, Supt.

Worship Service 11:00, "Design of Baptism."

We are pleased with the house cleaning and face-lifting the Church building and grounds received recently. It is a good indication spiritually when folks want the place of worship to look its best.

A fine program was presented at the Bible School hour by the Children's classes last Lord's Day. We didn't realize how many youngsters we really have in this community until we saw the fine group that was assembled.

Credit for the program goes to the work of Mrs. Allene Holbrook, Mrs. Jennetta Purdy, Mrs. Clarence Wolfe and Mrs. Pauline Rouse.

Present collections of waste kitchen fats are about 85 million pounds annually.

FBI CONDUCTS SERIES OF POLICE CONFERENCES

Continuing its policy of keeping the ranks of law enforcement well advised on protective measures for the internal security of the nation, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is again holding a series of police conferences throughout the State of Kentucky.

Law enforcement has responded admirably to this challenge to protect the internal security, and as a result of the close cooperation and diligent attention given by the FBI and law enforcement to this matter, it is possible to state now that January 1, 1940, to May 1, 1943, 9,245 complaints of alleged sabotage cases were investigated by the FBI; that out of this number 755 cases of technical sabotage were proved, resulting in 432 convictions. However, out of this group of cases investigated, there was not a single instance disclosed that the saboteur operated under the direction or guidance of the enemy. This, of course, is a far different experience from that of World War I when representatives of the enemy sabotage system in the United States caused untold losses of material and lives by the sabotage that was perpetrated.

With respect to espionage violations, a different situation has existed, and a large number of men and women have been convicted of violations of the Federal espionage statute. The principal example is that of the FRITZ DUQUESNE case where thirty-three spies stood before the bar of justice in Federal Court at Brooklyn, New York, and received prison sentences totaling 320 years and were assessed fines of $18,000.

The principal responsibility of law enforcement and the FBI has been that of the detection and prosecution of persons violating the Selective Service Statute; and up until May 7, 1943, the FBI closed more than 200,000 investigations of suspected violations of the Selective Service Statute. Over 86,000 men who had been declared delinquent by their local Selective Service boards were located, and 4,002 persons were convicted for violations of the penal provisions of the Selective Service Act.

The policy of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is opposed to mass arrests, and there have been no slacker raids for Selective Service violators such as those which occured during World War I. Twenty-four of the nation's leading German-American Bund members have been convicted of violating the Selective Service Act in 1942.

Director emm Edgar Hoover of the FBI has recently stated that "at this very time more than a score of saboteurs are being trained by the German High Command and its highly organized sabotage school to be sent to all parts of the world to obstruct the war effort of the United Nations."

Law enforcement is faced not only with its responsibility under the internal security program but also with a startling tendency in an increase rate of juvenile delinquency. In 1942 the youth 18 years of age for the first time became the most frequent offenders against the law. In 1942, as compared with 1941, the arrests of minor girls for prostitution and commercialized vice increased 64.2 per cent; and in a similar period there was in increase of 104.7 per cent for arrests of minor girls for other sex offenses. In the first three months of 1943 this tendency increased at an alarming rate, and minor girls were arrested for crimes involving common decency at a rate 93 per cent higher than even in the first three months of the year 1942.

The FBI calls upon all citizens to be alert and to consider the private citizen as a listening post for law enforcement and the FBI, as many of the cases successfully prosecuted to date have resulted from the alertness of loyal citizens.

Two principal subjects will be discussed at the current series of conferences, the security of war information and safety. In connection with the security of war information there will be exhibited a sound movie film recently filmed in England depicting the disastrous results from unwarranted and thoughtless disclosure of military information. The portion of the conference devoted to safety includes traffic safety in wartime. In 1942 more than 43,300 persons were killed in all types of public accidents, thus creating a major problem for the police; and all types of accidents during 1943 amounted to more than 9,300,000 persons, of which more than 4,000,000 injured were important workers. The National Safety Council has stated that accidental deaths and injuries to workers in 1942 resulted in total time losses equivalent to 460,000,000 man days of production—enough to build 22,000 heavy bombers!

If the 1942 rate of shoe buying in this country had been continued in 1943, sales would have exceeded shoe production by at least 100 million pairs.

PACIFIC COAST EVACUEES LEARN DAIRY FARMING

Vocational training for rural war production work is being carried on at several of the War Relocation centers where people of Japanese ancestry are learning to help in wartime food production. Under the War Relocation Authority's re-employment program, many of these trainees will soon find jobs on the farms where they are most needed.

While more than 20,000 of these Pacific Coast evacuees are experienced farm workers, many of them have previously worked on irrigated land or in orchards and are not thoroughly prepared for a job in the corn or wheat fields or on dairy farms.

Tractor Course Is Popular

One of the most popular courses given at the Granada relocation center in Colorado is that of the operation, care and repair of tractors, trucks and automobiles. Each group of trainees receives two or three hours of training weekly, and classes are held six nights a week. Over a six-week period 225 of the evacuees will receive 36 hours of this type of instruction.

At the Gila River relocation center near Phoenix, Arizona, 522 have already graduated from one of the rural war production courses and another group of 139 are now in training. Among those already graduated from the courses are 206 in the dairy (milk production) section and 40 in dairy (laboratory) training.

Dairy Classes

The dairy courses are the most popular Gila River. These classes are held on Sunday as well as week days. All of those enrolled carry on regular 44-hour work schedules at other occupations at the center in addition to their classes. The courses include such subjects as milking, handling of milk and cream, mixing dairy feeds, dehorning, vaccinating and treating of animals for ailments.

Other rural war production courses given at Gila River center include: hog management, poultry, growing of feed crops and vegetables and woodworking.

Big Demand For Help

At Heart Mountain center near Cody, Wyoming, there is such a demand for seasonal farm workers and for evacuees who are qualified for permanent jobs that arrangements have been made to close the high school two weeks earlier than planned. The course of study will not be curtailed to accomplish this but additional hours are being added to the regular session until the end of the school year. Rural war production courses have also been started at Heart Mountain for adults, so that those interested in farm work will have an opportunity of gaining experience before leaving the center.

Courses have just been started at the two relocation centers in Arkansas where soybean production and peanut production are included in the instruction given. The courses given at the relocation centers to the people of Japanese ancestry are under the supervision of the state departments of education, boards of vocational training, in cooperation with the United States Office of Education. All courses are approved by the War Manpower Commission. Any worker over 17 years of age is eligible for rural war production training.

ENRICHING THE NATURE

Every man feels instinctively that all the beautiful sentiments in the world weigh less than a single lovely action. —J. R. Lowell.

It is not enough to have great qualities, one must make good use of them.—La Rochefoucauld.

Good, the more communicated, the more abundant grows.
—Milton.

Any one may do a casual act of good-nature; but a continuation of them shows it a part of the temperament.—Sterne.

Human affection is not poured forth vainly, even though it meet no return. Love enriches the nature, enlarging, purifying, and elevating it.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Serene will be our days and bright,
And happy will our nature be
When love is an unerring light,
And joy its own security.

WITH OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Beil of Burlington have received word that their son Tech. Sgt. Henry Lee Beil has arrived in North Africa. He would be glad to hear from his many friends. His address is Sergeant Henry L. Beil, ASN 35468781, Co. A. 337th Engrs., APO 3929, care Postmaster, New York, N. Y.

Russell Lee Horton, 18, son of Mr. Elmer Horton, Florence, R. 1, recently inducted into the U. S. Navy, has been assigned to the U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., where he is now undergoing a period of recruit training. He will be given eight weeks of instruction stressing physical conditioning, the fundamentals of seamanship, and an indoctrination into Naval customs and procedure.

Upon completing recruit training he will be granted a nine-day leave, after which he will be assigned to Navy service school for specialized training, or be sent directly to active duty at sea or at a shore station.

Selection to attend a service school is based upon a series of aptitude tests and a personal interview given to each Bluejacket. Service school students are eligible for promotion to petty officer ratings upon completing a course, usually 16 weeks in duration.

Some men who have had sufficient experience in civilian life in a skill needed by the Navy are given petty officer ratings upon completing recruit training and assigned to active duty immediately.

The following letter was received from Cpl. Lawrence L. Aylor, 351-22511, Division Chaplain's Office, APO 38, Camp Livington, La.:

"Gentlemen:

"As a morale builder your column 'With Our Boys In The Service' hits an all time high, not only to the boys scattered far and near but from the comments I'm sur ethe good people of Boone County find it even more so. Couldn't resist letting you know that whoever is responsible for the idea deserves a lot of credit.

"May I take this opportunity to thank you for keeping my copy of The Boone County Recorder in the mail. For over two years it has been a great passtime for me and I'm sure all the fellows who came into Service at the time I was inducted will back me up. Was pleased to know where L. R. Loomis is located as I lost track of him when we left on maneuvers last summer. He and I were assigned to the same Unit upon arriving at Camp Shelby in April 1941.

"Wish to send a greeting to all my friends who have been so faithful in writing to me. It is through their efforts that I am able to carry on my program of morale building as that is part of my job here in the Division Chaplain Section. It was my great privilege on this past Easter Sunday morning, April 25th to direct the all-soldier choir in singing the Catholic Mass broadcast through WLW, New Orleans over a Coast-to-Coast network over the Columbia Broadcasting System from Camp Livingston, Louisiana. On the same day we travelled to Esler Flying Field to sing for the boys of the Air Corps."

TONIGHT AND FRIDAY

"Strong and great, a hero."

These words of Longfellow best describe the late Lou Gehrig, whose inspiring life story is brought to the screen in Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Pride of the Yankee's." The film depicts hitherto untold incidents in the career of the poor son of immigrant parents, whose devotion to his family and whose high ideals and courage were a shining example to all who knew him and to the millions who cheered him on the baseball diamond.

The picture, released by RKO Radio, is a narrative of human achievement, of supreme sacrifice and of a great love, played against a background of the popular American pastime.

Teresa Wright, who scored so heavily in "The Little Foxes," plays Mrs. Gehrig and Walter Brennan, three-time Academy award winner for best male supporting roles, is seen as Sam Blake sports writer and close friend of Gehrig.

SATURDAY

A Salvation Army rummage shop garbed Jackson and Lynam for their initial appearance as comedy duo. Both skaters had been billed separately on Sonja Henie's ice shows, and, on a sort of "busman's holiday," they visited a San Diego skating rink.

One of the featured comedians at the San Diego rink was suddenly taken ill, and the manager frantically pleaded with Jackson and Lynam to work up an act so as to save the show.

They were so successful as a team that they have worked together ever since. They are prominently featured in Republic's "Ice Capades Revue," with Ellen Drew, Richard Denning, Jerry Colonna, Vera Vague and members of the renowned "Ice Capades" skating show.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Don Ameche, Janet Blair and Jack Oakie debated a personal mission to Moscow to understand the fine points of "Something to Shout About," spirited new Columbia musical in which they are co-starred.

When different problems arose on the set, Russian-born producer-director Gregory Ratoff went into a huddle with David Lichine, Russian ballet star and choreographer on the film, and with a corps of other Russian aides. Their gestures as well as their conversation were all in Russian, leaving everyone mystified.

Assistant director Milton Carter could not understand a word either. But after each huddle he turned hopefully to Ratoff:

"What did we decide to do this time?" he asked.

Town And Farm In Wartime

Lower Meat Prices

Effective June 21, meat prices at retail will be lowered from 3 cents to 7 cents a pound by order of the OPA. New prices for cured and processed pork will go into effect on July 5. Reductions in price are smaller on cheaper cuts and larger on the more expensive. As in the case of the rollback of prices on butter, the lowering of meat prices will not directly affect the farm producer. Subsidies, which begin June 7, will be paid to anyone who slaughters 4,000 pounds of meat or more per month.

Some typical new prices (for Zone —N. D., S. D., Minn., Neb., Kansas, Okla., Texas,, parts of Wis., Iowa and Mo.) are: round steak, Grade A, bone-in, 40 cents, down 5 cents; rib roast, Grade A, 34 cents, down 7 cents; chuck roast, Grade A, bone-in, 28 cents, down 3 cents; hamburger, 26 cents, down 4 cents; pork chops, center cut, 38 cents, down 4 cents; lamb loin chops, Grade A, 57 cents down 6 cents; veal cutlet, Grade A, 44 cents, down 6 cents; sliced bacon, Grade A, 42 cents, down 5 cents.

Write To Men In Iceland

"American soldiers in Iceland are not getting nearly enough mail from home," said Chaplain (Captain) Peter E. Cullom, who recently returned to the U. S., after two years of duty with Icelandic garrisons. "In spite of the fact that the army delivers the mail with promptness and regularity to every army post in Iceland, folks at home are not taking full advantage of this service," Chaplain Cullom said.

Ration Reminder

Gasoline—"A" book coupons No. 6, good for four gallons each, outside the eastern gasoline shortage area.

Sugar—Coupon No. 13 good for 5 lbs. through August 15. Coupons No. 15 and 16 are good through October 31 for 5 lbs. each for home canning purposes. Housewives may apply to their local ration boards if necessary.

Coffee—Stamp No. 24 (1 lb.) is good through June 30.

Fuel Oil—Period 5 coupons valid in all zones until September 30.

Shoes—Stamp No. 18 (1 pair) became valid June 16.

Meats, etc.—Red stamps J, K, L, M, good through June 30. N becomes valid June 20.

Processed foods—Blue stamps K, L, M, continue good through July 7.

More Farm Machinery

A total of 300,000 tons of carbon steel, with other materials in proportion, has been allocated to the farm machinery program for the quarter beginning July 1. An additional 200,000 tons of steel have also been approved for each of the three quarters from October 1, 1943, to July 1, 1944. During the third quarter of this year, special emphasis will be given to the manufacturer of harvesting machinery for this year's crops. The whole farm machinery program has been stepped up.

Ice Box Prices

Retail price ceilings on new ice boxes have been established by OPA by models and states. Present prices will be lowered in many cases. Three sets of retail ceiling have been provided; (1) sales by ice companies and their stores, prices ranging from $26.75 to $75.00 delivered; (2) mail order sales, $18.95 to $59.95; (3) all other sales at retail, $30.75 to $88.75.

Coffee By Mail

Coffee drinkers who order their blends by mail may now "pay" for the purchase by enclosing detached ration stamps with the order rather than the entire ration book, OPA has announced. Formerly, consumers were required to forward their war ration book to the retailer or wholesaler for removal of stamps.

Inspection Requirements Changed

Tire inspections for commercial motor vehicles now may be made every 5,000 miles or every six months, whichever occurs first, ODT has announced. Previously, commercial vehicles had to have tire inspections every 5,000 miles or every 60 days whichever occurred first.

Data On Prisoners

American soldiers officially reported as prisoners of war in enemy countries to date total 17,083, the War Department has announced. Of these, 11,307 are held by Japan; 3,312 by Germany, and 2,464 by Italy. However, these reports are incomplete. Information in the hands of the War Department indicates that the basic diet of an American soldier in German prison camps is largely potatoes, cabbage, fish, and an indefinite amount of meat.

To Substitute Tires

Farmers needing farm implement or front wheel tractor tires will be permitted to purchase suitable substitutes when they are unable to find a dealer with tires designed expressly for their purpose, the OPA has announced. Dealers may also sell passenger car owners tires and tubes of a slightly different size than is called for by the rationing certificate.

Leather For Civilians

Manufacture of many civilian leather products, which was prohibited after June 1, can be continued through 1943 out of manufacturers inventories, under a recent WPB amendment. Among products affected are dress gloves and mittens, brief cases, new upholstery, radio cases, pocketbooks, handbags, cigar and cigarette cases key cases, tobacco pouches, watch straps and dog furnishings.

Electricity To Farms

Rural electrification loans to 26 systems in 18 states have been made to a total of $1,790,000 for immediate extension of service to more than 1,000 farms qualifying under present WPB regulations permitting connections to farms producing livestock, dairy and poultry products.

Gas Coupons Changed

A new "T" gasoline coupon, which replaces the present "T" coupon, will become valid for use on July 1. The old type of "T" coupon will be invalid on and after July 1, except in the northeastern shortage area where it will be used through July 25. OPA expects the change in design to help take up "slack" mileage and remove potential sources of black market gasoline.

Materials For Underwear

Materials for knit underwear for men, women, and children will be made available by an action of WPB. Manufacturers have been assured of supplies of cotton yarn, thread, fabrics and other materials to meet essential civilian requirements.

New Pipeline Approved

A 383-mile, 16-inch pipeline from Sundown, Texas, to Drumright, Okla., having an initial capacity of 54,000 barrels of crude oil daily, has been approved by the War Production Board upon the recommendation of the Petroleum Administrator for War. Construction is expected to begin early in October, 1943, and should be in operation sometime in March, 1944 the Administrator, added, providing that materials and workmen are available on schedule. The pipeline will serve to provide middle western refineries with additional supplies of West Texas crude oil, thus helping to relieve the national oil shortage.

Maximum mileage of "B" gasoline ration books has been reduced to 300 miles per month in the northeast shortage area—and no additional mileage will be allowed under any circumstances unless the applicant is, in a preferred occupation, for example, a doctor, ambulance driver, firefighter, or policeman.

Must Report Foreign Holdings

Every American citizen who had an interest in any property in a foreign country on May 31, 1943, must file a special report on Form 544-500, obtainable at Federal Reserve banks. Citizens in enemy-occupied countries ,or in foreign service with the armed forces, or whose property in foreign countries is worth less than $10,000 are not required to make this report. The information so obtained will be of great importance in the formulation of post-war financial policies involving this country and foreign nations. The report applies both to tangible and intangible property.

Country Shipper Reports

"Country shippers" of dry beans, peas, and lentils must report their purchases, sales, and transfers for the month of May to the Washington office of the OPA before June 20. A "country shipper" is the first person who acquired dry beans, peas, or lentils from a grower, or who imports them for the purpose of selling them to the wholesale trade.

A Week of The War

The surrender of Pantelleria, after 20 days of intense bombardment, was announced in a special communique from General Eisenhower's headquarters. The announcement came suddenly, less than an hour after the day's regular operational communique had merely reported continued heavy attacks on the island throughout yesterday and the previous night.

Surrender of Pantelleria gives the Allies an airdrome and naval base only 60 miles southwest of Sicily. The encirclment of Lampedusa, second largest of the stepping-stone island in the Sicilian Narrows would give the Allies another valuable base, just 90 miles southeast of Pantelleria and 110 miles west of Malta. (British naval forces landed a reconnaissance party on Lampedusa on June 6, and all but two of the party returned safely).

Forced By Air Power

The communique reporting the fall of Pantelleria said the surrender was the result of a period of "continuous and intense air bombardment, supported by naval bombardment."

It was an unprecedented capitulation, brought about almost solely by air power. The British navy shelled the island six times, but the greater part of the attack was carried on by American and RAF planes of all types—wave after wave of bombers heaping fire and destruction on the smoking ruins of previous bombings. In the last phase of the onslaught, the island was under constant, unremitting attack, and 37 Axis planes were knocked down in the final air battle.

Allied pamphlets dropped on Pantelleria Tuesday, (June 8) warned that the island would be bombed, shelled and blockaded until it surrendered. When the Italian garrison made no reply, Allied planes inflicted on the island the severest kind of aerial and naval bombardment. Secretary of War Stimson announced that the Axis rejection of the chance to surrender meant the bombing would continue.

The surrender of Pantelleria came at 11:40 a. m. (6:40 a. m. E. W. T.) when the Axis garrison ran up a white flag and placed a white cross on the airfield. Shortly after noon, American Flying Fortresses marked the victory with a big parade through the air over advanced Allied air force headquarters—an impressive display of the growing Allied aerial strength.

The message from General Eisenhower was received by President Roosevelt early Friday morning—a good piece of news, the President said. Shortly afterward, he told a press conference that he had no details on the island's surrender except that the reason apparently was that the Italian defenders did not have enough water to sustain them.

Striking On Many Fronts

Even as the northwest African air forces were concentrating on Pantelleria, American four-engined bombers of the Middle Eastern Command raided the Gervine and Cantania airdrome in Sicily, thus carrying forward the campaign to cut down Axis air strength in preparation for possible large-scale amphibious operations.

Secretary of War Stimson, emphasizing that American air forces are striking with increasing vigor and effectiveness on widely scattered world fronts, said that while American and British planes continue to hammer the Mediterranean Islands of Sicily and Sardinia, as well as the Italian mainland, the weather in Britain has interfered with bombing raids in recent days.

Over Europe a quiet prevailed—the longest interruption in the night air offensive against Germany since the 24-night lull that preceded the Allied landings in North Africa.

Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, head of the American air forces in the European theater, said the USAAF in Britain has doubled since March and will be doubled again by September. By the end of the summer, said Gen. Eaker, the USAAF, increasing 15 to 30 per cent monthly, will be carrying its full share of the bombing offensive against the Axis. The increase in American planes is in both bombers and fighters, he said, with a preponderance of bombers, both heavy and medium.

Money Talks

By FREDERICK W. STAMER, Economist, Director of Adult Education, UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Wartime developments in chemistry and in applied science are opening up new horizons for American agriculture. For the past hundred years we have looked upon farmers as essentially producers of foodstuffs. Today hundreds of millions of dollars of farm produce is going into war plants for industrial uses, and from many reports, the creation of new industries and new articles from the products of the soil is just in its infancy.

When this war began practically all of our industrial alcohol was made from molasses, much of which was imported from Cuba. German submarines sank so many ships bringing this product into this country that we were forced to look around for a substitute. We found that by changing the industrial process slightly, industrial plants manufacturing whiskey could produce industrial alcohol from wheat and corn. Today every large whiskey manufacturer is using millions of bushels of grain to produce alcohol which is used in the manufacture of powder and other explosives. One large distillery is also producing an essential product used in synthetic rubmenting with sweet potatoes as a ber from grain; it is also experisource of industrial alcohol. If this experiment is successful, and they believe it will be, thousands of acres of southern farm land will be used for this purpose alone.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington is using low grade tobacco and is producing fibre boards, wax, and varnish. In North Carolina a new product called "cottonleather" is attracting considerable attention. This chemically treated cotton can be used in the manufacture of many types of shoes and for brake linings in automobiles. New plastics are being made from cottonseed hulls; oil is produced from grape seeds which were previously discarded. The Hercules Powder Company at its Georgia plant has combined vegetable fibres with a resin from southern pines to produce a new plastic material which can be used as a substitute for steel and other metals in many places. Chemically treated cotton fabrics are replacing scarce burlap. Cotton is also used in making shatter-proof glass. The once discarded whey from cheese plants now produce glycerine, ethyl alcohol, and milk sugar.

The National Farm Chemurgic Council estimates that the produce from more than 40 million acres is now used for industrial purposes. It believes, however, that through research and science an additional 50 million acres will be required to meet the demands for industrial farm crops.

These new developments promise a bright future for our farmers. Farmers should investigate now what new crops they can raise in order to take advantage of the many new opportunities. Write to your State Experiment Station or the National Farm Chemurgic Council. Instead of a postwar farm depress, we should see prosperity ahead for many years.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

A Pledge

The Democratic nominee for Governor will be selected by the voters of the Commonwealth on August seventh. Each of the candidates has presented to the voters a detailed platform and on Primary Day a choice must be made between these platforms.

I hereby pledge myself to support to the fullest extent the platform of the Governor chosen by the people. As I see it, no other platform is necessary or desirable on the part of a candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

BUSES ROLLING
Keep Production Rolling

YOU CAN HELP BUS TRANSPORTATION do its full wartime job by timing your travel wisely — going before or after the July and August rush period, departing and returning on midweek days rather than on week-ends, getting tickets and information in advance, taking less baggage than usual.

● Buses bound for busy war plants are doing one of their most vital jobs — moving the manpower that keeps the assembly lines moving. Taking men and women to their work in factories or on farms, carrying travelers on trips essential to the war effort, transporting selectees and men in uniform — that's how Greyhound is serving the home-front today.

Almost as important as getting war workers to work is getting them away from work when "civilian furloughs" are in order—when rest and change are needed to get these men and women back to top efficiency.

Pressure Cookers: To date no cookers have been released for sale in this area. Although no county quotas have been set, authorative sources inform committees that 3,000 cookers will be alloted to Kentucky. The distribution throughout the state is in the hands of the wholesale houses. Applications for 51 cookers are in the hands of the local committee. Applicants for cookers who have only listed use for individual family canning budget are urged not to count too much on having their applications approved. Instructions to the committee restrict issuance of purchase orders to those groups or individuals making maximum use of the cookers.

Information on Canning: There are available, at the office of Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, up-to-date leaflets on: How to Can Fruits and Vegetables; Home Canning of Meats; Home Drying of Fruits and Vegetables; Equipment for Home Dehydration; How to Dehydrate Food at Home; The Family Canning and Storage Budget.

These are for free distribution upon request. Proper methods of canning foods are insurance against food spoilage. Every pound of food raised this year is needed in the Food for Freedom Program.

WHAT TO WRITE TO SERVICEMEN

The Office of War Information offers these points for homefolks writing to soldiers, sailors, and marines—based on suggestions gathered in a survey among servicemen at home and overseas, in cooperation with the Special Service Division of the Army Service Forces:

Tell him:

1. How the family is doing everything possible to help in the war.
2. How anxious the family is for the boy's return.
3. How well and busy the family is. Give details.
4. How the family is getting along financially.
5. What's doing in the community; news about girls (single) he knows. doing of friends, who's marrying whom, exploits of the home team and other sports events social doing, effects of the war on the home town. Reminisce a little about past events and places the boy used to visit. Enclose clippings from the home-town paper.

Don't tell him:

1. Your troubles. He has troubles of his own.
2. Your complaints. He can't do anything about them.
3. About things you are deprived of. He can't supply them.
4. Doleful predictions about the future. He's fighting for that future—now.
5. Unnecessary details about financial troubles. If there are things he should know about family finances, and he is in a position to do something about the situation, tell him. But don't string it out.

TIN CAN SALVAGE

Tin is a precious metal in our country today. With about 90 percent of our former source of supply cut off by the war in the Pacific, it has become necessary to salvage tin coating from tin cans used in every home in the country.

Before the war, Americans used about 17 billion tin containers every year. Most of these were a nuisance, and found their way into the rubbish heap. Now that tin cans are going to war it opens one more avenue for women to do their part in keeping our armed forces supplied with food and medicines, not to mention gas masks and vital parts for ships, planes and tanks.

The way to start tin cans on their way to war is to rinse them carefully, remove or fold in tops and bottoms, take off paper labels, and step on the cans firmly.

The prepared tins cans you turn into the war effort are shipped to big detinning plants where 10 tons of them at one time go into the solution which removes the tin. The tin can is in reality a steel cylinder coated with a thin layer of tin—about 1 percent tin by weight and 99 percent steel. Tin on the average tin can is about the thickness of one-third of a human hair, but has so much resistance to acid and corrosion that this thin layer seals the food away from the steel and prevents rust, ptomaine, or contamination.

The importance of collecting all the tin cans might be further impressed upon you if we stop to realize that every ton of tin cans produces only about 20 pounds of pure tin, as against 1,980 pounds of steel scrap.

The real value of tin is in the fact that there is no satisfactory substitute for tin in its many war uses. Tin is used in the production of airplane motors, guns, hand grenades, torpedoes, in warships and submarines; tin ingots go to companies producing cans and containers for foods, both for your own use and for the troops abroad, and the men at sea; still other ingots go to the technical laboratories and special factories producing supplies for the Army and Navy Medical Corps, and for emergency supplies used by the soldier himself in the field, when wounded and waiting assistance.

No more spectacular proof of the essential service of tin in this war has appeared than the "syrette." This is the term applied by the Army and Navy Medical Corps to little individual morphine hypodermic syringes. Every Army and Navy Medical Corps officer and doctor carries a supply with him. Every Army and Navy nurse uses them. Every medical parachutist, every flight surgeon, carries an extra supply. Every long range bomber is equipped with these little tin hypodermics. So, too, is every field and naval hopsital. Syrettes are standard equipment in arctic kits, jungle kits, aeronautic kits—used by soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen who must fight alone.

Your tin cans contribute to the making of these little angels of mercy that will help to save the lives of thousands of our fighting men. It is possible that the tin cans you save will eventually find their steel in a cannon sending shells toward the enemy on the European front, while their tin, 15,000 miles away, covers the little syrette which gives a wounded American soldier the relief necessary to preserve his life until aid reaches him.

It is necessary for every woman to save the tin cans used in her home. Remember the procedure for preparing them—rinse thoroughly, remove or fold in tops and bottoms, take off paper labels, step on firmly, and place in a basket or box for collection.

PATENTS, PARENTS OF PRODUCTION

The recent years the Anti-Trust Division of the Department of Justice instituted proceeding against many of America's leading industries and manufacturers who were charged with having built up monopolies, because the Government had issued patents to them. But this crusade against the holders of valuable patents was only partially successful, even though in the last 10 years the holders of patents have been under attack almost constantly.

Mass production and better ways of living in the United States rest to a large extent on the foundation of United States patents. Look about you and you will find most articles, materials, and machines were born into the World and raised by Mother Patent Law.

The U. S. Patent system is what has been called an "integrated structure of productive force."

Donaldson Brown, a prominent motor industry executive, holds it industry has demonstrated its ability to meet the situation of the Nation's war time production requirements." Human skill, science and management have been materially aided by the protection given to the inventors by United States patents, and there should be no breach of faith in the guarantees made by Uncle Sam. The American business system represents the triumph of Democracy as it has been developed and strengthened in all the years since 1776, and Mr. Donaldson Brown was on solid terra firma when he declared recently that the "merit of management's performance will defeat any attempt to substitute for the free competitive enterprise system that hybrid form of State capitalism which would black out individual initiative and substitute political influence for proven experience and understanding." The American patent system will automatically become revitalized after the duration, and do its part to keep "individual initiative" rolling along the highways of progress.

Victory Gardens Important Now

The Victory gardens are at an important and critical time of the year, according to the County Agent's office. Hot weather kills the enthusiasm of the grower and the rainy season and insects may bring reduced yields unless care is given at the proper time.

Now is the time to cash in, keep the garden clean of weeds, control insects through timely spraying and dusting, make late plantings of corn, beans, potatoes and other vegetables and be sure to harvest and USE all food produced so it will be of highest quality and greatest food value. We need food.

This is the middle of the garden program. Carry through the fine garden and home food supply program started last spring.

CONSTANCE HOMEMAKERS

The Constance Homemakers met Wednesday, June 2 at the home of Mrs. John Hempfling. Mrs. Huey Aylor from Bullittsville Club gave the lesson on "Stretching the Family Dollar."

The Homemakers' picnic will be held at Devou Park on Thursday, July 15th. Each one will bring a basket.

The next regular meeting will be held in September at the home of Mrs. Elmer Peeno.

KENTUCKY SOYBEAN GOAL IS INCREASED

An increase in the Kentucky soybean goal from 140,000 acres to 165,000 acres has been announced by M. D. Royse, Chairman of the Kentucky Agricultural Adjustment Agency and USDA War Board.

"Oil crops are very important to the war effort," Royse explained. "It is hoped that every farmer can see his way clear to increase his intended soybean acreage sufficiently to meet the new State goal."

Although farmers in Boone County have been hampered in spring planting by unfavorable weather conditions, every effort should be made to produce food and fiber to meet the farm's war crop goal.

"In many cases, farmers are altering crop plans in view of the existing weather conditions," stated Mark Cook, Chairman of the Boone County AAA and USDA War Board. "Although conditions may exist where some crops will not be planted due to the late season, farmers can use the land for the planting of soybeans. This will not only assure the farmer of an income but will be of tremendous value in agriculture's all-out fight against the Axis."

UNION W. M. U. NEWS

The W. M. U. of the Union Baptist Church met on Wednesday afternoon, June 9 at the church for the regular monthly meeting.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Winston Mason.

The opening hymn was "All Hail The Power of Jesus' Name," followed by the watchword repeated in Unison. Prayer by Mrs. Hal Presser.

After the business session a special offering was taken for the Glendale Orphan Home at Louisville, and also a towel shower. Each member was asked to donate a bath towel to the home.

Our program chairman, Mrs. J. W. Fothergill had charge of the program, the topic being "The Victorious Witness of Christian Youth." It was a very interesting and appropriate program for the time, showing us the importance of Christian youth of today.

Mrs. Hal Presser brought a very inspiring devotional, her subject dealing with Samuel and his youth.

Those having parts on the program were as follows: Mrs. Winston Mason, Mrs. Viola Friend, Mrs. Myrtle Marshall, Mrs. Owen Blankenbeker.

The last part of the program was very touching, it being a meditation "While He Was Yet Young" given by Mrs. Kirtley McWethy with the organ accompaniment played softly by Mrs. Marshall.

We were dismissed with prayer by Mrs. McWethy.

MAY WILL NOT SUBMIT DETAILED PLATFORM OF HIS CANDIDACY

William H. May, present Commissioner of Agriculture and a candidate for Lieutenant Governor today announced that he will not submit a detailed platform in behalf of his candidacy, since the administration of State Government depends largely upon the Governor and all candidates for Governor have submitted to the voters platforms upon which their candidacy is based.

In a prepared statement for the press Mr. May made the following comments with regard to proposed platforms by candidates for Lieutenant Governor.

"It has been the custom in the past for candidates for the office of Lieutenant Governor to announce detailed platforms. In reality, the Lieutenant Governor as Chief Legislative Officer of the State has little opportunity to put into effect a platform of his own, he must, rather, rely upon the intelligence of the voters in selecting a Gubernatorial Nominee with a sound administrative and legislative platform. The Lieutenant Governor should then pledge himself to support that platform and to carry through with the wishes of the voters as indicated by the Gubernatorial selection. In addition, the Lieutenant Governor must serve from time to time as acting Governor and it would be folly for an acting Governor to disrupt a well ordered program by attempting to put into effect his own platform, thus discrediting the efforts of the Governor selected by the voters.

"With this thought in mind I pledge myself to support to the fullest extent the platform of the Gubernatorial Nominee chosen by the voters of Kentucky at the Democratic primary on August 7th."

KENTUCKY FARMERS FACE CHALLENGE

"Farmers throughout Kentucky and the Nation face the greatest challenge in agricultural history" was the statement made today by M. D. Royse, Chairman of the Kentucky Agricultural Adjustment Agency and USDA War Board.

"Although conditions have not been adequate for farmers to become actively engaged in spring planting, they should make every effort to finish this job when conditions are favorable. No acre of land should be left idle. States not affected by the recent floods of the middle Mississippi basin have an extra job to perform in food production to make up the deficit that will be forthcoming in the areas recently flooded.

"Farmers will be given every assistance possible in the obtainment of labor and machinery by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Although farmers plant up to their farm goals, every effort should be made to surpass this acreage. We should plant with the anticipation that the most favorable weather conditions will exist for harvesting."

AIRPORT ROAD WORK TO BEGIN

IN NEAR FUTURE—FINAL APPROVAL OF PRIORITIES FOR MATERIALS GIVEN BY WAR PRODUCTION BOARD.

Final approval of priorities for materials in the construction of a road from Erlanger to the new airport, located near Hebron was given last week by the War Production Board.

Work on the project will begin within the next few days, it was announced by Marion D. Ross, district highway engineer at Covington.

The release of needed materials had been sought early in April when the application was filed almost simultaneously with the letting of a contract for construction of the road.

The road, four miles in length, leads from the Dixie Highway, out Commonwealth Avenue, Erlanger, to the airport site.

A contract for grade and drain work on the project and a temporary traffic-bound surface has awarded Nally & Mudd, Spring, Ky., upon their bid of $131,139.

A state project, the road was assured Kenton county authorities by former Highway Commissioner J. Lyter Donaldson as efforts were under way to obtain the airport for northern Kentucky. Mr. Donaldson pledged that if the airport project could be built, the state would construct the road leading to it.

Wm. Francis King

Funeral services for Wm. Francis King, age 71 years, were conducted from Chambers & Grubbs' funeral home, Walton, Tuesday, June 22 at 2 p. m. Burial was in Richwood Cemetery.

Mr. King is survived by his widow Mrs. Ada McKinsey King; two sons Charles R., near Walton and Wm. N., of Concord, Calif; 1 daughter, Mrs. A. J. Hauck, Walton, R. 1; and one granddaughter.

Mr. King and family came to Boone County from the state of Pennsylvania about three years ago.

Chambers & Grubbs, Walton funeral directors had charge of funeral arrangements.

STRESSES VALUE OF HOME FOOD SUPPLY

RATION POINTS SAVED BY SUPPLY OF HOME GROWN FOOD—VALUE OF $42 PLACED ON HOME GROWN FOOD FOR MAY

Homemakers Clubs in the county studied "Stretching the Family Dollar" at local meetings during June. The value of the home grown food supply came to light in the records, kept by members, of foods used during the preceding month. Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, cites a record kept by Mrs. Huey Aylor, member of the Bullittsville Club, which valued home grown foods on her table during May at $42.

Mrs. Aylor's family varies in size from two to six according to frequent visits of children and grandchildren. The foods record included: milk, butter, eggs, pork, beef, poultry, home canned and stored fruits and vegetables; as well as the miscellaneous items: meal, honey, lard, and fresh garden vegetables. The grocery bill for the month was less than $7.00 which paid for staple foods and "extras," not available on the farm.

Mrs. Aylor expressed surprise at the total value of her home grown foods, and stated that she could not have fed her family so nutritiously if she had been expected to buy food at current prices in the stores.

Mrs. Moore also calls attention to ration points saved by this home grown foods budget. Unused ration stamps are not "wasted" stamps, but mean that the rationed foods can be further shared in the overall ration program.

Every pound of food produced and every quart of food canned will be highly valued by rural and urban families alike this year.

Attend a canning demonstration, schedule is announced elsewhere in this paper.

Canning Equipment Should Be Put Into Use

All jars, canners, and retorts should be put into use this year. Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent calls attention to the recent report on "lost" equipment. Attics, basements, garages and other buildings may be the hiding places of aluminum pressure cookers, can sealers, steam retorts, not to mention hundreds of jars and bottles. These should be put into service this year in the canning program.

Recently the manufacturing houses have brought to the markets vacuum-sealing lids of a size which will fit mayonnaise jars, coffee jars, and other glass containers used for packing commercial food stuffs. These lids are called "63's" and fit openings 2 5-16 inches in diameter.

If your local dealer does not have these in stock urge him to order them for you. Addresses of the manufacturing houses may be secured from Mrs. Moore upon request.

Caution should be used in checking these jars because they were not meant for use in home canning, and irregular opening may be found unsuitable for use with the vacuum sealing lid.

Repair parts are also available for old model pressure cookers.

AUTO TAX STAMPS EXPIRE JULY 1ST

NOW ON SALE AT ALL POSTOFFICES AND OFFICES OF COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering announced that auto use tax stamps in the denomination of $5.00 are now on sale in all postoffices and offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue. The stamps will evidence payment of the tax for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943, and must be purchased on or before that date. The stamps will be serially numbered, will be gummed on the face, and will have provision on the back for entry of the make, model, serial number and State license number of the vehicle.

Mr. Helvering said that, to guard against loss or theft, it has been suggested that, when affixing the stamps, the vehicle owner should dampen the windshield rather than the adhesive side of the stamp. This method has been recommended to keep the stamp intact upon the windshield. As an additional precaution, it has also been suggested that each motor vehicle owner should make a record of the serial number which appears on the use tax stamp in the event the stamp should become lost.

Every owner of a motor vehicle which is used upon the highways should call at his local postoffice or at the office of the Internal Revenue Collector and secure a $5.00 use stamp and affix it to his vehicle on or before July 1, 1943, the Commissioner said. The various postoffices will sell the stamps over the counter for cash only and no mail order business with respect thereto will be conducted by the postoffices. Collectors of Internal Revenue are authorized to accept cash, postoffice money orders, and certified checks in payment of the use tax stamp. However, as revenue stamps have an intrinsic value, uncertified checks will not be acceptable in payment therefor.

It is the desire of the Bureau of Internal Revenue that the use tax stamp shall be placed on the windshild in a location that will not be in conflict with State requirements. Mr. Helvering stresses the fact that the use tax law has not been repealed and cautions motor vehicle owners that failure to purchase and display the new use tax stamps on vehicles using the public highways after July 1, 1943, will subject the violators to severe penalties imposed by law.

Youth Injured In Crash Near Florence Wednesday

Donald Shelton of Route 30, Greenville, Tenn., was removed to St. Elizabeth Hospital early Wednesday of last week after being injured in an auto accident on Highway 25 three miles south of Florence. His conditions was reported as not serious.

VOLUNTEER FARM CORPS ORGANIZED

ASSISTANCE OFFERED FARMERS IN EMERGENCY WORK BY BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN.

U. S. Crops Volunteer Workers community groups were organized the past week in Burlington, Walton and Florence, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. More communities are expected to organize in the near future. Professional men in all lines of work were enrolled and have offered their assistance to local farmers in doing emergency work in producing food and feed crops.

These volunteer workers will be available only in the afternoons and in most cases a few hours in the late afternoon. Members of the Burlington group performed their first duties last Saturday afternoon in helping a local farmer put his hay crop in the barn.

Volunteer workers will receive 50 cents per hour or a daily rate of $4 per day, in most instances. This is above the regular farm wage but it was considered in line with the emergency jobs. It will also relieve competition with any other farm labor that might be available.

Farmers who are in an emergency where their crop will be lost or greatly damaged should not hesitate to call the county agent's office, who in turn will contact the community committees in charge of the farm volunteer groups. The groups will serve in worthy cases whether the farmer is able to pay or not. All volunteers to date have expressed little or no interest in the pay, but want to be of maximum war service.

Volunteers will work in groups of four to six or more and will prove valuable assistance to many farmers in need.

Farm Labor Notes From County Agent's Office

Two farmers in emergency need for farm help were able to hire men in Jackson, Breathitt County the first part of this week.

The State Highway Department has announced their men will be released for emergency and seasonal farm work, according to William Maddox, local highway foreman.

Eight boys and several men in Walton have volunteered to assist in emergency farm form.

Eight hundred nineteen sheep that have not been sheared are on the list at the county office. Several hundred were sheared the past week. If help promised can be secured these sheep should all be sheared by the first of next week. Approximately 750 sheep not listed are also yet to be sheared. All owners of sheep not sheared should keep them listed at the county office so the first available help can be put on this job.

Greater use of girls and women not now employed is being considered in truck crops and fruit harvesting and several other jobs. Those women and girls who would be willing to work on appropriate farm jobs should file their applications at the county office.

Two thousand local farmers in the county are doing a splendid job toward solving the labor problems on their individual farms. When they can not solve their local problem they are urged to contact the county agent's office to find what assistance can be secured. The county office is at your service.

Burlington Church Sponsor Baseball Team

The Burlington Baptist Church is sponsoring a baseball team, consisting of boys fifteen years of age and under. It is the desire of the church to organize and promote a league in this county. Any church or individual who might be interested please call Walter Brown, Burlington 81.

If four or more teams can be organized, a meeting will be held and a complete schedule announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Walton Graves and daughter, of Erlanger called on friends here, Saturday evening.

Miss Peggy Salts, of Pittsburg, Penn., an employee at the airport, arrived last week, and is rooming with Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Crisler.

First Four-H Club Project Completed

Harrison Bryant, of the Constance 4-H Club is the first to report an agriculture project completed in Boone County this year. Harrison started in September with four pigs which he cared for and fed a ration of corn, hog supplement and hominy meal. His feed cost $82.50, he valued the pigs at $5 per head when he started the project. The hogs were sold to a neighbor in April for $155, leaving $52.50 as the profit on the project.

SEND APPLICATIONS TO BOARD AT ONCE

WILL ASSURE OCCUPANTS OF OIL HEATED HOMES ADEQUATE SUPPLIES IN FUEL TANKS.

Only occupants of oil heated homes who act promptly in returning applications for next year's fuel oil rations to their War Price and Rationing Board will benefit fully from plans to assure them adequate supplies in their fuel tanks before winter sets in, R. E. Brugh, chairman of the Boone County War Price and Rationing Board, declared today.

The board has made special arrangements for renewing heating oil rations before July 1 to enable householders to get deliveries weeks, even months, in advance of cold weather, said Mr. Brugh. But this cannot be accomplished, he warned, unless consumers fill out their forms at once and mail them back to the board.

The application form contains only five questions, all of which can be answered easily in a few minutes. Cooperation of the public in getting the application in quickly will be of inestimable value to the board in getting new coupon sheets issued during June, according to the chairman.

In order to make early tank fill-ups possible, the OPA has made about one-third of the coupons in each consumer's ration valid on July 1, even though last year's heating period system will be continued in modified form.

Coupon valid on July 1 will include:

1. Period 1 coupons.
2. "Consumer's reserve" coupons, constituting approximately one-sixth of the year's ration. These will remain valid throughout the year.
3. "Change making" coupons, which will make up a substantially larger proportion of the year's ration than last year. They will also remain valid throughout the year.

R. E. Brugh pointed out that ration holders in filling their tanks this summer should use their Period 1 coupons together with any Period 5 coupons remaining from the present ration. Householders with large storage facilities may also draw upon their "reserve" coupons on the new sheets. Otherwise these "reserve" coupons, which will be valid thru the year, should be held as a cushion for use later in the winter. "Change making" coupons should also be used only after the Period 1 coupons are exhausted, so that the ration holder will at all times have some of these small-denomination coupons on hand with which to "make change" when deliveries are made.

Retention of the periods will permit prompt and equitable upward and downward adjustment of rations in line with supply and weather conditions, R. E. Brugh said. The periods have also been found to assist consumers in budgeting their ration. By identifying a portion of their ration with a fixed period of time, consumers have been better able to get maximum comfort under a rationing program to conserve fuel. The heating period plan was retained also because it limits coupon accumulation and prevents a run on supplies.

Mr. Brugh emphasized that any oil purchased this summer by a consumer with new coupons is a part of his ration for next year—October 1, 1943 to September 30, 1944. It should not be consumed for hot water or other purposes during this summer.

TRACTOR OWNERS ARE COOPERATING

ASSISTING FARMERS IN PREPARING LAND FOR PLANTING —RESULTS IN COOPERATIVE WORK TREMENDOUS.

Ninety-nine tractor owners assisted, or were available to assist, neighbors in getting their land prepared for planting in recent weeks, according to H. R. Forkner County Agent. Several of these owners were able to do all the emergency plowing and discing in their immediate communities.

Neighborhood leaders and tractor owners cooperated in making the survey of the county. Many of these owners like O. M. Rogers and Howard Lizer of Burlington had planned only to do their own work but when called upon showed a splendid spirit of cooperation by assisting in doing emergency work helpful to the war effort. The result is that many more acres of food crops will be produced.

The results of this cooperative customwork by power equipment on emergency farm jobs is tremendous. Without farmers cooperating with neighbors in use of power equipment many acres of land could not have been prepared for planting—eight acres of corn land prepared by an extra day's use of this equipment means 240 bushels more corn raised; means 13 more 200-pound hogs produced; more milk, poultry or beef produced; means more people on the home front and on the fighting front will be fed in order to bring a quicker and more decisive Victory. We are all in the same fight—some are assigned the job of squeezing the trigger on the firing line, others making the implements of war—our job, equally important, is producing the food that is necessary for those on the other jobs to do their work and do it well.

Old-Fashioned Rural Reunion At St. Henry

An old-fashioned rural reunion outing will be sponsored by members of St. Henry Church, Erlanger, Ky., on the church grounds next Saturday afternoon and night. The Rev. Herbert J. Egbring, pastor of the church and the Rev. John Ramsey, assistant pastor are collaborating with a large committee of men and women of the congregation in general arrangements.

There will be a chicken dinner served from 5 to 8 p. m. by members of the women's organization headed by Mrs. A. P. Kern. A card party is to be held in the afternoon with social games in the evening. The Erlanger Fire Department with Chief Andrew Scheben as chairman will supervise the social games. Chief John Crowell will head a corps of volunteers from the Elsmere Fire Department in charge of parking and traffic.

A refreshment center will serve as an oasis for the thirsty and there will be several sandwich buffets for those desiring snacks.

Utopia Club Members To Meet At Bradford's

Boone County Utopia Club members will meet Thursday evening, June 24th at 9:00 p. m. at the home of Lucian Bradford of near Union for the regular June meeting.

Mrs. A. W. Fullerton, of Florence will address the girls' group on home canning problems. Russell Hunt, tobacco specialist from the college is scheduled to address the boys' group.

Those attending will enjoy a weiner roast following the business and educational program. All who are interested in Utopia Club work are invited to attend.

Hebron Girl Receives Scholarship Award

Miss Mary Lou Lucy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Lucy, of Hebron, has received a scholarship to the Library School of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.

Miss Lucy on June 2, graduated from Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, Richmond, Ky., majoring in English and Social Science. She will enter Peabody in the middle of September and receive a B. S. degree in Library Science the following June.

H. D. A. Will Receive W. L. A. Applications

Farm laborers are need. Women are filling the shortage in many sections of the United States. Boone County is no exception. The farm women are working along side their men to accomplish the herculean task of food production. More help is desired. Women who live in urban areas are urged to contact Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, and apply for work on food production. The Woman's Land Army is now being recruited. Boone County farmers are asking for members of the organization to assist with poultry, dairy, and truck farm activities.

Members of the Woman's Land Army agree to work on the farm as much as a month, either steadily or intermittently. The U. S. Crop Corps will include persons available to work for a few hours or a few days. Enlist to help the farmer. Uncle Sam needs your help.

FARMERS TO HAVE NECESSARY ITEMS

WILL HAVE FIRST CHANCE AT BUYING SHOVELS, FORKS AND OTHER SUPPLIES NEEDED TO MEET PRODUCTION GOALS.

From now on, farmers will have first chance at buying the shovels, forks, and other supplies they need to meet 1943 food production goals. WPB is seeing to it that its regional offices, newspaper editors, and the County Farm Rationing Committees are up to date on all developments in the program to keep farmers supplied with necessary items. If they have any questions, farmers—or the dealers who supply them—have only to telephone or drop in at any of these offices.

Who May Buy Equipment

Briefly, WPB has given everyone who engages in farming as a business by raising crops, livestock, bees, or poultry, or who uses farm supplies in operating silo filling equipment, threshing machines, or similar equipment for farmers priority to buy any of the 140 listed farm items.

More Supplies Coming

To help farmers get their share of the items which are the most urgently needed of the 140, WPB is also directing manufacturers or distributors to produce or set aside for sale for farmers specified quantities of 66 items. As the supply in a given line becomes too large or too small, adjustments will be made. There will thus be a steady, adequate flow of supplies.

Buying Method Is Simple

To obtain supplies, the farmer has only to give his dealer a signed certificate, reading as follows:

"I certify to the War Production Board that I am a farmer and that the supplies covered by this order are needed now and will be used for the operation of a farm."

The farmer may copy and sign this form himself, or the dealer may have forms printed, for him to sign.

However, if a farmer wishes to buy more than $25 worth of any one item at one time, he must have his certificate approved in writing by the County Farm Rationing committee.

How Dealers Re-Order

A dealer may at any time buy new farm supplies to replace those he has sold and has received certificates for from farmers. To place an order with his supplier, he simply certifies that his order, at wholesale prices, does not amount to more than 75 percent of the retail value of the goods already sold. The difference of 25 percent represents the dealer's mark-up allowance.

If the dealer wishes to stock up on farm supplies immediately, he may do so without waiting for farmers' certificates. In this case, he certifies to his supplier that he expects to sell the goods covered by his order, and that the goods ordered plus the goods on hand do not exceed a month's normal inventory.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Walton and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Solon Ryle and family, of Rising Sun.

PICNIC PLANNED BY FLORENCE FIREMEN

EIGHTH ANNUAL EVENT WILL BE HELD AT ZIMMER GARDENS, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, JUNE 25 AND 26.

Florence Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor their eighth annual picnic and dance at Zimmer Gardens, Florence, Ky., on Friday and Saturday of this week, according to officials of the organization.

In past years, this event has been highly entertaining and has been a source of revenue for the department. This year, officials have made extensive plans for an even bigger and better picnic.

The Florence Volunteer Fire Department has been a great asset to the town and community in which it serves, and has given freely of its facilities to outlying towns and communities in the county, answering calls in all sections of this county. This organization merits the support of everyone, and must have your support to continue functioning.

Tickets for the picnic and dance are now on sale at 35 cents each, or three for $1.00. Even though you are unable to attend the picnic support your organization by purchasing a ticket, it will help your firemen to carry on for another year.

Many booths of entertainment, rides and various other devices of entertainment will be offered to make a full picnic and outing for those attending. Don't forget the date Friday and Saturday, June 25 and 26th.

Hubert Meredith Will Address Voters Of Boone County July 5

Hon. Hubert Meredith, Attorney General of Kentucky, will address the voters of Boone County on Monday, July 5th, 2:00 p. m. (E. W. T.) in the Circuit Court room at Burlington in the interest of the candidacy of the Hon. Ben Kilgore, democratic candidate for the nomination of Governor in the August primary election.

This will be the first time the voters of Boone County have had an opportunity to hear their Attorney General. He is a forceful as well as entertaining public speaker.

The public is cordially invited to attend this speaking. Complete advertisement will be found on another page of this issue.

AGENT OUTLINES CANNING PROGRAM

WILL GIVE DEMONSTRATIONS THROUGHOUT COUNTY DURING JUNE AND JULY—URGES WOMEN TO ATTEND.

"Save all food, fill all jars" may be the canning slogan this year, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. At canning demonstrations listed below, Mrs. Moore will show types of equipment to be used, and methods of canning fruits and vegetables. In the face of the labor shortage as well as the food shortage it will be found expensive to risk out-of-date or guesswork canning practices this year. The meetings are being held early to allow person to attend them before the canning season has advanced to its heaviest stage.

Homemakers and 4-H Club leaders are assisting Mrs. Moore in arranging and presenting these demonstrations. Everyone is urged to attend and bring a neighbor. Why ask the woman across the fence when you can learn "first hand" from a reliable source? Your Extension Service will give you the best information available.

Demonstration schedule is as follows:

June 24—Burlington school lunch room 1:30 E. W. T.

June 29—New Haven school 1:00.

July 1—Taylorsport school 1:00.

July 2—Limaburg, Mrs. Fred Bennett's home, 1:30.

July 7—Verona school lunchroom, 3:00.

July 7—Walton colored church at 7:00.

July 8—Idlewild Creamery, 2:30.

Demonstrations will also be given at Hebron, Grant and Hamilton.

CONGRESS INTERVENES

Congress is preparing, through the Boren-Halleck Committee of the House, to protect the people whom it represents from the arbitrary rulings of reform bureaucrats who are exceeding their authority. This Committee was created when the House unanimously voted to adopt the Halleck resolution, H. R. 98. The Committee's job will be to investigate the effect bureaucratic rulings have in promoting grade labelling and standardization, which tend to wipe out trade marks and brand names, and which adversely affect the maximum production and distribution of goods of all kinds. This is one of the most important investigations initiated by Congress since the war started. It is important because the results of its findings will deeply affect both the consuming public and industry which produces consumer goods. This Committee, which is under the chairmanship of Congressman Lyle H. Boren of Oklahoma, held its first public hearing May 24 to investigate the activities of OPA rule-makers.

Preliminary to these hearings the Chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, Clarence F. Lea, has written a letter to Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown in which he ordered that "the effective date of any grading or standardization orders already issued or the issuance of which is being contemplated, be postponed until the subcommittee has had an opportunity to secure further information on these orders." This order, coupled with the steady stream of protests pouring into Washington from various trade groups and consumers, should clearly show the OPA in which direction the wind is blowing.

Congressional action was forced in this situation by the growing public suspicion that many of the burdens some Government war agencies have imposed on business, and notably those of the Office of Price Administration, have nothing to do with winning the war; instead that they actually have been created for the purpose of carrying out reform measures and pet theories of some who hold important positions in these agencies.

The attempt of OPA to enforce uniform grade labelling for canned foods and arbitrary standardization for important clothing items, such as overalls, work shirts, underwear and hosiery is a case in point. Far from conserving materials and manpower such programs have inevitably resulted in a loss of valuable production at a time when maximum output is urgently needed. Thus, under the guise of war economies, the OPA, through such programs, is openly aiming at drastic changes in business practices. Specifically, it would deprive the public of quality protection.

A multitude of OPA rulings indicate clearly that that agency has continued to use its war powers to create drastic reforms in the Nation's economy despite the fact that such an attempt is clearly contrary to the law as it was written by Congress in the beginning of the war.

FARM WOMEN SAVE RATIONING STAMPS

Don't use food ration stamps unless it is absolutely necessary, was the advice of Mrs. Ralph Scearce, president of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers' Clubs, in speaking to club representatives from 10 counties, meeting at Shelbyville. There is little grumbling among rural homemakers concerning rationing, she said, because they are prepared for it, having canned, stored and dried fruits and vegetables last fall.

Every Homemaker fortunate enough to have her own supply of home-canned foods should feel it her responsibility to use it, Mr. Scearce continued, rather than buy the so-called luxury foods, as pineapple, which require shipping space.

In Taylor county, 1000 acres of soybeans will be planted for oil extraction.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

JOHN'S COUNSEL TO CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—II John 4-11; III John 5-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, I pray that in all things thou mayest prosper and be in health; even as thy soul prospereth.—III John 2.

Christians need guidance, especially in their home and church relationships. The apostle John, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, wrote the two personal letters known to us as II and III John. They abound in sound spiritual, practical advice. Note that these two words belong together, for what is truly spiritual cannot help but be tremendously practical and perfect for the direction of thought and life.

In these letters five admirable lessons are taught. Let us give heed to them. They are appropriate to our day.

I. Set an Example Before Your Children (II John 4-6).

We may not like to admit it, but our children are largely what we make them by their training—or lack of it—in the home. Parents have the grave and at the same time precious responsibility of being what they want their children to be. We set the mold of their thinking and acting, not only about material things, but mentally and spiritually, which is far more important.

Above all we must teach them by precept and example to love God supremely, and to walk after His commandments. Father, mother, have you done your duty? Are your children "walking in truth" (v. 4)?

II. Be on Guard Against False Teachers (II John 7-11).

We are not to countenance false teaching even by entertaining such teachers, or having close fellowship with them. To create the impression before the world and the Church that they are "not so bad," by appearing as their friends, is to partake of their evil works (v. 11). This is a serious matter, and one which is a problem in the Church today.

Such teachers may easily be recognized. They are aptly described by Dr. Douglass: "In all ages the Church has been plagued by those who want to substitute something for pure Christian faith, or to embroider it with bright ideas of their own conceiving. Such people may try to strip religion of its supernatural aspect and reduce it to a merely rationalistic system. They may seek to slyly loosen the moral standards of the Church because their own lives are deficient when measured by such standards. They may try to minimize the teaching of the cross because it stands for sacrifice." Watch against them, and stand against their destructive teaching.

III. Be Diligent in Putting Forward True Teachers (III John 5-8).

The door which should be closed against false teachers should be opened wide to those who are faithful teachers of the truth.

This refers primarily to the hospitality of the home, and reminds us of a grace which has been all but forgotten in these days of small apartments.

Whether we are able to open our homes to God's servants or not, we can show a Christian spirit of genuine hospitality in helping to bring them forward (v. 6) in their work. This may be done by gifts of money, by kindness shown in time of need, by a real interest in their work, by recommending them to others who wish to hear the truth.

Do everything possible, then, to hinder the false teacher, and be just as diligent to put forward the ministry of the true man of God.

IV. Do Not Trust Proud, Self-Seeking Leadership (III John 9-11).

A man may be orthodox, and intensely loyal to the denomination, and at the same time be a wicked man whose example is to be shunned. No word is said against the teaching of Diotrephes. He was not condemned for being careless about the affairs of the church, or unfaithful in his attendance and devotion to its interest as he saw them.

The sin of Diotrephes was pride, a desire to be the boss of the church, "No. 1 man" in its affairs. Lacking the true spirituality which always results in humility, he opposed the apostle. Not only did he refuse to receive him, but used pressure on others who were willing to be hospitable.

V. Emulate the Life of the Man of Good Report (III John 12).

A good man! No words of praise could possibly surpass such a testimony. The world is full of brilliant, skilled, wealthy and prominent people, but there is an appalling dearth of good men and women.

How refreshing to meet, and how delightful to know, such a man—such a woman. Like Demetrius, they have not only the witness of the Church, and of the truth, but also of "all men." But last week we said the world hates real Christians. It does, but it also respects them, and is forced to bear witness to their reality and goodness.

Professed fellowship with God in Christ which does not result in goodness of life may well be scrutinized.

Money Talks

By FREDERICK W. STAMM, Economist, Director of Adult Education, UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The Government's decision to "roll-back" prices to somewhere near mid-1942 levels is causing considerable confusion among farmers, manufacturers, and retailers. In fact, we can hardly blame these people for being confused, for officials in Washington are debating whether "roll-back" of prices accompanied by Government subsidies will solve our price problem.

It is evident that O. P. A. officials want prices, and especially food prices, lowered; but they realize this cannot be done unless some incentive is offered farmers to grow foodstuff and manufacturers to process it. So they are proposing a subsidy which make up for the "roll-back" of price and make producing and processing profitable.

The farmers are not very enthusiastic over this plan. The Dairymen's League Cooperative Association at its annual meeting in New York adopted a resolution opposing Government grants of subsidies on the basis that such grants would not be a good substitute for "fair prices." The resolution further stated that subsidies would created greater confusion in price structures, discourage farmers in production of food, and impose a great burden on taxpayers."

The OPA has asked for a billion and a half dollars for subsidies. This money must come from somewhere, so although prices are lowered, either taxes must be raised or national debt increased to pay the bill. It seems to me it is about six of one and a half-dozen of the other; for in one case we pay a higher price, while in the other we pay lower price but must pay higher taxes for subsidies.

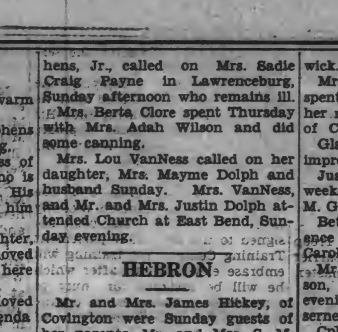
Organized labor is in favor of this price "roll back." Unions have been asking for higher wages, and the War Labor Board has had a difficult time appeasing labor. Now by rolling back prices the W. L. B. feels it can refuse increases in wages. But as one farm leader said, "roll-back of prices is just another way of giving labor a raise at the expense of the farmer."

The effect of the lowering of prices is already affecting the packing industry. Only one local packing house in Louisville is now slaughtering cattle, and it will be forced to quit at once unless Federal subsides are guaranteed against "further prohibitive financial losses." Four Seattle, Washington packing houses have suspended operation.

Congress is also divided over this problem. While officials make up their minds, the farmers, producers, and the public suffer. One of the greatest criticisms of the Federal Bureaus is their willingness to try out new plans before they are completely worked out. Instead of creating confidence, this policy creates confusion.

FARM RECORDS SHOW INCREASED INCOMES IN 1942 OVER 1941

How farm incomes in Kentucky increased in 1942 over 1941, is revealed in records which 20 farmers in Union, Henderson and Daviess counties reported to the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics. All the farmers kept complete accounts for both years.



The average earnings of the 20 farmers increased from $2,499 in 1941 to $4,967 in 1942. Higher prices and increased production of crops and livestock increased the total farm receipts from an average of $4,803 in 1941 to an average of $8,343 last year. Farm expenses increased from $2,303 in 1941 to $3,376 in 1942.

Corn production was increased from an average of 49 acres to 63 acres, and total production rose from an average of 2,018 bushels to the farm in 1941 to 3,704 bushels in 1942. This is an increase of 83 percent in production.

The sale of hogs last year was 23 percent higher than in 1941, and there were more hogs on farms at the end of the accounting year, Jan. 31, 1943, than there were a year earlier. Total pork production increased 32 percent. Beef cattle production remained about the same both years—an average of 20,000 pounds per farm.

Egg sales increased from 389 dozens per farm in 1941 to 490 dozens in 1942, an increase of 26 percent. Egg prices also were better, as were prices of hogs and cattle.

Thank You

AMERICANS are learning that war reaches deep into the lives of all. There are dislocations of accustomed practices—from torn homes to much less consequential disruptions. Meat and shoes, soup and gasoline are on a share basis, neighbor with neighbor, state with state.

The sharing of gasoline, for example, has thrown a nation-on-wheels "out of gear." Daily going and coming have been revolutionized for millions. Yet with a minimum of confusion and complaint. For our part, we pay our respects to the motorists of the South for the spirit and aptitude with which they have met these wholly strange methods and procedures.

Thank you, Southern car- and truck-drivers. You have shared your gasoline without grumbling. You have quietly adapted yourselves to the coupon, to the tire inspection requirements and to the sometimes annoying details of regulation. The oil industry is carrying a heavy burden in the performance of its distribution and marketing obligations to the Government and to you.

Thank you for your help.

THE GARDEN

TROUBLES

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

This is a resume of letters that have been coming to the writer from troubleworn gardeners, who, this year appreciating more than in the past the importance of their gardens' performing, have become vocal earlier. The fact is, too, that there are many more gardeners than in other years, some of them just now learning how many pitfalls there are in the path of the producers of vegetables. So, it may be the initiates who are writing.

Cabbage—Dotted in the rows, are plants whose lower leaves are turning yellow and blue; later, black. This is the sign of black rot, and the prospects for such plants are slim, as in the end, all the leaves will have dropped off, to leave a stiff shank with a misshapen, small head atop it. The fault may lie in the plants that may have been grown in diseased land, or it may lie with the gardener who has inadvertently put cabbage row where he had it last year, or even where he had radishes or "cabbage gerens." To be rid of this trouble henceforth, home-grown plants should be used, produced from seed that has been treated, and crop rotation should be faithfully followed; there should be a "skip" of a full year.

Tomatoes — Here and there plants are reported to be turning yellow, beginning sometimes with only half-leaves affected. This is the first sign of wilt, and dry weather will make the symptoms more pronounced, and the plants' death must follow. A soil-germ disease, its only control is to use the wilt-resistant varieties, Marglobe, Pritchard and Rutgers. If such plants cannot now be procured, a packet of seed should be sown immediately, to have plants to set as late as even July 15; for there is still time to "beat the frost."

Beans — The adult Mexican beetles have finally come from winter quarters. The eating they do is rarely serious; nor does this matter as they cannot be killed through ordinary means. But, close in the wake of their coming, come egg-clusters, the signal for the immediate application of dust or spray, made always and only on the undersides of the foliage. In 10 days, a second should follow, and in a week or so, perhaps a third, depending on how thoroughly the previous two were made.

CASE FOR THE RECORD

This war has turned up some interesting facts. One of them is that all the claims of public power politicians for the past decade that the nation faced a power shortage and that development of power by the government was, therefore, essential, were unfounded.

Now comes J. A. Krug, director of the Office of War Utilities, and says: "Electric power has never been too little or too late. I do not know of a single instance where the operation of a war plant has been delayed by lack of electric power."

And remember that 85 per cent of our electric power is furnished by private enterprise.

Also remember there is no rationing of power to homes or non-essential industries.

No Army-Navy E's are awarded or asked for in this record. Electricity is just taken for granted in the day's work. Those who have besmirched the private electric power industry should have red faces.

The British colony of Fiji, once noted for cannibalism among the natives, is granting reciprocal aid to U. S. forces stationed there to the value of almost $3,000,000 annually.

BUDDIES

So long brothers, you're sure great guys
We'll be meeting again soon, so why say goodbye?
Like thousand of others you'll shoulder a gun,
But you're buddies of mine and real human ones.

There is a God in Heaven, and I'm sure that He cares,
That we come back to loved ones for their undying prayers;
I'll certainly miss you, but that's how it goes,
Just part of our life, with joys cometh the woes.

Though tears fill my eyes and sad is my heart,
I'll long for you brothers, as now we depart;
So brother boys, old pal of mine,
We'll be meeting again soon—it's all up to time.

FINDS BALBO RYE O. K.

Ben Craft of Letcher county grazed three calves all winter on four and a half acres of Balbo rye, crimson clover and vetch. In February he turned three milks cows, a horse and 130 chickens in the pasture. Two months later he plowed under a fine crop for soil according to Farm Agent Hugh Hurst. Mr. Craft says his egg production was increased 50 percent due to the green feed. He is saving an acre of Balbo rye seed, and this fall plans to sow 12 acres to rye and vetch.

TO ENCOURAGE ALL TO CAN FOOD CROPS

Information on how to can Kentucky's victory garden and fruit crops is to be made available to every rural family in the state, Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work, has announced. Community and neighborhood demonstration on canning and deyhdration will be given by home demonstration agents and leaders they have selected. Demonstrations will follow a canning institute for home agents conducts by Mrs. Pearl Hank of the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics and Miss Jane Roberts of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

In many counties, food preservation demonstrations will be held the last week of June and the first week of July in order to put away for winter use the biggest garden crop ever produced in the state. With the cooperation of farm agents, eight members of the state home economics extension staff will hold canning meetings to train homemakers as leaders in those counties without home agents. They will teach correct methods of canning and drying in their neighborhoods.

It is estimated that there is an increase of 40 to 50 percent in the number of broilers being raised in McCracken county this year.

Hon. Hubert Meredith

Attorney General of Kentucky, will address the voters of Boone County in the Circuit Court room at Burlington on

MONDAY, JULY 5th 2 P.M. - EWT Co. Court Day

In the interest of the candidacy of the Honorable Ben Kilgore, the farmer's friend and people's choice, for the democratic nomination for Governor in the August primary election.

While he is not and will not be a candidate for any office, either elective or appointive, he is neverthless profoundly interested in having at the head of our State government a man who not only possesses to an eminent degree the necessary qualifications, but has the honesty and courage to administer the office in the interest of all the people. This will be the first time the voters of Boone County have had an opportunity to hear their distinguished Attorney General discuss matters of public interest or advocate the nomination and election of any candidate for public office. His interest in the matter is the same as theirs. He is a forceful as well as an entertaining and convincing public speaker. Every voter in Boone County regardless of who is his present choice for the nomination is urged to take advantage of this opportunity to hear the reasons why Attorney General Meredith is supporting Mr. Kilgour in this campaign and urging other democrats to do likewise. Be sure to come and hear as well as meet him.

—KILGORE STATE CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Town And Farm In Wartime

Don't Travel Unnecessarily

To relieve crowded trains and busses, the public is asked not to make unnecessary trips. ODT has defined trips for the following purposes as non-essential: (1) To other cities to visit friends; (2) Home for the week-end; (3) Sightseeing; (4) To the theater, races, or other places of amusement; (5) Any social travel or travel for pleasure; (6) Travel merely for the sake of going somewhere.

V-Mail Pictures For Dads

Photographs of children under one year of age of soldiers serving overseas or children born after the father has departed for overseas may be sent by V-mail under certain conditions, the War Department has announced. The regulation form must not be altered in any manner and the photograph is limited in size to not more than one-third of the correspondence space on the V-mail form. The photograph must appear on the upper left portion of the correspondence space. It may include the mother or some other person holding the child.

Victory Tax Collections

The Victory Tax, which to date, has been withheld from wages and salaries above exemptions, at the rate of 5 percent, will be included in the 20 per cent withholding plan provided for in the current tax payment act, on or after July 1. Total Victory Tax collections as of June 5 were $682,382,523.20.

Sticker For Ration-Free Shoes

Shoe dealers must put an official OPA sticker on shoes that are to be sold ration-free because of damage by fire, water, steam, or other accidental cause, the OPA has announced. The purpose of the sticker is to protect the customer against black markets in shoes.

Frozen Foods Priced

Consumer ceiling prices for frozen snap beans, corn, peas, and spinach of the 1943 pack will be about the same as current maximum prices for the 1942 pack, but frozen strawberries, between three and four cents a pound.

Gas and Tires For Farm Machines

To assist grain farmers in harvesting 1943 crops, the War Food Administration has made arrangements with ODT and OPA to assure owners of custom-operated machinery, sufficient gasoline and tires to run their equipment, especially itinerant combine operators who will soon be working in the wheat harvest.

Tax Workers Will Be Needed

Between 10,000 and 15,000 new employees will have to be added to the Bureau of Internal Revenue as a result of the new system for the pay-as-you-go income tax law which goes into effect July 1. Most of these employees will be placed in the various field offices and the majority of them will be women.

Tools For Farmers

Wrenches, pliers, screwdrivers and other mechanics' hand service tools should be more generally available to farmers and home mechanics as a result of an amendment of Order E-6 by WPB. The amended order, which is designed to bring about a better distribution of these tools among consumers, sets aside from 20 to 25 per cent of the monthly production of specified tools, for commercial distributors.

Apply For Fuel Now

Occupants of oil heated homes should apply now to their ration boards for next year's fuel oil allowances to assure adequate supplies before winter, declares OPA. About one-third of the coupons in each consumer's ration sheet will be valid on July 1 to enable householders to get deliveries, even months, in advance of cold weather.

Canned Goods For Civilians

Applesauce, blueberries, figs, beets, carrots, pumpkins, and squash will be available to civilians in cans as a result of a curtailment in Government requirements. Under a previous order, canners were permitted to pack these foods in cans only for Government needs.

Barbed Wire Available

Approximately 20,000 tons of barbed wire with extra long barbs, made for military purposes, will be used to meet a shortage of barbed wire on farms, according to WPB. The action is part of the Office of Civilian Requirements' program to make needed supplies available to farmers. The wire shortage was aggravated by the recent midwestern floods which washed out many miles of fence.

Used Car Gas Ration

The purchaser of a used car may qualify for a gasoline ration to operate it, even though he is unable to get a tire inspection record from the previous owner, if he can satisfy the local board that (1) no tire inspection record was ever issued for the vehicle, or (2) the buyer had been unable to get the record from the previous owner after diligent attempt.

Lumber For Farms

Five hundred million board feet of softwood lumber have been made available for farm needs by WPB and WFA under certain conditions; preference rating may be no higher than AA-2, rating may not be assigned for lumber to be used in construction or repair of dwellings, or in construction subject to the provisions of conservation order L-41, farmers apply on Form GA-201; lumber dealers on Form GA-202. This order is good through September 30, 1943.

Stabilizing Price of Vegetables

A program has been started that will maintain fair and equitable returns for the canning industry, at the same time preventing increases in consumer prices of green peas, snap beans, sweet corn, canned tomatoes and other primary tomato products. It includes: (1) No increases in the ceiling prices of canners; (2) The Commodity Credit Corporation will absorb part of the processing cost, caused by approved increased wages, to permit processors to obtain net returns from 1943 operations in line with the average net return during representative prewar years; for minor vegetables, increase will be reflected in higher ceiling prices.

War Expenditures Up 1 Per Cent

War expenditures by the U. S. during May amounted to $7 billion, 373 million, a one percent increase over April. The daily rate of war expenditures averaged $283,600,000 in May compared with $280,400,000 in April.

Increase In Farm Machinery

A new farm machinery and equipment order (WPB-L-257) sets up quotas based on the actual needs of farmers for machinery and equipment as determined by the War Food Administration. The order, which becomes effective July 1, permits uncompleted quotas under L-170 to be produced in addition to quotas hereby established.

More Forest Fires in '42

Forest fires last year burned over a total of 31,854,124 acres of United States woodlands, compared with 26,404,385 acres in 1941. The total number of fires in the first war year was 208,218, an increase of 8,516 over 1941.

Training For Farm Work

More than half of the men and women taking the rural war production courses offered by the War Manpower Commission are interested principally in the operation of farm machinery, food processing, and egg production. These three courses account for 62.4 per cent of the total number of persons in training. The courses run anywhere from two to ten weeks, two to three hours per week.

Stocking Prices Changed

Maximum prices on stockings that contain yarn composed of silk twisted with rayon or cotton yarns have been fixed by OPA to allow for varying costs based on the gauge of the hose. Retail prices range from 79 cents for the coarse gauges (39 and lower) to $1.25 for the finer gauges (51 and higher).

Release Farm Machines

Manufacturers of milking machines, farm cream separators, and farm milk coolers have been authorized by the War Food Administration to distribute 100 per cent of their authorized production. This order makes no change in the rationing of retail sales.

States Pool Road Machinery

Thirty-five states are now operating under the WPB program to pool Government-owned road machinery. Under the plan, requirements for critical materials are greatly reduced by making available any surplus or idle equipment to any section of a state which urgently needs it.

Ossification Of The Bone

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

In the fetus or unborn child, the bones first consist of masses of cartilage which, about the second month of fetal life begin to ossify, or become bony. In a long bone, which may be taken as an example the process commences in the center of the shaft and proceeds toward the extremities, which for sometime remain cartilaginous. Subsequently, a similar process commences in one or more places in the extremities and gradually extends through it. The extremity, does not, however, become joined to the shaft of the bone until growth has ceased, but remains separated by a layer of cartilage tissue termed epiphy cartilage.

The points at which bony development first commence are known as center of ossification.

The process of ossification consists in the appearance within the cartilaginous skeleton of bone calareous or ealthly matter which forming cells, and the deposition gradually displaces the cartilaginous matter.

These processes extend gradually in every direction from the original center of ossification until the entire cartilaginous mass becomes boney or is ossified.

The first bones in which ossification appears are the choule (collar bone) and inferior maxellary (lower jaw bone) about the fifth to seventh fetal week; the last ossification to appear is in the pisaform bone of the hand, about the twelfth week.

Knowing the time and care that nature takes, in forming and developing our feet, and body, isn't it reasonable to assist nature in taking the proper care of ourselves against the abuses of modern life by wearing shoes that fit and are constructed to hold the foundation of the body in perfect balance.—Adv.

Gayety Theatre

TONIGHT AND FRIDAY

Lucky Alan Ladd, unheralded, unknown and, what is more important, unadvertised, in his first 40 pictures, is one guy who won't take "no" for an answer!

Ladd, who leaped to prominence in his first featured role, that of Raven in "This Gun for Hire," and who clinched fame in his second, as Brian Donlevy's lieutenant and Veronica Lake's boy friend in "The Glass Key," hit stardom on his third major try, "Lucky Jordan," the Paramount spy thriller.

When Ladd finally decided to become an actor he plugged away at bit parts played in no less than 20 radio dramas—soap operas to the trade. Sue Carol, once a great movie star and now a successful agent, spotted his voice. She put him under contract. Later he married her.

George Montgomery ducks Vic McLaglen's left and crosses over a terrific right cross that staggers the 240-pound bully . . . left follows right as he closes in, for the kill but the cagey McLaglen kicks out his legs and Montgomery falls to the floor, groaning with pain!

It's one of the most realistic rough and tuble fights ever staged, highlighting the suspensive action in "China Girl," the new 20th Century-Fox hit at the Gayety. Montgomery, Lynn Barri and Gene Tierney are starred.

TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

The darkest period of American history, the strained days following the close of the Civil War, form the dramatic historical background for much of the tense action in M-G-M's "Tennessee Johnson," based on the life of Andrew Johnson.

The photoplay presents Van Heflin, Ruth Hussey and Lionel Barrymore in the stellar roles. Van Heflin has the role of Andrew Johnson, poor and illiterate tailor's apprentice, who rises to become President of the United States.

Early History Of Boone Co.

By A. M. Yealey

The early settlers of Boone County experienced difficulty in making change with currency. Of course the skins of raccoons and other animals were used as the first currency. As the tide of immigration flowed it brought in a small supply of silver coin. This was the Spanish milled dollar and did not relieve the small change shortage. The people then cut these dollars into four equal parts or quarters, worth twenty-five cents each. Oft times a dollar would be cut ten eights, this money was called Sharp Shins on account of its wedge shape. If the change was less than 12½ cents the shopkeeper generally gave pins, pencils, or needles as change.

A Mr. Barth who had a store in Cincinnati got exasperated at the wedge-shaped coins and sent to the mint at Philadelphia and had them ship him a barrel of copper coins. This made the other merchants mad and they almost mobbed him. All the merchants then gathered all their cut coins and barreled them up and sent them to the mint at Philadelphia and had them recoined.

The writer of this article has in his possession 20 large pennies and several 2c pieces, 50c dated 1820, 50c dated 1829, but there came a time in 1837 that all specie payments were suspended and all silver change disappeared and paper money, (shinplasters) in amounts less than one dollar were issued by cities, towns, villages, merchants and traders. There being so many different varieties and backed by different people the exigencies of the Civil War in 1862 demanded a substituted for the retired silver change and the government of the U. S. issued fractional currency. (The writer of this history has two of these and they are also called shinplasters.) This fractional currency was issued in March 1863 and on the back we find inscribed the following: "This note is exchangeable for United States Notes by the Assistant treasurer and designated depositories of the United States."

This act of the government gave this currency uniformity of value, freedom of circulation and a certainity of redemption of the larger National currency, the legal tender and National Bank notes.

FARMERS COOPERATE IN DIPPING SHEEP

Community cooperation paid dividends to four sheepmen in Mt. Zion, Washington county. Using a vat cooperatively built, they worked together in dipping 393 head of sheep and lambs at a cost of less than 4 cents per head. The sheep were dipped in nicotine sulfate under the direction of Farm Agent Troll Young. Farmers taking part were Edison Hays, Harvey Bodine, W. K. Hagan and Charlie Williams.

Feeding Hogs On Pasture

With the price of corn what it is, and the scarcity of protein supplement, it is very hard to realize a profit on feeding hogs in a dry lot, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent.

The protein necessary in a hog ration can be supplied by running them on good clover or alfalfa pasture. Healthy pigs given all the corn and good pasture they will take should return a reasonable amount of profit to the feeder at the present market price. The pig must have, in addition to the above ration, plenty water, salt and ground limestone.

In addition to the two pairs of shoes issued every American soldier on entering the service, three extra pairs must be available in reserve, and two more pairs in process of manufacture.

FARMERS COOPERATE IN DIPPING SHEEP

Community cooperation paid dividends to four sheepmen in Mt. Zion, Washington county. Using a vat cooperatively built, they worked together in dipping 393 head of sheep and lambs at a cost of less than 4 cents per head. The sheep were dipped in nicotine sulfate under the direction of Farm Agent Troll Young. Farmers taking part were Edison Hays, Harvey Bodine, W. K. Hagan and Charlie Williams.

Feeding Hogs On Pasture

With the price of corn what it is, and the scarcity of protein supplement, it is very hard to realize a profit on feeding hogs in a dry lot, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent.

The protein necessary in a hog ration can be supplied by running them on good clover or alfalfa pasture. Healthy pigs given all the corn and good pasture they will take should return a reasonable amount of profit to the feeder at the present market price. The pig must have, in addition to the above ration, plenty water, salt and ground limestone.

In addition to the two pairs of shoes issued every American soldier on entering the service, three extra pairs must be available in reserve, and two more pairs in process of manufacture.

FOR VICTORY BUY UNITED STATES WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

ESTABLISHED 1875

SERVE AND CONSERVE — WIN THE WAR — U of K

VOLUME 68 — BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1943 — NUMBER 3

FOUR-H FAIR DATE SET AUGUST 21ST

CASH PREMIUMS WILL BE PAID IN WAR BONDS AND STAMPS THIS YEAR, ACCORDING TO 4-H AND UTOPIA COUNCIL.

The eleventh annual Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Free Fair and county picnic will be held at the fair grounds, Saturday, August 21, according to the 4-H and Utopia Club Council.

All cash premiums this year will be paid in War Bonds and Stamps. Food for Victory will be the center of all exhibits. The program will be in keeping with the recommended government food exhibit recommendations. The home garden and home food supply will be a special feature.

The fair and county picnic has been planned after several months of careful consideration of problems involved. A large number of Utopia and older 4-H Club members and leaders who would be active in the program are now in military service or tied down to special war jobs. The food, drinks and novelty programs that have contributed much toward paying expenses are now most difficult to handle.

Despite all obstacles the 4-H and Utopia Club Council has decided it would be best for the war effort that the fair be held this year. The educational and recreational features all build for greater moral, understanding and desire for greater achievement.

This is our own county fair and picnic. Let us look forward to making the 1943 event the biggest and best on record.

Final Arrangements Being Made For Show Boat Minstrel, Here

Final arrangements are being made for the Show Boat Minstrel to be given by the Boone County Band at Burlington early in August according to Dean Bloss, director. Other performances will be held at Hebron and Florence Schools early in September.

GRAIN HARVESTING MACHINERY LISTED

FIVE COMBINES AVAILABLE FOR CUSTOM WORK—MANY GRAIN BINDERS AND FEW THRESHING MACHINES LISTED.

All grain and crop harvesting machinery that may be available for custom work in the county is being listed, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The lists are being secured through cooperation of neighborhood leaders and power machinery operators.

Five combines suitable for harvesting grain and seed crops are listed. They are owned by Parker Hollis, Burlington; R. H. Crisler farm in North Bend Bottoms; Melvin Moore and Renben Kirtley in East Bend; John Boh, of Hebron; and R. H. Garrison, of Burlington.

There are many grain binders and a few threshing machines over the county. A general list of these will be available in a few days.

The fact that a farmer may be listed as owning power machinery means in no way that he will be able to do custom work. However, it does offer an opportunity for neighbors who may need equipment to contact these parties and see if some kind of arrangements can be made.

The County Farm Labor Assistant hopes to be able to visit all harvesting machinery operators by the last of the week to get their terms and custom rates. Present conditions make it important that all feed and food crops possible be saved.

Lucian Bradford Host To Utopia Club

Lucian Bradford of Union was host to approximately 38 Utopia Club members at his home near Union last Thursday evening.

Russell Hunt, tobacco specialist from the college, addressed the members on the importance of tobacco as a cash crop in Kentucky. The income from the crop this year will represent the largest cash crop income for Kentucky farmers on record. Failure of farmers to treat their plant beds and to use disease resistant varieties has already caused considerable crop losses, according to Mr. Hunt.

The heavy rains this spring has depleted the soil of nitrogen and other plant foods. Side dressing the growing crop with a complete fertilizer and the priming of the tobacco leaves as they ripen were also recommended.

Mrs. A. W. Fullerton of Florence addressed the club on new problems in canning and stressed means of preventing spoilage resulting from new equipment available for canning purposes. The use of the home made food dehydrator was explained.

The next meeting of the club will be held on July 22nd at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore of near Hebron. Plans will be made for holding the Eleventh Annual Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Free Fair on August 21.

TRAIN DERAILED NEAR DEVON SUN.

SEVERAL FREIGHT CARS BELIEVED TO HAVE CONTAINED WAR MATERIALS LEAVE RAILS.

Between 15 and 20 freight cars were derailed late Sunday on the L. & N. Railroad near Devon when the cars left the rails on a curve, according to reports.

FBI agents and officials of the railroad are conducting an investigation in an attempt to learn whether sabotage was involved in the wreck. It was believed that some of the cars were carrying war material.

J. I. Linker, 48, Louisville, engineer on the locomotive suffered shoulder and rib injuries in the accident. His condition was reported as fair by attaches of St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Wreckage was cleared within a few hours by workmen of the railroad, it was announced, and service resumed.

Labor Notes

The Boone County Farm Bureau appealed this week to State Farm Machinery Rationing Committee for the allotment of two corn pickers and for pick-up hay balers for the county. Cooperation of the State and National Farm Bureaus were also requested in this work. These two important items of equipment for custom work are badly needed in the county.

Sheep shearing is expected to be completed. Those farmers owning sheep not sheared should notify the county agent's office immediately if they are unable to get help.

Hay harvest is beginning to get started on a busy season. Neighbors let's help one another in trying to get this big job done.

Small grain harvest will soon be under way. Be sure and contact your custom operators early in order to make sure your grain will be harvested.

Help, to date, received outside the county has been reported very satisfactory. There is a possibility that additional help may be secured. If you need full time help and willing to use help from eastern or northern Kentucky, file your application at the County Agent's office.

Blood Donors Asked To Meet At Court House July 2nd

Boone County residents who have volunteered to give a pint of blood at the Blood Bank in Cincinnati, are requested to meet at the court house in Burlington July 2 at 11:45 a. m., where transportation will be furnished to all desiring to visit the Blood Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richards, of Covington were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Smith, recently.

We can best express our patriotism this Independence Day by using our surplus funds to purchase U. S. War Bonds and Stamps.

Fish And Game Club Will Meet Thursday Night July Eighth

The Boone County Fish and Game Protective Association will hold their regular monthly meeting at the club house on Burlington-Idlewild Road, Thursday night July 8th, at 8:00 p. m.

Refreshments will be served by the committee, according to Russell Smith, president of the organization.

Naomi M. Rankin

Funeral services for Mrs. Naomi McCollum Rankin, of Nicholson, Kenton County were conducted Monday, June 28 at 2 p. m. from the residence. Burial was in Independence Cemetery, with Rev. R. F. Demolsey in charge.

Mrs. Rankin died Friday at her home following a long illness. She was the wife of the late E. B. Rankin and was from one of the pioneer families of Kenton County.

She is survived by two sons Oscar Rankin, Kenton County Treasurer, V. M. Rankin, Kenton County; 3 daughters, Mrs. Howard Conydon, Pysilanti, Mich., Mrs. John Hume and Mrs. Nell White, both of Kenton County.

Chambers & Grubbs, Walton funeral directors were in charge of arrangements.

Florence M. E. Church Revival Date Announced

A revival will be held July 5 through July 18th at the Florence Methodist Church, beginning each evening at 8:00 p. m. Rev. James W. Averith, of Jefferson St. Church Louisville, is pastor evangelist, and Rev. W. E. Garriott, pastor of Erlanger, is song leader.

All are invited to attend these services.

LATE POTATOES

Potatoes thrive best in a cool season, and so planting should be delayed as long as possible and still leave time for the tubers to mature, says a statement from the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

In northeastern Kentucky the planting should be about July 15 and in the southwestern section about August 1.

Soil moisture is a big factor in the success of the potato crop. Soil broken early enough to absorb considerable moisture from rains, and harrowed lightly from time to time to keep down weeds, provides a good condition for planting, and the water thus stored in the soil is often sufficient to make the crop. Planting in hard, dry soil is almost certain to result in failure. The Crest Cobbler variety is recommended.

Certified seed that has been kept in good condition in cold storage should be used. Potatoes from the early crop cannot be used as seed for the late crop. Seed should be treated with semesan and cut into blocky pieces of pullet-egg size, with at least one eye on each piece. A 3-8-7 fertilizer should be sown in the bottom of the planting furrow at the rate of one pound to 20 feet of row, and mixed with soil so that the seed will not come in contact with fertilizer. The pieces should be dropped about 13 inches apart in furrows 4 inches deep.

Level cultivation should be given to keep down weeds till the vines begin to spread. As soon as the potatoes are nicely up and about 4 inches tall a spray should be put on, using Bordeaux mixture and a poison such as magnesium or calcium arsenate at the rate of 2 pounds to 50 gallons of Bordeaux or 2 level tablespoons to 1 gallon. Two later sprays at intervals of two weeks are recommended. Many home gardeners will prefer to use the prepared Bordeaux obtainable from dealers. It should be diluted with water as directed on the package.

Bullittsville Club Will Sponsor Canning Demonstration July 8

The Bullittsville Homemakers will sponsor a canning demonstration at the home of Mrs. Albert Pfalzgraf on Thursday afternoon, July 8 at 2:30 p. m. All women of the community are invited to attend.

Enzweiler Farm Sold During Past Week

J. L. Sullivan and son-in-law Gene Jones purchased the Robert Enzweiler farm of 223 acres near Belleview, including Mr. Enzweiler's interest in all live stock, tools and crop. The transaction was completed last week. Mr. Flave Louden tenant on the farm, will continue on the farm until next March, when Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Jones will move to their new home.

This farm adjoins the Carl Cason farm which Mr. Sullivan's son, Earl, purchased last spring.

The sale was handled through A. B. Renaker.

LLOYD SOCIETY

The monthly all-day meeting of the Lloyd Memorial Society will be held at the Lloyd Home on Saturday, July 3rd. All members are urged to attend.

Constance Men Suffer Injuries In Wreck

Leo Resson, 32 and Charles Lawsing, 24, both of Constance, suffered minor cuts and bruises one day last week when their truck left the road and struck a tree after failing to negotiate a curve between Constance and Hebron.

The men were removed to St. Elizabeth Hospital, where they were treated and released.

The men were returning from work on the new Airport, near Hebron, where they are employed.

4-H Club Projects Are In Good Condition

The 4-H Club projects in Boone County are progressing according to schedule, according to O. D. Perkinson. Most of the projects in two communities have been visited and the work is going ahead in fine shape. Nearly every member having a garden project has reported a surplus of cabbage, green beans and onions. Many members are selling this surplus and are buying war stamps. The plans are to replant the ground for more vegetables to can.

The livestock and poultry projects are doing equally well. Many members have already started grooming their animals for the fair in August.

Daniel-Young

Miss Louise Daniel, daughter of Mr. Charles E. Daniel, South Newport, and Mr. Robert G. Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Young, of Union, Ky., were married Saturday evening at St. John Evangelical Church, Newport, with Rev. Harold Barkhau, pastor, performing the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Walter Schomaker, Newport, matron-of-honor, Miss Clara Bellamy, Newport, bridesmaid; Mr. Thompson Pyle, Cincinnati, best man; and Rev. Vernon Roecker, Cincinnati, Walter Schomaker, Charles Benzing, Southgate and Ed Storm, also of Southgate, ushers, comprised the bridal party.

COMPLETION OF SHEEP SHEARING

IN BOONE COUNTY EXPECTED BY SATURDAY—THIS YEAR ESTABLISHES RECORD FOR LATE SHEARING.

Sheep shearing in Boone County should be completed by Saturday of this week, according to the County Agent's office. This year establishes a record for late shearing in the county.

The late clipping is due to an acute labor shortage combined with the late spring that kept farmers hustling to get their crops planted. Commercial shearers were the salvation in most cases. Lebus Stephenson, of Walton, did a wonderful job of clipping approximately 550 sheep the past week. Roscoe Akin, Lamar Congleton and Melvin Kelly also helped the past week. Many farmers were forced to take time from their rushed farm work in order to shear their sheep, suffering from the hot weather.

It is hoped that all sheep will be sheared in time for wool delivery by the Boone County Wool Pool. A record clip is expected to be delivered through the pool this year.

Plan Demonstrations For Each Community

An effort is being made to arrange for a canning demonstration in each community of the county, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent.

The importance of following approved methods in canning can be illustrated by the following figures: Families in Boone County 3424; loss of one quart per family 3424 quarts loss; valued at 20c per quart $684.80 loss; 100 quarts personal budget, food for 34 people; 5 members in average family, 64 families.

Mrs. Moore further points to the fact that only A-1 canners lose one or less jars of food. This year it is important that all of these be saved.

Attend one of the demonstrations and learn "first hand" the most reliable methods. Below is canning demonstration schedule:

July 1—Taylorsport school 1:00 EWT.
July 2—Limaburg, Mrs. Fred Bennett's home, 1:00.
July 6—Hamilton School 2:30.
July 7—Walton colored church 7:00.
July 8—Idlewild creamery 2:30
July 9—Walton school 2:00
July 12—Hebron, Mrs. A. W. Rogers, 1:30.

Last Sunday a group of relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kirkpatrick to help celebrate his birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Walton, J. M. Beemon, Mrs. Ora Ross of Florence and Miss Rowena Kirkpatrick.

R. M. HALL CANDIDATE

FOR REPRESENTATIVE FROM FIFTY-FOURTH DISTRICT, COMPRISING BOONE AND GALLATIN COUNTIES.

R. M. "Coke" Hall, local manager of the Community Public Service Co., Walton, makes his formal announcement this week to the voters of Boone and Gallatin Counties for the office of Representative of the fifty-fourth district.

Mr. Hall needs no introduction to the people of Boone County, as he has served as head of the local office of the Community Public Service Company for several years, and has been outstanding in his efforts to give to the people here a better electrical service than most rural communities enjoy. He not only has made a success in his own field, but has always taken an interest in his county as a whole, and willing at all times to cooperate in any movement for the betterment of the people.

He received his education at the Williamstown High School, the University of Kentucky and the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. Business School. He has been connected with the Community Public Service Company for the last fourteen years and has served in the capacity as local manager at Owensville and Walton for eleven years.

Mr. Hall's statement to the people will appear in our next issue of The Recorder.

Mrs. Ethel M. Hill

Mrs. Ethel May Hill, Erlanger, native of Boone County passed Sunday at Deaconness Hospital, after an illness of several months. She was 42 years old.

She is survived by her husband, John P. Hill; a son, Edward M. Hill, Dayton, Ohio; a daughter, Miss Mary Lee Hill; five brothers, John D. and Thomas Masters, both of Boone County, John W. and Woodrow Masters, both of Kenton County and Clarence Masters, Homestead, Pa.; and four sisters, Mrs. Roy Gaines, Cincinnati, Mrs. Elmer Kautz, Covington, Mrs. Herman Howard, Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Miss Henrietta Masters, Boone County.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday at 2:00 p. m. from the Bullittsville Christian Church. Burial was in Petersburg Cemetery.

BOONE COUNTY 4-H'ERS INCLUDED

IN WAR-TIME CONFERENCE AT CAMP BINGHAM, JULY 19-22—SPRING RALLY WINNERS GET FREE TRIP.

Announcement has just been received stating that Boone County 4-H Club members are to be included in the District War-time Conference at Camp Bingham, July 19 to 22, according to Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent.

The county 4-H and Utopia Council voted at a meeting May 26 that winners of contests at the Spring Rally should be given scholarships to the district conferences in lieu of the annual Junior Week which has been set aside for the duration of the war. The council also stated that other 4-H members in good standing should be allowed to attend at their own expense if they so desire. Those who are not contest winners should contact Mrs. Moore, or the County Agents, H. R. Forkner or O. D. Perkinson for further information and for report blanks.

It is estimated that the cost will be approximately $1 per member to cover transportation and conference fee.

Contest winners who will receive scholarships are: Wanda Pennington, New Haven, Corrine Walton, Burlington; Bettye Jean Forkner, Burlington; Helen Rogers, Hebron; Martha Pfalzgraf, Hebron; Bernice Sebree, Florence; Billie Acree, Hamilton; Wilbur Ryle, Jr., Grant; Lafe Miller, Grant; David King, Verona; Barney Hogan, Hebron.

GIVE THEM TOOLS

Two war agencies, the Office of Defense Transportation and the Office of War Information have lately warned that the railroads are being driven to the limit, and that to carry the loads of the future they must be supplied with necessary equipment.

Director J. B. Eastman of the ODT says: "One of the best ways to get the most out of transportation equipment is to keep it going, avoid delays, and increase the amount of work done per unit of time. In the dozen years which followed the last World War, the railroads spent several billions of dollars in the improvement of their roadbeds, tracks and terminal facilities. They are getting the benefit of that expenditure now."

If they are to continue rolling without delay, their equipment must be maintained and replaced as necessity requires.

The Office of War Information observes that the battle of transportation in the United States is now being won, and the war and necessary civilian transportation load is being carried. "The victories, however, are not necessarily permanent," says OWI. "Railroad . . . equipment and tank cars are wearing out. Few replacements are being made."

The railroads have been highly praised from all quarters for the job they have done. But praise alone won't haul oil to the East Coast. Praise won't take the place of steel rails or of locomotives. Praise alone won't move freight and troops. Railroad managements will appreciate praise more after the job is done. Right now they are like firemen working against time to rescue the occupants of a burning building. They need the tools of their trade.

ANOTHER SNEAK ATTACK

The well planned closing of the nation's coal mines while United Mine Workers' demands were in process of negotiation, is on a par with the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Words cannot express the contempt of the American people for individuals who are parties to such treachery, and who refuse to work while our soldiers die.

Let us hope that Congress will at last assert its authority and enact legislation providing controls for organized mutiny which endangers public safety for personal gain.

If the enemy had bombed our coal mines, the work stoppage would not have been as complete as when the United Mine Workers deserted their posts. Therefore their action is the equivalent of an enemy attack on this nation.

WILL NOT FORGET

It is often said that war is harder for those who remain behind than for those who go. Millions are now experiencing the sleepless nights, the ceaseless worry of remaining at home while others go to war. No small source of concern over loved ones in the service is the fear that they may not receive proper medical care. This can be dispensed with. The men in military service are receiving the best that medical science can give them.

In reviewing the military medical record of the first year after Pearl Harbor, the American Medical Journal says: "During the year the only serious incident from a medical point of view was the jaundice associated with inoculation against yellow fever. The first week of February, 1943, found a typical pneumonia and meningitis most prominent of the infectious diseases but even these were scattering with a few cases here and there and only a score or slightly more of cases of either in the few camps seriously affected. . . Since January, 1941, and up to now excluding battle casualties, the death rate has been the lowest in the history of our Army. During World War I, 1 patient of each 3 with meningitis died; now only 1 in 20 dies. Prompt diagnosis, efficient care and sulfonamides have made the difference."

The American public owes a debt of gratitude to the medical men that it will never be able to fully repay. The countless thousands of men who will return after the war, thanks to the skill of doctors serving in the front lines, will not forget that debt.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 4

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

A PEOPLE IN DISTEESS

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 1:6-14; 2:23-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—They cried, and their cry came up unto God by reason of the bondage.—Exodus 2:23.

Today is Independence Day. Yet much of the world is in bondage, and the rest of it in a struggle to prevent freedom from perishing from the earth.

Our lesson too is about a nation in bondage, but we learn from it that there is a way to be free. Even so we declare the way of personal liberty which is open and free.

The Lord Jesus Christ opened it at Calvary's tree and anyone who is still the bond slave of Satan may make this a great and glorious Independence Day by now declaring his faith in the Deliverer of our souls.

We begin today a series of lessons in the book of Exodus which reveal the high and mighty hand of God working on behalf of His people.

The family of Jacob—or, as the Bible calls them, the children of Israel—prospered in Egypt particularly as long as Joseph and the rulers who remembered him were alive. But they soon learned one of life's bitter lessons, that—

I. Prosperity Is Not Always a Blessing (1:6-11).

The Hebrews were a peaceful, law-abiding people. They were God's chosen people, and as He blessed them they prospered, and thus innocently they brought upon themselves the hatred of the suspicious Egyptians.

Prosperity is never an unmixed blessing. We as a nation know that to be true. Not only does it lead to a certain softening of the sinews, but all too often it results in a weakening of the moral fiber, which makes man easy prey to the attack of the enemy of our souls.

Is it not strange, then, that we should—even in times of all-out warfare—be so eager to chase the dollar that we are willing to neglect our children, forget church, live unnatural lives, just that we may make more and more money?

The Egyptians had, humanly speaking, reason to fear this great nation which was growing up in their midst. The new rulers did not know Joseph and had forgotten the spirit in which he had brought his family into the land. The leaders of the Egyptians therefore made plans which appealed to their brilliant leaders as politic and wise. But they reckoned without God, and the burdens and afflictions they placed on the Israelites only served to bring further blessing.

So Israel learned a lesson which our present sorry world can profit by, that—

II. Persecution Is Not Always a Burden (vv. 12-14).

The people of Israel did not appreciate it—but the bitterness of their bondage was a blessing in disguise. Note that—

1. It Kept Them Separate as a People. Affliction often serves to keep God's people separated from the world. It is doing so today.

2. It Disciplined Them and Prepared Them for the Hardships of Their Wilderness Journey. We too do well to remember that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," and that if we are properly "exercised" thereby, our sorrows may yield rich fruit in our lives.

3. It Threw Them Back upon God. Many are the saints of God who have found that the fiery trial, the burden so hard to understand, or some affliction of their body, has caused them to bring their burden to the Lord. We have traveled far on the road of faith when we have reached the place where we learn that "man's extremity is God's opportunity."

They had only one place to turn. They were hemmed in on every side, but, as ever, they found that the way up no man can close. They called on their God.

III. Prayer Always Brings Deliverance (2:23-25).

Does God really know when His people suffer? Does He really care? Yes, He does. "They cried," and "God heard" and "remembered." That's all we need to know. The groaning of His people had already stirred God's gracious and tender heart. But He waited to hear their cry before He answered. Such is the law of prayer. May we not forget it. Far too often we turn to everyone and everything else, and finally, in desperation, to God. Why not turn to Him first?

Does God hear and answer prayer? Yes, but remember that real prayer is the cry of faith coming from the heart of an obedient child. God may answer other prayers, but He always answers such a prayer.

His answer may not be in accord with our opinion of what it should be, for His wisdom is infinite. He knows better than we what the answer should be. Let us trust the Judge of all the earth to do right (Gen. 18:25).

REGISTERED HOGS BRING BIG PRICE

Recent sales of Henderson county, Ky., registered hogs in nine states indicate the regard swine breeders have for purebred animals produced in that county. They are bringing attractive prices too, says Farm Agent H. R. Jackson. Hoffman and Overfield received $150 for a boar. Elliott Cates sold a boar for $200; another produced on his farm, but sold at a second auction, realized $460 for its owner. Within the past few weeks, approximately 75 gilts have been sold at prices ranging from $75 to $125 each.

ROBERTS STRESSES VALUE OF ALFALFA

By George Roberts
Kentucky Experiment Station

Farmers should plan now for production in 1944-45. Dairy products will be highly important throughout the war and following the war. Alfalfa will provide more effective forage per acre and per unit of labor than any other forage crop. All farmers who have any land adapted to alfalfa should give serious consideration to growing this crop. Well-drained soil is required and it must contain plenty of lime, phosphate and potash, and if not present naturally they must be applied. If the land is rather poor, it can be prepared for alfalfa by growing sweet clover first and plowing it under and seeding alfalfa. Sweet clover could be sown early in the spring and turned under in August and seeded to alfalfa.

Sowing alfalfa and bluegrass together is an excellent way to get a bluegrass sod. While harvesting the alfalfa for three or four years a good bluegrass sod usually develops.

Give consideration to seeding alfalfa this summer and next spring. Detailed information on growing and handling the crop may be obtained from county agents or by addressing the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics at Lexington

CHICKENS PAY WELL FOR 4-H CLUB BOY

On his first brood of 300 chickens, Johnnie Green Pace of the Salem 4-H club in Livingston county made a profit of $62 over all expenses, including the cost of building a brick brooder. He now has about 100 month-old chicks which he will develop for egg production.

KENTUCKY LAMBS WIN AT TRI-STATE SHOW

Kentucky lambs won 10 of the 15 highest awards at a tri-state 4-H club lamb show at Evansville, Ind. Fielding Williams of Henderson county won the grand championship on a lamb that sold for 95 cents a pound, and James Cole of Union county won the reserve championship. His lamb sold for 35 cents a pound.

Top lambs in the show sold for 23 to 25 cents a pound; choice lambs, $17.25 a hundred; good lambs, $16.75, and common lambs, $14. One hundred and eighty-nine lambs were exhibited by 4-H club boys from Henderson, Union, Ohio, Webster, McLean and Hopkins counties in Kentucky, and several hundred more came from Indiana and Illinois.

COOP PROFITS BUY TRACTOR, COMBINE

With profits from crushing and distributing limestone, the Livingston County Soil Improvement Association in Kentucky purchased a tractor and combine harvester. The machine will be used to harvest soybeans, small grains, grass and clover seeds. Nearly 500 acres of soybeans in Livingston county were not harvested last year, due to the lack of equipment. This amount of beans would have more than paid for a combine harvester, it is said.

A PROLIFIC EWE

A ewe owned by P. R. Moran in Adair county, Ky., produced nearly $75 worth of lambs and wool in two seasons. She raised five lambs which sold for $68.43 and two crops of wool that brought $5.88.

KENTUCKY GARDENS CALLED BEST EVER

That this will be one of the best garden years ever experienced in much of Kentucky is indicated by reports reaching the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Despite the late season and frequent rains, gardens generally are good.

Typical is the report of Farm Agent John Bach of Whitley county, "Gardens look fine although the season is late. Gardens are larger, there is a greater variety of vegetables planted and the gardens are better taken care of than usual. Corbin has as its slogan, 'No vacant lots in Corbin, and every lot a victory garden.'"

In Hopkins county it is estimated that the number of gardens has been tripled this year. Rockcastle county gardens are said to be "far bigger and better than usual," and Clinton county reports having larger gardens. In Scott county, both city and rural gardeners are said to be "taking hold of gardening in fine shape."

All available garden land is under cultivation in Harlan county, according to Home Agent Roxie C. Perkins. She reports that a greater variety of vegetables are being grown in all gardens of the county this year, with continuous planting planned to supply fresh, tender products.

Approximately 35,000 of Kentucky's 4-H club members are growing gardens for themselves, or assisting with family plots. Pike county has 1,679 members so enrolled. Farm Agent O. M. Shelby of Crittenden county relates that on a tour of 4-H club gardens, he found them to be from 75 to 100 percent larger than a year ago and unusually free of weeds. "Both club members and adult gardeners are aware of the danger of a possible food shortage and plan to make full use of their canning and drying facilities," notes Mr. Shelby.

HOMEMAKERS WOULD SAVE LABOR, TIME

Members of homemakers' clubs in Fleming county are trying to do their regular jobs in an easier way during these busy days. In a window exhibit in Flemingsburg, they showed articles they had made to save time, energy and labor. Included were cleaning kits, dustless dust cloths, garden kits, bins and shelves for kitchen cabinets, floor wax and a rug and upholstered chair cleaned the easy way, with soapsuds. Posters explaining the exhibit, with directions for making each article, were displayed also. The exhibit followed a series of lessons on home management, given by Miss Ida C. Hagman of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

FARMERS LIKE VETCH

Farmers in Harlan county have had unusual success with vetch as a cover crop, according to Farm Agent Gray H. Williams. Mrs. Betty Fee turned under six acres of vetch and rye grass that was waist deep, the rye having been smothered with the luxuriant growth of vetch. Lee Irvin turned under two acres of vetch that was three feet long. Wiley Holmes turned under four acres that had to be disked before it could be turned.

PRESSURE COOKER HAS NEW FEATURES

The first consignment of 20 victory pressure cookers to be received in Kentucky have been placed in the hands of home economists who will use them in teaching improved methods of food conservation. This new piece of canning equipment differs considerably from earlier pressure cookers. In place of cast aluminum, the new container is made of enamel, topped with a pressed tin steel lid. The canner is comparatively light in weight. Although it has a simplified safety valve and pressure gauge, it has a number of features which will require careful study by the user, warned Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work. Seven quart jars may be processed at once.

With a national allotment of 275,000 pressure cookers, it is thought Kentucky will get between 2,500 and 3,000. Word received from manufacturers indicates that pressure cookers for home use will be in local stores early in July.

4-H GIRL COOKS "WILL HELP KEEP RURAL U. S. STRONG FOR VICTORY"

"We'll help keep rural America strong!" That enthusiastic assurance comes from thousands of 4-H Club girls throughout the nation who are contributing immeasurably to victory by planning and serving nutritious, balanced meals to safeguard their families' health.

Many of the girls are participating in the current National 4-H Food Preparation activity, among whose wartime objectives are the saving of food and utilizing its nutritional values; effecting a wise selection of purchased foodstuffs through a study of costs and rationing, and making the greatest possible use of home-grown products.

Outstanding records of achievement in this activity will be recognized through awards provided by Servel home economics department which include medals, National 4-H Club Congress trips, and $200 college scholarships to county, State and national winners, respectively. The activity is being conducted, along with other wartime projects of production and conservation, under the direction of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, State Agricultural Colleges and County Extension Agents.

Kentucky's State champion in this activity last year was Ann Carrigan of Hickman, Fulton County.

SWEET CORN

If space is available, the Victory Gardener should try sweet corn, because it is superior in quality to field variety and serves an important place in the winter diet, either canned or dried.

Plantings may be made till July 15. The variety recommended is Golden Cross Bantam. Usually the well known Golden Batam should be avoided because it is subject to disease.

The seed may be planted in a continuous row, spacing the plants 15 inches apart in rows 3 feet apart. The average yield for a 100 foot row is 48 ears.

CANNED MILK RATIONING JUSTIFIES WARNING

In a letter to the governors of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut, and to leading state and Federal officials, Fred H. Sexauer, president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, again warns of falling milk production. In the New York milk shed, as an example, during the first 15 days of May, it was 8 per cent less than for the corresponding period in 1942.

Recent closing of 1,500 dairies and loss of 14,280 head in the cow population, in that area alone, means a drop, in terms of whole milk powder, of 14,595,000 pounds per month.

Mr. Sexauer says: "The nation is about to pay dearly for the unsound price and regulatory policies applied against the dairy industry for the past two years. The cost will be in terms of inadequate supplies of dairy products. There is a constant barrage of propaganda that the farmers' prices are already too high and that they, in asking reasonable prices, are responsible for inflationary spiral. Threats of subsidies, roll backs on dairy products, seizure of farm crops, should immediately cease. Assurances should be given of prices that will cover increased and increasing cost of labor, feed, supplies, taxes, etc.

"The solving of this impending shortage of dairy products will need the combined efforts of leaders upon whose shoulders rests the welfare of the people of this country."

BIG RECORDS MADE BY KENTUCKY COWS

Two registered Holstein-Friesian cows in the dairy herd of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, have recently completed official production records of more than 475 pounds of butterfate, The Holstein-Friesian Association of America announces.

The higher producer of the two is Enchantress Segis with a record of 515 pounds of butterfat and 12,464 pounds of milk. This is nearly three times the production of the average dairy cow in this nation. The record was made in 365 days on twice-a-day milking and at the age of years 3 months.

The other high producer was Guybelle Lyons with 477 pounds of butterfat and 14,445 pounds of milk, made in 305 days on twice a day milking at the age of 5 years 6 months.

Testing was supervised by the University of Kentucky in cooperation with The Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH RATIONED

Giving pointers on "how to be happy though rationed," Dr. Henry C. Sherman of the United States Department of Agriculture says, "Let us increase local production and consumption of those protective foods which are too perishable for shipment, such as fruits, vegetables, and milk with or without eggs." Dr. Sherman, who is chief of the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, adds, "We can not know at present whether in future larger amounts of these relatively local and perishable foods will be wanted for drying and shipment; but we do know definitely that until they are wanted, it is good nutritional science and good citizenship for us to use them freely in place of the sugar, fat and meat that we are sending overseas."

FARMERS RECEIVE 26 CENTS PER POUND FOR HEMP FIBER

M. D. Royse, Chairman of the Kentucky State Agricultural Adjustment Agency and USDA War Board announced today that the Commodity Credit Corporation has purchased from Kentucky growers the 1942 production of hemp fiber broken by hand or with small machines.

Kentucky hemp farmers received 26 cents a pound for Grade 3-Line, 23 cents for Grade B-Line, 17 cents for Grade A-Tow and 15 cents for Grade B-Tow. The quantity purchased was estimated at 1,500,000 pounds.

It was also announced that negotiations are under way for the purchase of milled hemp fiber from the 1942 Kentucky crop, totaling about 1,300,000 pounds.

The fiber purchased in Kentucky will be used for experimental purposes, and to supplement stocks which will be acquired under the 1943 CCC hemp program. This program provides for the production of 50,000 acres of hemp seed in Kentucky as well as for 6,000 acres of hand broken hemp fiber.

Both the hempseed and hemp straw, which will be bought by Commodity Credit Corporation will be produced this year under contract with the Government. April 15 is the deadline for farmers to sign at the county AAA office for the production of hemp fiber.

Hemp fiber is needed for the manufacture of marine, industrial and form cordage to replace supplies of Manila hemp, and sisal formerly imported from the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies.

Fight! Work! and Save!

A War Message on WAR BONDS from the President of the United States

"... The American people know that if we would raise the billions which we now need to pay for the war and at the same time prevent a disastrous rise in the cost of living, we shall have to double and more than double the scale of our savings.

"Every dime and dollar not vitally needed for absolute necessities should go into WAR BONDS and STAMPS to add to the striking power of our armed forces.

"If these purchases are to have a material effect in restraining price increases they must be made out of current income.

"In almost every individual case they should be big enough to mean rigid self-denial, a substantial reduction for most of us in the scale of expenditure that is comfortable and easy for us.

"We cannot fight this war, we cannot exert our maximum effort, on a spend-as-usual basis.

"We cannot have all we want if our soldiers and sailors are to have all they need."

.... Franklin D. Roosevelt

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our wife and mother Della Goodridge Siekman, who passed away July 2, 1940.
Three years have passed and gone,
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for her who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.

—Sadly missed by her husband and children.

* * *

The following poem was composed by a sailor stationed on Guadalcanal with Everett E Cress, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Cress, of Burlington. The poem follows:

Guadalcanal

An isle of green and bright moon beam,
A land of mountains and trees,
A quivering rock in an earthquake shock
And a tremor of war's unease.

We live to work and we may not shirk
From a job that must be done;
To the bullets whine o'er the dozers grind
And the men go mad from the sun.

A river of blood that runs in a flood
Is the stream of death we span,
And a dress lays high and a sand bar dry
That once had the shape of man.

They fight like hell and death's loud knell
Is the scream of a one fifty-five;
We swing our ax without time to relax
And hope to be left alive.

The drone of a plane is the moon's last wane
And we wake to the siren's wail,
A bright searchlight in the black of night
And the bomber shows ghostly and pale.

The Jap now runs and the ack-ack guns
Add a thousand stars in the sky;
A shriek of sound as the bombs rain down
And a murmur of murder goes by.

A close, loud crash and a blinding flash,
A whisper from lip to lip;
A twitter of birds as we pass the word,
"They hit the bomber strip."

We drill and we blast and stand aghast
As a shell explodes by the stow;
We hit the dirt and one man's hurt
By our friend Mountain Joe.

It whistles, it hums as over it comes
And it's the end of the bridge;
It could have been worse, but you
"That son a gun on the ridge."
hear them curse

Now a blinding flash and a fox hole dash
With a fury the big guns blast,
A night dead black, a spiteful crack
A Japanese cruiser off shore.

The silent sound of a hole in the ground
Is heard as brave men give
A last farewell to a guy who was swell
And the shovels thud as they leave.

Aboard a ship for a happy trip
And someone asks for a pal;
A heavy sigh and a tear in the eye
We left him at Guadalcanal.
But the job is done and the Jap has run,
We're proud of what we made,
We smile with pride, step out with a stride
In spite of the price we paid.

For we know our help made the devil's whelp,
Fall back from the fight and run;
We've done our part with a happy heart,
With God, America has won.

IN MEMORIAM

Of Harvey Lee Tanner, who passed away July 5, 1940.
The spring months bring sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
When evening shadows are falling
And I sit in quiet, alone,
To my heart comes a longing,
If only he could come home.
Friends may think that I have forgotten
When at times they see me smile,
But little they know the heartaches,
My smile hides all the while.

Hon. Hubert Meredith

Attorney General of Kentucky, will address the voters of Boone County in the Circuit Court room at Burlington on

MONDAY, JULY 5th 2 P.M. - EWT Co. Court Day

In the interest of the candidacy of the Honorable Ben Kilgore, the farmer's friend and people's choice, for the democratic nomination for Governor in the August primary election.

While he is not and will not be a candidate for any office, either elective or appointive, he is neverthless profoundly interested in having at the head of our State government a man who not only possesses to an eminent degree the necessary qualifications, but has the honesty and courage to administer the office in the interest of all the people. This will be the first time the voters of Boone County have had an opportunity to hear their distinguished Attorney General discuss matters of public interest or advocate the nomination and election of any candidate for public office. His interest in the matter is the same as theirs. He is a forceful as well as an entertaining and convincing public speaker. Every voter in Boone County regardless of who is his present choice for the nomination is urged to take advantage of this opportunity to hear the reasons why Attorney General Meredith is supporting Mr. Kilgour in this campaign and urging other democrats to do likewise. Be sure to come and hear as well as meet him.

—KILGORE STATE CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Town And Farm In Wartime

Ration Reminder

Gasoline—"A" Book coupons No. 6, good for four gallons each, outside the eastern shortage area.

Sugar—Coupon No. 13 good for 5 lbs. through August 15. Coupons No. 15 and 16 are good through October 31 for 5 lbs. each for home canning purposes. Housewives may apply to their local ration boards for more if necessary.

COFFEE—Stamp No. 24 (1 lb.) is good through June 30. Stamp 21 becomes valid for one pound July 1 and expires July 21.

Fuel Oil—Period 5 coupons valid in all zones until September 30.

Shoes—Stamp No. 18 (1 pair) is valid through October 31.

Meats, etc.—Red Stamps K, L, M, continue good through July 7. Blue Stamps N, P, and Q will be valid from July 1 to August 7, inclusive.

What To Write Soldiers

"The soldier wants the intimate details of life back home," says Chaplain (Major) Alvie L. McKnight of Cleveland, Miss., who has just returned to the U. S. after five months of duty on Guadalcanal. "That the girl who has taken a war plant job, or that the couple across the street have had a baby may make your letter read like a personal column in a small-town weekly newspaper. But that's what he wants. By all means, don't tell the soldier about your troubles. He has enough of his own. Domestic troubles affect the morale of the soldier at front more than anything else. Something to live for and go back to is what keeps a soldier going. It is what gives a man fight. Home life is everything to the man at the front."

Farmers To Get Tools

More than 50 hard-to-get items needed on farms will be provided by a WPB order to manufacturers and wholesalers to set aside specific quantities. This action puts into effect an emergency program worked out under WPB's Office of Civilian Requirements to make available at retail outlets serving farmers, supplies needed to increase food production. The list includes such items as auger bits, batteries, chains, chisels, drills, grain scoops, grease guns, harness, hoes, fractional horsepower motors, pails and tubs, pipe fittings, pliers, screw drivers, shovels, tire pumps, valves, and wrenches.

Average Income Up, But—

In July, 1940, the average American had an income of about $47.92. Military expenditures in that month amount to approximately $1.50 per person. In April of this year, income per capita was 1.8 times what it was in the middle of 1940—$85.03, but if the average American had been asked to pay April's war expense on the spot, they would have taken $53.52 of his new $85.03 income.

$1.00 Apiece For Poor Tires

One dollar apiece is the maximum price that OPA has set for low-quality used passenger car tires which now are permitted for the first time. Maximum additions to this price are provided when tires are given emergency repairs before being sold.

Jap Prisoners Die

More than 300 U. S. war casualties are the result of unhealthful conditions in Japanese prison camps, according to messages received through the international Red Cross from Japan. Disease is stated in each case as the cause of death. Malaria, diphtheria, dysentery, and pneumonia are the major causes and some cases of beri-beri are reported.

Avoid Fuel Shortages

Fuel shortages can be avoided, says a recent OWI report, only if —(1) large consumers of fuel oil, those using more than 10,000 gallons a year, convert their oil burners to coal burners now; (2) both home and industrial users of bituminous coal order supplies now; (3) householders place orders for insulation, weather stripping, storm windows, etc., immediately.

Soldiers' Dependents Get Checks

Family allowances and voluntary allotments-of-pay are now in force for about four and a half million soldiers who have more than seven and one-half million dependents, the War Department has announced. More than 20 million family allowance and allotment-of-pay checks have been mailed to the wives, children, and other dependents and relatives of army men in one year.

100,000 Dehydrators

A plan for making 100,000 domestic food dehydrators before September 1 has been approved by WPB. These dehydrators are urgently needed, says the War Food Administration, in time to preserve farm and victory garden fruits and vegetables. A home food dehydrator removes moisture from raw food, thereby preserving its flavor and food value for later use.

Alfalfa Hay Under Control

Alfalfa hay was brought under price control by OPA recently in Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, and New Mexico and in El Paso and Hudspeth counties in Texas at the levels established last February for California, Oregon, and Washington. This is intended to reduce the price to the farmer in the areas now brought under control for the first time. With few exceptions the maximum price is $20 a ton, loose on the farm, ready to load.

Baby Carriage Quota Decreased

Baby carriages to be made in the current quarter have been decreased to 289,369, compared to the original schedule of 317,777. However, strollers, walkers, and sulkies have been increased from 163,500 to 233,500. The demand for baby carriages in 1943 is expected to be 900,000.

Prosecute Gas Ration Violators

Criminal prosecutions for violation of gasoline rationing regulations instituted by OPA through April 30, 1943 totaled 509. Ninety-three cases involved operators of gasoline stations. The remaining 416 were actions against individuals ranging from private automobile owners and filling station attendants to criminal "rings" engaged in systematic theft and sale of stolen gasoline ration books and coupons.

Loans Insured by FHA

More than $6,800,000,000 in loans by private lending institutions financing the construction, purchase, or repair of approximately 5,400,000 homes, have been insured by the Federal Housing Administration since its establishment on June 27, 1934, it was announced as the FHA marked its ninth anniversary. About one-half of the loans have been insured since the start of the war production program in the summer of 1940.

Living Costs Rise

A rise of 1.7 percent in food prices increased the total cost of living for non-rural workers by 0.8 percent in the month ended May 15, nevertheless, the cost of items making up nearly 60 percent of the family budget remained practically unchanged. This increase of 0.8 percent compares with a rise of 1.5 per cent in the month ending March 15 and 1.1 percent in the month ending April 15.

Cigarette Brands To Stay

Any rumors that OPA plans to reduce or eliminate cigarette brands or brand names, or to provide for only one cigarette, "are absolutely baseless," Price Administrator Prentis M. Brown declared recently.

WOULD PLAN NOW FOR NEXT YEAR'S CROPS

By George Roberts

Kentucky Experiment Station

The task of producing the necessary food in 1944 may be even more difficult than for this year. Farmers should therefore be looking forward and making every preparation possible for meeting the demand. The writer is aware of the difficulties under which farmers are laboring, and knows that there are many helpful practices which will have to be neglected because of shortages of labor, machinery, and materials. However, attention is called to some of these helpful practices, with the hope that it may encourage their use.

All manure and crop residues should be carefully saved. The manure for a year from 1,000 pounds of livestock will be worth $25 to $50 at the prices likely to prevail for crops. More than half the fertilizing value of manure is in the liquid part and should be saved by using sufficient bedding to absorb it. If sufficient straw is not available for bedding, weeds and wild grass could be cut before seeds mature, and cured and used for this purpose. Corn should be cut, and the stover used for its feeding value, and the stalks allowed to accumulate along with the manure. The manure should be prevented from heating by accumulating in the stall under tramping or by proper spreading, shed storage, or stacking outside.

Dung hills dropped on pastures should be broken up and spread from time to time by the use of some form of drag. This should be done both where the land is to remain in pasture and where it is to be broken for crops.

Every effort should be made to seed all cultivated land to cover crops. Winter grain and vetch are ideal for plowing under for a crop next year. If one has some poor idle land, it could be greatly improved for next year's crops by breaking this summer and seeding this mixture. The cover crop should be fertilized unless it follows a crop that has had liberal broadcast fertilization with high-phosphate fertilizer. The fertilizer used for the cover crop will be available to the crop following. The cheapest way to get nitrogen is to fertilize liberally a legume crop to be turned under. Crimson clover also is a good winter legume if it can be seeded early enough. The range of seeding dates for various parts of the state is from Aug. 5 to Sept. 1 when seeded alone, and from Aug. 20 to Sept. 20 when seeded with small grain or Italian ryegrass. All seeding of winter cover crops on sloping land should be on the contour.

LOOKING FORWARD IN ADAIR COUNTY

How farmers in Adair county, Kentucky, are pushing to the front is told weekly by County Agent R. B. Ranukin. Here's one of his weekly reports, much condensed: Rollin Willis has a good crop of barley, free from smut, due to treating the seed before sowing last fall. Last year's crop was full of smut. A. W. Paxton and J. D. Lowe are among those who seeded alfalfa this spring and got good stands. Sam Barbee has alfalfa five years old that is producing better than ever. Guy Farris' Balbo rye has been left for seed, after being pastured heavily. Allen Stephens bought 12 shoats that averaged 100 pounds, and took them to market 62 days later at an average weight of 232 pounds. L. G. Keltner has 26 good lambs from 16 ewes. Joe Henson raised 100 chicks out of 102 started. O. E. Buster's vetch, sowed last August, has vines five feet long.

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE
814-816 Madison, Covington

The Surgical Shoe, designed after exhaustive studies of the many factors responsible for "foot trouble," achieves a long-sought objective in affording proper support and scientific body weight distribution within the shoe. Built on a last which closely approximates configuration of the normal foot, it is not a "corrective shoe" in the othopedic sense of the word.

It's primary purpose is to maintain the foot comfortably in proper position, thus overcoming or avoiding ankle pronation and the accompanying weakness or sagging of the longitudinal arch.

By properly distributing body weight over the foot surface, this unique shoe relieves excessive strain on the first two metatarsals and transfers weight bearing to the fourth and fifth metatarsals and to the outer half of the heel.

Thus excessive stress and tension on ligaments and articular surfaces are reduced, leading to relief of pain, fatigue, and weakness.—Adv.

SILK AND NYLON HOSIERY

Women have one important war job in the salvage program in which men have to take a back seat. Men just can't do this job because only a woman knows when the last gasp of life has gone out of her silk and nylon hosiery. When that dying gasp has been spent, women know that if they give their old stockings to the Government for powder bags and other military uses, they are doing their part.

Old silk stockings are used principally to make powder bags, while discarded nylon has innumerable uses, including the making of parachutes for our air-borne invaders of enemy held territories.

One might wonder how the different types of material collected are segregated, but chemists have made this one of the easier steps in putting old silk and nylon back to work. All the hosiery undergoes a special processing which makes it simple to sort the different types of material. All are put through a special dye bath which enables silk and nylon salvagers to tell which is silk and which is nylon, and just what part of the stocking is unwanted rayon or cotton.

All that is silk is then put thru a process by which every thread is reclaimed. Needless to say, these are not respun into the fine gossamer sheers and service weights that once adorned women. Instead they turn up as sturdy powder bags used by the Army and Navy in their big guns. The reason for using silk instead of some other yearn is that it leaves no burning particles in the gun barrel which might prematurely set off another charge placed in the gun.

Nylon stocking play an entirely different role in the war, being used largely to make strong parachutes worn by our paratroopers to bring them safely to earth. Parachutes are the only lifeline that will allow our bomber crews to drift to safety from planes put out of commission by the enemy. Nylon, because of its strength, lightness, elasticity, and durability, is used for parachute tapes, shroud lines, harness webbings, belting, etc. It is woven into ropes for glider take-offs and to two gliders carrying supplies and troops.

The types of hosiery wanted by the Government are all silk, all nylon, mixtures of silk and nylon, mixtures of milk and rayon, mixtures of silk and cotton, mixtures of nylon and rayon, or nylon and cotton. Runs, snags, or holes do not matter—the processing makes full reclamation of silk and nylon content possible.

The question is often asked whether the government wants other silk garments, and the answer is no. The threads in these are usually intricately woven and often of blended materials. This makes it impossible to separate the silk and nylon from the other materials.

All women are asked to leave their washed hose in the stocking salvage depots located in retail stores selling hosiery. They do not have to wait until they have a sizeable collection before taking discarded stocking to these depots. If one is ruined, and the second is still wearable, they should take the one to the hosiery collection box—washing it first—and match up the second until that, too, is ready to join its mate and get into the war.

Five hundred and forty million pairs of silk and nylon hose were manufactured in the last year prior to government restriction of production. Most of these hose are still to be turned into the war effort when they become worn out.

THE GARDEN

LATE CABBAGE

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

For many gardeners, growing late cabbage is a lost art, and the reason often given is that "the seasons are changing." But, there are at least three causes for the difficulty in growing late cabbage. As all of them are remediable, and as food will be at a premium next winter, even the not-so-venturesome gardeners may wish to try.

There is, of course, the dry weather during July and August, often lasting to frost. Nothing can be done about the weather, but gardeners may take a leaf from the book of the late potato growers, who take extra pains to conserve the early moisture, and sometimes have made a crop when no rain fell after the potatoes were planted. The method is to break in late April, turning under a magnificient growth of cover. Then, whenever weeds start, they are immediately disked in and the land finished with a drag. This may be repeated sometimes four or five times before late potatoes are planted.

Many home gardeners, on the other hand, attempt to have late cabbage follow some early crop, in land that has been almost entirely sapped of its moisture. Worse, many have their cabbage follow mustard or early kale or radishes, to run the risk of disease that these put into the soil.

Another cause for late cabbage not thriving is the horde of cabbage worms that have been multiplying all summer on the green leaves on stubs from which heads have been cut, or on the early mustard, the remnants of Seven Top turnip and on radishes gone to seed. If this seed is to be saved, spraying or dusting should be done to keep down the worms, and the entire cabbage plant should be lifted, so that in wilting, it is no longer attractive to the yellow "butterflies" that lay eggs from which hatch the green cabbage worms.

Another cause may be the Yellows disease, "cabbage wilt." In many gardens, there is no doubt as to the presence of this disease in the soil, as the failure to grow cabbage is total. However, many gardens have a mild dose of this trouble, and while early cabbage may be produced after a fashion while the soil is soaked with spring rain, late cabbage, striving in a season that is dry, may fail, or do poorly. Many gardeners have used Wisconsin All Seasons, a yellow-resistant sort (and there are many others), to grow excellent late cabbage. Now is the time for seed sowing, and, to escape the hazard of dry transplanting, pairs or threes of seed may be sown where the heards are to stand, the seedlings thinned to one at a place.

CIVILIANS WILL BE TRAINED FOR INSPECTION WORK IN WAR PLANTS

Columbus, O.—An extensive program for training civilians as inspectors in factories producing vital war equipment, including military telephone, radio and radar apparatus, has been launched by the Army Signal Corps, headquarters of the Fifth Service Command, announced today.

With several thousand women already employed as Signal Corps inspectors, it is expected that the majority of the new trainees will also be women. Training will also be provided for men outside of the Selective Service age brackets and for those disqualified for military service.

The training course for the inspectors, an intensive 8-hour-day, 6-day-week schedule for a period of 6 weeks, includes an outline of the organization of the Signal Corps and the position of the Signal Corps inspector in the factory as a link between the production line and the battle line.

The entrance salary for the inspection jobs, which is paid during the 6-week training period as well as after start of actual work, is $1,752 a year. Subsequent promotions depend on the individual's ability and available vacancies.

Indicating the great importance of inspection work in the production of communication equipment, an improperly soldered connection or an imperfectly calibrated tuning unit may cause a break in the critical chain of communications which can bring up battle reinforcements or warn of any enemy attack in a decisive moment in combat operations.

Applicants for the inspection training should apply at the nearest offices of the Civil Service Commission where selection will be made by means of interviews and simple aptitude tests. In most cases, individuals employed under the Signal Corps plan will receive their training in the geographical areas of their homes and will, wherever possible, be assigned to duty in plants within their home areas. It was pointed out that the inspection jobs offered physically-handicapped persons an excellent opportunity to perform war service.

In Britain, about 150,000 tons of timber, salvaged from bombed buildings, have been refinished and made into crates and boxes for important war uses.

According to estimates, 3,000 tons of tin will be saved in 1943 and 5,000 tons in 1944 by reducing the tin content and adding silver to the lead solder of new cans being manufactured.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Victory gardens in Kentucky are providing abundant supplies of fresh vegetables loaded with vitamins and minerals. Now it is up to the homemakers to see that they reach the table with as little loss as possible.

Potatoes, carrots and other root vegetables retain more food value if they are cooked with their skins on. If they are pared, it should be done thinly, say food specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. They warn, too, that considerable mineral value is lost when vegetables are prepared ahead of time and left in water, unless that water is used. The loss is particularly great when they are cut in pieces.

Cabbage and carrots and other vegetables lose vitamin C when they are shredded, hence they should not be so prepared until just before they are used. Don't throw away the outer dark green leaves of cabbages and lettuce. They contain more vitamin A and minerals than do the bleached inner ones.

For greatest retention of vitamins and minerals, cook vegetables quickly in a minimum of water. Avoid lifting the cover and stirring, if possible, as vitamin C is so lost. Don't add soda to vegetables. It destroys vitamins B and C.

Save small amounts of left-over cooked vegetables to combine with hard cooked eggs and chopped raw vegetables for a salad.

Harvard Beets

3 medium beets, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tbsp. flour, 2 tbsp. sugar, ½ cup water, ½ cup vinegar, one-half tsp. salt.

Cook beets in boiling water until tender with 1 teaspoonful of salt added. Peel and dice in small pieces. Melt butter in a saucepan, add flour and mix, then add water. Bring to boiling point and cook until think. Add vinegar, salt and sugar. Combine with beets. Serve with a border of cooked greens.

Menu: Baked ham cutlets, harvard beets with greens, fruit salad, corn muffins with butter, butterscotch custard pudding.

GOOD FARMING DONE BY KENTUCKY WOMAN

Mrs. Minnie Sloan of Clinton county, demonstrates the part women can take in active farming when necessary. Farm Agent D. E. Salisbury relates that Mrs. Sloan, with the aid of one renter and two boys of 10 and 12 years, operates a farm of 160 acres. Her 80-year-old mother also lives with her.

Although Mrs. Sloan has had to cut her crop acreage half this year because of the labor situation, she has a tobacco base of approximately three acres, two acres of corn, six acres of wheat, one and a half acres of oats, 40 acres of hay, and a garden of three-fourths of an acre.

Then she has 48 head of sheep, three brood mares, two mules, two hogs and one brood sow, 8 cattle, 300 frying chickens and 100 laying hens. Beginning in November of last year, Mrs. Sloan's flock of 100 hens laid an average of 22 eggs per hen per month. She sold eggs to hatcheries for nearly $500 and besides had eggs for home use.

Mrs. Sloan plans at least to equal her canning record of last year when she put up approximately 700 quarts of fruit, vegetables and meats.

Because Nazi authorities in Holland are stripping the country of sugar to supply their troops on the Russian front, Hollanders will be without sugar for one month this fall.

The shellac coating formerly applied to oranges to prevent their shrinkage in transit has been replaced by a wax coating to save shellac for war use.

WORN-OUT FARMS CAN BE RECLAIMED WITH PROFIT NOW

CHICAGO. — Reclaiming "worn-out" farms so they can contribute effectively to the nation's wartime food production is largely a matter of reversing the process that exhausted their fertility, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Most worn-out farms have lost their ability to produce profitable crops because the farmers who tilled them used up the soil fertility faster than they replaced it," says the statement. "These farmers sold plant foods off the land in the form of crops, livestock and milk without bothering to put back any of these plant foods into the soil. The result was lower yields per acre and poorer quality crops.

Plant food pays.

"The remedy," continues the statement, "lies in paying back to the soil what has been borrowed from it, so that its fertility account is solvent once more.

"The rebuilding job entails attention to four steps to put the land back in shape to be farmed profitably. These include: sensible crop rotation; the growing of clover, alfalfa and other nitrogen-fixing legumes; the more effective employment of manure by the regular addition of superphosphate; and the use of fertilizers containing plenty of phosphorus and potash."

Rosebud

Rosebud is eight, and the most beautiful shade of caramel fudge. To her loving Mammy and Pappy she is known, on approximately alternate days, as "Angel" and "You devil child". It was on her devil-child days that Rosebud tied the knots in the shirts that Mammy had taken in for washing, and poured the whole of the vanilla bottle into the lamb stew, just, she said later through bitter tears, to "flavor it up some".

On her angel days Rosebud is equally imaginative even if a more restful occupant of the little shack down on Vinegar Hill. Once when Mammy was out doing day work, Rosebud got a wave of cleaning fever and scoured every pot and pan in the kitchen so that they literally glistened. Another day, left alone, she tidied up Mammy's and Pappy's room to such a point of apple-pie order that it was a week before Pappy could find an undershirt.

Rosebud is a great reader of the newspapers. Mammy and Pappy don't take one, but there are plenty of perfectly good newspapers blowing round Vinegar Hill. It was out of one of them that Rosebud got her idea for spending the ten cents the Bunny had put under her pillow the night her tooth came out. After breakfast Rosebud disappeared down the Hill and reappeared soon after with a beautiful ten-cent War Stamp pasted firmly into a brand-new book with neat little squares for more stamps. She displayed her investment to Mammy. "I declare you're an angel child," Mammy said. Rosebud went on sitting on the kitchen floor staring with large brown eyes at the empty squares in her book. From time to time she took hold of one or another of her teeth and wiggled it, gently.

Mammy was engrossed in a particularly big washing. Rosebud was as quiet as a mouse and Mammy forgot about her until, coming in from the yard with her arms full of dry sheets, she encountered her child with a large hammer in her hand. Scenting the devil in her angel child, Mammy shouted at her, "Rosebud! Come yere with that hammer! What you planning on doing?"

But what was done was done. In Rosebud's other hand was another tooth. Her mouth was stretched in a broad if slightly bloody smile. "I ain't doing nothing, Mammy," she said. "I'm just filling up my stamp book."

THE GARDEN SITUATION

The production of vegetables from Victory Gardens to date has been most gratifying. No figures are available but estimates of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics run well over 50 percent more than was produced in Kentucky last year at this time. So far so good, but the best information available indicates that the pinch will come next winter. This means that the real test of the garden will be the amount of vegetables on the shelves of the storeroom.

To insure ample reserves the garden must be made to continue to produce throughout the summer. The space left vacant by the early vegetables should be spaded and succession crops planted. The crops to go in the garden now may include beets, beans, carrots, late tomatoes, sweet corn and summer squash; in late July, potatoes, beans, telephone peas; August 1, cabbage, chinese cabbage and broccoli; late August and early September, kale, turnips, mustard, spinach and lettuce.

It should be borne in mind that the outlook for obtaining supplies of vegetable products next winter is not good and that the carry-through of the Victory Gardens will materially aid in the food emergency.

FALL AND WINTER BEETS AND CARROTS

Beets and carrots for fall use or storing for winter should be sown in late June. However sowings as late as August 1 sometimes succeed in a favorable season, says the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. These crops may occupy the space that was used for early greens, peas, cabbage, etc. When the early crops are removed, the soil should be spaded or pulverized and worked down to make a fine soil for seeding. Sow beet seed rather thin, about one to the inch and cover about one inch deep. One ounce of seed will sow 50 feet of row. When the plants have developed 4 leaves thin to 4 inches apart. Suggested varieties are Ceasley's Egyptian, Detroit Dark—Red and Winter Keeper.

Special attention is needed to start carrots in hot weather. The seed is small and germinates slowly. To hasten germination the seed may be soaked in water over night, then sown in a furrow about a half-inch deep and covered with moist soil pressed firmly over the seed. A board laid over the row will help to hold moisture till the seedlings appear, when the board should be removed promptly. This procedure is practical only for the home garden.

GANGSTERISM FOLLOWS EXCESSIVE RESTRICTIONS

Apparently retail distributors are in error when they assert that they are the only source through which the civilian population can be furnished necessities. There is the black market. Present government price and regulatory policies favor the latter at the expense of the legitimate merchant. At least that seems to be the effect of latest moves to stop inflation by cracking down on the distribution industry.

Since the life of modern distribution is volume sales on narrow profit margins, it takes no expert to figure out that volume and prices cannot be cut materially without disaster ensuing to even the most efficient retailer. Yet the government is trying to cut both drastically. Thousands of stores have already gone out of business; stores that were doing their part sincerely and patiently to carry out the rules and regulations of the OPA. As more law-abiding merchants are liquidated, consumers will be at the mercy of the black market operator who respects neither ceilings nor rationing restrictions.

Organized distributors, chain and independent, are the the strongest bulwark against food and commodity chaos. They are the front line in the battle against inflation. If they cannot keep a flow of goods moving to consumers through normal retail channels in accordance with the controls laid down by the government, no one else can. One food representative has warned that: "If the legitimate food men are thrown out of business the country will see a flood of black marketing and illegitimate trafficking with food that will become completely uncontrollable."

Not only food, but all other lines of merchandising will be handled by gangsters on back streets. Government measures which indirectly aid these gangsters should cease.

Great Britain has almost two million "allotment" or community war gardens.

Employed persons in the United States in May 1943, totaled more than the country's population in 1880.

Restrictions in the use of steel in war model ice boxes save an average of 79 pounds of steel per ice box.

Bell county farmers, completing cover crop demonstrations, agree that Balbo rye gives the best coverage and winter pasture; vetch is the best soil builder.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati—Now engaged in a lengthy road tour that would tax the stamina of lesser folk, the Cincinnati Reds will return to Crosley Field for a night game with the Chicago Cubs on July 15, and by that time they will have a better indication of how they stack up in the raging National League pennant stream.

Their current invasion of the eastern cities is an arduous expedition that calls for six double headers in four towns, three of them on consecutive days.

They were to open first in Brooklyn with a Wednesday twin bill, take on the Dodgers again in a single contest Thursday, and again on Friday.

Then come the three double features over the Independence Day week-end, with the first two slated for Saturday and Sunday against the Giants in New York, and the last one on Monday against the improved Boston Braves. Two single games will be played in Boston following that, and the Reds then conclude their journey with six games in four days at Philadelphia. All told, the Reds will appear in 19 games on the trip.

Lonny Frey, the team's sparkling second baseman, is again ready for action after more than a week's absence due to a pulled muscle in his leg. Frey's return should brace the club, although Woody Williams who took his place, did admirably. Williams had never played the keystone until this season, and he filled in for Lonny with notable success.

The Reds have big stuff on tap at Crosley Field following their return. After the night game with the Cubs on July 15, the Reds will battle the rising Bruins in a single game on Saturday, July 17, and a double-header the following day.

Many of the Reds are expected to participate in the All-Star game which will be played at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, on Tuesday, July 30.

INDIA SCIENTIST VISITS KENTUCKY

Kentucky was honored by a visit from P. M. Kharegat, of India, after the close of the United Nations food conference at Hot Springs, Va., where he was an official delegate of his government. Calling at the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky at Lexington, he took keen interest in the work being done there to improve tobacco production, in soil building and in crops, livestock and general farming.

Although only three-fourths as big as the United States, India has a population three times as numerous. Food is a ways a problem, Mr. Kharegat said, and industrial development is needed to provide work for the surplus population.

From Lexington Mr. Kharegat went to Knoxville to study the development of the Tennessee Valley Authority. He also planned to study sugar cane growing in Louisiana, and dry-land farming in Kansas and Colorado.

COUNTY POULTRYMEN URGED TO NEW GOAL IN EGG PRODUCTION

Boone County poultrymen are asked by the government to produce approximately 738,000 dozen eggs this year, 6.7 per cent more than in 1942, as their share in the Food for Victory program, the National Poultry Defense Committee estimated today.

This county goal, which is based on the percentage increase suggested for Kentucky by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, can be reached if adequate supplies of labor and feed are available, declared Committee Chairman Hobart Creighton.

"Poultry farmers are now working harder than ever in all-out war production," Creighton said, "continuing the fine job they did in this county last year by producing approximately 691,000 dozen eggs to help supply civilian, military and lend-lease needs. Also, two developments during last year have resulted in larger laying flocks on most farms today:

"First, egg prices as shown by purchases of the A & P Tea Company, one of the larger buyers which paid $108,000 in Kentucky last year for 360,000 dozen, were so favorable that farmers saved an unusually large proportion of potential layers. Second, conditions in 1942 were good raising pullets, as Fall weather was generally mild and the average hatching date was early.

"Those factors point to increased egg production," Creighton explained, "if an improvement can be made in the farm skilled labor situation and if farmers can get enough protein feeds. There are critical shortages of protein ingredients because imports have been cut so drastically. Even soybean oil meal is not being processed fast enough to meet demands. These are major problems facing the industry."

Kentucky poultrymen, who produced a total of 93,666,000 dozen eggs in 1942, are asked for 99,992,000 dozen this year as their share of the national egg goal of 3,780,000,000 dozen.

Hickman county poultry raisers sold 541 roosters weighing 3,410 pounds during the swat-the-rooster campaign.

Ration Books And Cash Stolen From Burlington Home

Three ration books and $7.00 in cash were stolen from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Rouse, Burlington on Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Rouse stated that the culprit removed her purse while she was sewing in an adjoining room. The loss of the purse and money is small, but replacing ration books is very difficult, requiring from thirty to sixty days. She asks that the ration books be returned to her either by mail or placed on her porch.

WAGE-HOUR OFFICE ANNOUNCE OPENING

OF OFFICE IN LEXINGTON—WILL SERVE BOONE AND SURROUNDING COUNTIES, ACCORDING TO RELEASE.

Receipt of numerous inquires by employers and employees in the Lexington, Kentucky, area pertaining to the Wage and Salary Stabilization Program has prompted the opening by the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division of the U. S. Department of Labor of a new temporary field office at Room 427 Federal Building, Lexington, Ky. Announcement of the opening was made last week by William M. Eaves, Regional Director of the Division for the states of Kentucky and Tennessee.

The Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division has been designated by the National War Labor Board as its agent under the Wage Stabilization Program, it was explained by Patrick M. Meloan, Supervising Inspector for the State of Kentucky.

"The new Lexington Field Office, as in the case of other field offices in the region, is equipped to supply information regarding Wage Stabilization to any interested parties," Mr. Meloan said. "It will also review requests for authoritative ruling as to whether a proposed wage or salary adjustment can be placed in effect without approval by the War Labor Board and will assist applicants in the proper completion of the necessary application forms when formal approval by the Board is required."

Employers who desire to make certain wage or salary adjustments may file with the field office a written request for a ruling on Form NWLB-1 as to whether or not the adjustments are within the scope of exemptions provided by the General Orders of the National War Labor Board. When the proposed adjustment is of the type not covered by a General Order, it must be submitted on Application Form NWLB-10. Both types of forms, containing all information and supporting data, must be submitted to the Field Office of the Division for analysis and review.

The new Lexington Office will serve the territory of Central Kentucky, and the office hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Monday through Saturday, each week.

She is survived by her husband Howard E. Banker, one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Gilmore and one sister, Mrs. Pearl M. Harrison. She also leaves several nieces and nephews and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her passing.

RUSSELL M. HALL MAKES STATEMENT

Russell M. "Coke" Hall, democratic candidate for Representative from the 54th Legislative District composed of Boone and Gallatin Counties make the following statement to the voters:

"I am seeking the important office of State representative from Boone-Gallatin District No. 54 with the full realization of the responsibilities a member of the State Legislature must shoulder if elected to that body.

"The following is a brief history of my background and accomplishments: I was born on a farm a few miles southeast of Williamstown in Grant County, Kentucky, and my early childhood followed closely the established pattern of a farmer's son in this locality. My education was started at Williamstown, from which high school I was graduated in 1924 and later attended the University of Kentucky and business school at Y. M. C. A. in Cincinnati. After finishing business school several months were spent as assistant cashier of the Cincinnati branch of Royal Typewriter Company. Returning to Williamstown, I was employed as store manager for The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company in several localities in Northern Kentucky and Southern Indiana. In the spring of 1929 I entered the employ of the predecessors of the Community Public Service Company and have held a responsible position with them since that time. The major portion of the past 14 years has been spent as district manager for the local electric service company in Boone County. In discharging the duties of my job it has been my privelege to contact a large majority of the citizens of Boone and adjoining counties. I believe that my background of living and dealing with farmers and residents of rural communities together with experience gained as a business head, render me competent to discharge the duties of your State Representative.

"I have tried over a period of years to be identified with any and every worthwhile enterprise looking to the betterment of the community. I earnest solicit the support and vote of each and every citizen of Boone and Gallatin counties in order that I may continue to promote the prosperity of the two counties in particular and the grand old State of Kentucky in general.

"Due to the present restrictions on tires and gasoline, a house-to-house campaign cannot be arranged, so I must depend on this message to earnestly solicit the support of each and every voter, but between now and August 7th a sincere effort will be made to contact as many citizens as is possible."

Now Is Time To Plant 4-H Club Fall Gardens

The 4-H garden project is not completed by raising just one planting of each vegetable, according to O. D. Perkinson, Assistant County Agent. Now is the time to make plantings for fall gardens. Late cabbage, beans, potatoes, tomatoes and corn should be planted this month. The land used for late gardens should be worked thoroughly and dragged or rolled until a firm seed bed is established.

Seed will need to be planted deeper now than the same kind of seed were in early spring. Moisture is necessary for seed to germinate. The seed should be planted deep enough so the soil will not dry out down to the seed.

Mrs. Ella G. Tanner

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Tharp & Stith funeral home, Florence, for Mrs. Ella Grubbs Tanner, who died Sunday at St. Elizabeth hospital after a long illness. Burial was in the Grubbs family cemetery at Richwood.

Mrs. Tanner, a resident of Florence, spent most of her life in Boone County. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church at Union. She was 78.

She is survived by one son, Claud M., Florence; a stepson, Alfred L., Amelia, O.; one sister, Mrs. Ida G. Hunter, Ft. Mitchell; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Tharp and Stith, Florence funeral directors were in charge of arrangements.

JOHNSON MAKES OFFICIAL BOW

SEEKS OFFICE OF REPRESENTATIVE FROM BOONE AND GALLATIN COUNTIES—IS RESIDENT OF WALTON.

Kenneth E. Johnson of Walton, makes his formal bow to the voters of Boone and Gallatin Counties in this issue of The Recorder, for the office of Representative. He makes the following statement:

"To the voters of Boone and Gallatin Counties, which now comprise a new Representative District, I personally deem it an honor and a privilege to be a candidate for the office of State Representative, in the first primary election to determine a candidate for this office.

"Thru influence of friends in my home county of Boone and friends in Gallatin to whom I am well known I now make my formal announcement for the office of State Representative to the voters in this district which now includes these two neighboring counties.

"For the past two years I have been periodically away from home working in War Defense plants. I cannot be too informative as to exact locations, but will say that in that time plants where I have worked on construction, are now pouring out tons of gun powder, carloads of loaded bags of this powder, turning out thirty and fifty caliber bullets by the thousands, and completed aeroplane motors are rolling off assembly lines and are being shipped, and ferried to all points of the globe.

"Experiences of this type, and proud to have been a factor in completion of these plants, has been a source of great pride to me, and yet what little I have contributed seem to be but naught, when I think of the contributions that have been made in hundreds of homes in this district, as well as the nation at large. The boys and girls of our counties that have left their homes to take their places in battle areas on both land and sea. The donations to our blood banks for the preservation of the lives of our boys who are wounded. The money that has been loaned our Government by purchasing War Bonds to help keep our forces equipped and supported on the fighting fronts. The activities and work of our churches, various municipal, rural and community clubs that are now centered on war time needs, and to reach this war eventually (we hope soon) consummation.

"Even with all these activities, we are still striving to maintain, and are maintaining our home, community and public life—that is the typical American way. Our schools must be kept open for instruction our children as they have done in the past; our farms must be tilled to keep our food stocks ample to provide for wartime needs, and our government, National, State and County must be maintained if we present a solid front to our unworthy enemies.

"With these thoughts in mind and a personal wish to further foster and contribute, I want my candidacy to be impressed on every voter in this district. I hope to be elected to this office I am seeking to further aid in maintaining our American way of living, thru earnest consideration and instrumentally as your Representative at Frankfort at our next General Assembly.

"My pledge to this electorate is to do everything within my power and extend every effort toward maintaining this American way of living thru good constructive legislation and working with our National Administration in promoting from our State and County fronts cooperative, contributive, and commensurate policies needed to bring this present Global Halocaust to an end, and lay legislative grounds now for post war reconstruction that will bring these people of the world together and prevent a recurrence of hostilities which is presented and faces each generation as this world progresses.

'With this my pledge to the Democratic electorate of Boone and Gallatin Counties, and an earnest desire on my part to serve as your next State Representative, go to your respectivs polling places August 7th this year and cast a typical American Democrat ballot for Kenneth E. (Jack) Johnson and let him, thru your ballots, help us preserve our American way of life. When the Kentucky General Assembly meets in Legislative session next January, Kenneth E. (Jack) Johnson, wants to be there.

"I hope I may prove worthy of your confidence and esteem."

Selective Service Official Visits Local Draft Board

Lt. Colonel Carrol S. Carter, Assistant State Director of Selective Service, met with Local Board members and the re-employment committeemen June 26th in regard to employment of discharged soldiers. The Local Board appreciated meeting and discussing matters pertaining to Selective Service with Col. Carter who is very interesting and well informed, having served two years under National Director, Hershey prior to his assignment as Assistant State Director of Kentucky, with headquarters at Louisville, Ky.

School Band Will Be Feature At Fair

The Boone County School Band, under the efficient direction of Dean Bloss, will be a special feature of the 1943 Fair, according to the Fair Program Committee.

This band has attracted wide attention from all sections of the county. Its members, totaling approximately seventy-five, have made marked progress the past three years. They are expected to be one of the many special attractions at the fair this year.

FARM WOMEN ENLIST IN WLA

WOMEN ARE MAKING IMPORTANT CONTRIBUTION IN FOOD PRODUCTION—DETAILS EXPLAINED BY HDA.

The Women's Land Army may henceforth include farm women, according to information received by Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. Farm women are making an important contribution in food production and merit the special recognition which membership in the WLA will give them.

The modifications in the WLA eligibility requirements applying to farm women are as follows:

(1) They should expect to do at least the minimum requirement of one month's agricultural work—this might be one-fourth of the time for four months, one-sixth of the time for six months, and so on. The time covered is from May 1st when the legislation was enacted, to December 30, which includes most of this crop year.

(2) Physical examinations are not required.

(3) Special training would not be required.

Farm women applying for membership in the WLA would register with the County Extension office, be certified as members, and be eligible to wear the uniform and to apply for accident insurance.

The WLA uniform includes a pair of dark blue denim overalls, a light blue long sleeved cotton shirt and a cap with a visor combining both the light and dark blue materials. These are bought separately, the cap is $1.00, the long-sleeved shirt $1.65 and the blue overalls $3.55. The uniform is available in sizes 14 to 44. A dark-blue denim jacket at $2.50 is optional. There is also a short-sleeved cotton shirt available at $1.35.

The material is lighter in wight than that used in the men's work clothes, preshrunk and fast color. The design is suited to a woman's figure and to a woman's uses

The WLA insignia is attached to the hat and overalls of the uniforms. This insignia has "WLA" in red letters on a white background with the U. S. Crop Corps emblem in the lower part. After serving a year, a WLA member will be eligible for the insignia which denotes a year's service.

Authorized members of the W. L. A. may order the uniforms from the National Committee on Boys and Girls' Club Work, 59 East Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill. The orders must bear the signature of the Home Demonstration Agent to signify that the person is an authorized member of the WLA. Order blanks for the uniform and certification forms may be obtained from the extension Office. A supply of the uniforms will be available for purchase on or before July 15.

It is not required that a member of the WLA wear a uniform, but it is believed that a woman who helps produce the nation's food, feed and fiber will get a thrill out of this recognition of her contribution and she certainly will be provided with an unusually attractive, comfortable and practical work outfit.

NEW PRINCIPAL IS NAMED HERE

ALL OF BURLINGTON TEACHING STAFF NOW COMPLETE WITH TWO EXCEPTIONS—OTHER SCHOOL STAFFS INCOMPLETE.

Morgan E. Gillock, of Pleasureville, Ky., has been selected by the local school board to take up the duties as principal of the Burlington school for the ensuing year, according to Supt. D. H. Norris.

Mr. Gillock, age 42, has taught in the Pleasureville High School for seven years, having received his A. B. degree from Western State Teachers College, and his M. A. degree from the University of Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Gillock expect to move to this community sometime this fall.

Other newcomers to the Burlington staff this year are Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gardner, of Alexandria, Ky. Mr. Gardner will teach in the Junior high department and his wife will teach the beginners.

Teachers who have been employed from last year: Mrs. Lallie Kelly Miss Mildred Siekman and Miss Harrison.

According to Mr. Norris the teachings staffs in other parts of the county have not been entirely completed and that as soon as they are complete a list of all county teachers in all the schools will be published.

Cincinnati Man Assessed Fine Of $29.50 For Game Violation

Thompson was arraigned in Judge Cropper's court and was assessed a fine of $29.50.

Three Men Inducted Into Army During June

Draft Board No. 9, Burlington reported three men inducted from Boone County during the month of June. They were Ivan Norris, and Kenneth Rodamer, both volunteering in Army Air Corps, and Wm. Chas. Turner, inducted.

No information is available as to the August call, according to C. G. Kelly, clerk of Local Board.

TOBACCO QUOTAS RECEIVE O. K.

FROM HOUSE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE—QUOTAS WILL BE ON BASIS OF 1943 ACREAGE.

Washington, July 1—Reporting on a resolution by Rep. Virgil Chapman, Democrat, Kentucky, the House Agriculture Committee today had approved a resolution authorizing the secretary of agriculture to fix 1944 burley and fluecured tobacco quotas on the basis of 1943 quotas.

The committee, in its report said: "The purpose is to assure that there will be available for the production of essential food and fiber the land, labor and equipment which probably will be devoted to the production of tobacco in the absence of any assurance that marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1944 crop."

Imposition of marketing quotas on tobacco production is voluntary, dependent upon a two-thirds vote in a referendum conducted among the farmers by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The resolution does not affect any other provision of the existing Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, and subsequent amendments, beyond setting the 1944 quota, the committee said.

No other types of tobacco would be affected.

FOOD FOR A HUNGRY WORLD

The food conference held by the United Nations at Hot Springs, Virginia, was called a complete success by President Roosevelt. The Conference agreed that the world has never yet produced enough proper food for all its people but it expressed confidence that full production needs could be met through the simple process of better use of the land that God left for human beings to work and cultivate. The Conference went a-dreaming over theories about exploitation, political aggrandisement, tariff walls, international currency—and other things that the United States eventually would have to pay for.

Herbert Hoover was a successful administrator of food in World War I, but the wise men of this Administration never ask him for good advice. Mr. Hoover spoke at a meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation this week and he said it was up to the National Administration to make "drastic changes" in order to clear up "this muddle of uncontrolled food prices, local famines, profiteering, black markets and stifled farm production."

Washington has been entertaining doubts about the success of the double-headed Administration of the Agricultural Department, operated by Mr. Wickard as Cabinet Secretary, and Chester C. Davis as Food Administrator. The former President apparently approves putting the two jobs under one head, and he selects Davis to replace Wickard. A lot of people will disagree with that choice. It seems to be the only point on which Roosevelt and Hoover agree. Wickard is a first-class farmer and he knows his potatoes, grains, cottons and soybeans. He may be a little slow on learning political tricks but he has plenty of what might be called farm and horse sense. He is neither a New Dealer nor a Republican and maybe that counts against him.

The whole question seems to create a division over whether the United States who wants to make a sort of Willkie "One World" job out of feeding the hungry world or, doing the job single-handed the way Hoover did when he was Food Administrator for the United States. A few months ago Herbert Lehman resigned as Governor of New York State to take this same important job. He hasn't been prominent in the picture the last three or four months.

OUR MOST IMPORTANT RESOURCE

By T. V. Fortenberry, Supt. Union County Schools

Kentuckians can take justifiable pride in our native state. We can take pride in a state which is rich in resources as is Kentucky. Its great coal deposits, its many miles of navigable streams, its ribbons of highways stretching from north to south, from east to west; its beautiful public buildings, its varied climate, its scenic beauties, its broad acres of fertile lands are all sufficient to cause us all to feel proud of our native state.
